TUBERCULOSIS CAMP.

What the Out Door Tuberculosis Camp Has Done for One Quincy Man.

John J. Clare of 50 Pleasant street sails today for Ireland. Mr. Clare is a stone cutter by trade and was one of those in whom the germs of the great White Plague were implanted by the stone dust. During the past winter he has been taking the out of door treatment under the direction of the Emmanuel church class and has lived in a tent at his home. No matter what the weather, there has not been a night since he began the treatment that he has not slept out of doors. In the following communication to the Ledger he gives his experience for the benefit of others who have the same dread disease.

Editor Quincy Ledger:

I would like to say a word for the battle against tuberculosis. It would be a good thing to have this out door camp started and the granite cutters of this city ought to put their shoulder to the wheel as it is their members that are most frequently attacked and die of this disease. Fourteen months ago I was taken with a bad cough and much raising. Dr. Ellsworth of this city decided that I had the dread disease. He gave me a letter to Dr. Joseph H. Pratt of Boston, who is director of the Emmanuel church class for the treatment of tuberculosis. I was admitted into the class Aug. 13, 1908. My weight at the time was 156 pounds. I commenced taking the out door treatment. I was close to death through the winter but when spring came I was feeling some better. At the present time I feel fairly well but not well enough to do any work. Yet I am in a fair way to recovery.

My weight is now 181 pounds having gained 25 pounds. I cannot say too much in favor of the out door treatment and the free use of milk. I am now going to a milder climate for the winter, by the consent and advice of both physicians, taking with me a letter from Dr. Pratt.

It is my sincere hope that this camp will soon be opened, for there are many afflicted with the disease in our midst and many who die prematurely for want of proper care.

Sincerely yours,
John J. Clare,
50 Pleasant street.

"I AM ------ WHO ARE YOU?"

Unique Cards of Introduction at Home Coming Jubilee

A large number attended the home coming jubilee or church reunion held Thursday evening at the Wollaston Methodist church.

As each person entered the church, he was approached by an attractive young lady, who pinned on a card, upon which was printed "I am——— Who are you?" In this manner many informal introductions were in order and both old friends and new comers were at once put at their ease.

On the receiving committee were: Rev. and Mrs. Wesley Wiggin, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Sedgwick, Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Saunders. The ushers were: Miss Ethel Smith, Miss Mabel Lupton, Miss Abbie Stoddard and Miss Minnie Woodhead.

Following organ selections by Miss Ada C. Stone, J. A. Sedgwick took the chair and reports were heard from the various organizations connected with the church. The remarks which followed were witty and interesting and many friendly sallies concerning some member of the parish drew the laughter of the audience.

Mr. Sedgwick made a short address of welcome in which he said that he wished he had a key to the church door to give each one of them to make them realize this was their church home and they were always welcome.

Rev. Wesley Wiggin, pastor of the church, who followed said there were certain things a church needed to be successful, among them being loyalty and cooperation. We cannot all do the same thing but if each does his small task the result will be a grand success. He also spoke of the Sunday school and urged a larger attendance.

The Epworth league was spoken for by Herbert Cassidy, its president. He declared that the prospects for the coming season were bright and invited all those present to become members.

Mr. Sedgwick then called upon George Taylor of the Men's club and jokingly announced he would speak on "How I get the members out."

Mrs. W. E. Saunders spoke for the Missionary societies and Mrs. J. A. Sedgwick gave a most interesting talk on the Ladies Aid society concluding with an amusing poem entitled: "Ladies Aid."

Mr. Murray responded to the subject, "Church support" and in the course of his remarks said that he thought the cards with which each was tagged should read, "Who are you? How much?" instead of the way they did.

In closing various individuals were called upon for ideas as to how the church might be benefited.

During the evening Mrs. W. B. Ferguson rendered several readings in her usual interesting and attractive manner. Mr. O. N. Estes favored those present with several fine vocal selections.

Upon adjourning to the vestry refreshments were served by the ushers and Miss A. O. Stoddard and Miss Ada C. Stone poured.

From first to last the entire affair was of greatest success and the best spirit of good fellowship prevailed. From all evidences it appears that this opens a most successful season of church life.

OPENING OF ANNUAL FAIR

Those in Charge at Swedish Lutheran Church Fair

The annual three days fair under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the Swedish Lutheran church was formerly opened Thursday evening in the presence of a large gathering, by Mayor Shea. In declaring the fair opened the Mayor spoke briefly of the good work that could be accomplished by a Ladies' society and said that the array of attractive articles on sale at the different tables was evidence that they were thrifty. He also spoke of the good work that the church was doing and hoped that everybody would patronize the booths freely in order that the fair might be a success financially.

Following the remarks of the Mayor there was a brief entertainment the program of which was as follows:

March A. A. Clappe
"Return of the Admiral,"
Chorus by the Choir
Recitation—Selected Mrs. Britta Nelson
Overture— Lee Johnson
"Chicken Coup Brigade,"
Address by Mayor Shea
Baritone Solo—Selected Chas. Chilstedt
Chorus by the Choir
Cake Walk—"In Ole Alabama Wiseman

The hall was very prettily decorated with the American and Swedish national flags and the several tables and booths presented an attractive appearance. In addition to the articles on sale at the table there were a number of articles that were to be disposed of by books. These included a guitar presented by C. F. Carlson.

One of the booths that attracted considerable attention was the fish pond also the grab bag and wheel of fortune. Then there were tables of useful and fancy articles, ice cream, coffee, and refreshments. Each of the tables was prettily decorated the whole arrangement presenting a gay scene.

Those in charge of the several tables and booths were as follows:

Fancy table—Miss Alfreda Carlson and Miss Gerda Johnson.

Candy and peanut table—Miss Helma Viden and Miss Lillian Carlson.

Grab bag—Miss Anna Peterson and Miss Elizabeth Nelson.

Grocers table—Allan Luddergren.

Punch bowl—Miss Olga Olsen.

Ice Cream—Mrs. Svenson.

Fruit—Miss Esther Thorn.

The Ladies' Aid fancy table was in charge of Mrs. Nordhal and Mrs. A. Nelson.

Fish pond—Arthur Svenson and August Viden, who said it was a better night for lobsters than fish.

Wheel of fortune—William Ekblom and Carl Carlson.

Doll table—Miss Esther Svenson and Miss Anna Ekblom.

During the evening music was furnished by Childsted's orchestra.

The ladies who were in general charge of the fair were Mrs. Andrew Nelson, representing the Ladies' Aid society and Miss Katherine Nelson representing the Dorcus society.

There were over two hundred present Thursday evening and a much larger attendance is expected tonight, so that the success of the fair is assured.

WHIST PARTY.

Forty Tables Participate in West Quincy Party.

Forty tables participated in the whist party at Farnum's hall, West Quincy Thursday evening, held under the auspices of Joyce's orchestra. Refreshments were served and during the evening there were selections by the orchestra. Prizes for the best scores were awarded as follows:

SEASON OF 1909 OPENED

Reception and Entertainment at the Y. M. C. A.

The opening night at the Y. M. C. A. turned out to be all that it was promised and more too. The entire evening was taken up with interesting entertainments, and besides these the pool table and bowling alleys were open to all. About one hundred and fifty were present during the evening to enjoy the interesting and varied program. Until eight thirty the evening was given over to making the new comers acquainted with the building and the members.

At eight-thirty the party turned to the gym. where some interesting stunts were scheduled to take place. The first event was a wrestling bout between Frank Foster and George Benzie of the Boston Y. M. C. A. It was a short match and the men had very little chance to mix it up much, but what there was of it was good. The next event carded was Indian Club swinging and this was one of the best things of the evening. Robert Gourlie of the Boston Y. M. C. A. was the performer and for those who cared for that manner of sport this was very interesting. A fencing bout between S. A. Sanford of the Boston Y. M. C. A. and G. M. Gifford of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. took up the attention for a while but as the spectators generally knew very little about fencing, and wished to be informed of the fine points of the game, by the fencers during their engagement, it was rather hard for them to show much class. However it looked to the casual observer as if Mr. Gifford fairly out-classed the Boston man all through the contest. There was also a good basket ball scrimmage, of five minute halves with Dave Morris' team pulling out a winner 5 to 2.

At nine o'clock the party wended its way to the assembly hall and here listened to the best event of the evening. It was a farce entitled: "Romance under difficulties" and was admirably given by the four who composed the cast. The most interesting figure was Jack Hallowell who took the part of Fanny, to perfection. Few realized that the youth would make so fair a girl until they viewed him upon the stage, where with his large coil of blond hair, beautiful complexion and sweet voice he certainly made a hit with the audience. Mr. Osgood was good in his impersonation of the part of Tim Diggles and kept the house roaring from beginning to end. George Newcomb in the part of Mr. Benjamin B. Newbery and Lester H. Clee in the part of Frederick Markham, the villain were very effective. Especially Mr. Clee and when his voice rang loud and true as he declared his love for Fanny, alias Jack he set the audience wild. The plot of the play turned on Frederick's love for Fanny at the same time that Tim Diggles was also smitten with affection for her. Diggles made love with the aid of his cornet and Markham bravely sealed the wall to woo his maid. Unfortunately the brave lover finds himself in Diggles room and straightway dispatches a note to Fanny and hides. The daughter is met in Diggles room and then the father invades the haunts of the other elderly man in search of his daughter. When he is gone Fanny who has been hiding with Fred emerges and then Diggles loses his head and begins to make love to his young and beautiful inspiration.

The attempts to continue his wooing under the stress of the pins which Markham shoves into his anatomy are ridiculous and the audience was not over the effects of this scene when the old man arrives on the scene in search of his daughter and then there was some more fun in the shape of revelations. Frederick and Fannie receive the father's blessing and are happy while poor old Tim Diggles goes back to his bachelor life a sadder and a wiser man with all the romance knocked out of him.

Every incident was received by the audience in fine humor and when the play was over the actors were showered with congratulations.

Refreshments were last in order but not least and as Harry Brooks was in charge of this end of the program which left no doubt of enough and good eatables. The night was brought to a close by a short address by Mr. Gay the General secretary and everybody went away feeling that they had enjoyed one of the best times of their lives.

Edward W. Dodd said to be one of the last lineal descendants of John Hancock died at his home this week in Normandy, France. It has often been stated in patriotic gatherings that there are no lineal descendants of John Hancock as no children survived him.

It is quite time that the city of Boston awoke to the fact that the Neponset bridge should be repaired or rebuilt. The timbers and planking are worn and weakened and the drawbridge in such condition that traffic has had to be restricted to a single line. It is a pity the old wooden structure cannot be replaced by an up-to-date modern bridge.

The new catch basin and drain at the corner of Washington and Maple streets should solve the water and ice problem this winter. In the past it has either been a mud hole or a pond. Another thing very much needed at this corner is a cross walk so that pedestrians can cross Maple street to the Post Office dry shod in bad weather.

Another new parasite has arrived in this country known as the gid or staggers. The disease was imported with sheep brought from Scotland two years ago. The disease which has killed many animals in Great Britain and other foreign countries is found in a cyst in the brain of the animal. Several have died from this cause on a farm in New York and is causing some worry among the farmers.

The Boston Record says the "antiquated system of city lights out at 1 A. M., is beginning to disturb many Walthamites, especially those living on the south side. Not only is it next to impossible for the belated resident to find his way about the streets in the dark stormy mornings, but people are beginning to realize the utter uselessness and inadequacy of the police force under such conditions. Many contend that there would be fewer attempts at burglary if the city kept its streets lighted until daybreak." Wonder if the Record man has ever been in Quincy after 1 A. M.

WHO OWNS THE HOSPITAL?

Who owns the hospital?

Charles Woodberry, the president of the Beverly hospital corporation, asks this very pertinent question in his annual report and then proceeds to answer it in a manner which explains the position of the hospital to all who are interested.

"The hospital belongs to the incorporators of which there are one hundred and sixty or more all of them citizens of Beverly," says the President. "These incorporators elect the board of directors to manage the hospital. The responsibility of maintaining the hospital rests on these owners collectively, their duty is to do their utmost to make the work of the hospital successful."

This puts the proposition in an interesting manner. The hospital is for the citizens of Beverly and managed on broad lines should meet the support of every citizen of the city.

The report of the building committee shows what splendid work has been done and the magnificent spirit of co-operation evinced through all the time the project was being carried forward to a substantial end. Now that the hospital has been erected and is a credit to the city and to the committee who did such commendable work for it, it is for the citizens of Beverly to assist in helping to make it an institution such as it is designed to be, "one for all the people."

The above clipping from the Beverly Times shows that the Beverly and Quincy Hospitals are carried on in much the same manner.

THE FOUNTAIN OF EVIL.

A great wave of moral reform has inundated Washington, D. C., says the Lawrence Telegram. They're going to make the capital so pure that you'll have to blow your nose before entering the Pennsylvania depot, and clean your fingernails before climbing the Washington monument.

It has been known for some time that the social evil flourished in Washington as nowhere else in the land; that society was pretty much devoted to bridge whist gambling, and that a statesman or government official who wasn't an adept at draw poker hadn't much standing. But all this is to be changed.

HAIR RESTORER
Grew a Full Growth of Hair On a Bald Head

Here's the Proof

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

Three little boys were arraigned before Judge Kimball the other day for playing marbles for "keeps." Judge Kimball is the magistrate who let old Harper off with a small fine for selling headache dope, but he knew when he had real enemies of public morality before him, and so he said to these little boys:

"The playing of marbles for keeps is a violation of the law, and as long as I am on the bench I propose to break it up!"

Such judicial perspicuity, determination and courage have been needed in Washington for many years, and it is good to record that the moral sentiment is to be backed by the magistracy.

United States senators have been sued and shot by women. Federal judges have been caught red-handed at poker, congressmen play the stock market, and the rage for whist stakes that has obsessed the first society ladies of the nation has long tainted our national morality. All efforts at reform in these matters have been nil. No progress toward moral betterment could be made while the boys were playing marbles for "keeps."

We regret that our archives contain no picture of the great soul who is behind this reform movement at the capital. We have a good picture of a jackass, but it represents one with four legs, and it would be slander on a very useful creature, comparatively, to use it in this connection.

A BOSS A NECESSITY.

When men speak of putting an end to boss rule, they generally mean the transfer of authority from one leader to another. It not infrequently means the substitution of themselves for the man they have declaimed against. In all movements there must be leaders, and in the last resort some one man must be followed if success is to be won. There comes a time in the leadership of most men, when ambitious rivals seek the place that he has occupied. This is natural, and if the leader has lost his hold on his following he must give up his honors to another. But that is only a substitution. The new man becomes the leader, the boss ,or whatever name suits the fancy of those who apply the designation. Deprecating leadership is silly and places the one who disparages it under suspicion of a desire to wear the honors or at least to transfer them. Leaders may come and leaders may go, but leadership will go on forever. Nothing is gained by the cant about boss rule, or that people govern spontaneously, without a common understanding, or the guidance of recognized leadership. The people never have and never will vote down leadership. They sometimes depose a leader, but they immediately install another. So it is, so it was, and so it will always be.—Lynn Item.

AN EASY AND HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR.

Who does not know of the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, put up an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. It is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the manufacturers upon receipt of price.

A POOR ECONOMY.

The man who thinks he is making an economy by getting along without a local newspaper is a poor arithmetician. Let him begin by figuring what he and his family will lose by not being able to follow the local advertising.

The announcements of our merchants are for the family of limited means the most valuable news in the paper. They tell when bargains can be obtained, and enable the reader to reduce home expenses by an amount far in excess of his yearly subscription.

To get the advantages of a bargain sale it is not enough to read a day's old newspaper in a barber's shop or on a neighbor's table. You need to get it at the same time your neighbors do, that you may visit the store before the low priced goods are worked off.

Every business man, every mechanic, if wide awake, will find many suggestions in the news columns that will set him thinking. The farmer and market gardener learns how crops are, and what his neighbors are planting. The business man sees what his competitors are advertising. The mechanic learns about labor conditions, opportunities for change of situation, union organization, etc.

Isn't it penny wise, pound foolish, to get along without such information.—Beverly Times.

VAHEY BEATS COUGHLIN

His Substantial Lead In Battle For Nomination

CONVENTION IS HARMONIOUS

Bay State Democrats Would Have Had No Difficulty In Nominating Hamlin For Governorship Had Hamlin and Vahey Been Willing—Unexpected Advocacy of Name of Thayer—Foss and Shepard, Republicans, Placed on Ticket—Tariff Reduction and Direct Nominations Favored

Boston, Oct. 1.—The Massachusetts Democracy, in convention at Faneuil hall, named its state ticket, headed by James H. Vahey of Watertown, and adopted a platform of party principles.

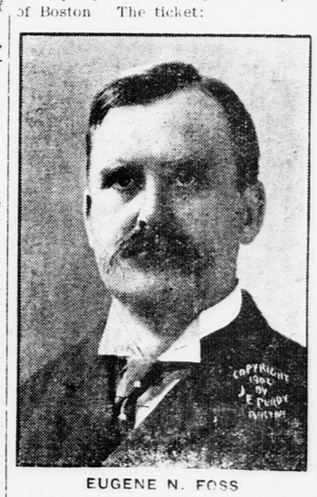
In the opinion of everybody it was a harmonious convention, but it was an uneasy convention, which seemed likely at any moment to break forth into something unusual.

JAMES H. VAHEY

The disposition of the delegates to get restless and abandon the program laid down by their leaders was shown when Vahey was speaking at his allusion to Chairman Hamlin.

There was no danger of the nomination of Hamlin. But had Vahey been willing and Hamlin been willing it was remarked that there would have been no especial difficulty in nominating Hamlin right there.

Harmony was not the only feature of the convention, however, for unusual interest was attached to the convention by the fact that two men formerly enrolled in the Republican ranks were named in the Democratic ticket. These so-called "liberal" Republicans were Eugene N. Foss, for many years the foremost member of the "reciprocity wing" of the Republican party, and Harvey N. Shepard of Boston The ticket:



EUGENE N. FOSS

For governor, James H Vahey of Watertown; lieutenant governor, Eugene N. Foss of Scituate; secretary of state, Arthur T. Clark of Williamstown; treasurer and receiver-general, James H. Bryan of Westfield; attorney general, Harvey N. Shepard of Boston; auditor, Alexis Boyer, Jr., of Southbridge.

Party leaders feared—needlessly, it proved—that the refusal of John T. Coughlin of Fall River to withdraw his candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination in opposition to Vahey might cause a split in the convention, but Coughlin took his defeat gracefully and promised Vahey and the party the unqualified support of himself and his followers in the coming state campaign.

Coughlin's candidacy showed more strength than the party leaders gave it credit, although Vahey had a commanding lead when the votes were counted.

An unexpected incident of the convention was an address by Michael S. Flaherty of Whitinsville, a delegate who claimed to represent the "Democracy of the Blackstone Valley," who, in a burst of oratory, appealed to Coughlin and Vahey to withdraw their names as candidates for the governorship and support former Congressman John R. Thayer of Worcester, whose name he presented to the convention. While Flaherty was given liberal applause, the convention did not take kindly to his suggestion, as the ballot indicated.

Meanwhile the Vahey men began to become suspicious that the convention was not so overwhelming as it might be. They circulated through the convention looking for trouble.

Then the nominating speeches were finished and the two candidates appeared in the rear of the hall. Coughlin spoke first, receiving a fine reception.

Vahey arose amid cheers. It was the critical moment of the convention. When he said that he hoped some time to have the pleasure of nominating Charles S. Hamlin for governor a number of delegates arose and shouted: "Nominate him now. Do it now."

After the two addresses there was a motion to proceed to ballot. The result of the voting for Governor was:

Total number of votes cast.....584
Necessary for a choice.....293
For James H. Vahey.....384
For John T. Coughlin.....198
For John R. Thayer..... 2

The Platform

The Democracy of Massachusetts, in convention assembled, pledges itself to those principles and propositions which it presents for the consideration of the citizens of the commonwealth:

The immediate reduction of the tariff duties on the necessaries of life.

Rebuke to the Republican party for its iniquitous tariff revision humbug.

A comprehensive reciprocal trade treaty with Canada not confined to any competitive products.

The income tax and the election only of those candidates for the legislature pledged to the ratification of the constitutional amendment.

Anti-imperialism.

The election of United States senators by direct popular vote.

Direct nominations.

The extirpation of the state house lobby.

Effective legislation to prevent corrupt practices in elections.

The enactment into law of the eight-hour bill vetoed by Governor Draper.

Reform of injunction abuses.

Trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.

Opposition to government by commissions.

Thorough investigation of the finances of the state government.

Home rule for the cities of the commonwealth.

Establishment of agricultural schools throughout the commonwealth.

The Democratic party is unalterably opposed to special privileges; it harbors no hostility to wealth, but demands equal opportunities to all, for the manufacturer, the merchant, the farmer and small firm, from unjust discrimination and the operations of monopolies.

For the workingman, wages, conditions and hours of labor, and prices for the necessaries of life consistent with the development of the faculties, the preservation of health, the maintenance and education of children, the embodiment of American ideals in citizenship.

The Republican organization has placed itself in open antagonism to the progressive element of its own party; the Democratic party thus becomes by force of circumstances the only means of expression of popular reform and the sentiment of the people. Where there is identity of purpose there should be community of action, and all good citizens should regard it as their patriotic duty to subordinate party regularity to the public good.

Speeches by Candidates

Congressman O'Connell of Boston also introduced a resolution, which was adopted, expressing the sorrow of the Massachusetts Democracy at the death of Governor Johnson of Minnesota.

Charles S. Hamlin of Boston was the permanent chairman of the convention, which was attended by 812 delegates from 33 cities and 279 towns.

The convention at one time partook of the nature of a joint debate. During a lull in proceedings, both of the candidates for the gubernatorial nomination were given an opportunity for addressing the delegates. Mayor Coughlin, who was the first speaker, based his claims for the nomination on the fact that he had been thrice elected Democratic mayor of a Republican city, that he had been a mediator in a grave contest between capital and labor and had settled the controversy satisfactorily, and he also claimed that he would have the support of 20,000 independent Republicans.

Mr. Vahey's self-declared reasons for being awarded the nomination were principally the services he had rendered the party, and the fact that as the party's standard bearer last year he had attained a strength which made him the logical candidate this year.

The convention was in session four and three-quarter hours.

THE BLUE STORE, 1475 Hancock St., Quincy

Aug. 23 lo-tf

This latter was so essentially undeserved and so artlessly insincere that he must needs, of course, treat it with all seriousness.

"That isn't fair, Miss Calendar. Really it's not."

"What am I to think? I've told you any number of times that it's only an hour's ride on to Chiltern, where the Pyrfords will be glad to take me in. You may depend upon it, by 8 tonight, at the latest, you'll have me off your hands—the drag and worry that I've been ever since"—

"Don't!" he pleaded vehemently. Please! You know it isn't that. I don't want you off my hands, ever. That is to say, I—ah"— Here he was smitten with a dumbness and sat, aghast at the enormity of his blunder, entreating her forgiveness with eyes that very likely pleaded his cause more eloquently than he guessed.

"I mean," he floundered on presently, in the fatuous belief that he would this time be able to control both mind and tongue—"what I mean is I'd be glad to go on serving you in any way I might to the end of time if you'd give me"—

He left the declaration inconclusive—a stroke of diplomacy that would have graced an infinitely more adept wooer. But he used it all unconsciously. "O Lord!" he groaned in spirit. "Worse and more of it! Why in thunder can't I say the right thing right?"

"Dear Mr. Kirkwood," she said gently, bending forward as if to read between the lines anxiety had graven on his countenance, "won't you tell me, please, what it can be that so worries you?"

In exasperation he interrupted almost rudely. "It's only this—I—I'm strapped."

"Strapped?" She knitted her brows over this fresh specimen of American slang.

"Flat strapped — busted — broke—on my uppers—down and out." He reeled off synonyms without a smile. "I haven't enough money to pay cab fare across the town"—

"Oh!" she interpolated, enlightened.

—"to say nothing of taking us to Chiltern. I couldn't buy you a glass of water if you were thirsty. There isn't a soul on earth within hail who would trust me with a quarter—I mean a shilling—across London bridge. I'm the original 'luckless wonder' and the only genuine Jonah extant."

With a face the hue of fire he cocked his eyebrows askew and attempted to laugh unconcernedly to hide his bitter shame. "I've led you out of the frying pan into the fire, and I don't know what to do. Please call me names."

"Oh, poor Mr. Kirkwood! And it's all because of me! You've beggared yourself"—

"Not precisely. I was beggared to begin with." He hastened to disclaim the extravagant generosity of which she accused him. "I had only three or four pounds to my name that night we met. I haven't told you—I"—

"You've told me nothing, nothing whatever about yourself," she said reproachfully.

"I didn't want to bother you with my troubles. I tried not to talk about myself. You knew I was an American, but I'm worse than that. I'm a Californian—from San Francisco." He tried unsuccessfully to make light of it. "I told you I was the 'luckless wonder.' If I'd ever had any luck I would have stored a little money away. As it was, I lived on my income, left my principal in Frisco, and when the earthquake came it wiped me out completely."

"And you were going home that night we made you miss your steamer!"

"It was my own fault, and I'm glad this blessed minute that I did miss it. Nice sort I'd have been to go off and leave you at the mercy"—

"Please! I want to think. I'm trying to remember how much you've gone through"—

"Precisely what I don't want you to do. Anyway, I did nothing more than any other fellow would have done. Please don't give me credit that I don't deserve. We must go to Mrs. Hallam's house first. It's too late now—after 5—else we could deposit the jewels in some bank. Since—since they are no longer yours the only thing and the proper thing to do is to place them in safety or in the hands of their owner. If you take them directly to young Hallam your hands will be clear. And—I never did such a thing in my life, Miss Calendar, but if he's got a spark of gratitude in his makeup I ought to be able to—er—to borrow a pound or so of him."

"Do you think so?" She shook her head in doubt. "I don't know. I know so little of such things. You are right. We must take him the jewels, but"—Her voice trailed off into a sigh of profound perturbation.

He dared not meet her look.

With a jar the train started and began to move more swiftly.

Kirkwood lifted the traveling bag to his knees.

"Don't forget," he said, with some difficulty, "you're to stick by me whatever happens. You mustn't desert me."

"You know," the girl reproved him.

"I know, but there must be no misunderstanding. Don't worry. We'll win out yet. I've a plan."

Glorious liar! He had not the glimmering of a plan.

The engine panting, the train drew in beneath the vast sounding dome of the station to an accompaniment of dull thunderings and stopped finally.

Hurried and jostled, the girl clinging tightly to his arm lest they be separated in the crush, they came to the ticket wicket. Beyond the barrier surged a sea of hats. Beneath any one of these might lurk the maleficent brain, the spying eyes, of Calendar or one of his creatures. Beneath all of them that he encountered Kirkwood peered in fearful inquiry.

Abruptly he caught the girl by the arm and unceremoniously hurried her toward a waiting hansom.

"Quick!" he begged her. "Jump right in—not an instant to spare!"

She nodded brightly, lips firm with courage, eyes shining.

"My father?"

"Yes." Kirkwood glanced back over his shoulder. "He hasn't seen us yet. They've just driven up. Stryker's with him. They're getting down." And to himself, "Oh, the devil!" cried the panic stricken young man.

He drew back to let the girl precede him into the cab. At the same time he kept an eye on Calendar, whose conveyance stood half the length of the station front away.

The fat adventurer had finished paying off the driver, standing on the deck of the hansom. Stryker was already out, towering above the mass of people and glaring about him with his hawk keen vision. Calendar had started to alight. His foot was leaving the step when Stryker's glance singled out their quarry. Instantly he turned and spoke to his confederate. Calendar wheeled like a flash, peering eagerly in the direction indicated by the captain's index finger, then, snapping instructions to his driver, threw himself heavily back on the seat. Stryker awkward on his land legs, stumbled and fell in an ill calculated attempt to hoist himself hastily back into the vehicle.

To the delay thus occasioned alone Kirkwood and Dorothy owed a respite of freedom. Their hansom was already swinging down toward the great gates of the yard, the American standing to make the driver comprehend the necessity for using the utmost speed in reaching the Craven street address. The man proved both intelligent and obliging. Kirkwood had barely time to drop down beside the girl ere the cab was swinging out into the Strand, to the peril of the toes belonging to a number of righteously indignant pedestrians.

He turned in the seat, twisting his neck to peep through the small rear window. "I don't see their cab," he announced. "But of course they're after us. However, Craven street's just round the corner. If we get there first I don't fancy Freddie Hallam will have a cordial reception for our pursuers. They must have been on watch at Cannon street, and, finding we were not coming in that way—of course they were expecting us because of Hobbs' wire—they took cab for Charing Cross. Lucky for us—or is it lucky?" he added doubtfully to himself.

The hansom whipped round the corner into Craven street. Kirkwood sprang up, grasping the treasure bag, ready to jump the instant they pulled in toward Mrs. Hallam's dwelling. But as they drew near upon the address he drew back with an exclamation of amazement.

The house was closed, showing a blank face to the street—blinds drawn close down in the windows, area gate padlocked, an estate agent's board projecting from above the doorway advertising the property "to be let, furnished."

Kirkwood looked back, craning his neck round the side of the cab. At the moment another hansom was breaking through the rank of humanity on the Strand crossing. He saw one or two figures leap desperately from beneath the horse's hoofs. Then the cab shot out swiftly down the street.

The American stood up again, catching the cabby's eye.

"Drive on!" he cried excitedly. "Don't stop! Drive as fast as you dare!"

"W'ere to, sir?"

"See that cab behind? Don't let it catch us! Shake it off, lose it somehow, but for the love of heaven don't let it catch us! I'll make it worth your while. Do you understand?"

"Yes, sir." The driver looked briefly over his shoulder and lifted his whip. "Don't worry, sir," he cried, entering into the spirit of the game with gratifying zest. "Shan't let 'em over'aul you, sir. Mind your 'ead!"

And as Kirkwood ducked the whiplash shot out over the roof with a crack like the report of a pistol. Startled, the horse leaped indignantly forward. Momentarily the cab seemed to leave the ground, then settled down to a pace that carried them round the Avenue theater and across Northumberland avenue into Whitehall place apparently on a single wheel.

"Good little horse!" he applauded.

A moment later he was indorsing without reserve the generalship of their cabby. The quick westward turn that took them into Whitehall, over across from the Horse Guards, likewise placed them in a pocket of traffic. A practically impregnable press of vehicles closed in behind them ere Calendar's conveyance could follow out of the side street.

That the same conditions, but slightly modified, hemmed them in ahead went for nothing in Kirkwood's estimation.

"Good driver!" he approved heartily. "He's got a head on his shoulders!"

The girl found her voice. "How," she demanded in a breath, face blank with consternation—"how did you dare?"

Two good games of ball are scheduled to be played Saturday afternoon at Merrymount park, in the upper field the final of the series of three games for the 18 year old championship of Quincy between the Fore River Apprentices and Excelsus class will be played. A silver cup has been purchased which will be given the winner of this game. Both teams have won one game and the game of Saturday is therefore bound to be of more than ordinary interest.

The second game is that between the Atlantic Prof. and Copeland club, for the championship of the city. This game will be played on the Ward 6 playground and unless all signs fail the Atlantic boys are almost sure to win.

AUTOS AT BROCKTON.

There were more automobiles parked in the campus at the Brockton Fair last year than were ever gathered together before in the United States. The attention given visiting motorists is much appreciated, the club house for their special use being a particular convenience. This year an entrance especially for their use has been built at the rear of the grand stand where occupants of the cars can be landed within a few steps of the stand thereby saving the walk across the entire grounds. October 5, 6, 7 and 8 are this year's Fair dates and every day is a big one. The run to the Brockton Fair is a pleasant one over good roads to a good sho Motorists will do well to keep these dates in mind.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TAFT FAVORS SHIP SUBSIDY

Says Country Is Ready to Make Such an Experiment

HE WOULD BUILD UP ALASKA

Not Yet Time, However, For It to Have Territorial Form of Government—President Becomes Past Grand Chief of Arctic Brotherhood—Spends Busy and Happy Day at Seattle Exposition

Seattle, Oct. 1.—Speaking before the largest audience he has faced since his trip began—a crowd that overflowed the natural ampitheatre of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition with its seating capacity of nearly 20,000—President Taft announced that he would urge in his coming message to congress the enactment of a ship subsidy law.

Mr. Taft declared that the country was ready to make such experiment and that something might be done to build up an American merchant marine. His utterances on this subject were received with great applause.

When the president turned to Alaska, however, and declared that he was opposed to granting a territorial form of government to that far-off possession, the statement was received in silence. As the president proceeded, however, and outlined his policy for the upbuilding of Alaska, of recommending government aid in the construction of railroads, of a local government by a commission of five or more members appointed by the president and co-operating with the governor, and when he told of the great possibilities that lie in Alaska, he plainly caught the favor of his hearers and was loudly cheered.

Later in the day, when he was admitted to membership in the Arctic Brotherhood, an international organization made up of Canadians and Americans interested in the development of Alaska, the president announced that he intended to visit Alaska next summer and to go as far into the interior as time would permit so that he might come into contact with the people and see for himself what may best be done for their welfare.

The address in the ampitheatre was made at 3 p. m., and immediately afterwards the president went to the Arctic Brotherhood building for initiation. He returned to the city for rest and to dress for dinner. Returning to the fair grounds last night, Mr. Taft viewed for the first time the wonderful illuminations.

At the Arctic Brotherhood the president was elected honorary past grand Arctic chief and was presented with a costly robe of office, made of purple velvet and trimmed with furs. The brotherhood did not presume to ask the president to don the robes, but he insisted, with the remark: "I am not afraid to put on the robes of office; I never have been."

The only opening in the robe was at the neck, and after it had been put over the president's head things seemed to get into a tangle and the president was lost to view for two or three minutes.

When the president and party reached the fair President Chilberg greeted him and pinned on his coat a heavy gold badge of his office as honorary president of the exposition. The president took his place and the march of the soldiers and pageant of nations began.

After the soldiers came a company of Japanese merchants in high hats and frock coats. As they passed the president, they waved their hats and shouted "banzai" three times.

After the Japanese walked a group of Chinese merchants in beautiful silk robes. Then came the almost naked Igorrote villagers. Several Eskimo guides carried a banner reading "Who found the Pole? We helped."

At the close of the parade a company of infantry lined the walk leading to the government building and the president and party walked into the building. In the Alaska building the president was invited into the cage where more than $1,000,000 worth of Alaska gold is exhibited. Nearby a miner who was illustrating placer mining let the president wash out a pan of gold worth $1200. Mr. Taft remarked that he would go into mining if he could keep up that rate. At the door of the Hawaiian building a native tried to throw over the president's neck a wreath of pansies. The president restrained her, saying: "No, I shan't wear it; we're not in Honolulu now."

The president then went to the Japanese government building. Here Commissioner General Hajimota read a letter conveying the thanks of the emperor of Japan for his visit to the Japanese building. Mr. Taft, replying, said the Japanese had long been generous exhibitors at American expositions and he wished success to the approaching Japanese world's fair.

The Canadian building was to have ended the president's tour, but he said: "I want to see more of this."

Luncheon in the New York state building was served without speeches.

SUPT. PARLIN GIVEN WATCH

Gold Timepiece the Gift of Quincy Teachers' Asso.

There was a large gathering of the teachers of the Quincy schools and friends, at the hall of the Coddington school building Friday evening at the reception tendered to Frank E. Parlin, recent superintendent of the Quincy schools and to Albert L. Barbour the new superintendent, by the Quincy Teachers' Association.

The reception was of an informal nature and was held, that the teachers might express in some lasting way their appreciation of the work of Mr. Parlin, while superintendent of the Quincy schools as well as to afford them an opportunity to meet, in a social way, Mr. Barbour the new superintendent.

In the receiving line were Mr. Parlin, Supt. and Mrs. Barbour, Dr. N. S. Hunting, chairman of the school committee, Mrs. Leslie L. Cleveland and Mrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth. Mr. Cleveland head master of the high school acted as master of ceremonies and presented those present to the receiving party.

The reception was from 8 to 9.30 during which frappe was served. Mr. Cleveland then opened the post prandial exercises with a few brief remarks during which he took occasion to allude to the work of Mr. Parlin while in Quincy.

Mr. Parlin he said, professionally, knew the science of education as only the very best superintendents do. He was a man of efficient service, and one in whom every teacher would find a friend. Mr. Parlin was a man who had the courage to criticise a teacher or to appreciate the work of a teacher, and was absolutely free in his criticism form political or other influences, always working for the best interests of the children of the public schools. Mr. Cleveland then handed Mr. Parlin a handsome gold watch, the gift of the teachers' association as a token of their appreciation of his services while in Quincy and with well wishes for future success in his new field of labor,

Mr. Parlin was visibly affected by the gift, and in accepting it he spoke briefly of the pleasant relations with the teaching force of the Quincy schools while he was superintendent. He said that it was not alone to himself that he had met success but it was due in a great measure to the hearty cooperation of the teachers.

The watch which was a very handsome one bore the following inscription on the inside of the case.

"Presented to Frank E. Parlin by the teachers of Quincy, October 1, 1909."

Mr. Cleveland then introduced Mr. Barbour the new superintendent. Supt. Barbour spoke briefly. He gave no hint of any future plans he may have formed, simply alluding to the breaking of old ties for new. He said that he had no doubt from present indications that he should find as fast and warm friends in Quincy as in the city he had recently left.

Mr. Parlin was obliged to leave early and as he took his departure he was showered with good wishes by the teachers.

The teachers then enjoyed an hours' dancing.

QUINCY ADAMS

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

The Hub Prepares to be Invaded by the Great Leader of English Suffragettes—Moorish Prince Says Boston No Good, Except its Women—Personal Impressions of Mrs. Annie Besant, Theosophical Leader—A Little Homily or Street Car Manners—Food Fair Furnishes Matter for Discussion.

Whether wise or unwise to be in Gotham you heard of many members of Boston society who said they were going over to the Hudson-Fulton celebration. Among those, of course, who took part in the exercises in New York was Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Boston's "grand old woman," who at the age of 91 faced the great throng waiting to hear her ode, written for the occasion. The scene must have been quite as impressive as were the great parades, the fairyland of lights and bunting. Naturally the homage paid this remarkable woman at the close of her reading brought tears of happiness to her eyes while there was hardly a dry eye in the audience.

"Oh my, how I love to eat!" The late afternoon and evening cars in the Hub are filled with old and young carrying grotesque bundles and souvenirs from the Food Fair, that remarkable New England institution, which is now running its third annual exhibition in the Mechanics' building. Close on the heels of this fair will follow the big exposition of "Boston-1915" at the old Art Museum. With these two attractions, the opening of the colleges and of the football season, and with all the theatres in full swing, young people and old are quite at their wits' ends to know what to take in first.

More comments, this time from a Moor. Boston women are the only redeeming feature of the Hub, although they give him a pain in the neck—at least, so says Sid Mohammed Ben Gelul, the Moroccan Prince who has been visiting this city. He finds us all in too much of a hurry, and our geographical layout entirely beyond him, while the variable New England climate is quite quite too much. But of our fair sex he cannot say enough. "It is your delightful women alone that make me reconsider my wish not to have come. "They are superb," said His Highness. "But it is the shop girls, the women who work, that are the surprise. They are all so well dressed. They carry themselves so aristocratically. I catch myself getting tired in the neck looking after them." The Prince left Boston to attend the celebration in New York. If he thinks Bostonians rush things, what will he do when he hits Broadway?

Mrs. Annie Besent, renowned leader of theosophy, international president of the Theosophical society, and without doubt one of the most highly educated women in the sciences and religions of the past and present, creates quite an unexpected impression at close range. Motherly in manner, gentle in voice, with a charming combination of dignity and quiet humor, she won the immediate admiration of all who met her during her two-day visit to the Hub this week. In her sixty-second year, she has the appearance of a woman not over fifty, though her short, wavy hair is quite white. Her sincerity and simplicity the unfailing hallmarks of a great mind, command the respect even of those who are strongly opposed to her beliefs. She is a woman of remarkable vitality which showed itself in her freshness when, after coming straight from a lecture in Washington and travelling all night, she gave six addresses, interviewed innumerable people and held a reception, all in two day, leaving on the evening of the second day for a similar visit to New York.

Must we learn politeness from our school children? It was a distressing commentary on the manners of the present day when a feeble, white-haired old gentleman entered a crowded car one morning recently, and clung to a strap until a high school girl arose and offered him her seat. The gentleman, with the true breeding of the old school, refused at first to take the seat and allow her to stand, but the girl quietly and politely insisted, until he sank into it with sincere thanks. During the conversation seven men of apparently good health and sufficient strength to hold newspaper before their faces remained sitting in the immediate vicinity, a sharp contrast to the courtly representative of the passing and the thoughtful lady of the rising generations. Boston men, as a general rule however, are considerate to a marked degree in the street cars, and an instance of this sort comes as a distinct shock. Mr. A. R. Stafford, who is waging a campaign of which the slogan is "Wear a blue button and be a gentleman on the street cars," claims that of New York, Chicago and St. Louis the latter is the most polite. It would be interesting to hear his opinion of Boson in this respect.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette who has been leading the strenuous campaign for votes for women in England for the last three years, is expected in Boston on October 22d, and suffragists and antifevers of anticipation and curiosity suffragists are awaiting the date in fevers of anticipation and curiosoty. The details of the big meeting in Tremont Temple, at which Mrs. Pankhurst will explain the conditions in England is under the direction of Mrs. R. Y. Fitzgerald, who lead the recent trolley tripping campaign throughout the state of Massachusetts. Mrs. Pankhurst is a woman of unusual refinement and intelligence, and probably the most cordially loved and hated of any woman in England. Her associates and followers obey her mandates without question, and undergo any amount of suffering and ridicule under her inspiring guildance. while the members of the stronger sex who are in the governmental places slide out the back door and barricade themselves behind the guardians of the law. Considered the most beautiful woman in England in her youth, she has held many notable positions in the political and social world, and was of great assistance to her husband in his career. At the time of Dr. Pankhurst's death she was left with four small children, whereupon she went into business, at which she was successful as in everything, and has given each of the children a university education and all the social and educational advantages available—a powerful argument in refutation of the theory that when women go into politics the home will be neglected. Her daughter Christabel is an ardent worker in the cause, and they were the principal organizers of the Women's Social and Political Union, which is the militant body in England. Mrs. Pankhurst, having completed the education of her children, has lately sold her business and her house and put the preceeds into the treasury of the Union, to which she devotes her whole time. She is a powerful speaker and debater, but withal shows remarkable restraint, taking only such steps in the campaign for votes as seem imperative in order to obtain the attention of those in authority. Mrs. Pankhurst has three times been arrested and twice served sentence of imprisonment. Among her followers are the women of high social standing who were thrown into prison recently and refused to eat anything, until the authorities were obliged to release them or see them starve to death. The methods of the English suffragettes, viewed from the American standing, seem deplorable, but should it become equally necessary in order to get the high and mighty ear it is quite probable that the American suffragists would be quite as persistant and energetic in the fight for the cause. The attendance at the meeting on October 22d will not be limited to sympathizers, as undoubtedly a large number of people will attend from motives of curiosity.

REPUBLICANS ARE SATISFIED

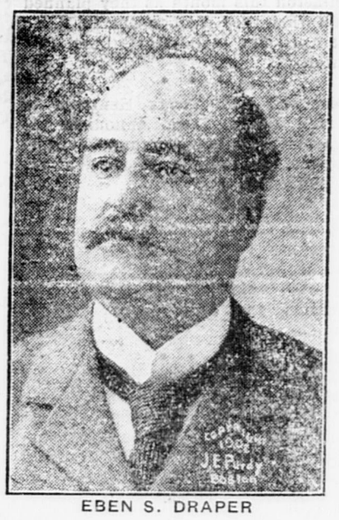
Renominate Draper and Frothingham In Bay State

NO CONTESTS IN CONVENTION

Balance of State Ticket Is Put Through Without a Hitch—Committee on Resolutions Submits Platform Opposing Some of the Principles Outlined In Platform of Democrats—Tariff Revision Commended

Boston, Oct. 2.—Massachusetts Republicans, at their convention in Symphony hall today, renominated Governor Draper and the remainder of the present state officials by acclamation.

Senator Lodge presented Draper's name. Lieutenant Governor Frothingham was renominated by John J. Higgins of Somerville, district attorney for the northern district (Middlesex county).



EBEN S. DRAPER

Others on the state ticket were placed in renomination as follows: Secretary Olin, by Congressman Weeks; Treasurer Stevens, by Samuel J. Elder; Auditor Turner, by Herbert Parker; Attorney General Malone, by William H. Brooks.

Edwin U. Curtis of Boston presided and former Governor Bates, as chairman of the committee on resolutions, submitted the platform. That document takes diametrically opposite grounds on several important topics to that submitted to the Democratic state convention.

LOUIS FROTHINGHAM

The Democrats "rebuked the Republican party for its iniquitous tariff revision humbug." The Republicans commend President Taft and the United States senators and congressmen from Massachusetts for their action on the tariff.

The Democrats favored "the income tax and the election of only those candidates for the legislature pledged to the ratification of the constitutional amendment therefor."

Senators Lodge and Crane, Governor Draper, Lieutenant Governor Frothingham and other Republican leaders are opposed to the income tax in the form in which it passed congress. The same is true of the congressmen.

The Democrats favored the nomination of United States senators by direct popular vote and direct nominations as a whole. Again, all the Republican leaders are opposed to direct nominations as a general policy. Some of them recognize that it may be a moot question as to a certain class of nominations—such as in compact and contiguous senatorial districts. Several such districts already have such a system under special laws enacted by the Massachusetts legislature. But the extension all over the state and the application to candidates for state offices Republican leaders oppose.

The Democrats pledged themselves to "the re-enactment into law of the eight-hour bill passed by the legislative session and vetoed." The Republicans do not follow the Democratic lead on that question.

The resolutions heartily commend President Taft and Governor Draper.

LETTER FROM THE PHILIPPINES.

The following letter received by Z. S. Arnold of Coddington street from his son who is in the government service in the Philippines will be interesting reading for his Quincy friends.

Columbia Club, Manila.
July 7, 1909.

Dear Father:—In this letter I shall give an account of my recent doings, especially of a trip I took last Saturday, Sunday and Monday out in the country, and which gave me my first glimpse of the Philippines as they exist outside of Manila.

Of course Monday, the 4th, or rather the 5th, was a holiday so I had two days and a half at my disposal. I could probably have got some one to go with me easily enough, but I think on the whole it is better fun to take these trips alone; two people are apt to want to do things in different ways, so I started about three o'clock on Saturday afternoon and took the train south to Calamba a small town at the southwest corner of the Lagema de Bay, the big shallow lake, thirty miles long and twenty wide, which cuts a great hole out of Luzon Island and back of Manila comes within fifteen miles of the sea. The railroad is parallel with the western shore of the lake but some little distance from it, though occasionally you get glimpses of the water and the mountains beyond. The first half of the trip is through a flat and wet, rather barren looking country with few houses or people to be seen; but during the remainder the landscape looks much more varied and prosperous, with mountains in the distance. The towns are generally not visible from the stations, but the fields are, and the leisurely progress of the train gives an opportunity to watch the agricultural operations. The chief crop, prosaically enough is Indian corn, now about half grown; but there was also much rice and sugar cane. The former was in all stages of growth and in the open spaces the farmers and their families could be seen at work, cutting, threshing and winnowing it. The first is done with a primitive sort of sickle with a nearly straight blade; the second in an equally primitive manner by grasping a bunch of grain and beating it against a block of wood; for the last a kind of wooden machine is used operated by a crank.

The train on the whole was expensive and uncomfortable, third class fare is about the same as ordinary fare at home; first class about twice this and second half way between. I use the latter; the accommodations are nearly as good as first class and the letter is chiefly patronized by very wealthy natives and Americans who are excessively sensitive about the dignity of a superior race. At the best, however, the trains are slow, the seats hard, and the smoke and cinders from the soft Japanese coal all-prevading. The train Saturday took two hours to go 56 kilometers, about 35 miles, stopping at every station an average of three minutes apiece. The trains are never late because the schedules are so liberal that they have hard work to live down to them!

I arrived at Calamba about five. There is nothing there but the station, the present terminus of the railroad. The town is some way off. Here I went halves with a Constabulary officer I met on the train in hiring a carromata, a two wheeled nearly springless vehicle, drawn by a single diminutive pony. In this we travelled seven miles around an inlet of the lake to Los Banos my destination for the night. The road goes through hilly country very fertile, though not much cultivated, and is bordered by niflapalms, bananas and a great many other sorts of tropical plants that I could not name. Our attention was somewhat distracted from them by the jolting of the carromata which made us hang on for dear life. We got into Los Banos at six, and I "did" what there is of the place before dark. The name means The Baths and its importance lies wholly in its hot medicinal springs, a factory of mineral waters and root beer, and some very attractive tropical scenery. The town itself amounts to nothing and except for a sanitarium, a hotel and the buildings of the military post is rather squalid looking. The view however either into the mountains to the south or north across the lake is very attractive. It has moreover the advantage of averaging from five to ten degrees cooler than Manila.

I got a room at the Sanitarium a plain but clean little establishment run by a Scotch doctor, and had a very comfortable bed and excellent food. I was up pretty early in the morning and as the boat which I intended to take did not go till eleven I took a tramp up to a water fall in a ravine on the side of Mt. Maquiling which rises some 5000 feet behind the town. I hired for ten cents a small native boy in scarlet trousers and a nile-green shirt, as guide, and he led me a rough four miles scramble through tall grass and weed, and over rocks, trailing vines and tree roots. The only advantage the tropical woods have for expeditions of the kind is the absence of thorns. The sight at the end was worth seeing. The ravine ended in a sort of well, over the side of which the stream we had been following came down in an unbroken fall of 65 feet. He beguiled the way at first by telling me the Tagalog word for everything we saw and afterwards by whistling "Yankee Doodle" and "Marching through Georgia" in rapid alternation. Though he could not be more than twelve he spoke English extremely well. He was a very interesting specimen of the product the American schools in the province are turning out. At eleven I took the boat, a good sized steam launch, one of a fleet run by a Chinese concern, Yangco & Co., to Santa Cruz a large town on the shores of the lake about fifteen miles east of Los Banos. The sail was a very pleasant one for it was cool and the green shores and hills very picturesque. We arrived at Santa Cruz about one, and found the business of getting ashore rather exciting. There is no wharf, for the lake is very shallow and the boat has to anchor several hundred yards out. From it you get into a banca, or native canoe, which crowd around looking for trade. This rather ticklish and usually overloaded craft takes you to within 50 yards or so of the shore where it too, grounds. Then the cocheros or drivers of the carromatas waiting on the beach come wading into the water, their trousers tucked up to the last extreme, shouting and waving their whips. This has the double object of advertising their vehicles and also of getting the passengers ashore to them; each cochero taking his "fare" astride his shoulder and conveying him bodily. I did not have a chance to observe how they managed with ladies. I was sure that he would tip me into the water for I felt horridly too heavy but he finally got me to land without accident and I took his carromata four or five miles to Pagsanjan a prosperous inland town of four or five thousand inhabitants. The country is the most prosperous and attractive looking I have yet seen here. The road all the way ran between two solid cocoanut plantations surrounded by hedges and the grass between used as pasture for horses, buffalo, goats and pigs. You enter the town of Pagsanjan through a curious three arch gateway, looking like a copy on a small scale of the Arc de Triomphe at Paris, and surmounted by two stone monsters which look exactly like the pictures of the cheshire cat in "Alice." The town consists mostly of one broad shady street, the houses generally being neater and more solid looking than is generally the case here. The chief thing which attracts travellers is a remarkable gorge on the Pagsanjan river which flows by the town. As I wanted to take this in, I got a banca or dug out canoe made of a single piece of wood with two native paddlers and went up. These boats are very narrow, and being smooth bottomed, excessively cranky, great care being required to keep them trimmed. The first mile or two the banks are of moderate height and the scenery of the ordinary tropical sort. Then you get into the real gorge. It is the greatest thing of the kind I have ever seen and I should think it would be hard to beat anywhere. Its length I can only guess at but it takes nearly two hours to go through it in a canoe. The width is nowhere over fifty or sixty feet, and the walls which rise sheer out of the water run from 100 to 450 feet. They are carpeted with thick curtains of green, including trailing vines 300 feet long. This canon winds so that you can rarely see a hundred yards ahead, and at each turn is a series of rapids at which the boat men get out into the waist deep water and hold the boat steady as they haul it through. The terminus of the trip is the so-called upper falls where the gorge comes to an end in a sheer wall of rock over which the river tumbles for 150 feet. There is a lower fall which you pass on the way, much higher, over 400 feet, but with less water, and hard to get a good view of. Altogether it is a remarkable trip. I got pretty well soaked going up, for the canoe shipped water every now and then and the boatmen were not over careful. But the climax was reached when they tried some funny business on the way back and turned the whole thing over in (fortunately) two feet of warm water. Luckily I kept my hat, watch and money and the clothes I had on can't be hurt by water. So I contented myself with scolding a little and deducting something from their pay by way of a fine. Though the matter was not very serious in a tropical climate I still felt rather damp and when I got back to Pagsanjan hurried back to Santa Cruz where I heard there was an old Spanish inn. It appears to be run by Filipinos now and is not over clean, though the food is good enough. The best room they could muster was partitioned by a screen of matting from the dining room and the bed consisted of a sort of cane settee, covered with a layer of matting and a diminutive blanket, quite guiltless of mattress or sheet. However, these were clean, and it was cool, one whole side of the room practically being a window. As I was tired and my clothes still wet I turned in shortly after eating. After half an hour I was aroused by a band under the window. I have since been told that the scene which met my eye was a wedding procession but the only visible or audible evidence of it at the time was the fact that the band was playing the wedding march. The procession consisted of the band, a group of priests drawing a car surrounded by candles and carrying an image of the Virgin, and a group of men in starchy white suits with tall collars and black felt hats, including I presume the groom. I didn't see the bride anywhere. Perhaps they were going to get her. After they passed I went to sleep, only to be waked up about midnight by the band coming into the hotel and playing a closing piece in the next room! Then they settled down and talked for an hour. Finally I got to sleep again and stayed so until four when someone appeared to be hammering violently on the ceiling under my bed. I got up soon after, for the boat for Manila was to leave at six. I ate my breakfast by candle light surrounded by the prostrate forms of the bandsmen who were sleeping on the dining room floor. I got the boat after a repetition of the process of disembarking the day before, and arrived in Manila at 2 P. M. The trip on the lake is rather long and tedious though the first part where the shores are hilly, and the last part coming the whole length of the Pasig river are very pretty. I slept most of the way. When I finally landed and got home I was very glad to take time for a good bath, shave and change of clothes. I had of course missed such functions as there were earlier in the Fourth but I had got to the fireworks in the evening. As it happened they were the first extensive fireworks I had ever seen. I am told that the collection was not especially remarkable but it was very effective for they set them off on the top of the city wall, some hundred yards away from the crowd across the moat. This enabled everyone to see perfectly and also permitted the introduction of two or three pieces which could not have easily been shown without the smooth face of the wall as base. It(is now steamer time, will write more later.

I'd Like to Lock You in my Heart

I'd Like to Lock You in my Heart. No. 87.

"Dare?" he echoed exultantly, and in his veins excitement was running like liquid fire. "What wouldn't I dare for you, Dorothy?"

"What have you not?" she amended softly, adding, with a shade of timidity, "Philip"—

The long lashes swept up from her cheeks, like clouds revealing stars, unmasking eyes radiant and brave to meet his own. Then they fell, even as her lips drooped with disappointment. And she sighed, for he was not looking. Manlike, hot with the ardor of the chase, he was deaf and blind to all else.

"I've got a scheme!" Kirkwood declared so explosively that she caught her breath with the surprise of it. "There's the Pless. They know me there, and my credit's good. When we shake them off we can have the cabby take us to the hotel. I'll register and borrow from the management enough to pay our way to Chiltern and the tolls for a cable to New York. I've a friend or two over home who wouldn't let me want for a few miserable pounds. So you see," he explained boyishly, "we're at the end of our troubles already!"

She said something inaudible, holding her face averted. He bent nearer to her, wondering. "I didn't understand," he suggested.

Still looking from him, "I said you were very good to me," she said in a quavering whisper.

"Dorothy!" Without his knowledge or intention before the fact, as instinctively as he made use of her given name intimately, his strong fingers dropped and closed upon the little hand that lay beside him. "What is the matter, dear?" He leaned still farther forward to peer into her face till glance met glance in the ending and his racing pulses tightened with sheer delight of the humid happiness in her glistening eyes. "Dorothy, child, don't worry so. No harm shall come to you. It's all working out—all working out right. Only have a little faith in me, and I'll make everything work out right, Dorothy."

Gently she freed her fingers. "I wasn't," she told him in a voice that quivered between laughter and tears —"I wasn't worrying. I was—you wouldn't understand. Don't be afraid I shall break down or—or anything."

"I shan't," he reassured her. "I know you're not that sort. Besides, you'd have no excuse. We're moving along famously. That cabby knows his business."

Past the houses of parliament, through Old Palace yard, with the abbey on their left, they swung away into Abingdon street, whence suddenly they dived into the maze of back ways, great and mean, which lies to the south of Victoria. Doubling and twisting, now this way, now that, the driver tooled them through the intricate heart of this labyrinth, leading the pursuers a dance that Kirkwood thought calculated to dishearten and shake off the pursuit in the first five minutes. Yet always, peering back through the little peephole, he saw Calendar's cab pelting doggedly in their rear—a hundred yards behind, no more, no less—hanging on with indomitable grit and determination.

Children cheered them on, and policemen turned to stare, doubting whether they should interfere. Minutes rolled into tens, measuring out an hour, and still they hammered on, hunted and hunters playing their game of hare and hounds through the highways and byways of those staid and aged quarters.

The sun was very low behind the houses of the Surrey side when Kirkwood became aware that their horse was flagging, though, as comparison determined, no more so than the one behind.

In grave concern, the young man raised his hand, thrusting open the trap in the roof. Immediately the square of darkling sky was eclipsed by the cabby's face.

"Yessir?"

"You had better drive as directly as you can to the Hotel Pless," Kirkwood called up. "I'm afraid it's no use pushing your horse like this."

"I'm sure of it, sir. 'E's a good 'oss, 'e is, but 'e can't keep goin' forhever, you know, sir."

Despondent recklessness tightened Kirkwood's lips and kindled an unpleasant light in his eyes. He touched his side pocket. Calendar's revolver was still there. Dorothy should win away clear if—if he swung for it.

He bent forward with the traveling bag in his hands.

"We'll have to drop off in a minute. The horse won't last. They're in the same box. I'll undertake to stand 'em off for a bit. You take the bag and run for it. Just as soon as I can convince them I'll follow, but if there's any delay you call the first cab you see and drive to the Pless. I'll join you there."

He stood up, surveying the neighborhood. Behind him the girl lifted her voice in protest.

"No, Philip, no! I won't leave you."

He shook his head in silent contradiction, frowning, but not frowning because of the girl's mutiny. He was a little puzzled by a vague impression.

The hansom was traversing a street in Old Brompton, a quaint, prim byway lined with dwellings singularly old worldish even for London. He seemed to know it subjectively, to have retained a memory of it from another existence.

Calendar's cab was drawing perilously near, and he was debating whether or not they should alight at once and try to make a better pace afoot when the decision was taken wholly out of his hands.

Blindly staggering on, wilted with weariness, the horse stumbled in the shafts and plunged forward on its knees. Quick as the driver was to pull it up, with a cruel jerk of the bits, Kirkwood was caught unprepared. Lurching against the dashboard, he lost his footing, grasped frantically at the unstable air and went over, bringing up in a sitting position in the gutter with a solid shock that jarred his very teeth.

For a moment dazed, he sat there blinking. By the time he got to his feet the girl stood beside him, questioning him with keen solicitude.

"No," he gasped, "not hurt—only surprised. Wait."

Their cab had come to a complete standstill. Calendar's was no more than twenty yards behind, and as Kirkwood caught sight of him the fat adventurer was in the act of lifting himself ponderously out of the seat.

Incontinently the young man turned to the girl and forced the traveling bag into her hands.

"Run for it!" he begged her. "Don't stop to argue. You promised—run! I'll come."

"Philip!" she pleaded.

"Dorothy!" he cried in torment.

Perhaps it was his unquestionable distress that weakened her. Suddenly she yielded, with whatever reason. He was only hazily aware of the swish of her skirts behind him. He had no time to look round and see that she got away safely. He had only eyes and thoughts for Calendar and Stryker.

They were both afoot now and running toward him, the one as awkward as the other, but neither yielding a jot of their malignant purpose. He held the picture of it oddly graphic in his memory for many a day thereafter.

To this mental photograph another succeeds of the same scene an instant later, all as it had been before, their relative positions unchanged save that Stryker and Calendar had come to a dead stop and that Kirkwood's right arm was lifted and extended, pointing at the captain.

So forgetful of self was he that it required a moment's thought to convince him that he was really responsible for the abrupt transformation. Incredulously he realized that he had drawn Calendar's revolver and pulled Stryker up short in midstride by the mute menace of it as much as by his hoarse cry of warning:

"Stryker, not another foot!"

With this there chimed in Dorothy's voice, ringing bell clear from a little distance:

"Philip!"

Like a flash he wheeled to add yet another picture to his mental gallery.

Perhaps twoscore feet up the sidewalk a gate stood open. Just outside it a man of tall and slender figure, rigged out in a bizarre costume consisting mainly of a flowered dressing gown and slippers, was waiting in an attitude of singular impassivity. Within it, pausing with a foot lifted to the doorstep, bag in hand, her head turned as she looked back, was Dorothy.

As he comprehended these essential details of the composition the man in the flowered dressing gown raised a hand, beckoning to him in a manner as imperative as his accompanying words.

Kirkwood choked on a laugh that was half a sob. "Brentwick!" he cried, restoring the weapon to his pocket and running toward his friend. "Of all happy incidents!"

"You may call it that," retorted the elder man, with a fleeting smile, as Kirkwood slipped inside the dooryard. "Come," he said; "let's get into the house."

"But you said—I thought you went to Munich," stammered Kirkwood, and so thoroughly impregnated was his mind with this understanding that it was hard for him to adjust his percentions to the truth.

A new use has been discovered for the vacuum cleaner—that is removing fleas from dogs. Never having tried it we cannot vouch for the thoroughness of the work.

While we are enjoying our Indian summer and seasonable fall weather, way down south in Mexico below zero weather has been handed out and corn crops destroyed by frosts and this too in the tropical part of Mexico.

A Ward Six voter, who is in a position to know what he is talking about, says that in his ward alone are 470 men who should vote, whose names are not on the voting list. What is true of Atlantic is probably true of all sections of the city and there must be quite an army of non-voters. If these men voted they might make a great change in election returns.

Chicago is considering an ordinance providing that all steam railroads entering the city shall electrify their lines within eight miles of city hall before Jan. 1, 1912. That is also what Boston should insist upon but should made the limit ten or twelve miles. Towns south of Boston including Quincy would appreciate such a move.

Booth Tarkington a most successful writer of stories and plays declares that he has written his last novel and will henceforth lead the life of a country gentleman. He intends to purchase a farm in Indiana and evidently lead a simple life for he says all he wants is just enough to keep him from want.

Oh sweet September, the merry prattle of children going to school again in light summer dresses and gay ribbons and bright happy faces. It is the time when the house wife is busy gathering the ripe red tomatoes and ripening grapes, and the odor of jellies, preserves and relishes is in the air. The late peaches and pears are mellowing and "my lady smiles and thinks the world still beautiful and good."

A BIGGER LEDGER.

Several months ago the Ledger announced that if there was a demand for it it would increase its size to eight pages believing a progressive town should have a progressive paper. The city is growing and the paper intends to grow with it. Increased circulation and an overcrowded condition of its advertising columns make a change a necessity. For several months the matter of press equipment has been looked into. Up-to-date offices in this and neighboring states have been inspected resulting in the selection of a Duplex press which will print, trim and fold 6000 eight-page Ledgers in an hour. It is a wonderful piece of machinery and Ledger readers will be interested to see it in operation. It is on the way from Michigan with a guarantee that it will be set up and ready for use Nov. 1st.

Although large yearly contracts for advertising are coming in and it looks like an even busier year than the past one has been we shall try not to cramp the news space but give the people what they want, a good clean home paper, with all the news, every section represented and every nationality and creed.

HUMAN IMPERFECTIONS.

There is no perfect church, no perfect book, no perfect inspiration, no perfect knowledge; and all for the reason that there are no perfect human beings or institutions. All our organizations, whether we set them up in the name of liberty and justice, in the name of truth and righteousness, in the name of religion or of God, are composed of defective members, and cannot help sharing the imperfections of their parts. It is well to know it, fair to admit it; and it is no misfortune to see things as they are.

But now let us frankly recognize the value and uses of things imperfect. There are no perfect marriages, because there are no perfect men and women; no perfect societies, because no perfect people to be associated.

We must not look for perfection in what now is. We must work toward it, leaving the things that are behind and reaching toward the things that are before. The anarchist, finding nothing wholly good, seeks to destroy everything; the wise man, finding the same, seeks to improve everything.

Yet the good cause is carried forward as all human affairs are, by such imperfect agencies and instruments as the Lord happens to have on hand at each stage of proceedings. This may explain why even we are permitted to bear a part. The exceeding greatness of his power is shown by the good work done with such poor tools. Heavenly strength is made perfect in earthly weakness.—Rev. Chas. G. Ames, D. D.

DRAPER AND FROTHINGHAM

Entire Republican State Ticket Renominated

The Republican state convention was held in Symphony hall, Boston this morning and the entire State ticket was renominated.

George H. Doty called the gathering together at 10.30 and turned it over to Hon. Edwin A. Curtis the permanent presiding officer. The name of Gov. Draper was placed in nomination by Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge.

The other candidates nominated were:

Lieut. Gov.—Louis G. Frothingham.
Secretary of State—William M. Olin.
State Treasurer—Elmer A. Stevens.
Auditor—Henry E. Turner.
Attorney General—Dana Malone.

Hon. Eugene C. Hultman of Quincy was one of the vice presidents of the convention.

CUSHING NOMINATED.

The second district Councillor convention was held in Wesleyan hall, Boston, Friday afternoon and Capt. J. Stearns Cushing of Norwood was nominated by acclamation for Councillor.

Col. S. O. Bigney of Attleboro presided and the name of Capt. Cushing was presented to the convention by Joseph Walker speaker of the House of Representatives. The motion was seconded by James H. Hartshorn of Norwood.

Arthur P. Russell of Quincy, Herbert W. Burr and Franklin L. Codman, all of whom had been mentioned as candidates, held a meeting before the convention was called to order and withdraw in favor of Capt. Cushing, thus insuring him a clear field.

As the district is heavily Republican there is no question but what Capt. Cushing will succeed Hon. Albion F. Bemis in the Governor's council.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy) Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class of classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

THOMAS CRANE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Now that the controversy is going on over the rival claims of Cook and Peary, attention is called to a list of books on the Arctic Regions, published in another column. These books have been placed on the bookcase in front of the delivery desk at the right. Those marked "j" in the list are to be found in the Children's room.

The art exhibit this month shows up again the art of Walter Crane, and consists of 67 mounted pictures illustrating fairy tales and nursery rhymes. Among them are the stories of Aladdin, Bluebeard, Goody Two Shoes, Puss in Boots, The Three Bears and the rhyme "This little pig went to market," etc.

These naturally find place in the Children's room.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

SONS OF VETERANS.

Editors Ledger:

One of the most enthusiastic gatherings it has ever been my fortune to attend was the regular meeting last evening of our Quincy Camp Sons of Veterans. A large number of members of Post 88, G. A. R., were also present and spoke encouraging words. Much interest was manifested in the steady growth of this, the youngest camp in the state.

Although we have many organizations both civil and military that have a mission to fulfil, the sons and grandsons only of Civil war veterans are eligible to this organization and they are the logical custodians of the historical deeds and records of their ancestors.

The time is fast approaching when the few remaining old soldiers will have to be perhaps entirely supported and it must be in a spirit of gratitude for the great work done in the dark days of the Rebellion.

Why, Messrs. Editors, we have men in Quincy today who without an hour's notice left everything and without a change of clothing started for the defence of the flag at Lincoln's first call.

We have also men who have known the horrors of rebel prisons, many of them wounded, all broken in health. There are scarcely ten men in our city today of the thousand who enlisted, who do not feel the effects of their service.

The promptness with which the men of eastern Massachusetts gathered stimulated New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio to patriotism. Had Mass. faltered or wavered at that critical time, Washington and Fortress Monroe would have fallen, the South would have been in possession of the seat of government and would have been recognized as such. This is a historical fact.

Did it ever occur to us Yankees, to the so-called native American of the present day that the children in the public schools born of foreign parents are way ahead of us in patriotism love of the flag and our government and this is instilled in them at home also. All honor to them but this is not as it should be. We should not let them outdo us in patriotism. Therefore I call upon all who are eligible to join our organization that is pledged to Loyalty, Charity and Patriotism, ever ready for the defence of the flag which we have inherited.

See how anxious we are to find out if our ancestors fought in the Revolutionary war came over in the Mayflower or signed the Declaration of Independence.

A hundred years from now the third and fourth generations will wonder what made their father so slow to appreciate the advantages of this organization when they may be unable to prove their right through loss of papers by fire or removal.

ST. LOUIS CELEBRATION.

Swelling their reverberations from a softly clanging opening note into a grand tonal harmony, the bells of the 444 churches of St. Louis will usher in at sunrise Oct. 3 a seven days' celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the incorporation of the city. Fitting indeed it is that the bells of the religious edifices which have had so important a place in the moulding of the character of the city should announce to the waking people that 100 years have passed since St. Louis the settlement and trading post became St. Louis the city.

From the days of the earlier Spanish settlers, who reared a modest Catholic church, and sturdy pioneers who erected the first Baptist church, to the present day when a mammoth cathedral is in the course of construction and the tall spires of religious edifices of many denominations pierce the sky, church influence ever has been a powerful factor in shaping and properly directing the growth and expansion of the city. The mellow clanging of the bells also will open a general celebration of the religious development of the city in the century since it was incorporated. The day will be known as Church day.

While commemorative ceremonies wil be held in virtually all of the churches of the city, there will be several gatherings of particular importance. These will include a song service in the afternoon at the new Coliseum, in which 10,000 Sunday School children, members of 150 Protestant churches, including all protestant denominations, will participate.

The three most important Catholic events of Church day will be a pontifical high mass at the old Cathedral, Third and Walnut streets, a relic of pioneer St. Louis, erected almost a century ago on the site of the former edifice of the Cathedral parish, which, having been organized in 1770, is older than the city. The children of the parochial schools of the city will gather in the afternoon at the statue of St. Louis, in Forest park, where there will be songs and an address, concluding with the chanting of the Te Deum. The third notable Catholic function of the day will be a pilgrimage to Cahokia, Ill., where the oldest church of the West is located.

The Christian Scientist churches of the city will hold a mass meeting in the afternoon at the Odeon, where a lecture with Centennial features will be delivered. Every Christian Scientist within a radius of 100 miles of St. Louis has been requested to attend.

The Jewish churches of the city will begin their Centennial celebration on Saturday the Jewish Sabbath.

Commemorate sermons and addresses will be heard in virtually all of the churches, armories and halls.

Religious and historical organizations will invade the downtown districts, where huge skyscrapers have replaced the churches of early days, and tablets marking the sites of famous old structures will be unveiled. Among the sites thus to be marked are: Fort and Tower, near Fourth and Walnut streets. First Presbyterian Church, Fourth street, First Methodist Church, Fourth street. First Unitarian Church, Fourth street. Christ Church, Broadway. Second Presbyterian Church, Broadway. House in which Senator Thomas H. Benton lived. House in which General Grant was married. Judge William C. Carr's house. St. Louis University, Ninth street and Washington avenue. Government House where the transfer of sovereignty took place, Main and Walnut streets.

The following impressive list of churches shows the religious development of the city in a century: Baptist, 23; Catholic, 76; Christian, 15; Christian Scientist, 4; Congregational, 21; English Evengelical Lutheran, 7 German Evangelical, 24; German Evangelical Lutheran, 22; Hebrew orthodox, 9; Hebrew, reformed, 4; Methodist Episcopal, 26; Methodist Episcopal South, 20; New Jerusalem, 3; Presbyterian, 42; Presbyterian Cumberland, 1; Presbyterian United, 4; Protestant Episcopal, 29; Reformed Episcopal, 2; Unitarian, 2; Miscellaneous, 110; total not including the Evangelical Alliance, consisting of clergymen of different denominations, 444.

Among the first of the prominent churchmen to endorse the "Church day" subject was the Most Reverend John J. Glennon, Roman Catholic Archbishop of St. Louis, who will officiate at the Old Cathedral mass, All of the churches and religious organizations of the city have been invited to take part in the observance of the day and virtually all have accepted.

"Church day" will be preliminary to the most general and impressive celebration ever held in any city in the country.

Among the features of the week will be aerial events in which noted aeronauts will sail the sky in balloons, airships and aeroplanes. The entrants for the aeroplane races include Glenn H. Curtiss, winner of the recent international aeroplane tournament at Reims, France, and hence champion aviator of the world.

There will be almost daily pageants on land, and in a magnificent parade on the Mississippi river a torpedo boat fleet of the United States navy will participate with river steamers and water craft of every description. The land pageants will include the time-honored and ever-impressive march through the streets of the Veiled Prophet, followed, as usual, by his ball, the chief social event, locally, of the year.

More than 1,000 mayors of cities have been invited to attend the celebration and the week will be notable for family reunions and civic gatherings. Mayor Frederick H. Kreismann, who will welcome the visiting mayors, is president of the St. Louis Centennial Association.

The association has obtained reduced railroad rates for Centennial week from virtually all parts of the United States, including the Pacific coast, and also all of Mexico and the greater part of Canad .

STATE POLITCS

Democrats Are Getting Busy In the State Campaign Already

REPUBLICANS ARE ALSO ALERT

Labor Leaders Badly Split Over the Draper Issue—How Some Unions Feel Over Attitude of Federation of Labor

It is very evident that the Democratic state committee is proposing to make as sharp and aggressive a campaign as possible. Those who had believed that not much of a fight would be put up by the minority party this year have begun to see their mistake and to note the fact that the most active kind of organization work is now under way.

Republicans, also, are becoming active. The leaders of the party do not intend to be caught napping in an off year, even when there does not appear to be any great possibility of a Democratic wave. Early in the summer there was a disposition on the part of some of the Republican leaders to make an extremely quiet campaign without stumping, with the idea that it would be impossible for the Democrats to make much headway with James H. Vahey as their candidate.

Quite likely the opinions of the men at the head of the state committee have not changed in regard to the strength of Mr. Vahey, but they do not intend to be caught asleep at the switch if they know it. They will be prepared to make the most active kind of a campaign should it seem to be necessary and leave no stone unturned to secure the re-election of Governor Eben S. Draper. They realize that he has made good, even beyond the expectations of his warmest friends.

The Labor Element In Elections

There are other elements in the contest, however, which make it advisable for the Republicans to be on their guard. This year, as in four other campaigns, the organization heads of the American Federation of Labor are fighting Governor Draper and opposing his re-election most vigorously. This year the reason given for this opposition is his veto of the so-called eight hour bill. It was not, strictly speaking, an eight hour bill. The Republican legislature passed an eight hour bill a number of years ago, but this particular measure, which applied only to city, county and state employes, was merely a modification of the old eight hour law. There were clauses in it which were declared unconstitutional by the attorney general. There was a section which was opposed even by some of the labor leaders themselves and which was felt to be unnecessary in the measure. Governor Draper refused to sign the measure while this section was in it and some of the labor leaders favored cutting it out. Their counsel stated that it added no value to the bill and that if eliminated it would not harm it in any way. However, the federation leaders refused to make this concession and the bill was vetoed.

Just how some of the labor men of the state, affiliated with the state branch of the American Federation of Labor, feel about this matter is apparent from the fact that the Boot and Shoe Workers' union of New Bedford has suported the action of their delegate, Andrew P. Doyle, in opposing the adoption of resolutions censuring the governor for his action. This union adopted resolutions in which they said:

The Federation Is Condemned

"The executive committee of Local 238, Boot and Shoe Workers' union of New Bedford, hereby approves the action of Andrew P. Doyle in speaking, working and voting against the adoption of the aforesaid resolution, believing that by so doing he was taking the best course for the interests of the laboring men of this state; the executive committee deprecates the action of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor in so broadly condemning Governor Draper and his action upon this matter, because the Republican party, in which he is an important factor, enacted the original eight hour bill and has been largely responsible for all the favorable labor legislation that has been enacted in Massachusetts, one of the most progressive states in the union; because, further, there was undeniably a very grave difference of opinion among labor men themselves as to the advisability of pressing this year's amendment to the eight hour bill, particularly in the form in which it was insisted upon, and for the reason that there were before the legislature in 1909 matters of far greater importance to all the laboring people of the state, upon which the efforts of the representatives of organized labor should have been concentrated.

"Now, therefore, the executive committee of Local 238, Boot and Shoe Workers' union, heartily approves the action of our representative, Andrew P. Doyle, in opposing the adoption of the resolution which condemns Governor Draper."

The committee then goes on to say that it believes the action of the special convention of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor will result in no good and in great harm to the cause of labor by reason of its condemnation of the governor.

Knights of Labor vs. Federation

But there is another important element in the labor movement not so large as the Federation of Labor, which looks with no great favor upon the action of the federation in thus condemning the governor. This is District Assembly No. 30, Knights of Labor, of which Thomas H. Canning of Boston is district master workman. It is very evident that the labor strength in Massachusetts is split irreparably over the issue presented. A large element of the rank and file, even of the American Federation of Labor, has sturdily refused in the past to follow its leaders. There is a very strong suspicion among the rank and file that a good number of the leaders in the federation are mixing in the political game, not for the benefit of the labor movement, but to advance their own interests. This conviction has deepened remarkably in the last year. It is one of the elements which made the denunciation of William H. Taft by Samuel H. Gompers and others of the Federation of Labor of no effect. It is likely to work the same way this year.

The results of the caucuses in the state lasf week made it perfectly apparent that the Republican state ticket would be unanimously renominated from top to bottom. They also demonstrated the fact that James H. Vahey would be nominated for governor on a Democratic ticket without any opposition worthy the name.

WATER POWER PROTECTION

Congress Must Take Question Up at Once, Says Pinchot

GREAT MONOPOLY IS FORMING

Must Be Throttled If Natural Resources Are to Be Preserved to the People—Danger of Coal Trust In the West—People Never So Thoroughly Aroused—Avoids Discussion of Trouble With Ballinger

Washington, Oct. 2.—Unequivocally asserting that a monopoly now is in process of formation, whose object is to obtain possession of the water power sites of the country, Gifford Pinchot, chief of the bureau of forestry, who has just returned from a wide inspection in the west, declared that remedial legislation must be enacted at the coming session of congress if this great natural resource is to be preserved to the people.

The problem of how best to prevent the nation's water power sites from being gobbled up by such combinations, Pinchot predicted, will be one of the biggest issues which the next session of congress will have to thresh out. While he said that the alleged trust is now only in the preliminary stage, Pinchot declared that prompt action by congress is necessary to throttle it. Upon the proper solution of this question, the future happiness of a great many people rests, he said.

Looming up as another big problem which will confront congress will be the question of the disposition of vast areas of coal lands in the west, but principally in Alaska. It is important that congress should take prompt action on this important matter, Pinchot said, for the protection of the country's fuel supply and to prevent a monopoly in that product.

Any doubt that may have existed as to whether Pinchot would continue to advocate the policies for which he has fought so hard was set at rest by him. As a result of his western tour he is as fully determined as ever to continue his policies regarding the conservation of the country's natural resources and the great national forest reserves.

Not only did Pinchot assert that President Taft is thoroughly imbued with the conservation movement, but he declared that the people of the country are now more completely aroused over the matter than at any previous time. President Taft, Pinchot said, has expressed himself in favor of a conservation commission and added that he was also in accord with that suggestion.

The target for a score or more newspaper men who were at his office to bombard him with questions upon his return, Pinchot interestingly set forth his views on the issues which are uppermost in his mind. He had just returned from a two months' inspection of the national forest reserves, with the condition of which he was immensely pleased.

Regarding the work of the National Conservation association which has lately been formed, Pinchot said he expected great things of it. In this connection he said the probabilities were that there would be another great conservation meeting in Washington this winter. It would, if held, take on the proportions of a conservation congress, though it would probably not be as great a meeting as the conference of governors.

Mr. Pinchot gave quick responses to the questioning of the newspaper men. On one issue only did he decline to throw any light. That related to the so-called Ballinger-Pinchot controversy over the conservation question. That he has no intention of relinquishing his position as chief forester as the result of that incident was reiterated when he declared emphatically: "I am not going to resign."

AT THE THEATRES.

SCENE FORM "THE PATRIOT" AT THE HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

Majestic Theatre.

The season is not likely to give us a more delightful or exhilarating attraction than we are to have in James T. Powers in the new musical play in three acts entitled "Havana," which plays its only engagement in New England at the Majestic theatre, beginning Monday evening, Oct. 4. There will be matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Of the original book, by George Grossmith, Jr., and Graham Hill, James T. Powers has made a free adaptation for America. This play has a musical record. It has been running at the George Edwardes' Gaiety theatre in London for two years and has been played for two seasons at the Casino, New York, and comes direct to Boston with the original cast. The splendid music of "Havana" is by Leslie Stuart composer of "Florodora." It is brimful of good things in a musical way, in flowing airs, lavish chorals and varying movements and the music has already become more popular than "Florodora." There is a good dramatic story to the play, around which a pretty and consistent plot is woven. All the scenes are laid in Havana, Cuba.

Keiths Theatre.

Since Annette Kellerman went to Harvard and was pronounced by Dr. Dudley A. Sargent as the nearest approach to a perfect woman that he had ever seen this young Australian has become one of the most widely discussed women in the entire world. As a vaudeville attraction she has been without a peer, and although she has had many imitators no one has been found who has been able to combine that beauty of figure and cleverness, not only in diving, but in other directions, that has characterized Miss Kellerman. She enjoys the distinction of having made one of the longest runs ever known in the metropolis, and she returns to Keith's next week, the house in which she started her vaudeville career, with world-wide fame and more interesting than ever. An entirely new feature that will make its appearance will be Sarasa a wonderful young violinist, who created a sensation abroad by his wonderful execution and personal magnetism. On the same bill will be Pat Rooney and Marion Bent, always headliners, the Sullivan Pasquelera Company in a sketch; the Martelle Brothers in a roller skating specialty; and the Musical Avaras, a company of Europeans playing all kinds of instruments, having the largest chimes in the world.

Boston Theatre.

Sparkling with fun, bubbling over with wit, replete with catchy melody and picturesquely and charmingly staged "Three Twins," after a year's triumph in New York, at the Herald Square theatre, comes on Monday Oct. 4 to the Boston theatre. The company is the original one of seventy people, with Clifton Crawford and Bessie McCoy in the two leading roles. "Three Twins," is genuinely diverting in story and humor. It has the praiseworthy quality of absolute freedom from vulgarity and conventional horseplay. "Three Twins" has for its book an adaptation made by Charles Dickson of the old farce, "Incog" with lyrics by O. A. Hauerbach and music by Karl Hoschna. The book is a very funny one. The conflicting identities called Three Twins, are as amusing as they are persistent. The promiscuous entanglement of the three young men, who resemble each other to the life, with the wife of one, and several would-be sweethearts of them all, together with a choice assortment of lover's quarrels, and grievous apprehensions arising therefrom, enhanced by the earnest endeavors of an elderly and very German gentleman to restore peace to the various members of the community by treatment in his private sanitarium, all go to constitute a plot that fairly bristles with picturesque possibilities.

Hollis Street Theatre.

Charles Frohman will present William Collier, foremost among the comedians of the day, at the Hollis Street theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 4, for a limited engagement in "The Patriot" a farce in three acts by J. Hartley Manners and Mr. Collier. There is no more welcome event to local theatregoers than the appearance here of William Collier. His fun-making is irresistible and his plays invariably clean, wholesome and diverting. Mr. Collier's notable success in "Caught in the Rain," "The Dictator," and his earlier plays, including "The Man from Mexico" and "Mr. Smooth" is a matter of record. In "The Patriot" he has the most pronounced success of his career. It is now in its second season, having run at the Garrick theatre, New York, for almost an entire year. "The Patriot" is a farce in three acts with the scenes laid in Bull Frog, Nevada, and London. The characters are typical of the far West and the British capital. The central figure, portrayed by Mr. Collier, is a fine example of the big-hearted, bustling, well-educated, up-to-date mining promoter—a thoroughgoing, high-spirited American type who, as a matter of fact, however, is of English birth and bears the name and title of Sir Augustus Flantagenet Armitage.

American Music Hall.

A real pleasure fest is an appropriate term to describe the big vaudeville bill which the William Morris, Inc. have arranged for the American Music hall next week. This popular theatre has seen many an all star program but it is no exaggeration to say that never before has it housed such an aggregation of vaudeville's most famous stars as will be seen next week. To begin with a genuine sensation is promised in the appearance of the Divine Myrma who has created a furore at many of the swell French watering resorts. There is some mystery as to the identity of the Divine Myrma but there is absolutely no mystery about the wonderful beauty of her face and form. The bill will include that wonderful American soprano, Edith Helena. This woman is credited with having the highest voice in the world and yet it is at the same time as sweet and mellow as that of any Grand Opera Singer. The bill will also include Joe Deming and Company and other acts fully up to the high standard of those mentioned.

Castle Square Theatre.

Nothing like last season's success of "The Circus Girl" has ever been known in Boston. Produced at the Castle Square by the John Craig Stock Company for a Christmas entertainment, it ran for nine weeks without interruption, and at the same time demonstrated the great versatility of the individual players. Moreover, during this period the theatre was crowded to the doors at every performance, afternoon and evening, and it is safe to say that "The Circus Girl" might have run on and on towards the summer. It was, however, necessary to withdraw the piece, and this was down with the promise by Mr. Craig that he would revive the piece at the earliest opportunity. That time has come, and come, and next Monday "The Circus Girl" will be seen again at the Castle Square with the same company, the same brilliant stage settings and costumes, and the same chorus of forty singers that helped to make its popularity last season. There is no doubt that "The Circus Girl" will be the reigning sensation of the present John Craig season at the Castle Square.

NORTH FOR LUNGS.

A newspaper correspondent with Peary says that Dr. J. W. Goodsell, with the expedition, considers that the far north makes an ideal place in which to fight tuberculosis. It is practically impossible, he says, for the tuberculosis germ to exist there. There is a considerable distance to go before reaching this spot, but many stricken sufferers who have some money would make the trip if they felt there was hope in the bleak northland. There are two interesting facts being brought to light showing the difference between the treatment of tuberculosis now and in days not very far agone. People can readily remember when tuberculosis patients were bundled up in cold weather till they were mere human packages done up and tied in. When they went away from home for treatment they went to some place that was warm, oftentimes to the point of being enervating. Stimulants were freely administered and often recommended by physicians and whiskey was part and parcel of many patients' medicine chests. Now tuberculosis patients are given all the fresh air they can get, cold is considered a help rather than a hindrance to recovery, the whiskey treatment is generally cut out, and the sending away of the sick from comfortable homes and friends to furnaces like Phoenix, Arizona, or Thomasville, Georgia ,to suffer and perhaps die alone, is no longer considered essential.—Brockton Enterprise.

GRAY HAIRS BANISHED.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color. One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days on account of it souring quickly. This objection has been overcome and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow. It is sold by all druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

BIG GAME IN AFRICA.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 30, 1909.

"Colonel Roosevelt has only begun to learn of the enormous quantities of big game in British East Africa, Uganda and the lake regions. There's a revelation ahead of him when he treks westward to Lake Victoria."

W. G. Sewall explorer, hunter, graduate of Harvard, London clubman and owner of 70,000 acres of land in British East Africa, who has come to Spokane to make an investigation of the bananza wheat fields in eastern Washington and Oregon, north and central Idaho and western Montana preliminary to seeding his vast holdings, made the foregoing remark in the course of a conversation in the rooms of the Spokane chamber of commerce. He added:

"The country is literary packed with all kinds of wild animals, including elephants, lions, antelope, buffalo, hippos, topi, waterbucks, hartbeete, leopards and rhinos; in fact, there he will find sufficient big game to fill every room in the Smithsonian Institute and several others."

Sewell is an interesting person. He is a typical Englishman, and is as familiar with the eastern hemisphere as with the western, having a home in Boston, lodgings in London, clubs here and there between Boston and Tokyo in one direction and Boston and London in another. He trekked along the shores of Lake Victoria less than a year ago, going also north as far as Lake Rudolph and west to the remote homes of the pigmies. Previously he had hunted in the Jubaland game reserve and throughout the Ukamba district, and there is little of East Africa and Uganda which he does not know thoroughly. Earlier he shot big game in Maine, New Brunswick, southern California, Alaska, British Columbia, India, Burmah, Ceylon and in other parts of the world. He has packed his outfit around for 12 years and when he heard of a good shooting ground he went to it.

"I am not putting it on a bit," he said, "when I tell you there is good sport shooting lions within a ride of two hours of Nairobi. I was in that region in 1906, but the sport was altogether too comfortable and easy for the best fun. Game fell with so little effort that I made up my mind to go farther north. I visited the region about Lake Rudolph, where I passed several months hunting wild animals."

Sewall bagged his first lion in Rumucuti, in the fall of 1906, a few weeks after he had landed at Mombasa and thence proceeded to Nairobi. In speaking of lion hunting, which few Americans have enjoyed, he said: "You see, you goad him into a fight. Not that he is a coward or anything of the sort, but he is used to minding his own business. But when you chase him around a bit and make it clear to him that you are after his skin, then he whirls on you as much as if to say: 'Now, come on and we'll fight it out.' And when he has decided to come he comes very fast. For a short distance there is no faster animal in Africa than the lion."

While in the mountains of the Moon, between Entebbe and Ruwenzori, where the Duke of Abruzzi made his reputation as a climber, Sewall reached the conclusion that was the original home of the elephant. While on the trek he stood on an elevation and counted part of a herd in the underbrush. He stopped at 274, satisfied that this was his opportunity to pick out a prize monster. Before he ended his attack on the herd he had two pairs of the best ivories which Africa could produce.

"Africa is not only the greatest hunting country in the world, but it is also a fine ground-floor proposition. There are vast commercial possibilities in the continent which men of business are just beginning to realize. Of course just as it takes a little capital to go hunting there, so, too, it takes capital to make investments. But it's a grand country for both hunter and investor—the last frontier of the world."

Sewell said that a great situation has been created by the building of the Uganda railroad, adding: "Some railroad lines which are now either building or are in plan awaiting the arrival of construction gangs, include a line from Nairobi almost due north to Fort Hall, which is intended as a feeder for the main line. It will run into the wheat country. From the Uganda railway a branch will run south through my other land. A third line, which has already been surveyed, will tap the timber belt northeast of Nairobi. The British government builds railroads first and settles the territory afterwards."

While the Uganda railroad was under construction Sewell acquired 50 square miles of grazing ground for the cultivation of cactus, the fiber of which is used in making rope. He says the plant thrives with no attention and that little expense attaches to its harvesting.

"The primary purpose of my visit to your wonderful country, to reach which I crossed the Indian, the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans and traveled several thousand miles overland, is to learn something about commercial wheat growing." said Sewell at the close of the interview. "Fifteen thousand acres of land in British East Africa, owned by Lord Delamere and myself, is now under cultivation, crude as it is, being planted to wheat, and I am studying conditions here with the view to putting 55,000 acres more under the plow. I expect to visit the fields in your Big Bend and Palouse wheat belts and will then go to Montana and Oregon, traveling west and south afterwards, thence to New York and sail for Liverpool the latter part of October and after a short stay in England I expect to return to East Africa to begin active work in the development of our plantation."

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Quincy Citizen Shows How to Cure Them.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kindney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Quincy people testify to permanent cures.

Mrs. E. Burke, living at 143 Quincy St., Quincy, Mass. says: "I consider Doan's Kidney Pills an excellent remedy for Kidney trouble, both my husband and myself having used them and the results were of the most satisfactory naturé. Mr. Burke had such a severe pain in his back that he could hardly do his work, but Doan's Kidney Pills fixed him up in good shape. They were procured at the Cox Drug Store and have our highest recommendation."

UNOCCUPIED LAND.

The land in Massachusetts is not all covered with buildings or in use for farming. One does not have to ride very far from Boston to find land enough to hold buildings that would house millions. There is acreage enough of unoccupied lands to satisfy the wants of vast population,but for one reason and another it is not utilized. The people who crowd the most undesirable quarters of the cities cannot be induced to leave them for the purer air, the brighter sunlight and the cleaner and saner conditions that the country affords. They prefer to herd together where there is excitement ,and have no love for the quiet and roomy life outside the city precincts. Many are the plans that have been considered to change these conditions, but none has proved satisfactory and the populating of the vacant lands goes on very slowly. Massachusetts has passed the period when agriculture may be followed with such profit as will induce the young farmer to put his capital and energy into the raising of crops with the hope of profits such as his western contemporary can reap. Our State has better opportunities as a manufacturing Commonwealth, and in that direction need fear no competition. The farmer near the manufacturing cities, who can raise vegetables for the table, is sure of a profitable result, but for wheat and corn and meat for food, reliance must be put on the broad and fertile fields of the West. They are ample for the task, and can feed the world. When the present land under cultivation fails to meet the demand there are still large sections of desert land that will be rendered fertile by irrigation, and there will be no famine in this century or shortage that will trouble the people who rely on the West for sustenance.—Lynn Item.

—The building record for August in 50 of the principal cities of the United States shows a gain of 34 percent in activity in that line over that of the same month last year. The demands of these busy days are finding plenty of work for hands that have been idle for many days.—Haverhill Gazette.

CHILD KILLED ON WATER ST.

In Some Unknown Way Caught in Wheels of Ice Wagon

Augustine the 3 year old son of Cosma Bova of 66 Water street was killed Friday afternoon by an ice wagon on Water street in front of his home. Just how the accident happener is somewhat of a mystery. It is supposed however that the little fellow climbed up on the back of the wagon and in some way became entangled in the wheels.

It appears that three children were playing in the street when one of the ice wagons of the Eaton Ice Co., passed. The wagon was in charge of Leonard Andrews of 7 Alden place, Roxbury and on the team with him as a helper was James Single of 42 Water street.

Shortly after the wagon has passed one of the children ran into the house and told Augustine's mother that he had been hurt. Looking into the street Mrs. Bova saw her son lying in the street. Rushing out she picked up the boy and carried him into the house and summoned a doctor. There was a cut on the child's head from which the blood was flowing and he was unconscious. Dr. F. E. Jones responded to the call but the child soon passed away having sustained a fracture of the skull.

Dr. Jones, notified the police station and Officer Hinchen found the ice wagon on Quincy avenue and brought the driver to the police station. The driver was very much surprised to learn that there had been an accident. After being questioned he was allowed to go. The accident happened opposite 38 Water street and within a few steps of the boy's home.

The two children with the unfortunate boy were unable to give any account of how the accident happened. It is supposed however that the child must have tried to climb into the back of the wagon to get a piece of ice and in doing so became entangled in the wheels. It is possible that he may have been carried around by the wheel and then dropped into the street. It is not thought that the wheels of the heavy wagon passed over the body for had they done so the body must have been crushed more than it was.

SPELLING BEE.

The Y. P. C. E. Society of Presbytrian Church Have Lots of Fun.

An old fashioned spelling bee was held at the Water Street Presbyterian church Friday evening under the auspices of the Y. P. C. E. society. About seventy of the members took part in the spelling bee, the words being given out by Rev. James Matheson, the pastor. One by one the contestants fell out until only the pastor's estimable wife was left. She eventually failed to spell a word correctly. Refreshments were served and a social hour followed.

Sunday evening will be consecration night of the society which meets at 6 o'clock under the leadership of John Charles.

SOME BIG PEACHES.

Mr. Ira Litchfield of Pearl street has raised some big peaches this season and is exhibiting some measuring nine and a half inches around, weighing eight ounces, others nearly as large weighing seven ounces and none less than six ounces. The trees are young this being their first crop and there would have been a great many more but for the frosts last spring. Four years ago Mr. Litchfield bought a basket of peaches and the fruit was so good he planted several of the stones with the result that this fall he has several thrifty trees and a good crop of large peaches.

A NOTABLE SPEAKER.

Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the Christian Endeavor movement, will undoubtedly be greeted by a large audience when he speaks in Bethany church on Monday evening. He has many friends in this city who have not had the opportunity of hearing him for a number of years. Delegates are also expected from surrounding towns. Mr. Briggs who conducts the praise service will be remembered as the musical director of the revival meetings held in Bethany church last spring.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

BANQUET AND VAUDEVILLE

Wind up Celebration of the Wollaston Yacht Club

The grand Wind-Up banquet and vaudeville of the Wollaston Yacht club was held on Saturday evening bringing to a close a most successful season of one of the most progressive yacht clubs along the coast.

Many notables were present from other yacht clubs and the city government, this being the gala event of the season for South Shore yachtsmen.

Previous to the banquet fireworks were enjoyed and 50 salutes were fired from the cannon while red fire was burned galore, lighting up the club house and water in a most effective way. Along the approach to the club were hung numberless Japanese lanterns which with bunches of wild flowers were the decorations at this point.

This was stag night and the crowd on the way to the banquet hall reminded one of the entrance to a baseball park during the pennant winning series.

In the banquet hall were seated 234 members and guests, several more than the total capacity of the hall for such an event. Tickets for this affair had been sold out over a week before and nearly as many again could have been disposed of for this popular festivity.

The tables were decorated with flowers and colored lights while the hall was hung with many flags and streamers. The Hyde Park Ice cream company served the following menu:

Chicken Salad — Chicken Pie
Celery
Cold Ham — Potato Salad
Radishes
Cream Cakes
Orange Sherbert — Frozen Pudding
Country Club
Rolls — Coffee

During the banquet the songs and dances of the colored Olympia quartet brought forth much applause. A flashlight photograph of the diners was taken.

The banquet over, cigars were lighted and Commodore Dawes in a speech of welcome referred to the great enthusiasm shown and the prosperous condition of the club. This club, he said, compares favorably with those of larger size and although it has but 140 members they are all united and work together and that is really what counts. According to its size, said Mr. Dawes you could not find a better fleet of boats or a better club house. He hoped by next year to have in the club its full membership of 200.

The following club song was then sung by the Commodore. This was written for the occasion by Frank F. Taylor to the tune of "Good evening Caroline," and the entire assembly joined in the chorus in a manner which made the rafters ring:

The yachting season now is over
This is the Grand Wind Up.
The boats have entered many races
And won many a cup.
But now at last the season's ended
Let's wind her up for fair
And when the opening day comes round again
We hope there'll be no vacant chair.

CHORUS.

Good bye old summer time
You have surely used us fine
Balmy days, windy days
We delight to sing your praise
Don't hesitate, let's celebrate
While we sit down to dine
We love the snow
But Oh, Oh, Oh
You good old summer time.

Following this Ex-Commodore Crane of the Quincy Yacht club was called upon and responded saying he brought with him the greetings of the oldest yacht club in Quincy. The club he said, was started at Germantown in 1874 by five men.

This was the first organized attempt of yachtsmen in Quincy bay. Previous to this subscription races were run drawing at times 150 boats. Mr. Crane in closing, after complimenting Commodore Dawes, assured those present that the latchstring of the Quincy Yacht club was always out to every club on the coast.

John Harland, chairman of the interclub racing association of Massachusetts next spoke. He appreciated the cordial welcome extended him and he told an amusing story of his first welcome to Wollaston in 1906.

W. M. Carleton chairman of the regatta committee of the Corinthian Yacht club at Marblehead was next introduced. In his speech he extended an invitation to hold the interclub run at Marblehead next year.

Charles C. Hanley of Quincy, designer of many famous local boats including the Iris, Almira, Eleanor and Thordis, was the last speaker. He said that there were two things he couldn't do—smoke and make a speech. He, however, proceeded to tell several humorous stories.

The evening was then placed in the hands of the entertainment committee: Frank F. Taylor and A. J. Podbury and the lid was off for the rest of the evening. Headed by Chick Fox of the Boston Cadets as the star attraction, the performers found a receptive audience and the following artists were vigorously applauded and cheered to the echo:

Character sketches—Chick Fox; Monologue—Stanley Nichols; Songs—Miss Marion Ford; Black-face sketch—Bert Clark; Songs—Miss Louise Scharland; Instrumental selections—Bert Lowe; Songs—Miss Katherine Dixie.

The Wind up is to be a yearly feature after this and next year the wise ones will buy their tickets weeks ahead.

AUTO-SUGGESTION

Theme of Rev. Dr. Hardy at Bethany Church Sunday.

"Auto-Suggestion" was the theme of Dr. Hardy at yesterday morning's service in Bethany church. The subject, although in its nature somewhat abstruse, was discussed in such a manner as to render it easily intelligible to the person of average comprehension.

Drawing illustrations from the ancient classics and present day observations, the preacher showed the susceptibility of the human mind to environment and suggestion and dwelt upon the necessity of directing the thoughts into the right channels. Dr. Hardy gave credit to the Christian Scientists for availing themselves of this principle of suggestion and using it for good, but he declared that they had "overworked" it and claimed too much for it.

"It utterly fails," said Dr. Hardy, "when confronted with the supreme test, Death, which is merely the culmination of the ills that flesh is heir to. It is for the church to redeem the principle, to reclaim it and operate it, within its reasonable and legitimate limits, for the physical and spiritual good of mankind."

Rev. Francis E. Clark, the founder of the Christian Endeavor society is announced to speak at the Bethany church at the annual rally this evening.

CITY COUNCIL.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. There are a number of important matters on the calendar several of which will some up for action. These also include public hearings on attachments for the Telephone company and on the petition of the Pneumatic Scale corporation to keep gasoline.

APPRENTICES GET THE CUP

Excelsus Class Forfeit Game Owing to Darkness

The Fore River apprentices won the deciding game at the park Saturday for the eighteen year old championship of the city when they defeated the Excelsus club. The game was forfeited to the Fore Rivers in the tenth inning after the Excelsus had refused to play claiming that it was too dark to see the ball. With this 9 to 0 victory goes the cup which has been on exhibition this week in the window of Sandberg's jewelry store. Up to the eighth inning the game although close was uninteresting but when the Apprentices tied things up in that inning and the game looked like going into extra sessions the crowd sat up and took notice. The score stood 5 to 1 in the last of the eighth and it looked like Excelsus as a winner of the cup, with that ever important factor of uncertainty of baseball to contend with, nothing was sure and in this case there was left no doubt of it after this inning for the Fore Rivers with a succession of hits to short and second they scored four runs and tied up the game. It was pretty dark at the beginning of the ninth but neither team was able to break the tie and the game started into extra innings. At this point Councilman Flynn who was umpiring told the captains to decide whether or not they wanted to play. The result was a dispute as Fore River had a man on third and a good hitter at the bat and did not want to stop just about then while for the very same reason the Excelsus club were anxious to leave the field.

The umpire, as they could not agree gave them three minutes to come to time and as the Excelsus still refused to play, the game unfortunately had to be awarded to the Fore Rivers. It was too bad that this happened as it gives the Fore Rivers a rather hollow title to champions, where had the game progressed they might have proven that they were the best eighteen year olds in the city by some brilliant playing and hammering out a victory.

Sherman of the Excelsus fanned 14 and Dackers of the Fore Rivers sent 9 along the air route. In the fifth with the score 1 all M. Chapman hit to left and soon after crossed the pan for a run putting Excelsus in the lead 2 to 1. They scored two more in the sixth and one more in the first of the eighth making the score in the last of that inning 5 to 1 in favor of the Excelsus club. But in the last of this innings, Fitzgerald, Hennessy, Smith and Hawley scored and tied the game. There was no more scoring as the Excelsus left the field in the last of the tenth inning and the game was forfeited to the Fore Fiver 9 to 0.

There was but one absent member at the Rally Day service of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Presbyterian church, Sunday evening, and this absence was due to the member being out of town. The meeting was one of the most interesting that the society has ever held. John Charles, president of the society, led the devotional exercises, and after the roll call of members he expressed his pleasure at seeing such a right and happy band of endeavorers.

Mr. Leach of Reading was then introduced and gave an interesting address on "Personal Work" during which he took occasion to congratulate the society on its splendid work. Two duets were rendered by Miss Helen and Miss Jennie Cummings.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Water Street Presbyterian church is doing an excellent work, much of the credit of which is due to the untiring efforts of its president John Charles.

It was too bad that this happened as it gives the Fore Rivers a rather hollow title to champions, where had the game progressed they might have proven that they were the best eighteen year olds in the city by some brilliant playing and hammering out a victory.

Sherman of the Excelsus fanned 14 and Dackers of the Fore Rivers sent 9 along the air route. In the fifth with the score 1 all M. Chapman hit to left and soon after crossed the pan for a run putting Excelsus in the lead 2 to 1. They scored two more in the sixth and one more in the first of the eighth making the score in the last of that inning 5 to 1 in favor of the Excelsus club. But in the last of this innings, Fitzgerald, Hennessy, Smith and Hawley scored and tied the game. There was no more scoring as the Excelsus left the field in the last of the tenth inning and the game was forfeited to the Fore Fiver 9 to 0.

Paddock the pastor of the church conducted the services and there was special music by the choir. The decorations consisted of autumn flowers which were grouped about the altar.

The members of the church who have passed away were read by the pastor who spoke eulogistically of each closing his service with the reading of one of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's poems. Communion services were held at the close of the morning service. The deceased members were:

Mrs. Hannah Willett.
Mrs. Mary B. Riddle.
Miss Marcia Fletcher.
Mrs. Jane Hanson.
Mrs. Martha A. Moore.

ONLY ONE ABSENT.

Rally Day Services of Y. P. S. C. E. of First Presbyterian Church.

There was but one absent member at the Rally Day service of the Y. P. S. C. E. of the First Presbyterian church, Sunday evening, and this absence was due to the member being out of town. The meeting was one of the most interesting that the society has ever held. John Charles, president of the society, led the devotional exercises, and after the roll call of members he expressed his pleasure at seeing such a right and happy band of endeavorers.

Mr. Leach of Reading was then introduced and gave an interesting address on "Personal Work" during which he took occasion to congratulate the society on its splendid work. Two duets were rendered by Miss Helen and Miss Jennie Cummings.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Water Street Presbyterian church is doing an excellent work, much of the credit of which is due to the untiring efforts of its president John Charles.

There was a large gathering at the Swedish Fair held in Electa hall Saturday evening. The program was the most interesting of the three nights and fully 350 enjoyed the selections rendered by the members of the church. Financially and otherwise the fair was one of the best ever held by the ladies aid society of the Swedish Lutheran church. When the fair closed there was hardly an article left unsold. Much credit is due those who handled the different tables during the three nights and the young ladies who had the prize books. The prize winners were announced during the evening and one of them received great applause. This was

The Ledger advertising reflects the increasing prosperity of the times. It is very gratifying all around.

Special attention is to be given this year in Somerville to industrial courses in the evening high school, which opens next week. The committee aims to make this school essentially practical.

More than one Quincy dressmaker owns up to being among those lately swindled by an apparently smooth talking agent who took their money and an order for a dressmaker's form which it is needless to say never showed up. It is better to trade with reliable and well known merchants instead of patronizing the door to door peddler. Those kind of people are best kept outside the house.

Great Britian says the Boston Transcript, last week launched the latest thing in Dreadnoughts to which Germany retorted by putting into the water the most formidable vessel under the German flag yet constructed. The building race between the two countries is fast if not furious, and the determination of the financial staying power is not so easy as it appears at first glance. Great Britain has the more money, but Germany possesses a considerable advantage in being exempt from entering the labor market to obtain sailors. The German navy is practically manned by conscription, and in consequence the pay bill is infinitely smaller than in countries which like Great Britain and the United States, depend upon voluntary enlistment.

UNITED STATES AND CANADA.

It is one of the trite old sayings that the best things to keep neighbors neighborly is a good high board fence between lots. A little more then a generation ago a great deal more was said about uniting Canada and the United States, than is said now. And yet there was probably far more jealously and bitter feeling between the citizens nearest the borders than there has been ever since. The Fenian raid, the refuge of many ex-confederates in the Dominion, the continual disputes about the fisheries and later the question of the Alaskan boundary kept many people and some statesmen of both countries in continual hot water. None of these questions trouble the people of either side today. The fence is built just high enough so that the line of difference in government will always be cleared, but not high enough to prevent the most free and most cordial business, social and religious intercourse.

The word "international" as applied to trade and religious organizations simply means a combination of the United States and Canada.

Immigration and emigration have brought about this consolidation. For years Canadians came over here by hundreds of thousands and proved to be very acceptable citizens where ever they went. But since the opening up of the great wheat regions of British Columbia the tide has been decidedly the other way and many thousands of American farmers have gone to live under the Union Jack. The lure of cheap land is always a strong one to many people. And when the land produces such crops of wheat, oats and other cereals as it does in northwestern Canada it is no wonder that many go.

Meanwhile the stream of Canadian emigration to this country keeps up with no apparent diminution. If we should count the Irish Scotch and English with the Canadian we should probably find more Britishers south than north of the Dominion line. Canadian and American interests are so nearly alike in many ways that each new decade finds us nearer together and better friends and this feeling seems likely to continue all the more as the plain governmental fence is quietly kept up.—Haverhill Gazette.

VISIT THE SCHOOLS.

The following from the Westboro Chronotype is timely and to the point:

"The schools have begun. It would be a source of satisfaction to the teachers of the parents would take interest enough in the work being done for their children to visit the schools much more than they do. Indeed this applies to people in general whether they have children in the schools or not, for every man and woman should have an interest in knowing what is being done in the schools to promote good citizenship, and that is the main purpose of public school instruction. Good citizenship includes upright living, industry, frugality clean habits, true manhood and true womenhood. With these things prominent in one's life, success in its true life will come, and one will not have lived in vain as so many do live in these days.

"It is a very easy thing to criticize the schools, but at least 90 percent of the criticisms come from parents, others who never take interest enough in the schools to visit them, but too often base their impressions on what their children may say without taking into consideration that children are not the best judges of what is best for them.

We have seen it sensibly stated that instead of asking the pupil 'What do you think of the teacher?' The inquiry should be 'What does the teacher think of you?' "

Westboro people are not the only ones who might study this question to advantage.

WRECKED IN BAFFIN LAND

Paradox of Dundee Whaling Fleet Crushed by Ice Floes

CREW HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Picked Up by Steamer After Making Perilous Way Over Broken Ice—Story of Cannibalism of Eskimo Who Murders and Devours His Own Child, Shooting Would-Be Punishers and Fleeing Into Wilderness

St. John's, Oct. 4.—Adventure and tragedy in the icy wastes of the far north formed the burden of the news brought to this port by the Hudson Bay company's steamer Adventure, which arrived with the crew of the lost Dundee whaler, Paradox, and the story of an Eskimo, who was driven to cannibalism by starvation.

The Paradox, one of the fleet of Dundee whalers, met the fate of her companion ship Snowdrop, a year ago, when she was crunched in the merciless jaws of the ice floes off Baffin Land, early in August. The crew, with scanty provisions, made their perilous way over the broken ice towards the mainland, when they were picked up by the Hudson Bay company's steamer Pelican, which brought the whalers to Fort Churchill.

The Pelican herself subsequently struck a rock which destroyed her rudder, and while trying to reach St. John's under jury rig she smashed one blade of her propeller.

The men of Dundee were taken along by the Adventure on her regular fall trip. On board the steamer also were several missionaries, surveyors and prospectors from the northwest country.

The Hudson bay mounted police also report through dispatches brought by the Adventure the cannibalism of a starving Eskimo. The man's fishing and hunting season had been a failure and, driven mad by hunger, he cut the throat of one of his children and then ate the little victim. When the man's neighbors learned of the horrible crime they attacked him according to the primitive law of their race.

The now thoroughly maddened Eskimo fled the shelter of his igloo and from hummocks of ice beat off all assaults, shooting down several of the attacking party and finally escaping into the wilderness of ice. Whether he finally succeeded in reaching some remote village where the news of his crime had not reached, or whether he finally succumbed to starvation, is not known.

Although in a very weakened condition it is believed that she will recover.

TAFT'S ADVICE TO CHURCHES

Should Preach True Religion and True Morality

EARNEST SUPPORT ASSURED

President Improves Opportunity to Preach Sermon at Laying of Cornerstone of Universalist Edifice—Men Are Better Than They Were Fifty Years Ago—Says Loyalty to Church Means Fidelity to Country

Portland, Ore., Oct. 4.—President Taft yesterday preached another sermon. The scene changed from the Mormon Tabernacle at Salt Lake City a week ago to the cornerstone laying of the First Universalist church in East Portland.

The president handled the silver trowel and worked hard to see that the stone was properly adjusted. His apparent earnestness in setting the stone called out great applause from the open air audience.

Mr. Taft attended the morning services at the First Unitarian church in Portland. In the early afternoon he visited St. Mary's Roman Catholic school and made a five-minute speech to the school children.

The line of march followed by the presidential party to East Portland was crowded and there was hand-clapping and cheering all along the way. After the president had been introduced at the cornerstone laying he said:

"I don't know that anyone questions the propriety of my being here and officiating on such an occasion as this, or that any explanation of any sort is called for. But I want to say I believe it to be the duty of the President of the United States to welcome and to suggest every instrument by which the morals and religion of the community may be elevated and maintained. Not long ago I officiated at the cornerstone laying of an orthodox Congregational church in Washington. Then I appeared in the pulpit of a Jewish tabernacle at Pittsburg. But a few days ago I helped lay the cornerstone of a Catholic institution at Helena, Mont.

"And now it is my great pleasure to assist here today in laying the cornerstone of this Universalist church, which, like my own, the Unitarian church, is known as a liberal one. I am glad always to be present at such occasions as these, for I believe the cornerstone of modern civilization must continue to be religion and morality."

The president told some of his experiences with the Catholic church in the Philippines and then said that on the occasion of his visit to Rome he ventured to tell the pope that while in America the sentiment was strong for the separation of church and state, there was nothing in the American government or the American people which opposed the church or its highest development; that in no European country had the Catholic church flourished as it had in America, and that in this country the Catholic church received from the government and state officials only the treatment shown every other denominations.

"I think we have reached the time when the churches are growing together, when there is less bitterness of denominational dispute, and that, no matter what creed we may follow, the churches are beginning to realize that they must stand shoulder to shoulder in the contest for righteousness; that we all stand for the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

"I am an optimist. I believe we are much better today than we were fifty years ago, man by man. I believe we are more altruistic and more interested in our fellow man than we have been at any time in the last fifty years.

"No church in this country, however humble it may be, which preaches the doctrine of true religion and true morality, will lack my earnest support to make it more influential whenever opportunity offers."

It was on his way to the cornerstone laying that the presodent stopped by St. Mary's Catholic school and from the steps of that institution made a brief address to the boys and girls. After congratulating the children on their rosy cheeks and "chubbiness" he said:

"Your church teaches that loyalty to God is the same as fidelity to country and reverence for constituted authority, and so do all good churches. And we can be very certain that those who are loyal to their church are certain to be loyal to their country; that those who are good Catholics are good citizens, just as those who are consistent members of other churches find in the doing of their duty to the churches everything that leads them on to the uplifting of humanity and the observation of all the obligations to the government."

Two Killed In Street Car Wreck

THE BLACK BAG

Serial Story by Louis Joseph Vance

"I was detained—by business," responded Brentwick briefly. His gaze, weary and wistful behind his glasses, rested on the face of the girl on the threshold of his home, and the faint, sensitive flush of her face deepened. He stopped and honored her with a bow that, for all his fantastical attire, would have graced a beau of an earlier decade. "Will you be pleased to enter?" he suggested punctiliously. "My house, such as it is, is quite at your disposal. And," he added, with a glance over his shoulder, "I fancy that a word or two may presently be passed which you would hardly care to hear."

Kirkwood lingered with his friend upon the door stoop. Calendar, recovered from his temporary consternation, was already at the gate, bending over it, fat fingers fumbling with the latch, his round red face lifted to the house, darkly working with chagrin.

From his threshold, watching him with a slight contraction of the eyes, Brentwick hailed him in tones of cloying courtesy:

"Do you wish to see me, sir?"

The fat adventurer faltered just within the gateway. Then, with truculent swagger, "I want my daughter!" he declared vociferously.

Brentwick peered mildly over his glasses, first at Calendar, then at Kirkwood. His glance lingered a moment on the young man's honest eyes and swung back to Calendar.

"I want my daughter!"

"My good man," he said, with sublime tolerance, "will you be pleased to take yourself off—to the devil if you like? Or shall I take the trouble to interest the police?"

He removed one fine and fragile hand from a pocket of the flowered dressing gown long enough to jerk it significantly toward the nearer street corner.

Thunderstruck, Calendar glanced hastily in the indicated direction. A blue coated bobby was to be seen approaching with measured stride, diffusing upon the still evening air an impression of ineffably capable self contentment.

Calendar's fleshy lips parted and closed without a sound. He banged the gate behind him and waddled off to join the captain, who already, with praiseworthy native prudence, had fallen back upon their cab.

Sullenly extracting money from his pocket, he paid off his driver and in company with Stryker trudged in morose silence down the street.

Brentwick touched Kirkwood's arm and drew him into the house.

CHAPTER XXIX.

As the door closed Kirkwood swung impulsively to Brentwick with the brief, uneven laugh of fine drawn nerves.

"Good God, sir!" he cried. "You don't know"—

"I can surmise," interrupted the elder man shrewdly.

"You turned up in the nick of time, for all the world like"—

"Harlequin popping through a stage trap?"

"No—an incarnation of the providence that watches over children and fools."

Brentwick dropped a calming hand upon his shoulder. "Your simile seems singularly happy, Philip. Permit me to suggest that you join the child in my study." He laughed quietly, with a slight nod toward an open door at the end of the hallway. "For myself, I'll be with you in one moment."

A faint, indulgent smile lurking in the shadow of his white mustache, he watched the young man wheel and dart through the doorway. "Young hearts!" he commented audibly and a trace sadly. "Youth!"

Beyond the threshold of the study Kirkwood paused, eager eyes searching its somber shadows for a sign of Dorothy.

By the fireplace, a little to one side, she stood, one small foot resting on the brass fender, her figure merging into the dusky background, her delicate beauty gaining an effect of elusive and ethereal mystery in the waning and waxing ruddy glow upflung from the bedded coals.

"Oh, Philip!" She turned swiftly to Kirkwood with extended hands and a low, broken cry. "I'm so glad."

A trace of hysteria in her manner warned him, and he checked himself upon the verge of a too dangerous tenderness. "There!" he said soothingly, letting her hands rest gently in his palms while he led her to a chair. "We can make ourselves easy now."

She sat down, and he released her hands with a reluctance less evident than actual. "If ever I say another word against my luck"—

"Who," inquired the girl, lowering her voice—"who is the gentleman in the flowered dressing down?"

"Brentwick—George Silvester Brentwick, an old friend. I've known him for years, ever since I came abroad. Curiously enough, however, this is the first time I've ever been here. I called once, but he wasn't in—a few days ago—the day we met. I thought the place looked familiar. Stupid of me!"

"Philip," said the girl, with a grave face, but a shaking voice, "it was"—she laughed provokingly—"it was so funny, Philip. I don't know why I ran when you told me to, but I did. And while I ran I was conscious of the front door here opening and this tall man in the flowered dressing gown coming down to the gate as if it were the most ordinary thing in the world for him to stroll out dressed that w y in the evening. And he opened the gate and bowed and said, ever so pleasantly, 'Won't you come in, Miss Calendar?'"

"He did!" exclaimed Kirkwood: "But how"—

"How can I say?" she expostulated. "At all events, he seemed to know me, and when he added something about calling you in, too—he said 'Mr. Kirkwood'—I didn't hesitate."

"It's strange enough, surely, and fortunate. Bless his heart!" said Kirkwood.

And "Hum!" said Mr. Brentwick considerately, entering the study. He had discarded the dressing gown and was now in evening dress.

The girl rose. Kirkwood turned. "Mr. Brentwick"— he began.

But Brentwick begged his patience with an eloquent gesture and rang the bell.

A soft footed butler, impassive as Fate, materialized mysteriously in the doorway.

"You rang, sir?" he interrupted frigidly.

"If any one should ask for me I'm not at home."

"Very good, sir."

"And if you should see a pair of disreputable scoundrels skulking in the neighborhood, one short and stout, the other tall and evidently a seafaring man, let me know."

"Thank you, sir." A moment later the front door was heard to close.

Brentwick turned with a little bow to the girl. "My dear Miss Calendar," he said, rubbing his thin, fine hands—"I am old enough, I trust, to call you such without offense—please be seated."

"Would you mind telling us how you knew"— began Kirkwood anxiously.

"Not in the least, my dear Philip. It is simple enough. I possess an imagination. From my bedroom window, on the floor above, I happen to behold two cabs racing down the street, the one doggedly pursuing the other. The foremost stops, perforce of a fagged horse. There alights a young gentleman looking, if you'll pardon me, uncommonly seedy. He is followed by a young lady, if she will pardon me," with another little bow, "uncommonly pretty."

Brentwick removed his glasses, rubbed them and blinked thoughtfully at the girl. "My dear," he said suddenly, with a peculiar tremor in his voice, "you resemble your mother remarkably. Tut—I should know! Time was when I was one of her most ardent admirers."

"You—y-you knew my mother?" cried Dorothy, profoundly moved.

"Did I not know you at sight? My dear, you are your mother reincarnate for the good of an unworthy world. She was a very beautiful woman, my dear."

"But you will tell me"—

"A number of interesting things, Miss Calendar, if you'll be good enough to let me choose the time. I beg you to be patient with the idiosyncrasies of an old man who means no harm, who has a reputation as an eccentric to sustain before his servants. And now," said Brentwick—"now, my dear boy, for the adventure."

Kirkwood chuckled, infected by his host's genial humor. "How do you know"—

"How can it be otherwise?" countered Brentwick, with a trace of asperity. "Am I to be denied my adventure? Sir, I refuse without equivocation. Your very bearing breathes of romance. There must be an adventure forthcoming, Philip; otherwise my disappointment will be so acute that I shall be regretfully obliged seriously to consider my right as a householder to show you the door."

"But, Mr. Brentwick"—

"Sit down, sir!" commanded Brentwick, with such a peremptory note that the young man, who had risen, obeyed out of sheer surprise, upon which his host advanced, indicting him with a long white forefinger. "Would you, sir," he demanded, "again expose this little lady to the machinations of that corpulent scoundrel whom I have just had the pleasure of shooing off my premises because you choose to resent an old man's raillery?"

GUEST NIGHT.

Granite City Club Entertains at its Club Rooms.

Saturday evening was guest night at the rooms of the Granite City club, in the Savings bank building, and a large number of guests were entertained by the club, which is noted for its hospitality. The affair was of an informal nature each member of the club constituting himself a committee of one to see that guests were made welcome and that they should enjoy themselves.

Morris orchestra furnished music during the entire evening and after the guests had inspected the rooms they were invited to participate in the various amusement to while away the time. Some engaged in billiards, others in pool and still others enjoyed a few hands at whist. A buffet lunch was also served during the entire evening in the dining room.

During the evening a number of gentlemen signified their intention of becoming affiliated with the club and at the close of the evening fourteen applications for membership had been received by the secretary.

It is planned by the officers to make these guest nights a feature during the coming winter and with the whist tournaments which will be inaugurated the present month the coming winter promises to be a busy one socially with the club.

COPELAND S, ATLANTIC 2.

Championship of Quincy Changes Hands.

The would be "champs" were defeated last Saturday in a one sided contest which spelled nothing but Copeland all the way. The game was played on the Old Colony league grounds before the smallest crowd of the season. The playing of the Copeland contingent was of the shighest order all through the contest and at no time did Atlantic show any championship form. Williams pitching for the Copeland club pitched the best game of his career and the north end lads could not touch him.

Driscoll on the other hand seemed to get disgusted with the support which he was receiving and slowed up so that about all the Copeland batters had to do was to step up and lace the ball. No one man excelled for the victors although several fine plays were pulled off by different members of the team, but the whole team played together and put up a classy game of ball all through. Not only did the Atlantic team, as a whole play the worst kind of ball but individually, where they were supposed to shine, they were absolute failures. If the opposing team did not play ball it must not be thought that the Copelands were not classy for it was the opinion of those present that there is not a team in the city who could have beaten them Saturday. This game leaves the Copeland club champions of the city for this year.

WOLLASTON GOLF.

Four-Ball Team Match on Wollaston Links Saturday.

A member's handicap four-ball team match was played Saturday on the links of the Wollaston club. The best net score was made by a team composed of H. B. Driver, A. B. Hathaway, G. F. Kelley and F. Blutter. Their score was gross, 367, handicap 46, net score 321. R. J. Duncle, C. M. Hart, S. B. Reed and J. F. Merrill were a good second with a net of 332.

AN UP-TO-DATE DRUGGIST

says it is surprising how many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old time-tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy, nothing equaling our grandmothers' "sage tea" has ever been discovered. Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer. Nowadays when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. This preparation is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

THE BROCKTON FAIR.

At the Brockton Fair October 5, 6, 7, 8, will be given the greatest outdoor vaudeville show ever presented in this country. On three large stages and adjacent aerial structures twenty or more top line acts will be given. Three first-class bands of seventy-five musicians will be required to furnish the music. The list of artists follow: Frenzio in His Mad Dive; Polar, the Man Up the Pole; The Globe of Death; Hardy, the American Blondin; The Four Baltus; LaBelle Faustina; Mangean Troupe; Kenyon and De Garmo; Donegan Sisters; Hassan's Arabs; The Three Le Bars; The Newsomes; The Six Flying Banvards; Dennis Brothers; Polk and Polk; John White and His Mules; The Three Le-Vans; Dunedin Troupe; Inza and Lorella; Johnson, Marvelle and Mule and the Famous Driscoll and Henry, who sing to beat the band. This aggregation of talent is one feature, there are hundreds of others at this out-door carnival of amusement where there is something going on every minute of the day and where the spectator, like the "White Wings" of old, "never grows weary."

SUNDAY FIRE.

Club Room on Miller Street Gutted Early Sunday Morning.

A small building owned by Mrs. Joseph Reinhalter situated on Miller street near the corner of Copeland street was gutted by fire at 4 o'clock Sunday morning. The building is occupied on the street floor by a store and the upper part as a club room.

The fire started from some unknown cause in the club room and was well under way when discovered and an alarm from Box 446 sounded.

The fire department made short work of the fire when it arrived although the club room was pretty well gutted. Chief Williams estimates the loss at $300.

NARROW ESCAPE.

Joseph DePanfilio Run Over by Team has Narrow Escape.

Joseph DePanfilio a driver of one of DePanfilio express wagons had a narrow escape from serious injury Saturday night by being run over by his team on Hancock street near the corner of Walnut street Atlantic. The team which was heavily loaded was coming toward Quincy when the horses became frightened and DePanfilio was thrown off.

The wheels of the heavy wagon passed over his back and it was thought that he must have been seriously injured. He was taken to the city hospital and attended by Dr. Jones who could not find that he was seriously injured. He received some bruises and cuts but strangely no bones were broken.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

Lively Debate on Street Rebuilding Orders

A regular meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. The features of the evening were a veto from the Mayor on the order amending the water ordinance and a sharp debate on several orders appropriating money for the rebuilding of several streets. Councilman Beale, Nowland, and Russell were absent.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Two communications were received from the School Committee. One calling attention to the urgent need of additional school accommodations in the Bigelow park district and the other stating that in accordance with a resolution of the City Council, plans for a new building in the Montclair district would be procured as soon as a suitable lot was secured.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing William F. McCalder a constable. Confirmed.

A VETO.

A communicaion was received from the Mayor returning without his approval the order amending the water ordinance. The Mayor in his veto says:—

"Order No. 285, an order amending the present ordinance concerning the Board of Water Commissioners is returned herewith without my approval for the following reasons:—

1—Section 4, thereof does away with the present practice of establishing and collecting a minimum water rate in advance. I believe that under existing conditions it is wise to maintain a minimum rate and authorize the collection of the same in advance.

2—Section 13, is so worded that it is difficult to ascertain just what it does mean, and in the event of the city's endeavoring to enforce the same I am afraid legal complications would arise. For convenience sake this section may for the purpose of discussing the same be divided into three parts.

A—"The owner and the occupant of the premises in which water is used who fails to protect his meter from frost, or fails to keep the service pipes and fixtures in good order, and neglects to shut off the water to prevent waste, shall be liable to a forfeiture of two dollars." Evidently it was intended by this provision to impose a forfeiture of two dollars whenever the meter is not protected from frost to such an extent as to injure it, or the service pipes and fixtures are not in good order, and there is a failure to repair them within three days after they become defective, and also in the event of there being a failure to shut off the water to prevent waste.

If I am correct as to the meaning of this provision then the wording of the same should be radically changed. As the provision is now worded there is uncertainty as to whether the owner or occupant, or either, and if so, which is liable.

This provision may be construed as to have the failures above set forth create liability only when "the owner or occupant is the same person" and again it may be so construed as to make both liable, in which event the forfeiture would be $4.00.

What shall constitute waste within the meaning of the section, and who shall be the judge of the same?

B—"And if the forfeiture is not paid within two days after notice, the water shall be shut off, and shall not be let on until the waste is stopped and the fine paid, together with two dollars for shutting off and letting on the water." The uncertainty as to the meaning of the first portion of this section would cause a practical difficulty to arise in enforcing this provision.

The difficulty connected with construing the first portion would have to be solved before the authorities would know what forfeiture to demand under this provision. I am at a loss to understand just what this provision does mean. It says "if the fine is not paid etc. the water shall be shut off and shall not be let on until the waste is stopped" I should assume that when the water is shut off the waste would be stopped. Does not this provision mean that when the meter pipes and fixtures are repaired and properly protected then the water will be let on if the fine is paid? If so, then why not say so?

No official of the city should be given such power, judicial almost in its character, in fact, a citizen's rights are better protected in our police courts than they would be under such an ordinance, for in the court they would have a right to be heard, whereas under the proposed amendment they would be tried, condemned and a fine imposed without even a hearing."

Upon motion of Councilman Abele the veto was laid on the table.

A number of applications for minor licenses were received including one from Louis Luciano to transport liquor. Upon motion of Councilman Hadlock the rules were suspended that this application might be received. It was then referred to the Committee on Licenses.

PETITIONS.

Petitions were received from the New England Telephone Co., for attachments on High street and Billings road. Referred to Committee on Streets.

A petition was received for a sidewalk on West Howard street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

REPORT OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on State Aid reported orders granting Soldiers Relief. Adopted.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported no legislation necessary on the communication from the Mayor forwarding plans for the Houghs Neck school. Accepted.

The Committee on Licenses reported orders granting a number of minor licenses. Adopted.

The same committee reported leave to withdraw on the applications of B. E. Pratt. Frank LeCain, Florence Chaissou, Walter N. Stafford and for licenses as common victuallers and of John Pilisi. Accepted.

LINCOLN SCHOOL.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported an order transferring $500 from the receipts from the sale of the Coddington and Quincy school buildings to repair the old Lincoln school building. Referred to Finance Committee.

PUBLIC HEARINGS.

A public hearing was held at 7.45 o'clock on the petitions of the N. E. T. & T. Co., for attachments on Rawson road, Sagamore, Blake, Marlboro, Woodbine, Bromfield, Old Colony streets, Lincoln and Newport avenues. Hearing closed and order recommitted.

A public hearing was held at 8 o'clock on the petition of the Pneumatic Scale Corporation to keep gasoline. Order recommitted.

STREET REBUILDING.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the following orders.

Appropriating $1,000 for rebuilding Marlboro street.

Appropriating $5,000 for rebuilding South street.

Appropriating $600 for rebuilding Billings road.

Councilman Abele and Whiton offered a minority report on each of these orders that the order ought not to pass.

In support of the minority report Councilman Abele said that they were offered for two reasons. First because the city had expended all the money it should this year on streets and second for financial reasons. The city appropriated in the budget $21,000 in addition to the excise tax amounting to six or seven thousand dollars. Then specific street orders had been passed calling for $59,000, also $2,300 for a stone crusher and $500 for a scarifier, making a total of $91,000. We have reached the limit this year. We have $100,000 in loans coming due next year. It was foolish policy to borrow for general repairs. They should be taken care of by the budget which should provide a larger sum for street repairs.

Councilman Bryant was surprised that the gentlemen should favor having the money needed included in the budget when it is considered that every cent possible is raised. Just as long as the present law exists and until the city proceeds each year to fix the streets already accepted we will have to borrow. The trouble has been we accept streets because they are not in proper shape and then the city becomes liable for damages if they are not repaired. It was just and right that abutters should come here and ask to have their street fixed that should have been in condition before they were accepted. It comes pretty close to the question if we can borrow money for repairs. But these are technically rebuilding streets. New construction all through. The Finance committee has adopted a policy this year of shorter loans. The only way to rectify the mistake made when the streets were accepted is to borrow money and put them in condition.

Councilman Whiton said it was only a question of finance. The raising of money to pay for it. Resurfacing streets is a current expense and this is a quibble called rebuilding to get around that point. If these pass there is no reason why we should not resurface every street in the city. It is a question of legality of the order to resurface. If it is for surface drainage that is a different thing.

Councilman McDevitt favored the

GREETING TO DR. F. E. CLARK

Grand Rally of Clark and East Norfolk Endeavors

A most enthusiastic rally of Christian Endeavorers was held at the joint meeting of the Clark and East Norfolk Unions in Bethany church Monday evening to welcome Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D. LL. D., founder of the Christian Endeavor. A large audience of over 700 filled the body of the church and the balcony. Rev. Mr. Clark was introduced by Carl R. Hayward as "Father Clark." Immediately the "Chicago salute" was given and the air was filled with fluttering handkerchiefs in the hands of the vast audience present.

Dr. Clark in opening remarked upon the size of the audience and the fact that it was made up of so many young people.

This was not the first time he had come to Quincy, but to his knowledge this was the largest meeting of the two unions ever held. "I have just come." said Rev. Dr. Clarke, "from a meeting in that suburb of Quincy called Boston. There I was told the good news of the increased advances and I hear the same good story here. Boston is working for a hundred per cent increase and in two weeks has gained nearly sixty per cent." He then went on to discuss the means of increasing membership by the good natured rivalry of two factions such as are started by the Y. M. C. A's and kindred organizations.

He had heard good news about the societies here. He understood that at a meeting the night before in Quincy one of the societies had all present but one member. He was glad to be in this church under the wing of his good friend Dr. Hardy. "I scarce know," said Dr. Clark, "whether to look back, in my address, over what work has been done or to look into the future and tell you what I expect to see." He told of receiving, recently, a letter from a pastor in Norway telling of the success of the Christian Endeavor there.

Ten years ago when the people of Norway were approached on the subpect of Christian Endeavor they said that "it was all right to tell about the new Yankee notions but they would never work in the staid old churches of Norway." "God," said Dr. Clark, "has a use for Christian Endeavor in Norway as in America as may be seen by the result achieved." Continuing he told of the success the work was meeting with in foreign countries and brought the greetings of those across the water to this meeting.

He spoke of the chain of love thrown over his shoulders by followers at a meeting in India and he

High School Eleven Meet Brookline This Afternoon

"Venus" Carlson, who played guard on Quincy High last year, is a strong candidate for guard on the Tech freshman team.

Yesterday was a busy one for the High school squad for they had a lot of work to put in preparing for the Brookline High game today. The team showed up remarkably well and should give Brookline a stiff argument today. For the past three years Quincy has beaten Brookline but this year they have a much stronger team than usual and Quincy would do well to hold them to a tie. The new back field combination will have its first tryout today and should work in great shape, as Bates, Rice and Veal are all fast heady players. But one man has dropped from the squad so far. This is Bills, who has been sibbering at center. Brown will start one tackle today and either Bugler or Sayward, the other. Billy Manning is due to direct the team at the beginning and Hill and "Busty" Arthur will be the end men. Guard is open until the game as there is Rick, Favorite, Holteen and several others trying for it.

The New York Times states that Dan O'Flaherty, who is playing quarter for Harvard, is the best man since Charlie Daley. That is some compliment for Dan.

Plans are on foot in Wollaston to have a team represent that end of the city this year in football. There is no doubt about the ability to pick a star team and it is hoped that they will be able to carry out their plans. Large crowds used to turn out to see the old Merrymounts play and just as many would show up for the present day stars. Wake it up Wollaston and see what you can do.

BEAUMONT—BEAUMONT.

One of the prettiest of autumn weddings was solemnized Monday evening by Rev. T. W. Davidson of the Atlantic Memorial church, when Harry W. Beaumont of Philadelphia was united in marriage to Miss Madeline Orrell Beaumont of South Royalston, Pa. The ceremony was performed at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Safford intimate friends of the bride.

Miss Beaumont has been the guest of Mrs. Safford for some weeks past and has made many friends in Atlantic. The groom arrived from Philadelphia Monday.

The bride was attended by Miss Helen May Struther of South Royalston and Winthrop Safford was the best man. The bride looked charming in a gown of white and lavender and she carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The house was prettily decorated with Sylvia, trailing vines, ferns and cut flowers.

The ceremony, which was at 8 o'clock, was witnessed by only the immediate friends of the bridal couple. A wedding supper was served after the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Beaumont left for a brief trip. They will reside in South Royalston, Pa.

Frosty mornings, but seasonable.

Many dandelions are brightening the lawns which are unusually green and luxuriant for the time of year.

All travel through Quincy this week leads to Brockton for the big fair.

The ash men have started on their daily collections and rows of barrels of ashes accumulated during the summer adorn the sidewalks.

Brockton has an aged woman who last week observed her ninty-ninth birthday and is now in her 100th year.

Choral societies in neighboring towns are beginning rehearsals. Music lovers hope the Quincy Choral so successful last winter is to be again heard from.

"Gaslight University" is certainly a good name to apply to the evening schools of the Y. M. C. A. Their work is equal to many universities and often more helpful and practical and a great financial help to many struggling young men.

WINDOWLESS ROOMS.

People assuredly do not realize how the other half lives, so far as regards the people in large cities in this country— or any other for that matter. Late statistics say that there are 100,000 living rooms in New York that have no windows. It is easy to imagine the life in places that are dark are often noisome and a treasure place for germs of all kinds. There are few people in small cities or in towns who know what life under such circumstances is like. In the smaller cities and in the towns people have an outlook, have a chance for fresh air, have, in the main, clean and sweet living places, with perhaps a little ground at the back or at the front of the house that gives the foot a chance to occasionally get off the hard pavements. Much as may be said in favor of city life and its attractions, it is desperately bad for those who have not learned the lesson of how to conquer the complex and steel-hard conditions that surround the life that is passed in the great towns. One hundred thousand living rooms with no windows means several hundred thousand people living in conditions that are wellnigh intolerable, and getting and transmitting the seeds of illness and of death. The "Suburbanite" unless he is bordering on wealth has in various ways a good deal on the city men of ordinary means or of poverty, and he ought to be content where he is.—Brockton Enterprise.

NOT TO BE WONDERED AT.

A man 90 years of age, who had been sentenced for life, has been pardoned and released from the New Jersey state prison at Trenton. He was committed many years ago and he comes forth to a world which bewildered him because it is so different from that which he knew. He had never seen a trolley car, the automobile was an undreamed-of machine for general use when he was incarcerated and in many respects extraordinary changes have been wrought during the term of his imprisonment. Such an incident gives the world itself a little opportunity to note how fast it is going, though very likely the old globe will not take time to give the matter much heed, but will let out another speed notch and hustle on to still greater things—Framingham News. ....

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

report of the majority. All streets should be put in repair.

Councilman Abele said it was suicidal and all wrong to borrow money for repairs. It would be far better to make the budget larger and let the Commissioner make the needed repairs for he was in a better position to know what was needed than the members of the council.

Councilman Bryant said it would be useless to petition the legislature to borrow beyond the debt limit. In speaking of South street he said here is a street which was almost impassable. There are thousands of workmen at the Fore River and hundreds pass over this street every day.

When the South street order came up Councilman Walsh spoke in favor. He knew all about that street. There were stones sticking through it six and seven inches high.

Councilman Carey knew the condition of the street thoroughly. Outside of a few loads of gravel nothing had ever been done to this street. There are nearer a thousand men who use this street every day than two hundred.

Councilman Flynn wanted to add a word to the good cause. He wanted to compliment the Finance Committee on its good judgment. There was a grand chance to establish a ferry boat line on that street.

Councilman McDevitt was convinced some money should be expended there. It did not matter if only one team a day passed over it, something should be done for the people of brawn and muscle.

Councilman Whiton argued at length against the order, not because the street should not be repaired but simply as a question of economy and finance.

Councilman Richards believed in economy but believed it was a good thing to have good streets.

The balloons which have landed report heavy rain and fog throughout the flight.

THE GOSPEL OF HEALTH

Washington Says Negro Doctors Should Preach It to Their People

Washington, Oct. 5.—"I do not mean to say that the negro doctor alone should practice among his race, but I do think that we ought to have a fair proportion of negro doctors to practice among negro patients," said Booker T. Washington in addressing the matriculating students of Howard university.

Pointing out the possibility of the ignorant negro who comes into close contact with the white man, carrying germs to the latter, Washington declared that it was the mission of the negro physician to preach the gospel of health to his people.

Professor Washington said there are about 3500 negro physicians in the country, and urged that that number be doubled.

CONDUCTED BIG BUSINESS

Boston Brokers Now Find Themselves In Criminal Court

ARE CHARGED WITH LARCENY

Sum of $116,530 Alleged to Have Wrongfully Been Secured From Customers of Firm Which Had Branches In Many New England Cities—Sederquist and Barry Are Held In $20,000 Bail Each

Boston, Oct. 5.—After doing a stock brokerage business amounting to nearly half a million dollars a year for a number of years, Arthur B. Sederquist and John E. Barry of the firm of Sederquist & Barry, which failed last May, found their cases transferred from the civil courts to the criminal courts.

They were arrested on a secret indictment warrant charging them jointly with the larceny of $116,530. The Suffolk county grand jury investigated the firm's affairs last week at a special session, a large number of the creditors testifying, and the indictment was reported, but was kept secret until the arrest of the two men yesterday.

Barry spent last night in the Charles street jail because he was unable to raise the $20,000 bonds in which he was held. Neither he nor Sederquist pleaded to the indictment charge when brought before Judge Harris, and they were both held for a hearing.

Bail was furnished for Sederquist by Mrs. Maud Y. Sederquist, Miss Susan Young and Miss Sarah H. Young, all of Lynn. Barry did not seem to be disturbed when told that he would have to spend the night in a cell and said he expected that he would obtain the necessary bonds today.

Sederquist & Barry conducted a large brokerage business in pretentious quarters on Congress street, with branch offices scattered throughout New England. The two men are charged with the larceny of $116,530 from 118 persons who transacted business with them. Two of the firm's customers complained against them in two separate counts.

Both Sederquist & Barry were taken into the superior criminal court room before Judge Harris. Although District Attorney Hill and Assistant District Attorney Curtis asked for heavier bonds, citing a number of previous cases, Harris placed the amount at $20,000 apiece.

When the firm failed last May it created a great stir in financial circles. At that time it was announced that the liabilities amounted to more than $600,000, which sum was owed to about 800 persons in New England, it was claimed, and that there were assets in the neighborhood of $127,000.

Numerous meetings of the creditors were held and finally the district attorney was urged to take some action. Mr. Hill brought the matter before the secret session of the grand jury, and the result was the secret indictment returned Saturday.

"I apologize," Kirkwood humored him.

"I accept the apology in the spirit in which it is offered. I repeat, now for the adventure, Philip. If the story's long, epitomize. We can consider details more at our leisure."

Kirkwood's eyes consulted the girl's face. Almost imperceptibly she nodded him permission to proceed.

"Briefly, then," he began haltingly, "the man who followed us to the door here is Miss Calendar's father."

"Oh! His name, please?"

"George Burgoyne Calendar."

"Ah, an American! I remember now. Continue, please."

"He is hounding us, sir, with the intention of stealing some property, which he caused to be stolen, which we, to put it bluntly, stole from him, to which he has no shadow of a title and which finally we're endeavoring to return to its owners."

"But why have you not caused his arrest?" Brentwick inquired.

Kirkwood nodded meaningly toward the girl. Brentwick made a sound indicating comprehension, a click of the tongue behind closed teeth.

"We came to your door by the merest accident—it might as well have been another. I understood you were in Munich, and it never entered my head that we'd find you home."

"A communication from my solicitors detained me," explained Brentwick. "And, now, what do you intend to do?"

"Trespass as far on your kindness as you'll permit. In the first place, I—I want the use of a few pounds with which to cable some friends in New York for money, on receipt of which I can repay you."

"Philip," observed Brentwood, "you are a most irritating child. But I forgive you the faults of youth. You may proceed, bearing in mind, if you please, that I am your friend equally with any you may own in America."

"You're one of the best men in the world," said Kirkwood.

"Tut, tut! Will you get on?"

"Secondly, I want you to help us to escape Calendar tonight. It is necessary that Miss Calendar should go to Chiltern this evening, where she has friends who will receive and protect her."

"Mm-m," grumbled their host, meditative. "My faith!" he commented, with brightening eyes. "It sounds almost too good to be true! And I've been growing afraid that the world was getting to be a most humdrum and uninteresting planet. Miss Calendar, I am a widower of so many years' standing that I had almost forgotten I had ever been anything but a bachelor. I fear my house contains little that will be of service to a young lady. Yet a room is at your disposal. The parlor maid shall show you the way. And, Philip, between you and me, I venture to remark that hot water and cold steel would add to the attractiveness of your personal appearance. My valet will attend you in my room. Dinner," concluded Brentwick, with anticipative relish, "will be served in precisely thirty minutes. I shall expect you to entertain me with a full and itemized account of every phase of your astonishing adventure. Later we will find a way to Chiltern."

Again he put a hand upon the bell pull. Simultaneously Dorothy and Kirkwood rose.

"Mr. Brentwick," said the girl, her eyes starred with tears of gratitude, "I don't, I really don't know how"—

"My dear," said the old gentleman, "you will thank me most appropriately by continuing, to the best of your ability, to resemble your mother more remarkably every minute."

"But I"— began Kirkwood.

"You, my dear Philip, can thank me best by permitting me to enjoy myself, which I am doing thoroughly at the present moment. And," he added as a maid appeared at the door, "I have already schemed me a scheme for the discomfiture of our friends the enemy, a scheme which we will discuss with our dinner while the heathen rage and imagine a vain thing in the outer darkness."

Kirkwood would have lingered, but of such inflexible temper was his host that he bowed him into the hands of a manservant without permitting him another word.

"Not a syllable," he insisted. "I protest I am devoured with curiosity, my dear boy, but I have also bowels of compassion. When we are well on with our meal, when you are strengthened with food and drink, then you may begin. But now—Dickle," to the valet, "do your duty."

He heard the young man's footsteps diminish on the stairway, and again he smiled the indulgent, melancholy smile of mellow years. "Youth!" he whispered softly. "Romance! And now," with a brisk change of tone as he closed the study door—"now we are ready for this interesting Mr. Calendar."

A suspicion of moisture glimmered in his eyes. "Dorothy!" he whispered huskily, and a little later, rising, he proceeded to the telephone.

An hour and a half later Kirkwood, his self respect some ing restored by a bath, a shave and a resumption of clothes which had been hastily but thoroughly cleansed and pressed by Brentwick's valet, his confidence and courage mounting high under the combined influence of generous wine, substantial food, the presence of his heart's mistress and the admiration—which was unconcealed—of his friend, concluded at the dinner table his narration.

"And that," he said, looking up from his savory, "is about all."

"Bravo!" applauded Brentwick, eyes shining with delight.

"All," interposed Dorothy in warm reproach, "but what he hasn't told"—

"Which, my dear, is to be accounted for wholly by a very creditable modesty rarely encountered in the young men of the present day. It was, of course, altogether different with those of my younger years. Yes, Wotton?"

Brentwick sat back in his chair, inclining an attentive ear to a communication murmured by the butler.

Coffee was set before them by Wotton, the impassive, Brentwick refusing it, with a little sigh. "By the way," he said, "while you were preparing for dinner Wotton returned from his constitutional with the news that, leaving the corpulent person on watch at the corner, Captain Stryker had temporarily made himself scarce. However, we need feel no anxiety concerning his whereabouts, for he reappeared in good time and a motor car, from which it becomes evident that you have not overrated their pertinacity The fiasco of the cab chase is not to be re-enacted."

Resolutely the girl repressed a gasp of dismay. Kirkwood stared moodily into his cup.

"These men bore me fearfully," he commented at last.

"And so," continued Brentwick, "I bethought me of a counterstroke. It is my good fortune to have a friend whose whim it is to support a touring car chiefly in innocuous idleness. Accordingly I have telephoned him and commandeered the use of this machine—mechanician too. Though not a betting man, I am willing to risk recklessly a few pence in support of my contention that of the two, Captain Stryker's car and ours, the latter will prove considerably the more speedy.

"In short, I suggest," he concluded, thoughtfully lacing his long white fingers, "that, avoiding the hazards of cab and railway carriage, we motor to Chiltern, the night being fine and the road, I anr told, exceptionally good. Miss Dorothy, what do you think?"

Instinctively the girl looked to Kirkwood, then shifted her glance to their host. "I think you are wonderfully thoughtful and kind," she said simply.

"And you, Philip?"

"It's an inspiration," the younger man declared. "I can't think of anything better calculated to throw them off than to distance them by motor car. It would be always possible to trace our journey by rail."

"Then," announced Brentwick, making as if to rise, "we had best go. If neither my hearing nor Captain Stryker's car deceives me, our fiery chariot is panting at the door."

A little sobered from the confident spirit of quiet gayety in which they had dined, they left the table. Not that in their hearts either greatly questioned their ultimate triumph, but they were allowing for the element of error so apt to set at naught human calculations. Calendar himself had already been proved fallible. Within the bounds of possibility their turn to stumble might now be imminent.

When he let himself dwell upon it their utter helplessness to give Calendar pause by commonplace methods maddened Kirkwood. With another scoundrel it had been so simple a matter to put a period to his activities by a word to the police. But he was her father. For that reason he must continually be spared. Even though, in desperate extremity, she should give consent to the arrest of the adventurers, retaliation would follow swift and sure, for they might not overlook or gloze the fact that hers had been the hands responsible for the theft of the jewels. Innocent though she had been in committing that larceny, a catspaw guided by an intelligence unscrupulous and malign, the law would not hold her guiltless were she once brought within its cognizance, nor possibly would the Hallams, mother and son.

Before the door a motor car waited, engines humming impatiently, mechanician ready in his seat, an uncouth shape in goggles and leather garments that shone like oilskins under the street lights.

At one corner another and a smaller car stood in waiting, its lamps like baleful eyes glaring through the night.

In the shadows across the way a lengthy shadow lurked—Stryker, beyond reasonable question. Otherwise the street was deserted. Not even that adventitious bobby of the early evening was now in evidence.

Dorothy presently joining them, Brentwick led the way to the door.

Kirkwood to the right, Brentwick to the left of Dorothy, the former carrying the treasure bag, they hastened down the walk and through the gate to the car.

MITCHELL—GAULD.

News comes from Montpelier, Vt., of the marriage in that city Sept. 29. of Walter A. Mitchell of Quincy to Miss Jane Gauld of that city. The following is from the Montpelier Journal:

A very pretty marriage ceremony took place the evening of Sept. 29, at the home of the bride on Sibley avenue, when Miss Jane Gauld, a well-known and popular young woman of Montpelier, Vermont, was united in wedlock to Walter A. Mitchell, a prominent young business man of Quincy. Rev. Stanley Blomfield of Bethany Congregational church, officiated while a few friends of the immediate family were present. They will take a short wedding tour after which they will be at home in Quincy, Mass. Mr. Mitchell is connected with a firm of leather merchants in Quincy and is quite well known in society circles there.

SEASON OPENED.

Men's Club of Christ Church Listen to E. J. Mulready.

The Men's club of Christ church held their first meeting of the season of 1909-10 Monday evening at the Parish house. The principle guest of the evening was E. J. Mulready state deputy probation officer of Massachusetts. He took as his subject, "The big brother idea." His address was interesting and his large audience of young men appreciated it. During his remarks he made reference to the five Chinamen awaiting death in Boston for the murder of their countrymen and said that it was murder to electrocute them and was just as bad as the lashing of the negroes in the early '80's. He also proposed that the young men of Quincy band together and go to Judge Avery and see if they could plan a campaign to look after the boys who came before the juvenile court. Also to look out for those who are apt to be brought before the court by their behavior.

It was his opinion that criminal instincts, by careful oversight and constant watching might be forever eradicated from a boy's mind, even if the boy was surrounded by bad influences, or had it in his blood by inheritance. He closed his address with some revelations in regard to the manner in which some of our public institutions are run taking as an illustration near Quincy, the Bridgewater State farm.

Refreshments were served after Mr. Mulready's talk was followed by a fine entertainment which included selections by Smith's orchestra, recitations, Leslie Smith, song, Carleton D. C. Beal, recitation, Little "Joe Beal."

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Annual Meeting of Men's Club, St. Chrysostom's Church.

The first meeting of the season was held by the Men's club of St. Chrysostom's church on Monday evening. The meeting was devoted to business, no speaker being present and the following officers were elected.

President—J. A. Severance.
Vice President—T. L. A. Musgrave.
Secretary and Treasurer—John L. Hamilton.
Executive Committee—Officers and E. F. Parlee, F. E. Cleveland, H. W. Richmond and H. Barum.

A general discussion of club affairs followed and it was voted to have an entertainment committee, the same to be appointed by the chair.

It was voted to hold the meetings on the first and third Mondays of each month instead of once monthly as formerly and to have the second meeting in charge of the entertainment committee.

Several new members were received into the membership of the club and the meeting adjourned at 10 o'clock until the first Monday in November.

MURRAY CLUB.

First Social of the Season Held Monday Evening.

The first social of the season of the Murray club of the Universalist church was held Monday evening in the vestry of the church and was well attended. The social was from 7 to 9.30 o'clock and those present report a pleasant evening. During the evening there was a series of games for the older people as well as a series of games suitable for children. Both young and old entered heartily into the spirit of the evening. In addition to the various games there were tables for the sale of candy and mystery packages. The proceeds from these sales is to be used in furthering the establishing of a Sunday school kindergarten class.

DELIGHTFUL RECEPTION.

Mrs. Horace M. Willard of the Quincy Mansion school was at home on Monday afternoon from three until five o'clock, receiving a great many guests from all parts of the city as well as neighboring suburbs. Students at the school ushered and assisted in the tea rooms and members of the faculty aided in the hospitalities.

A delightful feature of the reception was the singing of Mrs. Bertha Cushing Child, contralto of Boston; her richness of voice and charming personality captivating her listeners. Guests were coming and going throughout the hours of the reception, which was informal and pleasantly social as are all the affairs at this hospitable old mansion presided over so gracefully by the hostess, Mrs. Willard.

—David I. Robinson of Gloucester has made a record as county treasurer of Essex and it was his due that he should state it following his nomination for a third term. Instead of following the old custom of keeping the county money in one bank he has divided it among 16 banks in the county. By this means he has been able to get a total of $6515.64 in interest on county money during the past year, or $600 more than the combined interest received by 12 other counties of the state, and more than sufficient to pay all the expenses of his own office, including his own salary. Mr. Robinson's plain statement of what he has done is a campaign speech that can not be surpassed. Next year, if the treasurer of other counties cannot produce as good a showing, the voters should be interested to discover.—Boston Record.

GREETINGS TO FATHER CLARK

theoretically threw it over those present "binding them in wider fellowship with their brothers in India, China, Japan and other far-off countries." He also referred to the increase campaign started in St. Paul last year with the motto, "Christian Endeavor 1911." This movement aims to add a million new members and ten thousand new societies. He compared it to the 1915 movement for a bigger, better, busier Boston and hoped they would lay more emphasis on the word better.

Speaking of the active, associate and honorary members Dr. Clark said, we should make the associate membership a fishing ground from which to draw active members. Of the "Christian Endeavor 1911" movement he told of news of increases which were coming from the states of the north, south, east and west. He hoped to hear good news from his namesake, the Clark union. "I am not," he said "talking to people in India or Boston but to you." 'I am appealing to you to do more for your society, to do your part, to help your community, your pastor your church. I am not talking into the air. I mean you and you and you.'

"I trust the coming year will bring news from the unions in Quincy which will not only make me glad, which is a small matter, but will make the angels glad." In closing he said, "God bless you everyone."

Following his address Dr. Clark held an informal reception in the chapel of the church. He left for Boston on the 9.17 train. This will be practically his last public appearance before sailing for India on October 16.

The meeting opened with a praise service conducted by Albert P. Briggs with Madame Beale Morey as organist. The devotional exercises were in charge of Rev. E. N. Hardy, Ph. D., pastor of the church. Dr. Hardy said he hoped that those present had come for the purpose of consecrating themselves to a new year of work and to make this the best year for Christian Endeavor these churches had ever had.

Following the devotional exercises Carl R. Hayward, the county treasurer, spoke on county work. Mr. Hayward hoped that more societies, the coming year, would show their interest in the state work being carried on by giving more liberally.

From the meeting of the State board a week ago it was evident that this year will show a decided advance along all lines of Christian Endeavor work. If we do not do more we will be left behind and we want to keep near the head of the list. He proposed that each individual consecrate one hour each week to Christian Endeavor work and told of the many ways to which this time might be devoted.

The address of Dr. Clark was listened to with rapt attention and at its close a long burst of applause followed. The benediction was pronounced by Dr. Clark.

The church was decorated with all kinds of Christian Endeavor insignia including flags, banners and bunting. In the dome over the speaker was a symbol of the Christian Endeavor made of electric lights. This was the work of Wesley Beckford one of the Bethany Christian Endeavorers.

The banner for attendance went to the First Presbyterian church of Quincy who had one hundred percent present. The Braintree Baptist church came second with ninety four percent.

The ushers for last night's rally were: Gideon Murray, Jr. Everett Hayden, James Myers Jr., and Victor Landstrom.

AT NAVY YARD.

Six vessels of the U. S. navy are expected at the navy yard this week some to remain for a short period, others to remain until late into November. The ships include the first class battleships Missouri, New Jersey and Vermont, the scout cruisers Salem and Birmingham and the armored cruiser New York. The three former vessels will remain here for nearly two months to undergo extensive alterations and repairs while the others will remain in dock about ten days to undergo minor changes.

has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

EXCITED CHINAMAN.

Aldeged He drew Revolver on Customer Who Wanted his Laundry.

Sam Lee, who runs a laundry on Water street was to have been arraigned in court this morning to answer to a charge of assault, and thereby hangs a tale. It seems that two weeks ago Alfred Davidson left his laundry at Sam's and that when he went to call for it the chinaman, after comparing the checks, said that some one had received his laundry by mistake and would probably return it and that he would have it for Alfred the next time he called. He stated that if the laundry was lost he would make it all right with him. Sometime after Davidson called again but when he asked his shirt the chinaman said, "I'll show you your shirt" and proceeded to make things all right for him in this manner. He ran into the inner room and came out with the "show" in the shape of a large revolver. Alfred waited for no more showing, but immediately made tracks for Officer Broberg. When the officer arrived he found the gun lying on the counter before which Sam was working and asked him ifi t was loaded. The chinaman would not tell him and so the officer started around the counter to ascertain for himself, whereupon the excited celestial snatched up the weapon and while not pointing it at the officer he held it turned at an angle towards the floor. Broberg reached for his wrist and twisted the weapon from his hands. He then left for the station taking the gun with him. On examination it was found that the revolver was a six shooter and had six shells in it one of which had been discharged. Davidson then swore out a warrant and the chinaman was brought into court on the charge of assault.

When the case was called this morning he failed to appear and was defaulted. But it was through a misunderstanding, for he went to Boston for an interpretor, who had preceded him to Quincy. Thus at the time the case was called he was in Boston and no doubt will appear all right Wednesday.

The counsel for the three remaining Chinamen admit nothing can save them from execution during the coming week. The execution of Charles and Guey was set for the week of Oct. 17.

QUINCY DAY NURSERY.

One of the largest and most enthusiastic meetings ever held by the Quincy Day Nursery association was that of Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club. It was the annual meeting and considerable business was talked over and new officers elected.

Mrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth was unanimously elected president and most animously elected president and most of the old board hold over for the ensuing year. It was voted to have a "tag day" and a committee was appointed to make arrangements to have it at an early date. The attendance at the monthly meetings is increasing and the association enters upon another year with more enthusiasm and courage than ever before and feels hopeful of accomplishing greater good to working mothers and children. A fuller report of the meeting will be found in the Ledger the last of the week.

AS OTHERS SEE IT.

In the club column of the Somerville Journal last week the Quincy club house is described by Mrs. F. A. Hoyt, president of the Brockton club as follows: "This is a large family mansion, situated on a hill east of the railroad station. It was donated to the club by Dr. Brackett, who was much interested in philanthropic work, and gave it on condition that the club kept up certain lines of philanthropic work to his satisfaction. The house required considerable repairing which the club has done at considerable expense. A caretaker is employed, who lives in the rear of the building. The Visiting Nurse association has rooms on the second floor, and the visiting nurse lives there and does all the business of the association from these headquarters. A woman's exchange, committee rooms, arts and crafts room, lunch room, and kitchen are provided for clubwomen, and here all the club work is done. A class in sewing for girls and classes in sloyd for boys have been conducted during the summer. A hand loom is owned by the club and rented for rug and other weaving ,and the clubrooms are often rented to outside parties, bringing in considerable revenue. The Quincy club has only 350 members, and an annual fee of $3."

The above is fairly correct except the clause which says that the "clubrooms are rented to outside parties etc." The rooms are never rented but are often loaned to charitable organizations.

GAME ENDS IN DISPUTE

Unsatisfactory End of Brookline--High Game

Brookline High forfeited their game yesterday to Quincy 1 to 0 a few minutes after the second half had begun. Quincy had the ball in Brookline's territory and on the third down they essayed a forward pass. Rice took two or three steps, which could not have carried him the five yards required by the rules and he then threw the ball directly ahead of him over the scrimmage line. The opposing tackle blocked the pass and the center, Dexter, recovering it ran about sixty yards for a touchdown. Referee Burns as soon as the ball had been passed blew his whistle and when the man kept on going he went up the field to bring the ball back the pass being illegal and on the third down going to the opposing team on the spot where it was put in play. The Brookline players objected to his decision and after a long argument their coach who seemed to be the captain also called them off the field, an action without a precedent in the history of Quincy high football, and a thing seldom seen outside of grammar school games.

The rules state that a forward pass must cross the scrimmage line, at least five yards from the center of the line, where the ball is put in play. If an illegal forward pass is made on the third down the ball goes to the opposite side at the point where the pass was started from, and furthermore that neither side can refuse to accept the forward pass penalty. The decision rests entirely with the referee and his decision is final. Thus it can be seen that Eddie Burns the referee had everything in his favor and that the Brookline team in leavthe field simply laid down and quit.

Most of the trouble was with the Brookline coach who evidently did not intend that any of the players should receive any notice, and that the game was run for his especial glorification and benefit. The referee had him removed from the field twice during the first half because of unsportsmanlike conduct in coaching when he attended injured players on the field.

Perhaps some will think that there was no game but there was and a good one too. Quincy received the kick and soon had the ball in Brooklines territory but they had to punt and it zig zigged back and forth all through the first half with ball in Brookline's territory most of the time. There were one or two fine plays, once when Harold Hill got off a fine punt, low and long, which went over the heads of the Brookline backs, and rolled nearly to the goal line before they recovered it. Another time one of the Brookline backs got clear of the line on a straight line plunge and was only caught after a hard run by Harold Hill within a few yards of Quincy's goal. The playing of Hill was the feature of the day although every man on the Quincy line deserves credit for the manner in which they held Brookline's heavy backfield. The new backfield of Quincy worked in great shape the only weak spot being the forward pass work. Veal and Bates being especially effective.

In the first half Harry Mason of the Brookline team broke his collar bone and had to be attended by a doctor. This was the only serious injury during the game. It might be said here that Eddie Burns who refereed yesterday, is a Dorchester boy and played on Dorchester High and has had coaching under such men as Marks Ingersoll and Hawley of Dartmouth and he knows what there is to know about refereeing a football game. The game by forfeited goes to Quincy by the score of 1 to 0.

There's mourning in the land—the tax bills are out.

With today's issue the Ledger Woman's club column begins another season. Women's clubs are becoming important factors in Quincy life and all the club news will be found each Wednesday in the Ledger.

Now is the time to get out and enjoy the beauties of nature. A tramp through the woods, to the hill top or the beach is a tonic which will help one to keep in good health and spirits and save the expense of medicine.

The school committee sent a communication to the Council meeting Monday night urging the necessity of two new school buildings; one at Montclair and the other in the district lying between the Point and Adams schools.

In this country of newness where a century or two is history it is hard to imagine the age of some of the ancient buildings in Europe. Lately dwellings 4000 years old have been found in Sweden.

Councilman McDevitt's order in the City Council Monday night for a reduction of 20 per cent in the water rates beginning Jan. 1st, strikes the consumer as a move in the right direction.

Residents of Ward One are asking why their councilmen do not do something for the Ward. Cross walks, better sidewalks and better roads are needed badly in certain localities. Councilmen in other Wards ask for and get these improvements and Ward One helps pay for them.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Burtt have come from England in the interests of the British Anti-Slavery society to influence our people against the consumption of slave grown cocoa. As a nation we lead in the consumption of cocoa and should be opposed to having men, women and children sold into slavery to provide us this luxury.

RIGHT TO SLAP WIFE.

A Cleveland man, haled into court for slapping his wife, said he had a constitutional right to do it. The judge put a suspended sentence of $25 and costs over him.

This is a blamed measly way for our courts to dispose of great constitutional questions, and all masculinity will protest.

If there's any question at all about a man's right to slug the gossiping proclivities out of his dear helpmeet, there should be nothing of a suspended nature about the decision on the point. In the presence of any doubt, there are some men mean enough to take the risk and carry the thing to the United States supreme court.

In fact, in all domestic cases wherein constitutional rights are involved, it is clearly wisdom on the part of the lower courts to impose sentences that will hold the husband until the United States supreme finally decides the matter.

In such cases as the Cleveland case this might lead to the husband spending the rest of his life with his hand poised in midair and the wife turning out gossip into the wide world for years and years, but far better that a thousand women gossip than that one lone man slap when he hadn't any constitutional right to do it.

Again it will appear to every lady that $25 is a mighty low figure. A fellow mean enough to slap his wife for giving her and her friends' honest opinions of her neighbors is mean enough to work night and day for the $25 or $50 or $100 to pay for it. Twenty-five dollars is positively no deterrent, and if that judge thinks it is he simply doesn't know husbands who have to lie awake until 2 or 3 A. M. listening to wifely gossip does he, fellers?—Beverely Times.

For Sore Throat Sudden Cold and Coughs no remedy has been discoverd so powerful to cure as Perry Davis' Painkiller. As a Liniment it has no equal in curing Rheumatism or Neuralgia, burns and bruises, and wounds of every description. It is the cheapest and best remedy offered to the public. Only 35c. for a big bottle. There are other sizes also, 25c and 50c.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED. by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

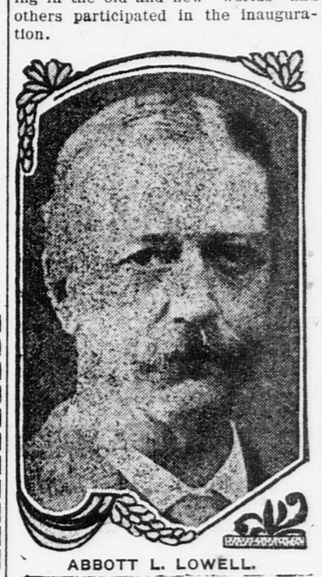
HARVARD HAS NEW PRESIDENT

Mantle of Eliot Transferred to Shoulders of Lowell

AN IMPRESSIVE INAUGURATION

Size of Crowd Compelled Holding of Ceremony, Which Is Preceded by a Procession, In the Open Air—Great Gathering of Men of High Standing In Educational World—Old Hymns Brought Into Requisition

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 6.—Abbott Lawrence Lowell, A. B., LL. B., LL. D., was formally inaugurated as president of Harvard university this forenoon, the official ceremonies taking place in the college yard in front of University hall, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. The occasion witnessed one of the largest gatherings of men of high standing in the educational world ever brought together, and an audience sufficient in size to half fill the Stadium. Delegates from many institutions of learning in the old and new worlds and others participated in the inauguration.



ABBOTT L. LOWELL.

The scenic effect for the inauguration was set beneath the old elms of the college yard and in front of the ivy covered walls of University hall. Today the representatives of the world's greatest educational institutions, with hundreds of the guests of the university, saw the formal transfer of the mantle of Charles William Eliot to his youthful successor with all the traditional ceremony and inspiring pomp.

As far as possible the ceremony used in the inauguration of President Eliot forty years ago was carried out today, although the size of the crowd compelled the holding of the affair out-of-doors rather than in a hall as was the case at that time. But fair Indian summer weather prevailed, so that the spectacle was carried out with all the dignity and grandeur in keeping with such an historic event.

The delegates from the 200 universities and colleges streamed into Cambridge and the great procession which wended its way through the yard to the stage furnished a moving picture such as is seldom beheld in this country.

Thomas N. Perkins, a member of the board of overseers of the university, was the chief marshal of the procession, which was divided into four divisions—the officers of the board of government of two universities, delegates from other institutions, official guests, and the little party who were the chief actors of the day, with the president-elect bringing up the rear.

When the procession arrived at the platform and its members had been seated under the direction of the chief marshal, his aides and the marshals, the assemblage was called to order by the sheriff of Middlesex. The alumni chorus, which occupied a platform in front of and slightly below the main platform, then sung Converse's hymn, "Laudate Dominum," written two years ago for the Harvard medical school celebration. The other hymns were those that were used at the inauguration of President Eliot forty years ago and in previous inaugurations.

The audience extended clear across the yard and for some distance up and down, and the inauguration committee requested that all guests remain seated during the ceremonies and that ladies wear small hats.

An impressive incident of the inauguration was the ringing on the chimes of Christ church of "Fair Harvard," just after the benediction. Christ church is on Garden street, just beyond the old cemetery. The chimes were given by Harvard men in the sixties and one condition of the gift was that they should be rung on occasions of collegiate importance, such as class day.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

The watcher across the way was moved to whistle shrilly. The other car lunged forward nervously.

Brentwick, taking the front seat beside the mechanician, left the tonneau to Kirkwood and Dorothy. As the American slammed the door the car swept smoothly out into the middle of the way, while the pursuing car swerved in to the other curb, slowing down to let Stryker jump aboard.

Kirkwood put himself in the seat by the girl's side and for a few moments was occupied with the arrangement of the robes. Then, sitting back, he found her eyes fixed upon him, pools of inscrutable night in the shadow of her hat.

"You aren't afraid, Dorothy?"

She answered quietly, "I am with you, Philip."

CHAPTER XXX.

At a steady gait, now and again checked in deference to the street traffic, Brentwick's motor car rolled, with resonant humming of the engine, down the Cromwell road, swerved into Warwick road and swung northward through Kensington to Shepherd's Bush. Behind it Calendar's car clung as if towed by an invisible cable, never gaining, never losing.

To some extent he reckoned without his motor car. As long as they traveled within the metropolitan limits, constrained to observe a decorous pace in view of the prejudices of the county council, it was a matter of no difficulty whatever to maintain his distance. But once they had won through Shepherd's Bush and, paced by huge double deck trolley trams, were flying through Hammersmith on the Uxbridge road—once they had run through Acton and knew beyond dispute that now they were without the city boundaries—then the complexion of the business was suddenly changed.

Not too soon for honest sport. Calendar was to have (Kirkwood would have said in lurid American idiom) a run for his money. The scattered lights of Southall were winking out behind them before Brentwick chose to give the word to the mechanician.

Quietly the latter threw in the clutch for the third speed—and the fourth. The car leaped forward like a startled race horse. The motor lilted merrily into its deep throated song of the open road, its contented, silken humming passing into a sonorous and sustained pur.

Kirkwood and the girl were first jarred violently forward, then thrown together. She caught his arm to steady herself. It seemed the most natural thing imaginable that he should take her hand and pass it beneath his arm, holding her so, his fingers closed above her own. Before they had recovered or had time to catch their breath a mile of Middlesex had dropped to the rear.

Not quite so far had they distanced Calendar's trailing Nemesis of the four glaring eyes. The pursuers put forth a gallant effort to hold their place. At intervals during the first few minutes a heavy roaring and crashing could be heard behind them. Gradually it subsided, dying on the wings of the free rushing wind that buffeted their faces as mile after mile was reeled off and the wide, darkling English countryside opened out before them, sweet and wonderful.

Once Kirkwood looked back. In the winking of an eye he saw four faded disks of light, pallid with despair, top a distant rise and glide down into darkness. When he turned Dorothy was interrogating him with eyes whose melting, shadowed loveliness, revealed to him in the light of the far, still stars, seemed to incite him to that madness which he had bade himself resist with all his strength.

He shook his head as if to say, "They cannot catch us."

His hour was not yet. Time enough to think of love and marriage (as if he were capable of consecutive thought on any other subject)—time enough to think of them when he had gone back to his place, or, rather, when he should have found it, in the ranks of breadwinners and so have proved his right to mortal happiness; time enough then to lay whatever he might have to offer at her feet. Now he could conceive of no baser treachery to his soul's desire than to advantage himself of her gratitude.

Perhaps she guessed a little of the fortunes of the battle that was being waged within him—perhaps not. Whatever the trend of her thoughts, she did not draw away from him. Presently the silken lashes drooped, fluttering upon her cheeks. The tired and happy smile hovered about her lips.

In something less than half an hour of this wild driving Kirkwood roused out of his reverie sufficiently to become sensible that the speed was slackening. Incoherent snatches of sentences, fragments of words and phrases spoken by Brentwick and the mechanician, were flung back past his ears by the rushing wind. Shielding his eyes, he could see dimly that the mechanician was tinkering (apparently) with the driving gear. Then, their pace continuing steadily to abate, he heard Brentwick fling at the man a sharp toned and querulously impatient question, "What is the trouble?" His reply came in a single word, not distinguishable.

The girl sat up, opening her eyes, disengaging her arm.

Kirkwood bent forward and touched Brentwick on the shoulder. The latter turned to him a face lined with deep concern.

"Trouble," he announced superfluously. "I fear we have blundered."

"What is it?" asked Dorothy in a troubled voice.

"Petrol seems to be running low. Charles here"—he referred to the mechanician—"says the tank must be leaking. We'll go on as best we can and try to find an inn. Fortunately most of the inns nowadays keep supplies of petrol for just such emergencies."

DOG KILLED.

Animal That Attacked John D. Williams Killed.

STEALING A RIDE.

Fourteen Year Old Roxbury Boy Taken From Freight Train.

Every year during the days of the Brockton fair scores of Boston youths who do not possess the necessary money to take in the show, have been stealing a ride to the shoe city by jumping freight trains. During these days scores of youths can be seen, riding on the bumpers between the cars, as the train passes through Quincy. This year the railroad officials are trying to break up the dangerous practice and members of the railroad police have been stationed along the line. Their first capture was made Tuesday when a fourteen year old boy who gave his name as Edward Reiley and his home as Roxbury was taken from the train at South Quincy. He was fined $5 in court this morning.

CENSUS CLERICAL FORCE.

Washington D. C., Oct. 4, 1909.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission announces that a very small proportion of the applications thus far filed for the examination to he held on October 23d next for positions in the Census Bureau, are from the residents of the more distant States.

It is expected that about three thousand appointments will be made from the examination which is scheduled to be held on October 23d, 1909, in all the States and Territories. These appointments will be for terms of six months to two years, and will average about one year in length. The entrance salary will be $600 per annum and promotion to at least $900 per annum will be reasonably rapid for those who render satisfactory service. Under the census law selections from the eligible register will be made in the order of rating and in accordance with the law of apportionment, so that all persons will have an equal chance of appointment.

Applicants must be between the age of 18 and 50 years, except that persons honorably discharged from the military or naval service, by reason of disability resulting from wounds or sickness incurred in the line of duty, may be examined without regard to age, and except that boys who have reached the age of 16 years and have not reached the age of 18 years, will be permitted to take the examination, and if they pass, will be eligible for appointment as messenger boys only. It is understood that the Census Bureau will make some appointments from this examination about January 1, 1910, but the majority of such appointments will be made between April and August, 1910.

Application forms and further information may be obtained by addressing the U. S. Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C., the Bureau of the Census, Washington, D. C., or the Secretary of the Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners at the Post Office, Boston, Mass.

STREET LIGHTS.

Mayor Makes Tour of City to See Where Street Lights Are Needed.

In order to see just what street lights are needed Mayor Shea with Commissioner Bainbridge and Supt. Austin of the Electric Light Co. made a tour of the city Tuesday night. The party were not able to visit all wards in one evening. The wards visited Tuesday were, one, two, five and six. The other two wards will probably be visited tonight.

It is doubtful if the members of the City Council realize how many street light orders they have referred to the Executive department thus far this year. Up to date the number is something like eighty and they are wanted in every ward of the city. There has been hardly a meeting of the Council but one or more orders for street lights have not introduced and referred to the Executive.

Just how many it will be possible to put in is a matter of doubt, thus the visit about the city. It is probable that that those most needed will be installed.

WOLLASTON GOLF.

Two Day Tournament of 18 Holes, Starts Today.

The two-day 18 hole, handicap stroke competitions at the links of the Wollaston club started this morning. Up to Tuesday night there had been twenty entries. As post entries will be allowed a number of golfers came out this morning to compete for the prizes. Among those who will compete are C. W. Bass of Portsmouth, ex-state champion of New Hampshire.

BOMB SCARE IN BOSTON

It Turned Out to Be Celebration of Feast Day by Italians

Boston, Oct. 6.—The discharge of heavy bombs and other heavy fireworks on Boston Common last night caused much wonder and some alarm among the patrons of down-town play houses and cafes, and for a time numerous places were hurriedly deserted.

The elaborate display of fireworks was given by the Italian residents of the city in the celebration of the feast of St. Michael, the Archangel, the patron saint of Italy, but as no notice of the event had been given in the press few outside of the Italian colony were able to explain the heavy detonations.

TIRED OF MATRIMONY

Testimony of Woman Who Married and Deserted Six Men

Kansas City, Oct. 6.—Grace E. Chapman pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy at a preliminary hearing in court here, admitting she had married six men and had never obtained a divorce from any of them.

"Yes, I'm guilty," she testified. "I've had six husbands and I'm sick of matrimony. Most of the men I married were farmers. I would live with them until I got tired and then I'd leave. They were tiresome."

The Roosevelt Trophies

Washington, Oct. 6.—There will be no exhibition of the Roosevelt African trophies of the hunt in the new National Museum building during the coming winter, because no decision has yet been reached as to how they will be mounted and grouped.

Fatally Shot at Target Practice

Long Branch, N. J., Oct. 6.—The accidental discharge of an infantryman's rifle during target practice at Sea Girt sent a bullet through the abdomen of James Buldman, a member of the New York national guard, mortally wounding him.

—"What is pemican?" was undoubtedly asked by nine-tenths of those who read that Dr. Cook's provisions for the North pole expedition consisted largely of that article. Pemican according to the dictionary, was originally a preparation made by the North American Indians, consisting of the lean parts of venison, dried by the sun or wind and then pounded into a paste with melted fat and tightly pressed into cakes, a few berries being sometimes added to improve the flavor. It is now made of beef especially for use in Arctic expeditions, being an easily preserved food which keeps for a long time and contains the largest amount of nutriment in the smallest space. It is difficult to understand why it has not been considered favorably by army officials in time of war.—Haverhill Gazette.

FOOD FAIR.

It must not be forgotten that every one on the great list of attractions at the World's Greatest Food Fair and Home Furnishing Exposition now being held in Mechanics building, are free to all patrons. These attractions include the celebrated old time circus of J. W. Gorman where one can enjoy the very finest of arena acts in an environment which seems like the real thing in the circus line. One easily forgets that they are in a building for the circus walls are circular and of canvas, the floor is of sawdust and the chairs rise tier upon tier like they do in the "Big Top." There are many free attractions such as the daily concerts by the famous band of Marco Vessella with its fifty talented musicians; the concerts by the students from Booker T. Washington's Tuskegee Institute at Tuskegee, Alabama, and the exhibition of the wireless telephone. To the first 1000 ladies purchasing tickets between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock every morning a dainty souvenir will be presented. There is a first-class restaurant and also a popular-price lunch-room in the building and all sorts of conveniences so that visitors can spend the whole day in comforts enjoying the almost countless sights and sounds of this greatest Food Fair ever seen in Boston.

EXCELSUS EXPLAINS.

Why They Refused to go on With Last Saturday's Game.

The Excelsus club wish to explain the game which was forfeited to the Fore River Apprentices on last Saturday.

The Apprentices gained four runs in the eighth through the fact that the setting sun cast its rays directly in the eyes of both batsmen and catcher, being the worst when Excelsus was on the field causing Sherman to pitch slow ball for fear of injuring catcher. This gave the Apprentices a chance to hit the ball which they could not have done otherwise. Sherman did not lose control. Up to this time the Excelsus had played all around the Apprentices, showing superior form.

In the last of the tenth the trouble began with one down. Boyle of the Apprentices stole third and was to all appearances tagged out. Councilman Flynn declared him safe, but to the eyes of many spectators who were interviewed after the game, he was thought to have been out.

This decision did not go down and a general argument ensued. Before this was over it was too dark to continue play, but naturally the team whose prospects for winning were the brightest wished to continue the game.

The Excelsus wished to have the game called on account of darkness, it then being after 5.30, not because they were afraid to take defeat, but wished that both teams might have an equal chance to win in a fair manner. Councilman Flynn would not listen to it and he immediately awarded the game to the Apprentices.

The Excelsus feel that a game played under these conditions and ending in such a manner; the Fore River Apprentices cannot lay a clean and honorable claim to the 18-19 year old championship of Quincy.

NO MORE GRAY HAIR.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made and used a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hair before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair, and are fast following suit. The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready to use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. As a scalp tonic and color restorer, this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers, and it can be bought for 50 cents and $1 a bottle at almost any first-class drug store, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

TODAY'S COURT.

Gaust Kamppila, Herman Penan and Oscar Johnson were fined the costs amounting to $2 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Ferdinando Lonezo was fined $50 for violation of the liquor law at Quincy.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

Miss Louise Dunn of Whitwell street, a high school graduate has entered Simmons college where she is studying for kindergarten work.

Miss Jessie Pratt of Coddington street, Q. H. S., '08 has returned to Radcliffe college where she will resume her studies as a sophomore.

Miss Ruth Hardy of Wollaston, who graduated last June, is at Oberlin college, Oberlin, Ohio, where she is taking a musical course.

Miss Lilla M. Birge the teacher of German at the High school, who has been in Germany studying the past summer returned last week and resumed her place in Room 28.

Miss Kilpatrick who was teaching at the High school the first of the year has accepted a position at the Cambridge Latin school where she will teach French.

The Gymnasium classes started last Monday at the school and there is every indication of great progress in this particular branch of science during the coming year.

There will be a senior class meeting next week and the duty of electing a nominating committee will be carried through. This committee nominates members of the class from each ward whose duty is to nominate the different class committees for the coming year.

There will also be a meeting of the Athletic board, the main business of which will constitute the election of a Freshman representative to the board.

Ralph Blake Q. H. S. '08, has been elected manager of the Amherst Aggie Freshman track team. Of the other '08, boys at the college Harold Gore is sub-quarter on the varsity team and in getting there he had to beat out the Western interscholastic quarter of 1909. Howe and Baker are playing on the scrub at present but they have a good chance to land a place on the varsity before the season is over.

George Coughlan returned to the High school this week and resumed his studies as post graduate. This makes about eighteen P. G.'s back from last year's class.

Thanksgiving time will see the first issue of the Golden Rod of 1909. This year will be a record year for it, as the board of editors are making plans to put out more issues than has been attempted for a number of years. Last season there were three issues the largest up to that time since 1900.

The sheet this year will be large and interesting from cover to cover and while distinctly a school sheet should prove not uninteresting to the grads of recent years. The Golden Rod Staff for 1909 consists of the following:

Editor in Chief—Grace De Wolfe.
Managing Editor—Roy Sidelinger.
Alumnae Editor—May Cleveland.
Local Editor—William Northrop.
Literary Editor—Alfred Hanson.
Sporting Editor—Theodore Corey.

It was unfortunate that the football game ended as it did last Tuesday but Referee Burns was upheld by all the Boston dailies in his decision and also by those on the field who knew anything about the game. As near as can be ascertained there was no team who ever left the Quincy field before, at least in recent years. In leaving the field of play because of a referee decision a team leaves itself open to the most severe criticism and most assuredly a coach is taking a great responsibility on himself when against the wishes of the players and the captain himself he calls the team from the field.

Both teachers and pupils were glad to learn that after many years steps had been taken by the City Council to grade the yard in the rear of the school building. When the addition to the building was erected the gravel excavated from the cellar was dumped on the rear of the lot, not only making an unsightly pile, but filling up Stillwater street in such a manner that it has been practically impassable ever since.

For some unknown reason no attempt has ever been made to grade the rear of the lot until Councilman Gilson introduced an order in the City Council Monday night, calling for an appropriation of $500 for this purpose.

W. C. Hart the janitor of the school building takes great pride in having the building neat and clean and the lawn on the Hancock street side of the building attractive. At the present time there is no handsomer lawn than that at the High school. That his efforts are appreciated is shown by the fact that the pupils take the paths in going to and from school instead of crossing the lawn.

"Tommy's Wife," a farce in three acts, is in preparation by some of the Quincy High school pupils. This play, which is to be given about the first of November, is for the benefit of the football team.

CRIMINAL RECORD.

Over Two Thousand Cases in District Court Last Year.

The report of Francis A. Spear, Probation Officer at the District court, for the year ending Sept. 30, shows the total number of criminal cases before the court for the year to have been 2,045 an increase of 157 over the previous year. The total, while large, is not a record breaker by any means, for in the year 1905 and 6 there were 2,168 cases and in the year 1904 and 5 there were 2,134 cases. Of the total cases for the year, 834 were for drunkenness, 174 for violation of the automobile laws, 174 for assault, 102 for violation of park rules, 104 for larceny, 88 for violation of the liquor law, 45 for violation of the fish and game law, 22 for breaking and entering, 26 for disturbance on a public conveyance and 2 for assault with intent to murder. There were also a small number of cases for other crimes.

The total number of cases for the month of September was 189 of which 70 were for drunkenness, and 36 for violation of the automobile laws.

SAVINGS BANK INSURANCE.

Successful continuance of the savings bank insurance work at Fore River resulted in applications aggregating $4,864 in the week ending October 3. The recent excellent progress of the movement at the big Quincy shop, at the United Shoe Machinery Company, Beverly, and at several of the Boston Typothetae has influenced a number of other large industrial concerns to consider taking out agencies. One that has just closed an arrangement to this effect is the B. F. Sturtevant Company, of Boston and Hyde Park, of which Hon. E. N. Foss is the treasurer. This company employs about 1400 men among whom the system will be introduced along the lines so efficiently developed at Quincy.

BROCKTON FAIR.

City Square Alive With Conveyances Bound for Brockton.

There was plenty doing in City Square this morning, for there was an almost endless string of automobiles carriages and tally-ho coaches passing through on their way to the Brockton fair. Most of the tally-ho parties were clubs, according to the signs pinned on the back of the rear seat. They were evidently a thirsty crowd for many of the occupants were filling up with beer. This means that by the time they get ready to come home they will be in condition for almost anything.

One of the best turnouts that passed through was a large drag containing a party of men and women. The drag was drawn by eight handsome coal black horses.

ORGAN RECITAL.

Prof. Wrigley Delights Large Audience at Christ Church.

It would be hard to imagine a more delightful organ recital than that listened to Thursday evening at Christ's church by an audience that completely filled the edifice. The recital was given by Prof. Frank Wrigley, organist at the church, who was assisted by Miss Emily B. Willson, vocalist and his son Frank Hayward Wrigley. That Prof. Wrigley is a complete master of the organ none who had the pleasure of listening to the recital could for a minute doubt. As the massive organ gave forth its music the minor chords seemed to search out every nook and crevice, rebounding into a volume, that at times, almost seemed as though it would lift one from his feet and carry him bodily into the realms above.

The opening number was Merkel's introduction and Doppelfuge in A and was followed by "Variations and Fugue on a Favorite Hymn tune by Maxfield, and the entre acts from Rosamund. His next number was the overture from "William Tell" which was given by request.

Another request number was "Pastorale" by Wely (Storm.) The other numbers rendered by Prof. Wrigley being a melody, Gavotte in F. by Wolsterholme and finale by Stark.

Miss Willson's numbers were two, the first being a—"Grass and Roses" and b—These are They "Holy City." For her second number she sang "There is an Hour of Hallowed Peace." Miss Willson has a sweet sympathetic voice and her numbers were greatly enjoyed.

An offertory for the choir room and music expenses was taken during which time Prof. Wrigley's son, Frank Hayward Wrigley who holds a certificate from Trinity college London, rendered Krebs Fugue in G.

As a whole the recital was one of the most enjoyable of the many given at Christ's church.

HAS A SURPLUS.

Makaria Base Ball Team Had Successful Season.

The Makaria Fraternity held a business meeting Tuesday evening in their rooms at the Bethany church. The reports from all the officers were read and accepted. The interesting report of the evening was from the base ball manager which showed a surplus in the treasury resulting from the base ball season. This was very gratifying to all the members as in former years they have been behind in their expenses.

CARRIAGE ACCIDENT

School Teacher Has Narrow Escape in City Square

Miss Emma Hayden of Quincy Point a teacher in the public schools, had a narrow escape from serious injury Wednesday afternoon, in City Square when she was knocked down by a horse and run over by a team. Miss Hayden came from West Quincy on a car which arrived in City Square at 4 o'clock. She left the car and started to walk to the sidewalk. As she did so a carriage came along, between the car and sidewalk, driven by Mrs. John Ketteren.

The driver of the carriage, was conversing with someone on the rear seat and did not notice where the horse was going. The horse struck Miss Hayden and knocked her down. Fortunately the animal stepped over her, and when the carriage came to a stop she was beneath the carriage. She was removed from her perilous position, apparently uninjured save for a shaking up. After being brushed off in Hearn's drug store she continued on her way home.

CURTIN—MOORE.

One of the prettiest weddings which has ever taken place in Atlantic was that of Miss Helen Louise Curtin of Atlantic and Mr. Ernest Havelock Moore of Cambridge on Thursday evening Sept. 30 at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. James E. Curtin of 233 Atlantic street.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Thomas Davison of the Atlantic Memorial Congregational church and was followed by a reception at which a large number was present.

The bride looked queenly and her natural beauty was well set off by a gown of satin duchess with Princess lace and pearl trimmings. She held a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Frank Coe as matron of honor who wore white and carried pink carnations, and her little nephew Master Forrest Coe as ring-bearer. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Roy Moore, as best man. The ushers were Mr. Thomas Chambers, Mr. Charles Hendrie, Mr. Frank Coe and Mr. Frank Curtin.

In the receiving line with the bride and groom were their parents Mr. and Mrs. Moore and Mr. and Mrs. Curtin.

The wedding march was played by Mr. Ralph Crosswell, a friend of the groom's.

The floral decorations were beautiful and were arranged by Derringer the florist.

Caterer Cook of Boston served the collation.

There was a fine display of gifts from the many friends of the bride and groom.

As the couple left for their trip so rapidly did they make their exit to their automobile which was in waiting and so quickly were they whisked away that they received but a fractional part of the grand shower of confetti prepared by their young friends. An attachment, however to the rear of the automobile must have bumped pretty emphatically as they sped along and assured them that they had not eluded entirely the pranks of their merry guests.

On their return from their trip they are to make their home with the bride's parents.

POSTAL UNION MONUMENT.

A ceremony likely to prove of interest to the civilized world will be the unveiling next Monday at Berne, Switzerland, of the monument to commemorate the founding of the International Postol Union, which had its birth in the General Postal Congress held there thirty-five years ago. Hardly a better medium for improving international relationships has ever been devised. It brought order and system out of conditions that had previously been confusing and in many respects burdensome. It substituted uniformity and definiteness for the old plan of separate conventions of one country with another, a method that was fruitful of friction and a discouragement to correspondence. It established uniform and lower rates than had previously prevailed, and relieved diplomatic relations between governments of a vexing responsibility if not of an actual burden.

It is very appropriate that the monument should stand in Berne. Not only was the movement there brought to maturity, but like The Hague, as the meeting ground of the peace conferences, it represents world neutrality. The little republic is at peace with everybody and likely to remain so. It is in the path of world travel and the monument will add new distinction and interest to a town that for its size possesses unusual historic value.

The American minister, who will represent this country at the unveiling, is not likely to forget that he is participating in an event that had its initiative n the United States, and that also at a time when we had other very serious matters to think about. Perhaps recent history has not done full justice to the late Montgomery Blair, who was Lincoln's postmaster general from 1861 to 1864. The biographies speak of him as "a lawyer and politician," but he made one of the most efficient heads of the Post Office Department that it has had during its entire history. It was his proposal that led to the meeting of the International Postal Commission in Paris in 1863, from which these later and larger developments have sprung. He also introduced the money order system, free delivery in cities, the sorting of mails in the cars and other improvements of benefit to the public, and his memory will deserve conspicuous recall in the coming celebration.—Boston Transcript.

NURSES FREE SCHOLARSHIP.

Philadelphia, the City of Brotherly Love, has an exhibition of practical benevolence in the work of the Philadelphia School for Nurses which is of surpassing interest to every one interested in the care of the sick, the education of nurses and the promotion of public health and sanitation.

The annual report showed that during the past year, ten thousand, two hundred and seventy-five patients were supplied with nurses, who otherwise could not have secured skilled nursing care. Four-fifths of this service was rendered gratuitously. It was shown also that in teaching facilities, available workers and number of students, the school ranks as the largest school for nurses in the world.

Clara Barton, the world renowned nurse and manager of field hospital work and organizer of the Red Cross society, having for many years observed the efficient work of the Philadelphia School for Nurses, recently invited Dr. Eugene Underhill, founder of the institution, to visit her, and be present at a conference in her summer home in Oxford, Mass., for the purpose of considering the advisability of reproducing the work in the larger New England cities.

At a public reception, representatives from Lowell, Salem, Worcester, Springfield, New Haven, Bridgeport, Providence and other manufacturing centers, called attention to the need of this service for their respective cities.

Several large classes of students are about to be enrolled in the Philadelphia School for Nurses, who will, doubtless, witness the development of the work of the School and its extension in accordance with plans now developing as a result of the recent New England conferences. A large number of free Two Year scholarships are available to young women throughout the entire country, preference being given to those living in the smaller towns and cities, and the rural districts. These scholarships include room, board, laundering, uniforms, all necessary instruction, and railroad fare paid to the student's home town upon the completion of the Course. A preparatory home study course and a short resident course are also available to those who desire to quickly prepare themselves for self-support, but who are unable to devote two years to study. Any reader of this paper who may be interested in the general subject can, by addressing the school at 2219 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa., get full information and details of the work, and the scholarships now available.

ROAD BUILDING.

Road making in Vermont has progressed to that stage that macadam roads are not the highest development. Macadam is excellent for the groundwork, but something more is required for the finishing touches before the work is considered completely done. A covering of bitumen which serves to bind the materials together is being used by the most progressive road makers nowadays, although as yet the idea has gained but slight headway. The municipalities are having experiments in this new phase of road building, having copied it largely from Massachusetts. Austin B. Fletcher, secretary of the Massachusetts highway commission, in speaking before an assembly of road makers in Cleveland, said that before any of the bituminous materials are applied it is essential that the road surface be evened up and patched where necessary, rolled and swept clean of all dust. The bituminous materials in the Massachusetts experiments are then applied hot to the road surface by means of spraying machines or gravity distributors or by hand in quantities varying from one-fourth to three-fourths of a gallon to the square yard, and immediately covered evenly with sand, fine gravel or broken stone screenings. The surface is then rolled, and there results a protecting coat or covering from three-eights to three-fourths of an inch in depth, depending on the quantity of the bituminous material used, and probably to some extent on the nature of the sand or gravel placed over it.

It may be thought that this application of bitumen to the macadam is a very costly addition, but the results as found in Massachusetts do not bear out the idea. It has been found that by the application of one-half a gallon to a square yard the road will last for two years and with further application of a little more bituminous material yearly or once in two years, the roadbed will be preserved indefinitely. At this rate of repair the upkeep of the roads will cost merely the price of renewing the covering, which amounts to four or five cents per square yard each year. There is no wear on the foundation stones; in fact the wear all comes on the bituminous surface.—Barre Times.

RABBI HIRSH'S PLANS

New Jewish Temple to Be House of Prayer For All Nations

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Dr. Emil G. Hirsh, pastor of the Chicago Sinai Congregation, announces the completion of plans for a new temple and social center for his congregation and for the broadening of Jewish religious work into social and educational enterprise.

Men, women and children of all nations are to be welcomed to the new home of Sinai Congregation. Over the portal of the temple will be carved these words:

"Mine House Shall Be the House of Prayer for All Nations."

"These words," said Hirsh, "are the keynote of the enterprise. The institution should mean much in the dissemination of liberal ideas among the Jews of the country. We Jews are not a unit by ourselves and cannot be. We are not strangers and parasites. We are a part of the community."

HUSBANDED HIS BALLAST

Mix's Generalship Enables Him to Land Gordon Bennett Cup

COVERS NEARLY 700 MILES

Balloon Comes to Earth In Forest North of Warsaw, Russian Poland, After Encountering Great Difficulties—Fog and Blinding Rainstorms Caused All the Other Pilots to Descend Long Before American

Zurich, Oct. 7.—All Zurich is toasting America and her champion balloonist, Edgar W. Mix, who, after a remarkable and dramatic struggle against winds and rain storms, has carried off first honors in the international balloon race for the Gordon Bennett cup by sailing from Zurich to the heart of the forest north of Warsaw, in Russian Poland.

The official classification has not yet been announced, but it is calculated that Mix covered a distance of between 648.94 miles and 695.53 miles. Alfred Le Blanc, the French pilot, is placed second with a distance of 517.81 miles; Captain Messner, one of the Swiss pilots, third with 496.80 miles, and Colonel Schaeck, another Swiss entrant, fourth.

The other thirteen starters are placed at varying distances far behind the four leaders, the last two being McLean, England, with 276.34 miles, and Vleminex, Belgium, with 267.03 miles.

Mix furnished the dramatic side of the contest. His telegram dropped from his balloon at Jicin, upper Bohemia, was jumbled in translation and started the rumor that the America had descended at Jicin. Immediately there was a telegraphic bombardment of Jicin, which showed that the balloon had made no stop there. As Mix was the last man to ascend in the start from Zurich on last Sunday, the greatest excitement prevailed over his whereabouts until the arrival of his message saying that he had landed in Russian Poland.

While some disappointment is felt because of the failure of the Swiss pilots to repeat last year's victory, the general sentiment is one of satisfaction that America has taken the prize. Experts in aeronautics are filled with admiration for Mix's achievement, pointing out that the storms which drove the more experienced balloonists to earth could not conquer the American.

M. Gugelberg, vice president of the Swiss Aero club, said that Mix started in to win at the outset and showed remarkable generalship. "Mix husbanded his ballast," said Gugelberg. "When ascending at Zurich he moved upward at almost irritating slowness, but he was only employing skillful tactics and keeping his ballast for a critical moment. That is how he won. Mix's successful flight against the driving wind, rain and fog constitutes one of the most remarkable voyages in history."

The first news of Mix's landing was conveyed in his dispatch to the press, dated Ostrolenka. The aeronaut said:

"I landed in the midst of a large pine tree in the forest of Gutova, west of Ostrolenka, Tuesday morning. I encountered a heavy rain. My ballast was exhausted when I came down. At present I am in the hands of the police, but all is going well. I had bad weather Sunday night. It was cloudy and rain fell and I used half of my ballast before morning. The weather was so thick that it was impossible to locate my position, except for one hour south of Prague, and a star observation I took at latitude 51.45.1 and longitude 10.0.38."

Mix used his ballast and kept his balloon in the air until the last ounce of sand was gone. He made his journey through fog and blinding rainstorms, which compelled all the other pilots to descend. After crossing the Swiss and the Austrian Alps, Messner, one of the Swiss pilots, reported that his clothes were covered with ice to a thickness of half an inch. Messner reached an altitude of 18,000 feet.

IN A FORTY-MILE TRIP

Clayton Probably the Winner of Two Coveted Balloon Trophies

Winchester, Mass., Oct. 7.—Two highly prized balloon trophies, which have been keenly contested for the past two years, that offered by the Boston Herald for the balloon landing nearest Boston Common and that of the Fitchburg board of trade for the pilot starting from Fitchburg and taking The Herald trophy, was doubtless won when H. H. Clayton landed in this town after a forty mile trip from Fitchburg.

Clayton had two passengers and the landing was within six miles of Boston Common, beating the best former record of C. J. Glidden by four miles.

RACE FOR LAHM CUP

Indications That It Has Been Won by Balloon Landing In Minnesota

St. Louis, Oct. 7.—Unless the balloon Centennial, H. E. Honeywell, pilot, which was last reported at Livingston, Ala., 400 miles from St. Louis, has exceeded 580 miles, the balloon St. Louis No. 3, Von Puhl pilot, which landed at Wahkon, Minn., 580 miles from St. Louis, has won the race which began here Monday afternoon.

Von Puhl, if he registered for the Lahm cup, also has the coveted prize. Von Puhl was in the air 41 hours and 35 minutes.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

SAGE FOR DARKENING THE HAIR.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time, tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the brew. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy. This preparation is sold by all first-class druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

HE DISCOVERED HUDSON IN 1524

De Verrazano Crossed Ocean Long Before Half Moon

ITALIANS CELEBRATE EVENT

Unveil Statue of Navigator Who Is Supposed to Have Been First Trans-Atlantic Voyager to Arrive In New York Harbor—Named Locality New France, but Name Did Not Hold

New York, Oct. 7.—Contending that in the discovery of the Hudson river, as in the case of the North Pole, there is "honor enough for two," thousands of Italians, smothered in flags, bunting and gay uniforms, paraded down Broadway to the Battery, where they unveiled a statue of Giovanni De Verrazano, whom historians describe as the first trans-Atlantic voyager to arrive in New York harbor.

With no intention to belittle the achievements of Henry Hudson, Italians maintain that Verrazano discovered the Hudson in 1524, or eighty-five years before the Half Moon's arrival. But the Florentine navigator, who evidently regarded the stream an ordinary one, left no detailed report of his exploration of the river. On this account he has received but little recognition in the new world for his achievement.

The parade comprised 250 Italian societies of New York and New Jersey, and others from New Haven, Lawrence, Mass., and Saratoga, N. Y. Nearly 20,000 Italian men and women were mustered for the demonstration, and as they marched down Broadway they attracted great crowds of onlookers in spite of the fact that the city has had a surfeit of parades lately.

A gigantic float reproduced Verrazano's boat in flowers, while the paraders were arrayed in a riot of colors such as only a Latin people can effect. The sailors from the Italian cruisers Etruria and Etna were in the line of march.

To some unversed in history the demonstration evidently seemed out of place, and either as indicative of their disapproval or in a spirit of rowdyism, a number of cliff dwellers in Broadway skyscrapers threw paper bags filled with water and other missiles down upon the marchers.

At the unveiling of the monument, addresses were delivered by Charles Barsotti, editor of an Italian newspaper in New York; by Rear Admiral Marquis Di Brechetti, representing King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, and by leaders of the Italian colony of the city. The monument was erected by public subscription taken up among the Italians here.

The day's festivities were concluded with a reception given by the local committee at Madison Square Garden last night to the officers and men of the Italian cruisers Etruria and Etna.

Verrazano was a Florentine navigator, born about 1485, a few years before Columbus discovered the new world. He was sent out on an exploring expedition by Francis I of France, and is supposed to have sailed up the New Jersey coast into New York harbor in 1524. He named the locality New France, but the name did not hold, when the Dutch came and established the trading post of New Amsterdam.

Verrazano returned to France in 1524 and died the same year. He rendered an account of his voyage to Francis I.

The monument unveiled here is a heroic bust five feet in height, resting upon a pedestal seventeen feet high. It represents Verrazano with his head turned toward the lower bay. His left hand is placed across his breast holding his cloak, the folds of which conceal the right hand. He wears a coat of mail bearing the arms of the city of Florence.

No More Mimic Wars

Washington, Oct. 7.—Joint maneuvers of the regular army and the National Guard are a thing of the past; at least there will be no repetition of the recent Boston campaign, as long as the present directing forces in the war department are in control. The cost in human suffering is held by the war department officials to have been out of all proportion to the benefits derived.

Destroyer Reid Makes 34.548 Knots

Rockland, Me., Oct. 7.—The torpedo boat destroyer Reid, in her standardization test, made her fastest mile at the rate of 34.548 knots an hour, which was nearly a knot better than her sister ship (the Flusser) did in the same test a month ago.

"Are we—do you think"—

"Oh, no; not a bit of danger of that," returned Brentwick hastily. "They'll not catch up with us this night. That is a very inferior car they have—so Charles says, at least—nothing to compare with this. If I'm not in error, there's the Crown and Miter just ahead. We'll make it, fill our tanks and be off again before they can make up half their loss."

Dorothy looked anxiously to Kirkwood, her lips forming an unuttered query—what did he think?

"Don't worry. We'll have no trouble," he reassured her stoutly. "The chauffeur knows undoubtedly."

None the less he was moved to stand up in the tonneau, conscious of the presence of the traveling bag, snug between his feet, as well as of the weight of Calendar's revolver in his pocket, while he stared back along the road.

There was nothing to be seen of their persecutors.

The car continued to crawl. Five minutes dragged tediously. Gradually they drew abreast a tavern standing back a distance from the road. Sluggishly the car rolled up before it and came to a dead and silent halt. Charles, the mechanician, jumping out, ran hastily up the path toward the inn. In the car Brentwick turned again, his eyes curiously bright in the starlight, his forehead quaintly furrowed, his voice apologetic.

"It may take a few minutes," he said undecidedly, plainly endeavoring to cover up his own dark doubts. "My dear," to the girl, "if I have brought trouble upon you in this wise I shall never earn my own forgiveness."

"As if you could be blamed!" protested the girl. "You mustn't think of it that way. Fancy, what should we have done without you?"

"I'm afraid I have been very clumsy," sighed Brentwick, "clumsy and impulsive. Kirkwood, do you hear anything?"

"Not yet, sir."

"Perhaps," suggested Brentwick a little later—"perhaps we had better alight and go up to the inn. It would be more cozy there, especially if the petrol proves hard to obtain and we have long to wait."

"I should like that," assented the girl decidedly.

Kirkwood nodded his approval, opened the door and jumped out to assist her, then picked up the bag and followed the pair, Brentwick leading the way with Dorothy on his arm.

At the doorway of the Crown and Miter Charles met them, evidently seriously disturbed. "No petrol to be had here, sir," he announced reluctantly, "but the landlord will send to the next inn, a mile up the road, for some. You will have to be patient, I'm afraid, sir."

"Very well. Get some one to help you push the car in from the road," ordered Brentwick. "We will be waiting in one of the private parlors."

"Yes, sir. Thank you, sir." The mechanician touched the visor of his cap and hurried off.

"Come, Kirkwood." Gently Brentwick drew the girl in with him.

A rosy cheeked and beaming landlady met him in the corridor and, all bows and smiles, ushered him into a private parlor reserved for the party, immediately bustling off in a desperate flurry to secure refreshments desired by Brentwick.

The girl had seated herself on one end of an extremely comfortless lounge and was making a palpable effort to seem at ease. Brentwick stood at one of the windows, shoulders rounded and head bent, hands clasped behind his back as he peered out into the night. Kirkwood dropped the traveling bag beneath a chair the farthest removed from the doorway and took to pacing the floor.

In a corner of the room a tall grandfather's clock ticked off ten interminable minutes. For some reason unconscionably delaying, the landlady did not reappear. Brentwick, abruptly turning from the window, remarked the fact querulously, then drew a chair up to a marble topped table in the middle of the floor.

"My dear," he requested the girl, "will you oblige me by sitting over here? And, Philip, bring up a chair, if you will. We must not permit ourselves to worry, and I have something here which may perhaps engage your interest for awhile."

To humor him and alleviate his evident distress of mind they acceded. Kirkwood found himself seated opposite Dorothy. Suddenly Charles burst unceremoniously in, leaving the door wide open.

"Mr. Brentwick, sir," he cried gustily, "that other car"—

With a smothered ejaculation Kirkwood leaped to his feet, tugging at the weapon in his pocket. In another instant he had the revolver exposed. The girl's cry of alarm, interrupting the mechanician, fixed Brentwick's attention on the young man. He, too, stood up, reaching over very quickly to clamp strong, supple fingers round Kirkwood's wrist, while with the other hand he laid hold of the revolver and by a single twist wrenched it away.

Kirkwood turned upon him in fury.

"So," he cried, shaking with passion, "this is what your hospitality meant! You're going to"—

"My dear young friend," interrupted Brentwick, with a flash of impatience, "remember that if I had designed to betray you I could have asked no better opportunity than when you were my guest under my own roof."

"But—hang it all, Brentwick," expostulated Kirkwood, ashamed and contrite, but worked upon by desperate apprehension, "I didn't mean that, but"—

"Would you have bullets flying when she is near?" demanded Brentwick scathingly. Hastily he slipped the revolver upon a little shelf beneath the table top. "Sir," he informed Kirkwood with some heat, "I love you as my own son, but you're a young fool, as I have been in my time and as I would to heaven I might be again! Be advised, Philip—be calm. Can't you see it's the only way to save your treasure?"

"Hang the jewels!" retorted Kirkwood warmly. "What"—

"Sir, who said anything about the jewels?"

As Brentwick spoke Calendar's corpulent figure filled the doorway; Stryker's weather worn features loomed over his shoulder, distorted in a cheerful leer.

"As to the jewels," announced the fat adventurer, "I've got a word to say, if you put it to me that way."

He paused on the threshold, partly for dramatic effect, partly for his own satisfaction. In his hand a revolver appeared, poised for immediate use if there were need.

There was none. Brentwick, at his primal appearance, had dropped a peremptory hand on Kirkwood's shoulder, forcing the young man back to his seat. At the same time he resumed his own. The girl had not stirred from hers since the first alarm. She sat as if transfixed with terror, leaning forward with her elbows on the table, her hands tightly clasped, her face, a little blanched, turned to the door. But her scarlet lips were set and firm with inflexible purpose, and her brown eyes met Calendar's with a look level and unflinching. Beyond this she gave no sign of recognition.

Nearest of the four to the adventurers was Charles, the mechanician, paused in affrighted astonishment at sight of the revolver. Calendar, choosing to advance suddenly, poked the muzzle of the weapon jocularly in the man's ribs. "Beat it, Four Eyes!" he snapped. "This is your cue to duck! Get out of my way!"

The mechanician jumped as if shot, then hastily retreated to the table, his sallow features working beneath the goggle mask which had excited the fat adventurer's scorn.

"Come right in, cap'n," Calendar threw over one shoulder. "Come in, shut the door and lock it. Let's all be sociable and have a nice quiet time."

Stryker obeyed, with a derisive grimace for Kirkwood.

Calendar, advancing jauntily to a point within a yard of the table, stopped, smiling affably down upon his prospective victims and airily twirling his revolver.

"Good evening, all!" he saluted them blandly. "Dorothy, my child," with assumed concern, "you're looking a trifle upset. I'm afraid you've been keeping late hours. Little girls must be careful, you know, or they lose the bloom of roses in their cheeks. Mr. Kirkwood, it's a pleasure to meet you again. Permit me to paraphrase your most sound advice and remind you that pistol shots are apt to attract undesirable attention. It wouldn't be wise for you to bring the police about our ears. I believe that in substance such was your sapient counsel to me in the cabin of the Alethea, was it not? And you, sir," fixing Brentwick with a cold, unfriendly eye, "you animated fossil, what might your name be?"

"It might be Brentwick," said that gentleman placidly.

"Brentwick, eh? Well, I like a man of spirit. But permit me to advise you"—

"Gladly," nodded Brentwick.

"Eh? Don't come a second time between father and daughter. Another man might not be as patient as I, Mr. Brentwick. There's a law in the land if you don't happen to know it."

"I congratulate you on your success in evading it," observed Brentwick undisturbed. "And it was considerate of you not to employ it in this instance." Then, with a sharp change of tone, "Come, sir!" he demanded "You have unwarrantably intruded in this room, which I have engaged for my private use. Get through with your business and be off with you."

"All in good time, my antediluvian friend. When I've wound up my business here I'll go—not before. But just to oblige you, we'll get down to it. Kirkwood, you have a revolver of mine. Be good enough to return it."

"I have it here, under the table," interrupted Brentwick suavely. "Shall I hand it to you?"

"By the muzzle, if you please. Be very careful. This one's loaded, too—apt to explode any minute."

To Kirkwood's intense disgust Brentwick quietly slipped one hand beneath the table and, placing the revolver on its top, delicately with his finger tips shoved it toward the farther edge. With a grunt of approval Calendar swept the weapon up and into his pocket.

"Any more ordnance?" he inquired briskly, eyes moving alertly from face to face. "No matter. You wouldn't dare use 'em anyway. And I'm about done. Dorothy, my dear, it's high time you returned to your father's protection. Where's that gladstone bag?"

"In my traveling bag," the girl told him in a toneless voice.

"Then you may bring it along. You may also say good night to the kind gentlemen."

VAHEY TALKS ON INCOME TAX

He Declares That the Republicans Fear It as an Issue

FOSS DISCUSSES THE TARIFF

Says Game Has Been Outplayed by Republicans—Pleads For Better Application of Principles of Reciprocity—Governor Draper, In Letter to Labor Men, Gives Reasons For Vetoing Eight-Hour Bill

Everett, Mass., Oct. 7.—The opening guns of the state campaign were touched off here last night, when a thousand or more people crowded in a big tent and heard leaders of the Democratic party present the issues on which that party will depend for victory at the polls next month.

James H. Vahey of Watertown, Democratic candidate for governor, discussed the income tax and opened his speech by quoting the decision of Justice Harlan of the United States supreme court.

The speaker declared the Democratic party in Massachusetts was unreservedly in favor of the adoption of an amendment to the constitution of the United States permitting a tax upon incomes; that the Republicans, although opposing it, feared it as an issue and consequently begged the question by taking no definite stand in the matter in their platform.

Mr. Vahey said the Republicans took pride in the fact that the state had an income tax upon its books, but that the results of the tax commission showed the ratio of intangible personal property to incomes in Boston to be 35 to 1; in other cities 20 to 1, and of personal property to incomes 60 to 1. He declared the burden of the income tax in Massachusetts was wholly inadequate, notoriously deficient and worked positive injustice.

Increased revenue is needed, said Vahey, and there is no reason why Massachusetts and a few other states should alone bear the income tax; the trusts and corporations should also pay, and there was no way to make the tax apply equitably except by amendment to the constitution providing for the income tax.

Eugene N. Foss, candidate for lieutenant governor, who left the Republican party to join forces with the Democrats at the state convention recently, explained at length his reasons for the change. He said he had not left the Republican party so much as the party had left him and others who, like him, were seeking for the fulfillment of Republican party pledges. He prophesied that many Republicans would be won to the Democratic banner this fall.

Mr. Foss protested that the Republican party had become drunk with tariff excesses and outplayed the game; that the people were suffering from hostile legislation and that as a result the United States had become responsible for the high protective tariffs of all nations. He said the reciprocity of past tariffs had been cut out and that retaliation was the spirit of the Aldrich-Payne bill.

Mr. Foss pleaded strongly for a better application of the principles of reciprocity, declaring the first step should be the tearing down of the tariff wall against Canada. He also advocated the income tax, which, when it came, would make it easier to lower the tariff taxes. As the best remedy of the existing conditions of "bossism" Foss also advanced his reasons for supporting direct nominations.

THE EIGHT-HOUR BILL

Governor Draper Gives Three Reasons For Exercising the Veto

Boston, Oct. 7. —Governor Draper last night notified the executive board of the Massachusetts branch of the American Federation of Labor that he would be unable to accept an invitation to attend a meeting of the branch at Springfield Oct. 13 and in a letter presents his reasons for vetoing the eight-hour bill in the last session of the legislature.

Three reasons are given for the veto by the governor—the substitution of the words "require or permit," which, the governor claims, "is both drastic and unnecessary, and constitutes an unwarrantable interference with the rights of the working man to work more than eight hours a day if he so desires;" secondly, the increase in the penalty in the existing law, as the penalty would be applicable under the provisions of the act whether the violation was intentional or not; and thirdly, that the provision that the "employment of any workman, laborer or mechanic in the public service for more than eight hours in any one calendar day shall be prima facie evidence of a violation of the provisions of the act, "is unjust, as it stamps the employer as at once guilty and compels him to prove his innocence."

Governor Draper further states that in his belief the act would have been unconstitutional, as it did not provide for the protection of contracts already in existence.

Providence, Oct. 7.—The Rhode Island Democratic state convention opened in Infantry hall today with the promise of a most harmonious gathering.

Following is the ticket nominated by the convention: For governor, Olney Arnold, Providence; leutenant governor Thomas A. Carroll, Providence; secretary of state, Frank E. Fitzsimmons, Lincoln; attorney general, James A. Williams, Providence; general treasurer, Edmund Walker, South Kingston.

This is Arnold's second year as the standard bearer, while the remainder of the ticket are new men on the party slate.

Got Too Familiar.

A story told of Justice Brewer concerns a trip he made to his old home in Kansas, accompanied by Mrs. Brewer. In Washington a justice of the supreme court is spoken of as "Mr. Justice," and that is the title Mrs. Brewer always has heard. When they reached Chicago, however, the "Mr." was dropped and the jurist was referred to as "Justice Brewer." At Omaha some old friends called him "David J.," and when they crossed the Kansas line some former neighbors referred to him as "David."

"Let's go home," suggested Mrs. Brewer.

"Why?" asked the justice.

"Because, dear," Mrs. Brewer replied, "I am afraid if we go any farther they will be calling you 'Davie.'"—Cleveland Leader.

HEARST FOR MAYOR

Nominated Despite His Statement That He Was Not a Candidate

New York, Oct. 7.—William R. Hearst, once defeated for mayor of this city by George B. McClellan and later defeated by Charles E. Hughes for governor of the state, was nominated for the mayoralty last night at a mass meeting of 4000 of his admirers at Cooper Union.

This action was taken despite his authoritative statement Tuesday evening that he would not be a candidate. Resolutions were adopted directing that a committee of five be appointed to take steps to choose an entire city, county and borough ticket, which will be placed in nomination by petition.

When, after a half dozen speeches, Hearst was formally nominated for mayor, the meeting rose to its feet and the demonstration which followed lasted twenty minutes before the chairman's calls for order could be heard.

No indications as to what Hearst's attitude would be toward the action of the meeting was received before adjournment was taken, but the leaders and speakers expressed confidence that it would be impossible for him to refuse.

CONFESSION OF MURDER

It Is Expected to Bring Pardon to Joe Guey and Warry Charles

Boston, Oct. 7.—On the strength of the confession of Hom Woon, one of the three Chinamen confined at Charlestown awaiting the death chair, that he alone was the instigator of the massacre in Chinatown on the night of Aug. 24, 1907, and that Warry Charles and Joe Guey were not present and had nothing to do with the plot, Governor Draper yesterday granted a reprieve of sixty days to both.

Charles W. Bartlett during that time will prepare and present the petition for the pardons for both, and is optimistic that his arguments will at least save Charles and Guey from the death chair.

The alleged confession from Hom Woon will be taken before Draper and counsel when the plea of attorneys for Guey and Charles is heard in the effort to have them spared the death penalty.

FOURTH OUTRAGE WITHIN A YEAR

The viaduct, which was nearing completion, was being constructed by the S. J. McCain company of Mercer, Pa. The company works on the open shop plan.

This is the fifth outrage of the kind in Buffalo and the fourth within a year.

CASTORIA

MUSICALE.

Wollaston's social season opened Wednesday evening with an entertainment in the Wollaston Congregational church under the auspices of the Wollaston Free Kindergarten. Society attended in large numbers and many attractive costumes were noted.

All of the soloists received well-merited applause, the duet by Mr. and Mrs. Follett being especially well received. Mr. Grilley in his readings held the attention of the audience and alternately amused and saddened.

Mrs. Guckenberger, contralto soloist, charmed all with her musical interpretation of her selections, her voice being rich and true, and Mr. Guckenberger at the piano added much to the evening's pleasures by his sympathetic accompaniment. Mr. and Mrs. Guckenberger are from the Guckenberger school of Music in Boston and well known in musical circles.

During the intermission the following young ladies passed through the aisles with refreshments for sale: Miss Ninon Lacey, Miss Abbie Wilde, Miss Kitty Sprague, Miss Muriel Badger. The ushers were Oscar A. Blaisdell and Frank K. Linscott.

This was the first of a series of three entertainments to be held for the benefit of the kindergarten the coming winter. The next will be an illustrated lecture on "Snowflakes," to be held on the evening of November 3 at the Wollaston Baptist church.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

THE PATRIOT AT HOME.

Editors Daily Ledger:

You kindly published my communication in relation to the Sons of Veterans, incidentaly referring to the Civil War Veterans. I have heard it said: "what about the men that did not go, are they worthy of any credit?"

Most certainly nearly every one. Some had to remain to carry on affairs here, construct vessels, cannon and other war supplies and to provide food and clothing for the front. Quite a number were desirous to go but were unable to pass the medical examinations. Many were the sole support of the family and the $11 per month (the soldier pay) was no temptation. Several gave largely of their means . Some even furnishing substitutes. One man still living, an express man carried hundreds of packages to Boston free for the soldiers and army hospitals.

O yes we had brave men and women who gave the departing soldiers money and comforting words, promising their families would be looked out for and if they were fortunate enough to return easy work would be secured for them. One who did not go to the front was the late George W. Prescott who had to look after the business interests of a widow and small family as well as his own. But no man helped more to bring cheer and comfort to the soldier at the front than he and when the home newspaper "The Patriot" arrived, letters and packages were laid aside until every line in "The Patriot" was read and discussed.

I noticed an article in Wednesday's Ledger headed Military List stating that in event of war Quincy could furnish 3000 men. That seems a large number but is still much less in proportion than we furnished for the civil war. The fact remains that this country is no longer governed by the old milk and water policy of "I guess no one will trouble us, if they do something will turn up to save us." We are through that stage. It is no secret that while the U. S. do not and will not look for any foreign trouble, they intend to be prepared with the best appliances and there will be some hesitancy in interferring with us. But it is bound to come sometime. Our geographical situation ever thought secure is no longer a barrier against the modern fleet.

The manoeuvres lately demonstrated that a foreign foe could land and entrench themselves unmolested. It was also discovered that the militia were not at all up to the standard of the Regular Army through no fault of their's but simply from want of practice. I imagine the various states will soon get the tip to reconstruct their Militia. It is impossible to take men from dry goods stores, banks, or farms and put them against trained and hardened fighting men. It requires months of constant daily drill for both men and officers.

PLUNGED INTO DITCH

Auto Goes over Enbankment And Turns Turtle

There came very near being a fatality on Independence avenue Thursday evening when a taxicab owned by the Boston Taxicab Co., plunged over an embankment and turned turtle. The accident was caused by the chauffeur, Edward Harkins, trying to avoid a collision with a carriage. In the cab were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Keegan of Roxbury, Mrs. Connolly and Mr. Connors of Dorchester.

The accident happened near Capen's bridge, at a point where the street is not lighted. Haskins in rounding the curve saw two carriages ahead in the roadway. Not knowing that there was an embankment he turned sharply to the left. The front wheels went over the edge of the bank where they hung for a minutes then the car plunged down the bank toward the railroad track where it turned turtle.

Mr. Connors was thrown through the wind shield and the other occupants were hurled from the cab. Fortunately all escaped without any bones being broken although they were badly shaken up. Dr. Reynolds attended the injured people who were conveyed to the residence of Timothy Mahoney on Washington street a friend of one of the party. Later they were conveyed to their homes in another car sent out from Boston.

BEHIND THE WICKET

What is Going on Behind the Lodge Room Door

Manet Encampment I. O. O. F., are making great preparations for the grand officers who will make an official visitation to the camp tonight. The visitors arrived in Quincy at 2.20 and were taken in charge by Samuel Wood Jr, Grand Junior Warden, who by the way is a member of Manet Encampment. Automobiles were taken for a trip about the city which included the Fore River Ship Building plant and some of the quarries.

At 6.30 tonight the patriarchs of Manet encampment, grand officers and visitors will partake of a banquet. After the banquet the camp band will give a concert until 7.30 at which time the lodge meeting will be held. The work of the evening is the Golden Rule degree which will be exemplified on several candidates.

A regular meeting of the Eastern Star lodge was held this week and applications for membership received.

The Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor O. S. C., are planning for a barn party for members and friends to be held at Doble's hall next Tuesday evening. They are anticipating a grand time.

At the regular convocation of St. Stephens Chapter, R. A. M. next Wednesday evening officers will be elected and installed.

Quincy lodge of Elks have several good things in preparation for the coming winter months. William Coleman the Exalted Ruler plans to make the year one of the most successful the lodge has ever had.

The regular meeting of Paul Revere Post 88 G. A. R. Thursday evening developed into a smoke talk, after the business of the evening had been transacted. Several of the important battles of the civil war were fought over again by the veterans who participated in them.

Quincy Council Knights of Columbus are planning for a series of Sunday afternoon talks by prominent speakers the coming winter similar to those held last winter which were so great a success.

Col. Abner B. Packard camp Sons of Veterans still have a number of eligible candidates waiting to be mustered in. This means work at practically every meeting.

It is probable that Mt. Wollaston, John Hancock and Neponset lodges of Odd Fellows will combine on degree work the coming winter the same as last year. That is each lodge will work one of the degrees on candidates from all of the lodges. By this method each lodge can perfect itself in the work of the degree which they perform. The result is that the work becomes nearly perfect.

The first degree staff of John Hancock lodge will work that degree on several candidates at Wollaston, Wednesday evening Oct. 13.

Paul Revere Woman's Relief corps will meet at Grand Army hall, next Tuesday afternoon. Several candidates will be initiated.

After the busines meeting of George L. Gill Rebekah lodge Thursday evening there was a social hour during which plans were made for a harvest supper and entertainment to be held Nov. 11. The committee in charge of the supper is Noble Grand, Mrs. Charles Barren, and Vice Grand, Lillian Baker, who will be assisted by several sisters and brothers. The entertainment program will be in charge of Miss Bernice Clarke, which insures it being a pleasing one.

The meeting of Merrymount lodge Knights and Ladies of Honor Wednesday evening was one of the largest attended of the year. During the social hour there was a bowling match which was won by Mrs. E. L. Rhines, after a roll off with Mrs. L. A. Murray. Mrs. Rhines' highest score was eighteen pins. There was also a prize dance which was won by Mrs. Eliza Miner and Mrs. E. B. Langley. The prize for the dancing was a handsome centerpiece and for the bowling a pretty dish.

John Adams Commandery Knights of Malta meet twice a month and have work at nearly every meeting. The coming winter promises to be a busy one with them.

FAREWELL RECEPTION

Purse of $100 in Gold Given Rev. H. G. Megathlin.

A farewell reception was tendered, Tuesday evening to Rev. Henry G. Megathlin pastor of the Park and Downs Congregational church who is leaving for his new pastorate in Walpole, N. H. Besides parishioners past and present, many prominent men of Wollaston and ministers of neighboring churches gathered to bid him God speed.

Rev. and Mrs. Megathlin received for nearly two hours. Mrs. Megathlin was simply but becomingly dressed and carried a large bouquet of sweet peas. On the platform were many ferns rubber plants and flowers.

The ushers were: Miss Ruth Page, Miss Geraldine Scott, Miss Angie Rose, Miss Gertrude Sass, Miss Clara Mansfield, Miss Marion Smith, Miss Mary Gardner, Miss Hazel Jones, Miss Mabel Teele, Miss Muriel Hicks, Miss Ethel Turner and Miss Lillian Collier.

With Frederick A. Northrop as master of ceremonies the evening's program commenced. After a short speech of welcome he called upon Rev. E. N. Hardy of Bethany church, Quincy.

Dr. Hardy brought the greetings of Bethany church to the pastor, his family and the church and also a word of regret that the pastor was leaving. Dr. Hardy recalled the early history of the church, how the first services were held at the Quincy Mansion and how from a little group it has grown to its present size. While he could not help feeling regret at the pastor leaving he wanted also to congratulate him on the splendid condition in which he left his work. Mr. Megathlin had taken the church at the crisis and had seen the roots reach into the soil, the branches into the air and the first fruits appear. In future years he would take great pleasure in watching another shepherd build upon the foundation he had laid so well.

Rufus B. Tobey of Wollaston next spoke and told of his former acquaintance with Rev. Mr. Megathlin and how he had watched the church grow from the time its foundations were laid. There were three places he might spend his old age; the home for aged men of which he was a director, the Masonic home, but best of all he would prefer to live in Walpole, N. H., with Rev. and Mrs. Megathlin.

Mr. Northrop next called on Rev. Thomas W. Davison, pastor of the Memorial Congregational church at Atlantic. Although he had known Mr. Megathlin but a short time, Mr. Davison said he had from the first felt acquainted with the man, owing to the warm welcome he had received upon meeting him. He congratulated Mr. Megathlin upon the splendid work he had accomplished and bade his audience remember that while ministers come and ministers go, God remains forever.

Rev. Carl G. Horst of the Wollaston Unitarian church was next called upon and said that one of the pleasures of being a minister was that at all times you must be ready to be called on to say a few words. He was glad Mr. Megathlin was going to Walpole and told of the beauties of the place. In closing he bade him Godspeed.

C. Ralph Taylor, instructor in the Girl's High school of Boston and former principal of the Wollaston and Massachusetts Fields school was next introduced. Of all men the genuine man is the noblest work of God and this in every sense of the word he found that Mr. Megathlin was. He told of first meeting him on the tennis court and how there as everywhere else, fair and square. The church had in Mr. Megathlin a dependable man and whatever he said was the result of sober thought and careful deliberation. Whatever he did he was dead-in-earnest and the results have told. In closing he bade him Godspeed and extended him the heartfelt blessings and best wishes from the people of the church.

A. W. Dingwell, one of the deacons of the church was the last speaker. In all the ten years Mr. Megathlin had been in close touch with them and in him they had found a man true as steel. One who preached Jesus Christ in all simplicity and truth, who preached love and when he entered their homes had brought love peace and sunshine. He had shared their sorrows tenderly and their joys heartily and had greatly increased the church membership. Although their hands were parting now their hearts would touch forever. In behalf of the committee composed of members

SPORTING NOTES.

Quincy High Team Ready to Meet Malden Saturday.

Franz Marceau the crack schoolboy runner who carries the colors of the B. A. A. came in second in the mile race at Brockton Thursday. He was beaten by Robert Evans of Chelsea who had a 100 yards handicap on Marceau. Dugrenier of Marlboro who came in third also had 100 yards handicap but Marceau was able to beat him out.

Quincy had a stiff practice yesterday for the Malden game and there is no reason why they should not give Malden a hard game when they line up against them Saturday. Lawrence High beat them in their last game and as they have not the team they had last year, Quincy is hoping hard to hold them. A new forward pass was worked yesterday and it looks pretty good and will be tried Saturday.

Today there will be a good hard signal practice for about an hour and all the men ought to be in fine condition to play their best game tomorrow.

A disgusting sight last week was witnessed when the Brookline team reached Quincy square. They all piled into a store and buying cigarettes they lit them, and when the train came in all clambered onto the smoking car. There is nothing that is more foolish or looks more disgusting than to see a crowd of young fellows, who pretend to be, and as they represent a football, or other athletic team, they should be, in fine physical condition, light up cigarettes.

A line can be had on the relative merits of Brockton and Dorchester today when Brockton plays Commercial high at the Fair. It was Commercial high that held Dorchester to a 0 to 0 tie last Wednesday.

A new slang word just arrived from London is "swank" said to mean humbug. Should think from its meaning it might become popular.

The chain gang and stone wall loafers are again enjoying the landscape from reserved seats on the chains about First church and the wall about Bethany church. Peanut shells, fruit skins and cigar stubs all testify to their appreciation of the privilege accorded them.

While Harvard university was installing its new president on Wednesday another country was also observing the day ,the Harvard House at Stratford-on-Avon, England, being formally opened. Ambassador Reid, Mme. Navarro, formerly Mary Anderson of this country, and noted Americans and English attended the ceremonies.

The Civic Betterment committee of the Quincy Women's club has been appealed to by a well known citizen to see if it cannot cope with conditions at the Quincy station. It is certainly to be hoped that some organization of men or women can be found willing to take up this matter and carry it through so that the loafing element and tired gentry will be eliminated. A noted lecturer in our city the other evening was obliged to go around two intoxicated men, sprawled full length on the platform, to get his train. Such conditions give strangers a bad impression of our city. Complaints are also rife concerning the poor baggage service. Is the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad trying to economize in not having employees enough to give good service or are the men incompetent? Complaints made at the station do no good as each one complained to says it is none of his business and it ends there. It should be made somebody's business and it is to be hoped if the women undertake the problem they will carry it through until results follow.

GOVERNMENT FARMS.

A golden opportunity awaits the homeseeker in several sections of the West where large engineering works of the Government are now ready to supply water for irrigation. The prospective homeseeker will not be compelled to take a chance in a lottery, and if he acts with promptness he will find a home on his arrival. Some of the best opportunities will be found in the projects in the Northwest where the soil, crops, and climate are alike attractive to farmers who are accustomed to the conditions of the upper Mississippi Valley and New England. Although these projects are located in what may be termed new country, the settler will not have to put up with isolation, nor will he be remote from excellent transportation or educational facilities.

So rapid is the development of the irrigated regions that the country has more of a suburban than rural appearance. The farms are 40 to 80 acres, and are so laid out that from 8 to 16 farm houses line each mile of the main highways, giving plenty of neighbors and creating social conditions which even today are unknown in many older settled sections of the East and Middle West.

The healthfulness and charm of these valleys, the abundant and certain crops, the nearly ideal conditions of social life and the assurance of an independent living should cause a marked decline in the undesirable efflux of our good citizens to Canada. The Reclamation Service at Washington, D. C., the bureau which is promoting the work, is endeavoring to acquaint the public with the manifold advantages of our irrigated West. Inquiries addressed to the Statistician will receive prompt attention.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

SAGE AND SULPHUR

Made Her look Twenty Years Younger

READ MRS. HERRICK'S SWORN STATEMENT

STATE OF NEW YORK } ss. Rochester, N. Y.
County of Monroe }

Nancy A. Herrick, being duly sworn, deposes and says: When I was a school girl I had a head of heavy, long, dark brown hair, that was so plentiful, rich and glossy, that it was the envy of many of my young schoolmates, and attracted the attention and remarks of strangers. After I was married and as I grew older, my hair commenced to come out just a little at first, but gradually as time passed it came out more and more, and began to turn gray. I was induced by many good reports heard of Sage and Sulphur, to try a bottle. My hair was quite gray and thin on top when I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and you may imagine my satisfaction when I found that it was fast coming back to its natural condition, becoming thicker, darker, smoother and glossier than it had been for a long time. I continued the use of Sage and Sulphur and my hair is now in a splendid condition, as heavy and as dark and smooth as when I was a girl of sixteen. From my experience I believe it is one's own fault if they lose their hair, or let it get gray or harsh. It is now four years since I commenced using Sage and Sulphur, and still use it, and my hair still keeps thick, dark, smooth and glossy.

REAL WORK BY WOMEN.

There is a suggestive lesson for women ambitious to do something outside of the home in the following account of the work of the women of Enosburg Falls, Vt.

In 1896 there was nothing doing in town. But a desire for progress was felt, at least vaguely and the men organized a Board of Trade. It was a paper affair, and soon very appropriately subsided. The work still remained to be done. There were women, who had not, of course, belonged to the Board of Trade, and they said ,among themselves, let's work. So they went at it. For some time the men and women both had had their eyes on a bit of ground in the centre of the village, covered only by an old brick church, as a possible park site. The origin of the upward movement, perhaps the origin of the improvement Association, came through the fact that the little brick church was struck by lightning. There was then a clearer field and a greater possibility. The old church site was sought by a promoter, as a field of activity, and he had put in an early bid. The women asked for the property and were told that they could have it for an immediate cash purchase. In three days they raised $1,325 and bought it. Then only did they organize.

Having the land, they secured the services of a surveyor and a landscape architect, set out trees, shrubbery and flowers and provided seats and concrete walks.

Perhaps the most interesting work of these women has been their method of raising money for what they did. Their methods show versatility. When they learn of something new they try it, generally with success. In the first five years of the existence of their organization they raised $6,084. This, in a village of under one thousand inhabitants, means something. For three successive years they held a fair or bazaar just before the holidays. They served meals in a tent at the county fair, which was seven miles from their village. They own a tent and dishes, and when they cannot do all the work themselves, they employ outside assistance. One of the novel methods originated by them is to provide on election night a hot lunch for those who are awaiting the returns. They have given almost every form of entertainment, including a women's minstrel show.

A part of their money has been raised, also in great part spent, through maintaining a lecture course of high grade. Some of the best platform lecturers have been brought to the village by these women. In this way, they have given to the residents lectures which they could not possibly have heard in any other way.

In order to increase the efficiency and longevity of their work they have interested the children. A Junior Naturalist's Society ,the members of which are considered as members of the Improvement Association ,has been started with great success.

The detailed results of the movement it is impossible to follow. But all over town the effects are manifest. They say: "Our experience has been that the village improvement idea is very contagious. One has only to take a trip about the streets of our town to realize how true this is. There are very few dirty or ill-kept back-yards or corners. Even the humblest places have a neat and tidy appearance, and a lawn mower is considered not a luxury but a necessity."

Women who can see and demonstrate such things are more glorious than though chained to a thousand legislative galleries.—Boston Transcript.

FOOLISHNESS IS REBUKED.

The order has gone forth in Pittsburg to arrest young men who go along the streets yelling "Oh, you kid!" at girls they may meet. There have been complaints that this plan is used to attract the attention of girls, even some of those under escort; and a number of arrests have been made. It is well. The utterance has the frazzles of age and a hard life about it anyway, and it is time to officially place it under the ban. As a method of street signaling to women it has been employed more or less by street gangs everywhere ,and it has been in all ways a nuisance. The cry hit the funnybone of the American public somehow for a time, but it has run its course. One Chicago authority on affairs in general says that the popularity of this phrase hints at a low order of mentality in a large section of the American public. He may take life a little too seriously, but doubtless he has been bored to the verge of insanity. As for Pittsburg, it has been not only bored but insulted and humiliated.—Brockton Enterprise.

MIX RELATES STORY OF TRIP

Encountered Thick Weather Almost From Very Start

THRILLING PASSAGE OF ALPS

Balloon Swooped Down Mountainside Until Basket Brushed Through Treetops—Farmhouse Tiles and Chimneys Suffer From Guide Rope—Forced to Throw Provisions Overboard In Order to Remain In Air

Paris, Oct. 8.—Edgar W. Mix, the winner of the international balloon race for the Gordon Bennett trophy, has sent from Warsaw the following account of his memorable voyage:

"Leaving Zurich Sunday at 3:57 p. m., we were able to recognize our route only as far as Constance. Thence to the finish the weather was so thick that direction could only be determined by compass. During Sunday night the balloon, in a drenching rain, sometimes seemed to be at a complete standstill. We ascended and descended in search of better currents of air, without appreciable results. By 4 o'clock in the morning half of our ballast had been used.

"The passage of the Bavarian Alps through rain and clouds was thrilling. Once we swooped down the mountainside with frightful velocity, plunging into a chasm of fog which seemed bottomless. It was as if the earth had opened to swallow us up. The basket several times crashed through the treetops. After two hours we emerged from the valley and got a northerly slant of wind.

When clear of the mountains, we moved at a lively rate. The guide rope dragged over farm houses, breaking tiles and chimneys. The peasants rushed out with cries and imprecations.

"We then found that the guide rope had become unravelled and hoisted it into the basket for repairs which were most difficult, since were at the same time working hard with the blower to prevent the balloon from rising. A few hours later we recognized several villages and then the town of Konigstadt.

"We sighted a balloon to the eastward with peasants hanging onto the guide rope.

"After passing over Konigstadt, which cost us three sacks of ballast, we rose through the clouds to an altitude of 15,000 feet and saw above the clouds a balloon to the north, about 100 metres higher. We began to descend at 1:40 p. m., emerging from the clouds about 460 metres above the town of Waldenburg, and were obliged to jettison eleven sacks of ballast and half of our provisions to keep clear of the roofs, but as it was, the guide rope dragged over the wires of the fortress and railroad station, creating consternation among the yelling population.

"We rose again to 2800 metres near Breslau, throwing overboard the lifesavers, mattresses and the remainder of our provisions. Gradually we continued to descend after reaching that altitude, until 6 o'clock in the evening. With good equilibrium we managed to keep afloat until 3 o'clock Tuesday morning without expending ballast, of which, as a matter of fact, there was not an ounce left.

"The balloon landed and became wedged between pine trees in the forest of Gustova. We waited until 6:30 before deflating and then searched for help. We found peasants, one of whom had been in America and spoke a little English. With their aid we loaded the balloon on carts. While this was in progress a forest guard wantonly killed one of the peasant's dogs, arousing great indignation.

"We accompanied the owner to the proprietor of the estate to lodge a complaint and found a peasant woman speaking a little French, who registered an entry of our landing in the logbooks. While the peasants were conveying the balloon to Ostrolenko, the woman gave us a primitive meal of potatoes and water.

"On our arrival at Ostrolenko we were stopped by the police, who took us, together with the balloon, to the station, where we remained until instructions were received from St. Petersburg for our release. We were treated excellently."

Big Crowd at Brockton Fair

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 8.—The crowd at the fair Thursday was the largest of the week thus far, numbering 75,000. This was 10,000 in excess of the number present on the corresponding day last year, but was not up to the figures of 1905, when the attendance reached 80,000.

A Plea For Prohibition

St. John, Oct. 8.—The Presbyterian synod of the Maritime Provinces adopted a resolution favoring provincial prohibition and one asking the federal and provincial parliaments to discontinue the use of liquor at state functions.

Tame Race For Big Stake

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 8.—Probably the tamest of all the twenty-one races in the history of the Transylvania stake of $5000 was that trotted Thursday. The favorite, Penisa Maid, won in straight heats.

TAKE IN BIG SIGHTS

Men of the Roosevelt Enjoy Themselves Previous to Disbanding

New York, Oct. 8.—After months within the Arctic circle, the members of Commander Peary's polar expedition spent Thursday exploring New York and vicinity. They made many discoveries, for few of them had ever been sightseeing in a large city before.

They found that it was not alone in the frigid north that the reindeer, the musk ox, the polar bear and other Arctic fauna might be seen. With but few exceptions they found all in New York, at the American Museum of Natural History. They gazed at the stuffed mammals of the north set in glass cases amid imitation snow and ice. They found the haunts of the Eskimo pictured, relics of many expeditions less fortunate than theirs, and the bones of animals reputed to have frequented glacial regions centuries ago.

After their visit to the Museum of Natural History, they were taken to the Botanical Gardens, the Zoo in Bronx park and the Aquarium. The crew disbanded today and its members will return to their homes in Newfoundland.

DESERTS HIS SWEETHEART

Wealthy Manager of Packing Plant Also Throws Up His Job

Omaha, Oct. 8.—George W. Bowers, acting general manager of the South Omaha plant of the Armour Packing company, who disappeared a month ago, was found yesterday at Fort Francis, Ont., by a representative of the company. The cause of his disappearance from this city remains a mystery. He is reputed to be wealthy and is well known in many large cities.

Bowers tendered his resignation to the company's representative and said he was going to the Thunder Bay country. He was to have been married to Miss Daisy Rogers, daughter of a well known live stock commission man, in November.

The Rogers family would not discuss the matter further than to say that Miss Rogers had not heard from Bowers since he left the city early in September.

LIONS KEEP OUT OF TAFT'S PATH

President Reaches Yosemite Park Without Adventure

Wawona, Cal., Oct. 8.—After a thirty-four mile ride by stage coach in and out of the Yosemite national park and over mountain roads, President Taft arrived here last evening.

News that mountain lions were infesting the park held out hope of adventure for a time, but not even the tracks of one were seen on the road. The president declared that it was one of the most enjoyable days of his life.

As he passed through the outskirts of the valley the president was saluted by a grizzled old California pioneer, Galen Clark, the first white man to make known the existence of the giant Sequoia trees which the president will see today. Clark is now more than 90 years of age and lives in the park.

The president is being guarded by a detachment of cavalry.

DEATH OF JUSTICE BISHOP

Was Opponent of Butler In Memorable Gubernatorial Campaign

Newton, Mass., Oct. 8.—Robert R. Bishop, associate justice of the superior court of Massachusetts and candidate of the Republican party for governor in 1882, when he was defeated in a memorable campaign by General Benjamin F. Butler, died at his home in this city last night after a long illness.

Bishop was born in Medfield in 1834. He served as Newton's representative to the general court in 1874 and as senator from 1878 to 1882, inclusive, during the last three years being president of the senate.

Bishop's law practice was concerned largely with important railroad litigation. He was appointed associate justice of the superior court of Massachusetts in 1888 and had served continuously since, opening the spring session of the criminal court last July. He leaves three sons.

THE BLACK BAG

Serial Story by Louis Joseph Vance (Copyrighted)

CHAPTER XXXI.

DOROTHY did not move. Her pallor grew more intense, and Kirkwood saw her knuckles tighten beneath the gloves; otherwise her mouth seemed to grow more straight and hard.

"Dorothy!" cried the adventurer, with a touch of displeasure. "You heard me?"

"I heard you," she replied a little wearily, more than a little contemptuously. "Don't mind him, please, Mr. Kirkwood!" with an appealing gesture, as Kirkwood, unable to contain himself, moved restlessly in his chair, threatening to rise. "Don't say anything. I have no intention whatever of going with this man."

Calendar's features twitched nervously. He chewed a corner of his mustache, fixing the girl with a black stare. "I presume," he remarked, after a moment, with slow deliberation, "you're aware that as your father I am in a position to compel you to accompany me."

"I shall not go with you," iterated Dorothy in a level tone. "You may threaten me, but—I shall not go. Mr. Brentwick and Mr. Kirkwood are taking me to—friends, who will give me a home until I can find a way to take care of myself. That is all I have to say to you."

"Bravo, my dear!" cried Brentwick encouragingly.

"Mind your business, sir!" thundered Calendar, his face darkening, then to Dorothy, "You understand, I trust, what this means?" he demanded. "I offer you a home, and a good one. Refuse and you work for your living, my girl! You've forfeited your legacy"—

"I know, I know," she told him in cold disdain. "I am content. Won't you be kind enough to leave me alone?"

For a breath Calendar glowered over her. Then, "I presume," he observed, "that all these heroics are inspired by that whippersnapper Kirkwood. Do you know that he hasn't a brass farthing to bless himself with?"

"What has that"— cried the girl indignantly.

"Why, it has everything to do with me, my child. As your doting parent I can't consent to your marrying nothing a year, for I surmise you intend to marry this Mr. Kirkwood, don't you?"

There followed a little interval of silence, while the warm blood flamed in the girl's face and the red lips trembled as she faced her tormentor. Then, with a quaver that escaped her control, "If Mr. Kirkwood asks me I shall," she stated very simply.

"That," interposed Kirkwood, "is completely understood." His gaze sought her eyes, but she looked away.

"You forget that I am your father," sneered Calendar, "and that you are a minor. I can refuse my consent."

"But you won't," Kirkwood told him, with assurance.

The adventurer stared. "No," he agreed after slight hesitation; "no, I shan't interfere. Take her, my boy, if you want her, and a father's blessing into the bargain. The Lord knows I've troubles enough. A parent's lot is not what it's cracked up to be." He paused, leering, ironic. "But," deliberately, "there's still this other matter of the gladstone bag. I don't mind abandoning my parental authority when my child's happiness is concerned, but as for my property"—

"It is not your property," interrupted the girl.

"It was your mother's, dear child. It's now mine."

"I dispute that assertion," Kirkwood put in.

"You may dispute it till the cows come home, my boy. The fact will remain that I intend to take my property with me when I leave this room, whether you like it or not. Now, are you disposed to continue the argument, or may I count on your being sensible?"

"You may put away your revolver, if that's what you mean," said Kirkwood. "We certainly shan't oppose you with violence, but I warn you that Scotland Yard"—

"Oh, that be blowed!" the adventurer snorted in disgust. "I can sail circles round any tec that ever blew out of Scotland Yard! Give me an hour's start and you're free to do all the funny business you've a mind to with—Scotland Yard!"

"Then you admit," queried Brentwick civilly, "that you've no legal title to the jewels in dispute?"

"Look here, my friend," chuckled Calendar; "when you catch me admitting anything you write it down in your little book and tell the bobby on the corner. Just at present I've got other business than to stand round admitting anything about anything. Cap'n, let's have that bag of my dutiful daughter's."

"'Ere you are." Stryker spoke for the first time since entering the room, taking the valise from beneath the chair and depositing it on the table.

"Well, we shan't take anything that doesn't belong to us," laughed Calendar, fumbling with the catch, "not even so small a matter as my own child's traveling bag. A small—heavy—gladstone bag," he grunted, opening the valise and plunging in one greedy hand, "will—just—about—do for mine!" With which he produced the article mentioned. "This for the discard, cap'n," he laughed contentedly, pushing the girl's valise aside, and, rumbling with stentorian mirth, stood beaming benignantly over the assembled company.

"Why," he exclaimed, "this moment is worth all it cost me! My children, I forgive you freely. Mr. Kirkwood, I felicitate you cordially on having secured a most expensive wife. Really, d'you know, I feel as if I ought to do a little something for you both."

The thick, mottled fingers tore nervously at the catch. Eventually he got the bag open. Those about the table bent forward, all quickened by the prospect of for the first time beholding the treasure over which they had fought, for which they had suffered so long.

A heady and luscious fragrance pervaded the atmosphere, exhaling from the open mouth of the bag. A silence, indefinitely sustained, impressed itself upon the little audience—a breathless pause ended eventually by a sharp snap of Calendar's teeth. "Mm-m!" grunted the adventurer in bewilderment. He began to pant.

Abruptly his heavy hands delved into the contents of the bag, like the paws of a terrier digging in earth. To Kirkwood the air seemed temporarily thick with flying objects. Beneath his astonished eyes a towel fell upon the table—a crumpled, soiled towel bearing on its dingy hem the inscription in indelible ink, "Hotel du Commerce, Anvers." A tooth mug of substantial earthenware dropped to the floor with a crash. A slimy soap dish of the same manufacture slid across the table and into Brentwick's lap. A battered alarm clock with never a tick left in its abused carcass rang vacuously as it fell by the open bag. The remainder was—oranges, a dozen or more small, round, golden globes of ripe fruit, perhaps a shade overripe, therefore the more aromatic.

"Philip, I meant it, every word!"

The adventurer ripped out an oath. "Mulready!" he raged in fury. "Done up, I swear! Done by that infernal sneak—me, blind as a bat!"

He fell suddenly silent, the blood congesting in his face; as suddenly broke forth again, haranguing the company.

"That's why he went out and bought those oranges, is it? Think of it—me sitting in the hotel in Antwerp and him lugging in oranges by the bagful because he was fond of fruit! When did he do it? How do I know? If I knew, would I be here, and him the devil knows where this minute? When my back was turned, of course! That's why he was so hot about picking a fight on the boat, eh? Wanted to get thrown off and take to the woods, leaving me with this! And that's why he felt so awful done up he wouldn't take a hand at hunting you two down, hey? I'll camp on his trail for the rest of his natural born days! I'll have his eyeteeth for this! I'll"—

He swayed, gibbering with rage, his countenance frightfully contorted, his fat hands shaking as he struggled for expression.

And then, while yet their own astonishment held Dorothy, Kirkwood, Brentwick and Stryker speechless, Charles, the mechanician, moved suddenly upon the adventurer.

There followed two metallic clicks. Calendar's ravings were abrupted as if his tongue had been paralyzed. He fell back a pace, flabby jowls pale and shaking, ponderous jaw dropping on his breast, mouth wide and eyes crazed as he shook violently before him his thick, fleshy wrists, securely handcuffed.

Simultaneously the bold mechanician whirled about, bounded eagerly across the floor and caught Stryker at the door, his dexterous fingers twisting in the captain's collar as he jerked him back and tripped him.

"Mr. Kirkwood," he cried, "here, please, one moment! Take this man's gun from him, will you?"

Kirkwood sprang to his assistance and without encountering much trouble succeeded in wresting a revolver from Stryker's limp, flaccid fingers.

Roughly the mechanician shook the man, dragging him to his feet. "Now," he ordered sternly, "you march to that corner, stick your nose in it and be good! You can't get away if you try. I've got other men outside, waiting for you to come out. Understand?"

AN OLD-TIME PRESCRIPTION
in a modern product. From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair and making it grow. In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready to use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. Such a preparation is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, which is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or which is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

of the church and friends he presented Mr. Megathlin with a purse of $100 in gold as a token of love and hoped he would find happiness in receiving the same as they did in giving it.

Rev. Mr. Megathlin said that it was with sorrowful regret and with deepest gratitude he received the gift and that he did not wish to take all the praise. He thanked them for the gift and the wish to give him a pleasant evening before he left. All this was on the surface but in the assembly he could see faces whose life he knew and whose joys and sorrows he would ever carry in his memory and heart.

It was a splendid church to begin work in with the momentum it had and the strong workers and where there were such possibilities. He asked them to call upon him whenever they might desire any services and when the summer holidays came invited them to come to Walpole. In closing he earnestly hoped they would set their faces to the front and press on to new achievements. May God give them his blessing as a church.

With a verse of "Blest be the tie that binds" sung by those present, with Miss Nettie Gram at the piano, the evening's program closed. Refreshments were passed by the ushers and many availed themselves of the opportunity to take another farewell of their beloved pastor.

PROTRACTED COURT SITTING

Liquor Cases Consume Much Time In Nantucket

NO CONVICTIONS BY JURIES

Move to Have Superior Court Removed From County as a Result—Appeals From Lower Court Put Over Until July, as Judge Refuses to Hear Them—Fruitless Crusade Against Liquor Traffic

Nantucket, Mass., Oct. 8.—Because no jury can be secured in Nantucket county to return a conviction in liquor cases, a movement has begun to have the superior court removed from the county.

The latest unsuccessful attempt of the government to secure a conviction came yesterday, when the defendants in four liquor cases in the superior court were acquitted by the second jury in the superior court.

Judge Fessenden then refused to hear any more of the cases which had come up on appeal from the lower court and ordered the remainder continued until next July.

The session of the superior court has been one of the longest and abounded in more features than any ever held in Nantucket county. The protracted sitting had its basic reason in the crusade of the town of Nantucket—which is also the county of Nantucket—against liquor selling by drug stores, kitchen barrooms and other illegal traffickers.

The town secured cases against four parties and with permanent inhabitants and summer residents interestedly looking on sought to secure conviction. The jurors, picked from the voting population, however, could not be impressed with the defendants' guilt, and two bodies of twelve men each acquitted the alleged liquor dealers.

Among those who were acquitted for the second time yesterday were R. G. Coffin & Co., druggists, and Robert M. Powers of Foxboro, proprietor of the Ocean View hotel at Siasconset.

MAYOR BROWN BEATEN

Court Restores Lowell Police Board That Had Been Ousted

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 8.—George H. Brown, the policeman-mayor of Lowell, received a severe setback yesterday at the hands of Judge Dana of the superior court.

His charges of incapacity, malfeasance and neglect of duty, preferred against the police board which he ousted shortly after his becoming mayor, were declared by Dana not to be sustained.

The board which Brown appointed to succeed the police board he had ousted was dismissed.

Judge Dana declared that the members of the police board are in no sense subordinates of the mayor, and that in their sphere they are as supreme as Brown is in his.

The board to be restored to power by Dana's decision are Frank K. Stearns, Charles H. Hanson and Thomas H. Boulger. Stearns has two years to serve, Hanson three and Boulger's term expires next year.

NEW BABY IN HOUSE

Landlord Refuses to Renew Lease and Tenant Brings Suit

Chicago, Oct. 8.—Race suicide landlords in Chicago must submit to a test in the courts of a new state law which became effective July 1 last, forbidding them to refuse rental of apartments to families with children.

R. P. Longenecker, a tenant, refused renewal of a lease of an apartment because a child had been born to him therein, brought suit against the landlord under the new statute, demanding that the landlord be forced to renew him the lease. The case will be heard in court Oct. 20.

NO ATTACK ON TAMMANY

Gaynor's Attitude Means That Hearst Will Run For Mayor of New York

New York, Oct. 8.—William J. Gaynor has accepted the Democratic nomination for mayor of greater New York. His speech contained no attack on Tammany Hall, which had been expected in some quarters.

The omission was brought particularly to the public notice by a statement issued by William R. Hearst, who declared that he would yield to the urging of his friends and run for mayor on an independent ticket unless Gaynor came out with a denunciation of Tammany.

Stricken With Paralysis

New York, Oct. 8.—Napthali H. Imber, author of Hatikvah, the Zionist national hymn, written in ancient Hebrew and chanted the world around, was found unconscious from a sudden attack of paralysis in an East Side street. It is said that he cannot live.

FROM GOLF LINKS TO OFFICE

THERE'S nothing like getting out of doors on these bracing, sunshiny afternoons in early fall.

Sometimes it is hard to get away from the office, particularly if you have to leave some things "hanging fire."

With the TELEPHONE to help you, it's all the same whether you're going to play golf or tennis, go out in the machine, or see the game.

A word over the wire saves an hour's delay in leaving the office, and a call in the latter part of the afternoon will clean up the things you couldn't do before you left.

Remember that the telephone at the Country Club will serve you for either Local or Long Distance calls.

STONED AUTOS.

Officer Duane Captures Three Boys Stoning Automobiles.

Every year the police receive numerous complaints from automobile and carriage drivers that they are pelted with stones on Independence avenue while returning from the Brockton fair. Not only are the passengers in the carriages and autoes hit but several had narrow escapes from having their eyes put out.

Thursday night Chief Burrell detailed Officer Duane to watch out and capture the parties. The officer secreted himself near the residence of John Q. A. Field and watched. He did not have long to wait for the first car that passed received a shower of stones.

Every team that passed got the same reception but it was sometime before the officer was able to locate where the stones came from. Hiding himself in the bushes near an electric light he was able to see where the stones came from. The next minute he had in his custody three Italian boys. The boys had filled their pockets with small stones and had climbed into a tree. From this place they pelted the passing teams, the occupants of which were unable to learn where the rocks came from. The boys will appear in court later.

The Social Realm

"Now autumn marsha ls her brilliant train
With ripened fruitage and garnered grain.
And the golden-rod by the roadside waits
As an entrance fee to her palace gates."
A wreath of gentians crowns her brow,
And harebells kiss her feet;
The soft breeze wafts o'er woods and fields
A fragrance passing sweet.

ENCAMPMENT VISITATION

Visit of Grand Officers to Manet Encampment

Friday night's meeting of Manet encampment I. O. O. F., was a red letter night for the encampment for it was the occasion of the annual visitation of the grand officers. The grand officers arrived in Quincy at 2.20 and were met at the depot by a committee with automobiles. Grand Junior Warden, Samuel Wood, Jr., who is a member of Manet encampment, was the official guide and he escorted the party about Quincy on a visit to the various points of interest. The shrine under the First church the Presidents Adams birthplaces, the Fore River and the quarries were some of the places visited. The grand officers present were:

Grand Patriarch Herbert W. Kingsbury of Westfield; Grand Senior Warden, Henry E. Ruggles of Franklin; Grand Junior Warden, Samuel Wood, Jr., of Quincy; Grand Representatives, W. H. Mitchell of Boston and Louis A. Cook of Weymouth. Grand Instructor George H. Hartley of Malden; Grand Marshall, W. F. Johnson of Boston; District Deputy, Samuel Johnson.

The visitors arrived back at the lodge room at 6.30 at which time a banquet was served. During the banquet music was furnished by the Manet encampment band.

The business meeting and visitation to the encampment followed the banquet and was largely attended, patriarchs being present from many of the encampments in the vicinity of Boston. The work of the evening was the Golden Rule degree which was exemplified on five candidates by the officers of Manet encampment.

After the work there were addresses by all of the grand officers who complimented the encampment on the excellence of their work.

The grand instructor was particularly complimentary in his remarks saying that the work was very nearly letter perfect.

RECEIVED SHOCK.

Dr. E. H. Bushnell Receives Bad Shock While Using Telephone.

Dr. E. H. Bushnell of Washington street had a narrow escape from death by electricity Friday when he received a heavy shock while in the act of using the telephone in his office. The doctor started to use his telephone and as he did so reached up with his left hand to turn on the electric light over his desk. At the same time his right hand was on the metal part of the telephone.

In some unaccountable way a circuit was formed and the doctor received a severe shock which threw him backwards against the wall. Fortunately this broke the connection, otherwise the current would have continued to flow through his body and he would have been electrocuted.

When found he was unconscious, but he revived shortly after. The doctor's thumb on the left hand was very badly burned the flesh being burned to the bone. Other than this the doctor is none the worse for his experience.

The accident to Dr. Bushnell is similar to the one in a blacksmith shop at South Quincy some years ago that resulted fatally. In that case the young man stood on a lot of old iron and steel when he attempted to turn on the light and the shock he received was severe enough to cause death.

FOUND NEAR RAILROAD

John Coughlan Struck or Fell From Moving Train

A man whose name is given as John Coughlan was found by Officer Bishop shortly before 10 o'clock Friday night lying near the railroad tracks just south of the Quincy depot. It is thought that the man came from Boston on the train due at 9.50 and that he either got off of the train and started to walk up the track and was struck by the engine, or that he attempted to leave the train after it had started and was thrown against the stone wall on the west side of the tracks.

Two men walking up the tracks were the first to discover the man and they notified Officer Bishop. The man was groaning and was unconscious. City Physician Hallowell was called and the man removed to the City Hospital. Here he was examined by Dr. Jones who found that he had two fractured ribs besides a number of bruises. One hand was badly lacerated, as though it had struck some obstacle.

It was said that the man's address was 79 School street, Quincy, but it is probably Braintree, as it is claimed that is his home. Unless new complications set in the man will recover.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB.

The Quincy Women's club has decided to enlarge its sphere of work, and invites all the young women of Quincy to meet the officers of the club at the Women's club house, 148 Goffe street, Saturday evening, Oct. 30, at 7.45 o'clock

After an entertainment which has been arranged, including music and a little play, the ladies will explain the nature of the work to be taken up through the winter.

Classes will be formed in millinery, and other handicraft under competent teachers. The fee for the season's membership will be twenty-five cents; and the fees for instruction in the class work will be five cents and upwards additional, according to the work chosen.

There will be an opportunity after the entertainment for social intercourse and light refreshments will be served.

Let the privileges of the club be shared by as many young women as possible so that those who cannot join the afternoon meetings can now avail themselves of the social enjoyment and the helps to daily practical living which this new club offers.

Trembling like a whipped cur, Stryker meekly obeyed his instructions to the letter.

The mechanician, with a contemptuous laugh, leaving him, strode back to Calendar, meanwhile whipping off his goggles, and clapped a hearty hand upon the adventurer's quaking shoulders.

"Well," he cried, "and are you still sailing circles round the men from Scotland Yard, Simmons or Bellows or Sanderson or Calendar or Crumbstone, or whatever name you prefer to sail under?"

Calendar glared at him aghast, then heaved a profound sigh, shrugged his fat shoulders and bent his head in thought. An instant later he looked up. "You can't do it," he informed the detective vehemently. "You haven't got a shred of evidence against me! What's there? A pile of oranges and a peck of trash! What of it? Besides," he threatened, "if you pinch me you'll have to take the girl in too. I swear that whatever stealing was done she did it. I'll not be trapped this way by her and let her off without a squeal. Take me—take her, d'you hear?"

"I think," put in the clear, bland accents of Brentwick, "we can consider that matter settled. I have here, my man," nodding to the adventurer as he took up the black leather wallet—"I have here a little matter which may clear up any lingering doubts as to your standing which you may be disposed at present to entertain."

He extracted a slip of cardboard and at arm's length laid it on the table edge beneath the adventurer's eyes. The latter, bewildered, bent over it for a moment, breathing heavily, then straightened back, shook himself, laughed shortly with a mirthless note and faced the detective.

"It's 'come with you, now,' I guess?" he suggested very quietly.

"The Bannister warrant is still out for you," returned the man. "That'll be enough to hold you on till extradition papers arrive from the States."

"Oh, I'll waive those, and I won't give you any trouble either. I reckon," mused the adventurer, jingling his manacles thoughtfully, "I'm a back number anyway. When a half grown girl, a half baked boy, a flub like Mulready and a clubfooted snipe from Scotland Yard can put it all over me this way, why, I guess it's up to me to go home and retire to my country place up the Hudson." He sighed wearily. "Yep; time to cut it out. But I would like to be free long enough to get in one good lick at that mutt Mulready. My friend, you get your hands on him, and I'll squeal on him till I'm blue in the face. That's a promise."

"You'll have the chance before long," replied the detective. "We received a telegram from the Amsterdam police late this afternoon, saying they'd picked up Mr. Mulready with a woman named Hallam and were holding them on suspicion. It seems," turning to Brentwick, "they were opening negotiations for the sale of a lot of stones and seemed in such a precious hurry that the diamond merchant's suspicions were roused. We're sending over for them, Miss Calendar, so you can make your mind easy about your jewels. You'll have them back in a few days."

"Thank you," said the girl with an effort.

"Well," the adventurer delivered his peroration, "I certainly am blamed glad to hear it. 'Twouldn't 've been a square deal any other way."

Then, with an uncertain nod comprehending the girl, Kirkwood and Brentwick, "So long!" he said thickly and turned, with the detective's hand under his arm, and, accompanied by the thoroughly cowed Stryker, waddled out of the room.

Kirkwood, following the exodus, closed the door with elaborate care and slowly, deep in thought, returned to the table.

Brentwick had slipped down in his chair, resting his silvered head upon its back, and was smiling serenely up at the low yellow ceiling. Before him on the table his long white fingers were drumming an inaudible tune. Presently rousing, he caught Kirkwood's eye and smiled sheepishly, like a child caught in innocent mischief.

The younger man grinned broadly. "And you were responsible for all that!" he commented, infinitely amused.

Brentwick nodded, twinkling self satisfaction. "I contrived it all," he said. "Neat, I call it too." His old eyes brightened with reminiscent enjoyment. "Inspiration," he crowed softly—"inspiration, pure and simple. I'd been worrying my wits for fully five minutes before Wotton settled the matter by telling me about the captain's hiring of the motor car. Then in a flash I had it. I talked with Charles by telephone—his name is really Charles, by the bye—overcame his conscientious scruples about playing his fish when they were already all but landed and settled the artistic details."

He chuckled delightedly. "It's the instinct," he declared emphatically—"the instinct for adventure. I knew it was in me, latent somewhere, but never till this day did it get the opportunity to assert itself. A born adventurer—that's what I am! You see, it was essential that they should believe we were frightened and running from them. That way they would be sure to run after us. Why, we might have baited a dozen traps and failed to lure them into my house after that stout scoundrel knew you'd had the chance to tell me the whole yarn. Odd!"

"Weren't you taking chances, you and Charles?" asked Kirkwood curiously.

"Precious few. There was another motor from Scotland Yard trailing Captain Stryker's. If they had run past or turned aside they would have been overhauled in short order."

"What I don't understand," contended Kirkwood, "is how you convinced Calendar that he couldn't get revenge by pressing his charge against Miss Calendar—Dorothy."

"Oh-h!" Mr. Brentwick elevated his fine white eyebrows and sat up briskly. "My dear boy, that was the most delectable dish on the entire menu. I have been reserving it, I don't mind owning, that I might better enjoy the full relish of it. I may answer you best, perhaps, by asking you to scan what I offered to the fat scoundrel's respectful consideration, my dear sir."

He leveled a forefinger at the card.

At first glance it conveyed nothing to the younger man's benighted intelligence. He puzzled over it, twisting his brows out of alignment. An ordinary oblong slip of thin white cardboard, it was engraved in fine script as follows: "Mr. George Burgoyne Calendar, 31 Aspen Villas, S. W."

"Oh!" exclaimed Kirkwood at length, standing up, his face bright with understanding. "You"—

"I," laconically assented the elder man.

Impulsively Kirkwood leaned across the table. "Dorothy," he said tenderly and when the girl's happy eyes met his quietly drew her attention to the card.

Then he rose hastily and went over to stand by the window, staring mistily into the blank face of night beyond its unseen panes.

Behind him there was a confusion of little noises—the sound of a chair pushed hurriedly aside, a rustle of skirts, a happy sob or two, low voices intermingling—sighs. Out of it finally came the father's accents.

"There, there, my dear, my dearest dear!" protested the old gentleman. "Positively I don't deserve a tithe of this. I"— The young old voice quavered and broke in a happy laugh. "You must understand," he continued more soberly, "that no consideration of any sort is due me. When we married I was too old for your mother, child. We both knew it, both believed it would never matter. But it did. By her wish I went back to America. We were to see what separation would do to heal the wounds dissension had caused. It was a very foolish experiment. Your mother died before I could return."

There fell a silence, again broken by the father. "After that I was in no haste to return. But some years ago I came to London to live. I communicated with the old colonel, asking permission to see you. It was refused in a manner which precluded the subject being reopened by me. I was informed that if I persisted in attempting to see you you would be disinherited. He was very angry with me—justly, I admit. One must grow old before one can see how unforgivably one was wrong in youth. So I settled down to a quiet old age, determined not to disturb you in your happiness. Ah—Kirkwood!"

The old gentleman was standing, his arm around his daughter's shoulders, when Kirkwood turned.

"Come here, Philip. I'm explaining to Dorothy, but you should hear. The evening I called on you, dear boy, at the Pless, returning home I received a message from my solicitors, whom I had instructed to keep an eye on Dorothy's welfare. They informed me that she had disappeared. Naturally I canceled my plans to go to Munich and stayed, employing detectives. One of the first things they discovered was that Dorothy had run off with an elderly person calling himself George Burgoyne Calendar, the name I had discarded when I found that to acknowledge me would imperil my daughter's fortune. The investigations went deeper. Charles, let us continue to call him, had been to see me only this afternoon to inform me of the plot they had discovered. This Hallam woman and her son—it seems that they were legitimately in the line of inheritance, Dorothy out of the way. But the woman was—ah—a bad lot. Somehow she got into communication with this fat rogue, and together they plotted it out. Charles doesn't believe that the Hallam woman expected to enjoy the Burgoyne estates for very many days. Her plan was to step in when Dorothy stepped out, gather up what she could, realize on it and decamp. That is why there was so much excitement about the jewels—naturally the most valuable item on her list, the most easy to convert into cash. The man Mulready we do not place. He seems to have been a shady character the fat rogue picked up somewhere. The latter's ordinary line of business was diamond smuggling, though he would condescend to almost anything in order to turn a dishonest penny.

"That seems to exhaust the subject. But one word more. Dorothy, I am old enough and have suffered enough to know the wisdom of seizing one's happiness when one may. My dear, a little while ago you did a very brave deed. Under fire you said a most courageous, womanly, creditable thing. And Philip's rejoinder was only second in nobility to yours. I do hope to goodness that you two blessed youngsters won't let any addle pated scruples stand between yourselves and the prize of romance, your inalienable inheritance!"

Abruptly Brentwick, who was no longer Brentwick, but the actual Calendar, released the girl from his embrace and hopped nimbly toward the door. "Really, I must see about that petrol!" he cried. "While it's perfectly true that Charles lied about its running out, we must be getting on. I'll call you when we're ready to start."

And the door crashed to behind him.

Between them was the table. Beyond it the girl stood with head erect, dim tears glimmering on the lashes of those eyes with which she met Philip's steady gaze so fearlessly.

Singing about them, the silence deepened. Fascinated, though his heart was faint with longing, Kirkwood faltered on the threshold of his kingdom.

"Dorothy! You did mean it, dear?"

She laughed a little, low, sobbing laugh that had its source deep in the hidden sanctuary of her heart of a child.

"I meant it, my dearest. If you'll have a girl so bold and forward, who can't wait till she's asked, but throws herself into the arms of the man she loves—Philip, I meant it, every word!"

And as he went to her swiftly, round the table, she turned to meet him, arms uplifted, her scarlet lips a-tremble, the brown and bewitching lashes droping over her wondrously lighted eyes.

THE END.

Are You Wretched in Bad Weather?

Keeping the Kidneys Well Has Kept Many Quincy People Well.

Many Quincy people find that bad weather brings on a dull pain in the back, or rheumatic aching, neuralgia, nervousness, irritability and weakness. If, when you get wet or take cold, it "settles on the kidneys," and there is a shivery, chilly sensation in the back, it shows kidney weakness, which is often the beginning of disease. Doan's Kidney Pills should be used persistently until the chilly feeling is gone, and the flow of urine is natural. Doan's Kidney Pills has saved Quincy people much suffering.

W. Charlesworth, living at 33 Cranch street, Quincy, Mass., says: "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were at times more severe than at others and colds or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief, but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give this remedy a trial and procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had used the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

Hearst Decides to Enter Race For New York Mayoralty

HAS FUSION TICKET'S BACKING

Executive Committee of New Party Accept Conditions Laid Down by Their Candidate—Will Head Ticket Instead of Bannard, Who Was Endorsed by Fusionists—Hearst Repudiates Endorsement of Gaynor

New York, Oct. 9.—After two days of silence, William R. Hearst announced to a crowd of waiting constituents early this morning that he would accept an independent nomination for mayor of New York, provided his associates upon the city and county tickets were substantially the Republican-Fusion ticket as already selected. His statement outlining the conditions upon which he will accept is in part as follows:

"Whether I am a candidate or not, I will support the rest of the fusion ticket nominated in opposition to Tammany Hall. When the Independence League committee withdrew from the fusion conference it declared that it still stood ready 'to support a frank and honest expression of progressive principles and candidates irrespective of party.' This is your opportunity to substantiate that declaration. Nominate me if you so desire, with the greater part of that fusion ticket behind me, and I will run.

"The candidates nominated on the fusion ticket are worthy of support. The ticket is already in the field. If we nominate the fusion ticket, Tammany will be defeated. And if Tammany is defeated, the citizens will win."

Mr. Hearst goes on to say that he thinks his chances for election would be better on a straight independent ticket, but that he is not considering his personal chances alone, but rather of the city at large. In other words he wishes the endorsement of the independents to enable him to head a ticket simply by supplanting Otto T. Bannard, who has been nominated by the regular Republican party and endorsed by the so-called fusionists. In his statement Hearst repudiates his endorsement of William J. Gaynor, the Democratic nominee, whom he announced several days ago he would support.

Hearst's decision to run again did not come as a surprise, but the conditions which he prescribed did. An announcement from him was expected all day yesterday and a committee appointed at the mass meeting at which he was nominated on Wednesday night was closeted with him until after midnight.

During the day, to insure a party name, legal steps were taken to register the "Civic Alliance," under which title Hearst will make the race. The choosing of this new name was made necessary in that Tammany is charged with absorbing the old Independence League machinery at the recent primaries.

Charles E. Behring, organizer of the new Civic Alliance, and members of its executive committee voted unanimously today to accept conditions as laid down by Hearst. Gehring announced that he would begin the circulation of nominating petitions today.

BULLET THROUGH HIS BODY

Inn Proprietor, Mistaken For a Deer, Receives Fatal Wound

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Oct. 9.—Henry Lewis, aged 50, proprietor of the Wayside Inn at Clear Lake Junction, was supposedly mistaken for a deer and fatally shot twelve miles from this place.

Lewis was hunting with a large party, but the name of the man who unwittingly fired the shot has not been made known. The bullet passed through Lewis' body just above the heart.

Deep in the woods and far from a settlement, the wounded man lay for six hours before a physician reached his side and when he was carried to shelter on a stretcher he was dying from loss of blood.

Lewis Easy For Papke

Pittsburg, Oct. 9.—Billy Papke of Illinois easily defeated Willie Lewis, the New York fighter, according to the public verdict, before the National Sporting club of Pittsburg. Both men were standing at the end of the sixth round, with Lewis all but out. Five thousand persons witnessed the fight.

Pelletier For District Attorney

Boston, Oct. 9.—Joseph C. Pelletier was nominated for district attorney of Suffolk county in a convention held by the Democrats last night. When the choice was made known on the first ballot the nomination was made unanimous.

LEARNING ART OF AVIATION

Signal Corps Officers Under Instruction of Wilbur Wright

"MISS COLUMBIA" WORKING

Machine Owned by Uncle Sam Makes Several Flights at College Park—Lieutenants Lahm and Humphreys Accompany Inventor In Two of His Journeys, In One of Which He Soars to Height of 150 Feet

College Park, Md., Oct. 9.—For the first time in American history, an aeroplane owned by the United States government rose in the air here, circled over the farms that nestle in the valley and sailed back obediently to its starting point to rise again. Thus, under the guiding hand of one of its inventors, Wilbur Wright, it flew five times in the dedication of the government's tract of land to aviation.

With almost ideal conditions Wright begun the flights to teach the officers of the signal corps how to handle the new machine of war he has made for them. It was the first time he had ever driven "Miss Columbia." Several times, however, he had witnessed his brother Orville send her on the way at Fort Myer before the government acceptance.

Off the starting rail at 3:35 o'clock, he circled the field for three minutes. To the spectators it appeared that he was making an ideal flight, for the machine skimmed along twenty-five feet above the ground.

Again at 4:09 o'clock Wright was off for another flight. This time he was in the air five minutes. At 4:51 o'clock he soared away to return after five minutes. Each time he had kept to the reservation grounds. Then Lieutenant Lahm took his place in the extra seat. Twice before he had ridden with Orville Wright.

At 5:15 o'clock the inventor and the soldier went flying off in the air. Up they rose to the highest altitude attained during the afternoon, probably to a height of 150 feet. Instead of limiting their course to circles over the government reservation they went a mile and a half toward Washington in hardly more than as many minutes. As they sailed over the last remaining acres owned by the Calvert family, they could have dropped a bomb in the old mansion that Lord Baltimore built more than two centuries ago. Practically under their machine's shadow the British trod nearly a hundred years ago as they marched from Washington to Baltimore during the War of 1812. In a few seconds more than five minutes after they had left the aviators landed within twenty feet of the starting rail.

All afternoon Lieutenant Humphreys had been starting the propellers. At last Wright beckoned to him to take his place for his first ride in an aeroplane. The next minute the two were off. Five more and they had finished their circles of the field and were bringing the machine to a halt alongside the starting rail.

"It's much more pleasant than automobiling," remarked Humphreys. "We had a splendid view of the country."

As each flight ended the spectators who had witnessed Orville Wright use this machine commented upon the superior way in which Wilbur was gliding to a stop. When the latter was approached on the subject he said:

"There never was a field in the world harder to fly on than that at Fort Myer. There you had to be turning your machine all the time you were coming down. Here you can glide in a straight line just as far as you like. When I get accustomed to the machine I may do better. It bobs some with me yet."

Flights probably will be made today and on days following until the officers are familiar with the new art.

Flight Under Adverse Conditions

St. Louis, Oct. 9.—Glenn H. Curtiss, by a flight in his bi-plane in Forest park, received the applause of many thousand persons who had waited for hours for the wind to slacken. George F. Ozmont and Hugh A. Robinson attempted to make their machines fly, but failed. Curtiss, with a fifteen mile wind blowing, rose thirty feet from the ground and flew the length of the aero field. He covered a quarter of a mile and was aloft 45 seconds.

Curtailment In Cotton Mills

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 9.—That the present disparity between the price of cotton and cotton goods precludes the possibility of the successful operation of southern mills is the unanimous opinion of the board of governors of the American Cotton Manufacturers' association, in session here. A committee of five will formulate a curtailment agreement.

Bright Business Prospects

New York, Oct. 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that from every large business center throughout the country come reports of progressive improvement in trade. In most instances the reports are more than satisfactory. In some cases the volume of trade is described as equal to, or in excess of previous records.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

The Hub's Music Season is One Swelling Harmony—"Christo et Ecclesiae" the Watchward during President Lowell's Inauguration—Greater Boston Needs a Zoological Park — A Railroad President Who is Afraid of Bats—City Employees Want Cooperative Old Age Pensions.

The Hub has been seeing lurid light Between the mysterious burning of Governor Draper's beautiful home on Beacon street, the throwing of bombs in the North End, and the wind-up of the Italian celebration in honor of St. Michael—when the illumination and bombardment on the Common aroused consternation among residents for miles around—peaceful citizens are wondering if they are living in sober Massachusetts or if they have been transported to Moroccan scenes. Troubles galore, and Mrs. Pankhurst is coming.

"Christo et Ecclesiae." The inauguration of President Lowell at Harvard brought together more representatives of the educational institution of this country and foreign countries than anybody ever saw in a bunch before. For two days Cambridge witnessed gay festivities and solemn ceremonies, chief among which were, of course, the inaugural exercises, and the singing of the hymn which was sung forty years ago when Charles W. Eliot was inaugurated. The undergraduates made things lively with an evening parade in the stadium, while luncheons, teas and a concert by the Boston Symphony orchestra, filled every available moment. Harvard owned the town, even as after a football victory.

A considerable sprinkling of women was interspersed in the audience that filled room 240 at the State house on Thursday evening last when the commission on old age pensions listened to arguments favorable to a cooperative pension system for the benefit of state, city and town employees. Many of these women, like most of the men, looked as if they might be veterans of the service. They applauded after one of the speakers had told about the mistaken impression many people have regarding the folks who while in the public payroll do humble work at laborers' wages—men digging in the streets and sewers, women scrubbing floors in public buildings, serving in penal or charitable institutions or performing other necessary labor. Often times it is claimed that these people, working for the state or city, are already well paid, and do not need old age pensions, but some of the figures cited at the hearing prove that in these days of extremely high prices for all the necessities of life the man who supports a family on from $1.85 to $2.25 a day, with employment averaging not more than nine months in the year can hardly be said to be rolling in wealth. Nor yet is the scrub woman at city hall on a lower wage, with perhaps a drunken husband and certainly a few children awaiting her home coming. Much of the testimony as to the sufferings of folks on low wages was excluded at the hearing as irrelevant to the question of old age pensions, but in a large sense it seemed to be very pertinent to the case, and to reveal the seriousness of a situation when faithful servants of the people have in their old age no alternative, but must go to the poor house. Fortunately relief for this special class of wage earners may be at hand if the legislature, as is hoped, passes a bill similar to the one which authorizes the Boston and Maine railroad to cooperate with its employees in establishing a pension fund, the men and the road each contributing in equal parts.

Boston wants a zoo. And a zoo, be it understood, that shall be a credit to the city and an education to its inhabitants. Not one of your pent up charnel houses where the wild creatures suffer, but a beautiful, naturalistic zoological park. The Massachusetts Zoological Society had obtained a number of pledges of money to this end before the panic of 1907, when it was deemed inadvisable to call in the contributions. With better times a renewed interest in the zoo proposition has arisen. The Hub has been sadly lacking in this respect, and the demand for a representative collection of animals and birds is shown in the pleasure with which people crowd around the little collection of birds, a bear, a few squirrels and one or two other native animals, which have been brought together in the Middlesex Fells. The collection at Norumbega park, in Auburndale, also attracts curious throngs, who gather about the cages in the small enclosure, or loiter in canoes along the banks of the Charles, attracted by the medley of noises, to watch the feeding of the animals. The zoological park of the future will undoubtedly be located in the great tract of unbroken wilderness in the Fells, where deer, bear, and other denizens of the forest may roam at ease and under native conditions, and where the public may enjoy them at will since the opening of the new trolley line has made the Fells so accessible. The zoo once started will probably make itself to a large extent, as when the president of a large railway company collected a few birds at his home in the Bershires, and soon found himself overwhelmed with rare and native birds of every variety, gifts of friends who heard he was making a collection. This official now has so many birds that he is afraid of having bats added to his collection. In the same way Boston's gathering of strange animals will grow by accretion once it is started.

New England's greatest music season, one grand symphonic song as many an enthusiastic young person regards it, is now beginning. The air is filled with forecasts of the brilliant opening of grand opera a few weeks hence. The leader of the Symphony Orchestra, just returned from Europe, announces the forthcoming performance of new works by composers little known in this country. The hundred and one musical organizations of the city are starting their year's works. The town is alive as never before with music students, brought together from every part of the world. Drop in any fine morning at the New England Conservatory of Music, where registration is in continuous progress for several weeks and you realize what an impetus has been given to music study in the Hub by the big developments now on foot. Last year the conservatory in Boston, the oldest institution of its kind in the United States and larger and better equipped than any in Europe, drew 2,666 students from 49 states and territories and 11 foreign countries. A large proportion of these came, of course, from nearby places, since New England people long ago discovered the futility of going to New York, or abroad for professional study of music when the facilities at home were unexcelled. From Massachusetts there were 1,994 students; Maine 53; New Hampshire 39; Connecticut 21 and Vermont 18. The large number from west of the Rocky Mountains proves the attraction which Boston as a musical centre must have throughout the country. The Conservatory in 1908-9 drew from California 17 students; Nevada 4; Mexico 3; Oregon 6; Utah 14; Washington 6. It is of course not only the class room instruction which such young people get in Boston, but the opportunities unsurpassed in any city for hearing the best in classical and modern music. This appreciation of the Hub's advantages, which is so widespread throughout the country, has been greatly increased in this section of late. A few years ago one noted in Boston a disposition to think that the New England capital could never become a great music centre in the sense that Paris or Berlin is. Now you will hear those who are willing to do a little shouting for their own town say that within the next generation Boston is going to lead the world in music.

BARRIE'S DIVORCE SUIT

Friends Say He Will Wed Actress Chase If Decree Is Granted

London, Oct. 9.—"If James M. Barrie, the author and playwright, wins the divorce suit he has begun in the high court of justice he will marry Miss Pauline Chase, the American actress, for whom he has always shown undisguised admiration," Barrie's friends are telling each other.

But even such gossip has not ventured to insinuate that Barrie instituted the suit to rid himself of his wife in order that he might take another.

While Barrie and his wife have seemed to live congenially, they differ greatly in temperament. They have no children; indeed, Miss Chase has been so close a friend of both and their guest so often that she has come to be known as their adopted daughter.

Miss Chase won much admiration here as "the girl in the pink pajamas," as a chorus girl in "The Liberty Bell."

TOTAL COST $375,000,000

Canal Commission Wants $48,063,524 For Next Year's Work

Washington, Oct. 9.—The Panama canal commission has submitted to the secretary of war an estimate of appropriations aggregating $48,063,524 for work on the canal during the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1910.

The total appropriations made by congress up to this time on account of the canal are $210,070,468. Chairman Goethals of the commission has declared that in his opinion the great waterway will be completed by Jan. 1, 1915, and has estimated the total cost at $375,000,000.

The unusually large amount asked for the new fiscal year probably is due to the fact that work on the waterway has entered a more advanced stage.

ENGINE CRASHES INTO WORK TRAIN

Lives of Seventeen Men Are Crushed Out In Kansas

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 9.—Seventeen men were killed and ten severely injured in a collision between a freight and a construction train. The work train was backing into Topeka with fifty Mexicans riding on four flat cars. As the train was rounding a curve the freight dashed into it.

Engineer Ash and Fireman Corey on the freight train jumped as soon as the airbrakes could be set. The engine of the freight ran over the flat cars and almost a score of men were pinned down. It was several hours before they were extricated.

It is said the wreck was caused by the crew of the work train disregarding orders.

BROCKTON'S GREAT SHOW

Winning of Marathon Run by a Novice One of the Surprising Events

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 9.—A Marathon race from Boston to Brockton, a firemen's muster which brought together fifty-three handtubs, some closely contested harness races, and a display of high steppers, hunters and jumpers, from many of the finest stock farms of the east were features of the closing day of the Brockton fair.

The Marathon event was won by William J. Hackett of North Weymouth, a novice, whose defeat of the old timers entered in the bunch of over fifty starters was a surprise. Hackett's time was 2h., 37m., 26 1-5s.

Hancock of Brockton carried off the honors in the handtub playout, throwing a stream 232 feet, 4¼ inches.

LACK OF A LEADER

All That Prevents Serious Race War In a Texas Mill Town

Tomball, Tex., Oct. 9.—Owing to attempts by white mill operatives here to frighten away the local negro operatives, a race war is threatened. Only the lack of a leader has prevented trouble thus far.

Since the recent drought work in the fields has been lacking and the whites, turning to the mills, have hought to scare away the negro operatives by posting threatening notices.

Reserve officers are being held at Houston.

THE BIGGER LEDGER.

Work begins Monday morning laying the foundations for the big new duplex press which is on its may from Battle Creek, Michigan. The press is to be placed in the basement on cement foundations and will be run by electricity, printing 5000 to 6000 eight page papers an hour. We hope to be ready early in November to give our readers one of the best home daily papers in New England. There will be special features different days in the week on a larger scale than we have heretofore been able to do owing to lack of room and modern facilities. Wednesday will be Women's club day; Thursday High and Woodward school notes; Friday Lodges and Fraternal societies and Saturday Churches, social. Theatres and special miscellaneous articles of interest.

In the meantime we must ask our advertisers, those on a yearly contract and those just starting advertising on the yearly basis, to be lenient in the use of space until the eight page paper is started. We are trying to accommodate all with space but it takes planning and often means crowding out much good reading matter which an editor dislikes to do.

A newsy home paper devoted to Quincy interests is the watchword. The Ledger has always been a clean readable paper and will continue to be.

Philippine trade has gone up 100 per cent under the new tariff law.

London, England, is really quite a good-sized town, the published figures for 1908-9 putting the present population at 7,537,196.

Free text books have been among the requirements of the public school system but down in New Jersey they the going one better and are considering the advisability of furnishing tooth brushes.

All through the land there is great demand for books on arctic travels and explorations. Our public library was quick to note the demand and last week arranged shelves of books on these subjects, convenient of access to patrons of the library.

The railroad commissioners have asked the L road to try free tranfers from Park street to the South station, Boston, to better accommodate the traveling public. It has heretofore been a circuitous route with changes and much time wasted en route.

Auburndale Village Improvement society at its annual meeting requested its president to request the city to inforce its ordinance against throwing paper and other rubbish in the street. A good idea for any community.

The pretty actress who allowed her burro to graze on Boston Common the other day was evidently within her rights as the sign reads "given to the people of Boston as a public pasture." She said that was what she was using it for and the burro liked it.

Mars is receiving considerable attention just now and its exploration bids fair to rival the interest of the polar discoveries. Canals are the subject under discussion by scientists of this and other countries. In years to come a trip will be made in airships and then both the pole and Mars will lose interest and we will be crying for the moon.

A North Carolina judge believes in good old fashion methods evidently for at Durham recently a sentence was imposed of one whipping and attendance at Sunday school for six months. The boy's parents had to agree in writing to do the whipping and see that the boy goes to Sunday school. Better than the Juvenile courts perhaps.

Another important indication of the growth of the savings bank life insurance movement in the eastern part of the state appears in announcement that the B. F. Sturtevant Company, of Boston and Hyde Park, of which Hon. E. N. Foss, Democratic candidate for the lieutenant governorship is treasurer, has decided to become a savings insurance agency. This concern, one of the largest manufacturers of blowers, employs about 1400 men of the same high wage and intelligent class that in a number of other big industrial establishments have taken advantage of the opportunity to secure the most inexpensive wage earners' insurance ever offered anywhere. A large percentage of the employees of the Fore River Ship Building Company, Quincy, and the United Shoe Machinery Company, Beverly, have already taken out savings insurance policies and it is expected that equal success will follow the work at Hyde Park.

TAFT'S SHIPPING POLICY.

Whatever may be the final attitude of the present national administration as regards the best means of promoting conservation of resources on land, the Taft policy toward the American merchant marine is liberal, vigorous and popular. The West is delighted with the Seattle speech; and the East may well be encouraged, too.

After stating the well-known facts covering the deplorable decay of our merchant marine, the President went on to say that there "is no subject to which Congress can better devote its attention in the coming session than the passage of a bill which shall encourage our merchant marine in such a way as to establish American lines directly between New York and other Eastern ports and South American ports and between our Pacific ports and the Orient and the Philippines."

Consul General Anderson reports from Rio Janeiro that the number of foreign subsidized ships entering and clearing from that port has doubled in the last three years. Great Britain, Germany, France and Italy are thus enjoying commercial advantages that could to a great extent be tages that could to a great exten be enjoyed by the United States. Better transportation facilities between our Eastern ports and South American ports would soon effect a change in favor of American shipping.—Boston Journal.

OUR HOSPITAL

Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

WOMEN'S EXCHANGE.

The Household Economics committee of the Quincy Women's club has a sub-committee to take charge of a women's exchange which will hold sales on the days of the regular club meetings at the clubhouse. Cold meats, cake, bread, salad dressing, jellies, pickles, pastry, confectionery and household articles will be on sale. Non-members as well as members are invited to contribute to these sales. Mrs. Mary L. Wade is chairman of the Economics committee and Mrs. John T. Conway of the Exchange committee.

The following ladies are on the committee: Mrs. J. H. Anderson, 111 Atlantic street, Mrs. C. E. Cherrington, 21 Clive street and Miss M. L. Hinkley, 109 Billings street, Atlantic; Mrs. G. B. Bates, 33 Dimmock street, Mrs. A. S. Greer, 50 Upland road, Mrs. J. Christiansen, 57 Irving place, Miss M. C. Hatch, 35 Irving place, Mrs. A. W. Ryder, 1550 Hancock street, Mrs. Howard Spear, 112 Granite street, Miss Norma C. Lowe, 246 Washington street, Mrs. Stephen Bone, 103 Putnam street, Mrs. F. F. Brewer 257 Granite street and Mrs. C. Wilson, 257 Granite street, Quincy; Mrs. E. J. Badger, 9 Park street, West Quincy; Mrs. S. Chapman, 21 Willow street, Mrs. H. G. Fay, 52 Marlborough street and Mrs. E. R. Wade, 112 Elm avenue, Wollaston; Mrs. J. T. Conway, 639 Washington street, Braintree.

—This is the season when the speculators are putting out their lure and it behooves the man, or woman either, who has a little money saved not to listen too credulously to their stories. Several circulars and announcements promising dividends of from six to fifty per cent. have been received at this office and probably by thousands of others within the past two weeks. If no one responded to these glittering invitations the business of humbuging the people in this manner would cease. But there are a sufficient number who believe all that is said to make it profitable for the wily promotors to continue to send out their advertising. People who read the papers ought to be wise; those who do not can blame no one but themselves if they lose their hard earned savings.—Milford Cabinet.

No stimulation. No alcohol habit. Ask your doctor about Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a tonic for the young. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a strong tonic, entirely free from alcohol.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS

Castle Square Theatre.

So great has been the popularity of "The Circus Girl" upon its revival at the Castle Square that Mr. Craig will continue if for another week. Last winter this musical comedy proved itself the triumphant success of the season, and there is every sign that its reward will be no less in the way of continuous appreciation and crowded houses. Every moment of "The Circus Girl" sparkles with fun, and it is one incessant cause for laughter during the entire three hours of its performance. It should be noted that matinee as well as evening performances, are given daily, and intending patrons will be wise if they secure their seats in advance. The rush for seats for the second week is already tremendous. The John Craig Stock Company in its entirety, with a chorus of forty singers, contributes no small share to the success of "The Chorus Girl." Mary Young is its central figure as Lucile, the slack-wire walker, and as for Mr. Meek, Mr. Friebus, Mr. Hassell, Miss Binley, Miss Colcord, Miss Ryan, Bert Young, Wilfred Young and Mr. Craig, they are as good in musical comedy as they are in drama, and that is saying a good deal. The stage settings and costumes are bright and new and the orchestra under the direction of Joseph Marr does its full share in giving completeness to the production.

Boston Theatre.

At the Boston theatre "Three Twins" Jos. M. Gaites musical comedy is playing to big audiences and is in every particular justifying the very laudatory advance comments that were made concerning it. The praiseworthy quality of this merry musical entertainment makes it worth while, which is more than can be said of many of the musical shows of the day. It does not fall into the rut of conventional horseplay, nor depend upon sensational vulgarism for the winning of popularity. Genuinely diverting in story and humor, with songs that have real catchiness and specialties that are novelties "Three Twins" is a success and what is more, deserves to be. There is a charming beauty chorus which aids in the interpretation of the numerous songs, especially the clever "Cuddle Up a Little Closer Lovey Mine" and "The Yama Yama Man" which are heard everywhere. Bessie McCoy is making one of the hits of her career and Clifton Crawford is adding to the fame he has already gained as an entertainer of merit. The electrical effects and the staging of "Three Twins" are brilliant in the extreme, as is demonstrated by the applause that greets each new surprise, of which the production has many.

Keith's Theatre.

That Annette Kellermann still continues to be vaudeville's biggest attraction is shown by the wonderful interest manifested in her at Keith's during the week. Miss Kellermann's diving has a fascination about it that is hard to explain. When she comes out of the water it is easy to understand how Professor Sargent of Harvard came to pronounce her the "perfect woman." Another remarkable feature about her act is that everything is in such good taste, from the time she appears in a natty costume to give an exhibition of diabolo until she has finished with her "Australian splash." In remaining for a second week Miss Kellermann heads a splendid all-round vaudeville bill, on which there will be another bright particular star in the person of Louise Dresser, who has forsaken musical comedy and entered vaudeville with what is considered one of the brightest singing and musical acts that has been given in years. The Three Keatons are one of the strongest comedy teams now before the public introducing the famous "Buster" who keeps the merriment going from start to finish. A beautiful act is that of Mlle. Chester and her wonderful dog who does posing that seems almost wonderful. The other features of the bill will be the Quigley Brothers, Irish comedians; Carbrey Brothers in a singing and dancing act and Zeno, Jordan and Zeno in acrobatics.

American Music Hall.

Mimics and imitators may come and go but it has been truthfully said of Cecilia Loftus known throughout the world as "Cissy" will go on forever. That is why so much interest is being manifested in the exclusive engagement of Miss Loftus at the American Music hall next week. To Cissy Loftus belongs the credit of placing the art of mimicry on the exceedingly high plane on which it rests today. Since her first big success it was inevitable that others would follow in her footsteps, the result being that we have had almost as many mimics as we have had original players. But Miss Loftus is more than a mimic, more than an imitator. She has demonstrated her capabilities as an actress and it is this dramaitc ability which gives the life-like touches to her imitations of stage celebrities. During her engagement next week she will give impersonations and suggestions of Harry Lauder the great Scotch comedian Sarah Bernhardt, Yvette Gilbert, Carrie DeMarr and others. The discovery of the identity of the Divine Myrma as none other than Ethel McDonough, the pretty Boston girl and one time popular drummer of Boston Fadettes, and the great interest aroused by this fact leaking out has induced William Morris, Inc. to hold this sensational act over for another week. While the Divine Myrma's diving and swimming are unexcelled, it must be confessed that the greater part of the interest centers in the daring costume which she wears.

Park Theatre.

Now that "A Gentleman From Mississippi" is a "hit" at the Park theatre, its two stars have resumed athletic training, Douglas Fairbanks, expert boxer, high jumper, and all around athlete had neglect all this for the past few days but yesterday he pounced in and began the old stunts with hilarious enthusiasm. Every instructor in the Armory A. A. thought he could break the combination of Jiujitsu and Graecio Roman which Fairbanks applies to the drunken youth in the first act of the comedy. Each found himself as helpless as an infant in the grasp of Frank Gotch. Big "Tom" Wise is going in vigorously for reduction of flesh. He does his training in a large easy chair behind a fat and fragrant "Perfecto." Charles D. Wilson, well known throughout New England, from his associations with Lew Dockstader for the past twelve years, arrived in Boston, his home city, last week, and is now located at the Park theatre, looking after the interests of "A Gentleman from Mississippi."

Hollis Street Theatre.

William Collier opened his Boston engagement Monday evening at the Hollis Street theatre in "The Patriot," the three-act farce in which he kept New York audiences laughing all of last season. The Boston critics were unanimous in their praise of Manager Charles Frohman's brilliant star and the clever players in his supporting company and agreed that Mr. Collier and "The Patriot" were the most successful laugh-raisers of many seasons. This is the pith of the unstinted praise showered upon both star and play on one of the cleverest writers of the Boston press: "Mr. Collier's deliciously dry brand of humor has rarely been more happily exploited than in the present offering. He plays the character of the Englishman who gave his heart to America, in the true spirit of farce, but with delicacy and refinement that is wholly captivating. There is never a suggestion of coarse buffoonery, even in the moments of hilarious burlesque. It is a performance to be remembered with satisfaction and delight."—Globe.

QUINCY DAY NURSERY ASSO.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Day Nursery association was held on Tuesday afternoon at the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club, and the following officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Mrs. Dexter E. Wadsworth; Vice Presidents Mrs. Arthur Sibley, Mrs. Thomas Addison, Mrs. Roderick McLennan, Miss Kate Shea, Mrs. Arthur Mitchell; Secretary, Mrs. Frank A. Page; Treasurer, Mrs. Redfield H. Allen; Auditor, Mr. R. H. Allen; Directors, Mrs. W. E. Blanchard, Mrs. H. M. Faxon, Mrs. George McFarlane, Mrs. A. H. Gilson, Mrs. Theo. King, Mrs. R. L. Hultman, Mrs. F. E. Jones, Mrs. C. F. Wrisley, Mrs. J. M. Sheahan, Mrs. E. E. Jameson, Mrs. C. M. Bryant, Mrs. W. E. Simmons, Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. M. McL. Ferguson, Mrs. Frank Burgess, Mrs. B. D. Corliss, Mrs. C. R. Safford.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

This annual meeting brings to a close the sixth year of the Quincy Day Nursery Association. Through the courtesy of the Women's club all the regular monthly meetings have been held in the pleasant club house, with an average attendance of thirteen. Two special meetings have been held at the house of our president Mrs. Sibley. In the way of money-raising this has been a less active year than last so that the end of the year finds us with a nearly empty treasury.

In February two "Valentine" dancing parties were given, a very successful afternoon children's party under the direction of Mrs. C. M. Bryant and a brilliant evening assembly under the management of Mrs. E. E. Jameson. In May two enjoyable afternoon card parties were given in the club house with our loyal president as chairman.

Our new nursery has proved in every way satisfactory. Standing alone on a hill, the sun and air have free access. The large yard fenced in at the back for protection gives a splendid playground for the children. There a large lawn swing, the generous gift of the Unity Circle of King's Daughters and a sand-box protected by an awning afford endless amusement to the children.

In January, Mrs. Jones, who had faithfully served the nursery as matron for fifteen months resigned. The management was fortunate in finding one well fitted for the position to fill the vacancy. Mrs. Loring, the new matron, at once assumed the duties and entered upon them with enthusiasm energy and ability. The cleanliness and order and withal its home-like air are a delight to all who visit the nursery, while the happy healthy children give the best proof of the good care they receive.

The attendance of children shows an increase over last year, a total of 2,507 against 2,019 in 1907-08, an increase of 488.

As in former years a Christmas festival was held at the nursery for the children and their mothers. The afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Sibley many friends helping to make it a success. The Sunday schools of the Baptist and Unitarian churches of Wollaston furnished the toys and a group of girls from the Wollaston Unitarian Sunday school helped in the entertainment.

During the year many friends and societies have substantially remembered the nursery and the association thanks them all most heartily. Mr. Patch has again supplied ice and Mrs. Sheppard has given coal. Unity Circle of Bethany church has in addition to the swing given $25 and Mr. Joseph L. Whiton and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Morton have given like amounts. The St. Margaret's Guild of Christ church, the Junior Auxiliary of the same church ,the Earnest Workers Lend-a-hand club of Wollaston, the Makaria Fraternity and the Directors of the Association have been among the other contributors of money, food, clothing and house-furnishings.

The Day Nursery certainly could not live without its friends and it looks confidently for their continued support as it proves its usefulness.—Alice L. Page.

HASKETT WINS.

Fore River Apprentice Boy Captures Brockton Fair Marathon.

William J. Hackett of North Weymouth representing the Fore River Apprentices was the successful winner Friday of the 25-mile Marathon race held under the auspices of the Brockton fair coming the distance in 2 minutes, 37 minutes, 26 1-5 seconds.

His victory was a pronounced one and the only wonder expressed after it was over ,says the Globe is "how such an inexperienced runner as the 19 year old North Weymouth lad could hold such a fleet field, continue his even running ,even when passed by veterans, and then assert such wonderful judgment and steadiness during the last few miles of the course, when older and more seasoned competitors were falling by the wayside."

Hackett who is 19 years old began running last spring registering in the N. E. A. A. A. U. last March. Since then he has competed in more than a dozen races, but yesterday's was his first attempt at anything approaching the marathon distance. His first competition was in the North Dorchester A. A. 10-mile cross-country run in April, but he was unplaced. He then won a 15-mile race at the games of the Fore River engine company's apprentices ,he being employed by that concern.

That race he has competed in 12 races, among them being a 15-mile run at Newburyport, on May 30, in which he finished second; 10-mile run at Peabody, in which he also won second ,and a three-mile race at Quincy on July 4, which he won. He was second in a 10-mile race at the Lynn driving club in August, and captured the 10-mile run at the games of the South End A. C. at Downer's Landing on Aug. 15.

WELL ATTENDED.

Seventy-five Couples Attend Dance of Quincy L. O. L. Lodge.

The Quincy L. O. L. lodge held its first annual dance in Electa hall last evening.

More than seventy-five couples were on the floor, and everybody declared the dance a success.

Among the invited guests were Daniel F. Tinney master of the Bay-View lodge and William Corbett of Brookline lodge.

Refreshments were served at 10.30 o'clock.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. David Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Beaton, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Frisk, David MacLeod, Mr. and Mrs. William Littlewood, Mr. and Mrs. Alex White, Mr. and Mrs. John McClay, Mr. and Mrs. John Gregory, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Wynot, Miss Evelyn and Mary Stewart, Miss Mary McClay, Mrs. Thomas, Ross, Miss A. Ross, Mis Jennie Ellis and Miss Carrie and Mittie Rundall, William Walsh, Arthur Walsh, Arthur Austin and Samuel Gates.

The committee are as follows: Mrs. Peter Carlson, chairman, Richard Rundall, master, Oscar Swanson, Thomas Ross, Martin O'Connell, Gust Tomebrg, and Dr. J. H. Anderson.

PHILATHEA CLASS.

The Philathea class of Bethany Congregational church will hold its first meeting for the winter in the parlor of the church, Thursday, October 15th at eight o'clock. Mrs. Bonney state secretary will address the class taking for her subject "Committee Work." There will be special music and Mrs. E. N. Hardy will have charge of the devotional exercises.

—There was a time when it was feared that the Palisades of the Hudson would be destroyed, the stone being blasted away for building and road making purposes. But that fear has been allayed, and the woodland and the romantic cliffs, unsurpassed in grandeur by anything east of the Alleghanies, are to be preserved forever as a public park. For 14 miles these cliffs extend up the Hudson and while it is cause for regret that they could not have been preserved in their original shape, the ravages of the quarrymen do not entirely destroy the beauty of the Palisades. Congress was indifferent to the matter, but private wealth was brought to bear on the situation and later the two States, within which the Palisades park is located, became interested and the work of preservation was accomplished. It is the greatest of joint State parks and will always remain as a monument of generosity and patriotism, a place in which the people will delight in all coming generations.—Lynn Item.

GILE—BURT NUPTIALS.

A pretty home wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride No. 236 Wethersfield avenue, Hartford, Tuesday, at 3 o'clock when Miss Marion Lucy Burt was united in marriage to Dr. Frank Herbert Gile of Braintree. The house decorations were beautiful and effective, roses and chrysanthemums lending color to the banks of ferns and palms.

The bridal party entered the parlors to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march. First came two little boys, nephew and brother of the bride, bearing a basket of flowers and holding the ribbons. The ribbons were held in place by eight intimate friends of the bride. Then followed the maid of honor, the sister of the bride, Miss Alice Morgan Burt, with the best man Dr. A. Roach of Lowell, Mass.

The bride wore a white lingerie gown with veil and carried a bouquet of Bride roses. The Rev. Rodney W. Roundy performed the ceremony. A reception followed. The presents were numerous and beautiful.

PHILERGIANS, BRAINTREE.

The opening meeting of the season of 1909-1910 of the Philergians was held in Cochato hall on Tuesday afternoon. The president, Mrs. Susan J. Avery, in the chair. A good attendance of club members and guests attested to the interest in the club, and a desire to take advantage of the fine program provided by our president and board of directors for the winter's entertainment.

After the business of the afternoon, Dr. Leon H. Vincent was introduced, speaking of "Carlyle and his wife."

A social hour and tea followed. The year book of the Philergians have been enlarged and beautified in many ways. A seal, designed by Mrs. Ella Sheppard Gallagher and adopted by the club decorates the cover, making a calendar very attractive and artistic. An explanation of the symbolic meaning of the seal, for the benefit of club members and others is given by Mrs. Gallagher:

"In designing our seal I sought to make it symbolic of our club ideals. The landscape, a bit of Braintree scenery—craggy Chickatawbut and other of the Blue Hills with the reservoir—may be considered as a symbol of the location of the Philergians in Braintree. If one cares to play with the imagination, the hills become symbolic of aspiration—"I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills from whence cometh my help." They are also the emblem of steadfastness and earnestness of purpose—"The everlasting hills." The water may typify philanthropy, growth, life—"He that watereth shall be watered also himself"—"And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." The trees, guardians of our water supply stand for prosperity—"What a thought that was when God thought of a tree!" The scroll is the symbol of learning and literature, and perchance the seal itself may be allowed to typify art. A light is always the symbol of truth and wisdom. Flaming from a torch it becomes aggressive and symbolizes progress, a searchlight radiating opportunity. The lettering on the scroll is ton proso—Forward."

The Women's Exchange table was filled with articles attractive and useful.

Monday evening, Oct. 11, the first entertainment will be given by the Art and Literature Committee of the Philergians at the home of Harold M. Gage. A paper on "Constellations."

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

STATE POLITICS

Vahey on Brink of Defeat For Democratic Nomination

FOSS AS FOE OF LABOR MEN

Kneeland as Union Man Threatened to Oppose Foss, but Was Influenced to Remain Silent—Hard Fight Is on to Elect State Ticket

The result of the Democratic state convention was a good deal of a surprise to the rank and file of the Democracy. It was also, in some respects, a surprise to the Republicans. The nomination of James H. Vahey of Watertown as the gubernatorial candidate was entirely expected. It had been foreshadowed for a number of weeks that he would be the nominee of the party.

There was, however, great astonishment when the votes were counted and it was found that Mayor John T. Coughlin of Fall River had secured so many delegates. It gave the following of Mr. Vahey the surprise of their lives and indicated clearly that if Mr. Coughlin had made a thorough and systematic canvass he might easily have secured the nomination.

One of the startling incidents of the convention occurred while Mr. Vahey was speaking. He declared that at some time he would like to nominate Charles Sumner Hamlin of Mattapoisett for governor. That raised a great outcry: "Do it now, do it now, do it now," from all parts of the hall. The black hair of Mr. Vahey nearly became white with terror at this symptom of defection from his standard. Had there been someone there to lead the convention at that moment and try to stampede it for Mr. Hamlin he would have had no difficulty whatever in doing it. It was a perfectly clear intimation to Mr. Vahey that the convention was not glued to his personality in any way whatsoever.

The most astounding thing in connection with the whole convention, however, was the nomination for lieutenant governor of Eugene N. Foss of Boston. Mr. Foss is a large employer of labor in the Sturtevant Blower Works at Jamaica Plain and he does not recognize the labor union. The labor union leaders have for a long time had their knives out for Mr. Foss. It may have been this which defeated him for congress when he was the Republican candidate in the Eleventh district some years ago. At any rate John A. Sullivan ran nearly three thousand votes ahead of him in that canvass and was elected.

When the labor men heard that Foss was going to get the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor they were wild with rage. One of their leaders, former Alderman Fred J. Kneeland of Boston, was a delegate to the Democratic state convention. He announced that he would oppose the nomination of Foss on the floor of the convention in the name of organized labor, and in this he was backed up by the rank and file of the movement in the Hub.

However, he did not do it. The men who had prepared to denounce Governor Draper, because he vetoed a measure to amend the eight hour bill, got at work immediately and squelched Kneeland. It was a hard task. However, at last the persuasions of some of the Democratic leaders in Boston and especially, as it is claimed, the influence of Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, were sufficient to overbear Mr. Kneeland and to silence him on the floor of the convention hall. When the name of Mr. Foss was presented there was not a "yip" from any of the labor men who were delegates there.

The Boston Herald, an independent newspaper with Democratic leanings, had a cartoon the day following the convention showing the Democratic donkey holding a large money sack under a Foss barrel, the bung-hole of which was spouting paper currency into the Democratic receptacle. The flood of wealth was labelled "Foss Nomination" and the grin which overspread the face of the Democratic donkey was of the kind that won't come off.

It was, perhaps, this cartoon which caused Chairman McLeod of the Democratic state committee to issue a statement solemnly asseverating that the nomination was not made in consideration of any contributions which Mr. Foss would give to the Democratic campaign fund, and declaring that he was named simply because the party wanted someone like him on the ticket for its moral effect on the campaign. Does not that sound really too good to be true?

Be that as it may, Republicans are laboring under no delusions in regard to the purpose of the Democracy in placing Mr. Foss on the ticket. Whenever Mr. Foss has been a candidate he has been an energetic one and dispensed large sums of money to accomplish his purpose, whether a nomination or an election.

It will be up to the Republicans to make a good, hard fight in any event. If Mr. Foss is the angel who is to finance the Democratic campaign it will not do for the Republican party to go to sleep. This is an off year and the chief danger lies in that fact. The real work consists in getting the voters aroused and bringing them to the polls. So good a man as Governor John L. Bates was defeated in the presidential year of 1904 by the over-confidence of the Republican party. That instance ought not to find a repetition this year in the case of Governor Draper.

The Democrats intend to get immediately to work. They propose to make a sharp speaking campaign which shall cover the commonwealth and to arouse the voters of their party as has not been done since the famous Gaston year of 1903. The whole question on the Republican side is to get their voters to the polls. If they can do this the victory is easily assured. But with the labor union strength opposing Mr. Draper, no chances of defeat should be taken and the Republican organization should do everything in its power to make the election of Mr. Draper and Mr. Frothingham both, not only certain, but by a big majority.

There are some who believe Mr. Foss has been promised by the Democratic machine the nomination of that party next fall in one of the congressional districts in Boston. There are only two where such a trade could be made; namely, the tenth and eleventh. In the tenth Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell is now the representative and he would undoubtedly fight for a renomination. In the eleventh Andrew J. Peters is the present congressman and no doubt he would be willing to serve another term. There are still others who believe Mr. Foss intends next year to elbow Mr. Vahey aside and take the nomination for governor in case his run this year is satisfactory.

AN EXCURSION IN JAPAN.

Editor Daily Ledger:

In Japan proper, Mt. Fuji is the highest mountain, though Mt. Morrison, or Niitaka Yama to give it the Japanese name ,in Formosa, is a few hundred feet higher. But before the cession of Formosa by China to Japan Mt. Fuji (Foojee) was the highest as it remains the most beautiful and famous mountain in Japan. But although the highest it is one of the most easily ascended high mountains in the world, as the ascent can be done easily in one day by a good climber. But most persons prefer to take it a little more leisurely and spend the night, or a portion of it, either at the summit or at a rest-house enroute.

B. and I ordered the horses early and were off before sunrise. Besides the two horses and their grooms we had two licensed Fuji guides to carry the food and extra clothing. Each man carries 25 pounds, goes as fast as the climber ordinarily and pays his own living expenses for the two days all for the princely remuneration of $1.25 for the trip. And that is a special price for the foreigner, who is always expected to pay more than the Japanese. The horses take passengers up to the "two and two-tenths" station or rest-house and the trip occupies about five hours.

The road at first crosses the gently rising plain at Fuji's base. The town of Gotemba, usually a tiny village but one big bustling hostelry during the two months July and August when the ascent of Fuji is made, is soon passed and we come out upon the cultivated land which lies between the town and the woods nearer Fuji's base. The chief crops are rice always when a sufficient water supply is obtainable; mulberry trees kept low cut to facilitate picking the leaves to feed the silk-worm—for this region raises a great deal of silk; and Indian corn which is raised only where the land is too high above sea-level and too dry for the other crops. The horses in this vicinity seem far gentler than the ordinary Japanese horses, which are vicious. Although saddled and bridled, the horses are led by the grooms, unless definite request is made to steer one's own beast, so that one's full attention may be given to the scenery and to the picturesque groups of climbers that are met.

The large new infantry barracks (the artillery barracks are two miles to the south) are passed about halfway and soon after this the pleasant woods are entered. The trees are both evergreen and deciduous and are not at all of the "primeval" sort encountered on the west slopes where the timber being too far from market does not pay for cutting. Here the timber is constantly being harvested and the result is woods of a light second growth appearance. In these woods we come to the best known of the lower rest-houses.

After leaving the woods the horses still go on to a point about one-half way up the 12,365 feet high mountain, some distance above the tree line on this slope. On some of the sides the woods extend much farther up than on this slope.

At station number "two and two-tenths" which is the usual limit of ascent by horse (though a very few do go up to "two and five-tenths) we left the horses, had a lunch and were ready for our climb. The path here as for the last 20 minutes on horse back is scoria, which means volcanic cinders varying from the size of a hen's egg to a fine powder. Scoria is light, being indeed very similar to pumice, and one sinks in deeply at each step. Farther up we find large rounded stones, even boulders, mixed with the scoria but here it is all small.

The angle of ascent from this point on varies from about 45 degrees up to almost perpendicular just below the summit. So we zig-zag up very slowly, looking enviously at those who are running down for these cinder paths are called hashiri, "running places," and with a good staff one may safely come down them as rapidly as the ordinary athlete sprints a mile—if his legs are still good for it after the toilsome ascent.

It is slow and steady that does it in mountain climbing, as well as in the more lowly walks of life. Find your gait and keep well within your limit stopping frequently, eat often but not too heartily of the good lunch in the big basket your coolie is carrying, and above all enjoy the scenery—if it be a good day and you will arrive as we did before sunset without feeling too tired, yet ready to appreciate a good night's rest—providing you can get it!

We paused for an afternoon lunch at the sixth station. Up beyond this we soon came to a difficult kind of walking—solid lava. This is not so easy and pleasant but it lasts only a short time. However, the path from there on is either over or beside, boulders and solid dikes of lava flow. Near the top the color changes from gray to red, a deep dull brown red. That is, the gray ashes give way to the red stone, burnt red in the volcanic fires whose force cast them out. This red color of the mountain makes a clear sunrise upon the top of Fuji a most beautiful sight when viewed from the plain at a little distance.

I have two most beautiful recollections of Mt. Fuji once in passing through by train, just as we reached Gotemba the sun rose and the whole mountain was bathed in the most delicate rose-color that I ever beheld. The other is the first time I ever saw it. As we were steaming up Tokyo bay towards Yokohama, I looked out of a port-hole at 3 o'clock A. M., and saw a glorious white dome in the distance. It took me some moments to realize that what I was beholding was really snow-clad Fuji reflecting the light of the full moon.

At the top there are various objects presumably of interest to the Japanese pilgrims. They consist of strange stones, stones piled up into cairns and even a few shrines. But we were more interested in the post office and the telephone wire ,the latter being however for the police service only.

Having posted a few postals to Japanese friends who greatly prize such strange mementoes, we went on around the crater to find a less crowded hut than the one at the top of our path. On the way we passed the places where steam is constantly coming out of the ground. Fuji may be an extinct volcano, but this steam, coming right up out of the ground which it makes hot, seems to show that there are possibilities there yet.

The huts at the top are dug-outs built of wooden timbers but instead of sods the stone of the place is used. All the timber, roofing, furniture, bedding, fuel and food has to be carried up every summer on men's backs. Therefore some persons do not consider seventy-five cents unreasonable for the bed on the floor with a good curtain to screen them off from the 20-50 coolies, etc., who make up his house mates. The uninitiated might suppose that here at least he could get rid of that scourge of Japanese native hotels—the flea. But he would be most sadly counting without his host!

The crater of Fuji is a big deep hole whose bottom looks just as though sand had been caving in on it. The diameter is about a half mile. On the sides and near the bottom where the sun seldom shines there is much snow left all summer. And, indeed, there is snow the year round in the deepest of the ravines on the external slopes. Melting snow forms the water supply of the many rest-houses on the way. The nights are always cool on the summit though it could hardly have been freezing, the night we were there as it is some nights.

On the eastern slope between Gotemba and the top there are about 20 of the rest-houses. Some are bigger and better than others but at any of them one can get at very moderate rates fair Japanese food or a place to rest, though the houses ,especially in times of storm, are frequently very crowded. Usually there are Fugi mementoes to be bought as well ,and always there is a stamp to impress on the travellers' sticks or white dresses the fact that they have travelled as high as this house. B's stick was covered for two feet with stamps some burnt in and some simply green or purple copying-ink.

Our purpose was not to return as we ascended, but to go down the western slope and visit the famous Fuji Lake region. So down we went on the other slope, a much harder and steeper climb than the Gotemba side. The long hard pull of the day before told somewhat on our legs so we went as slowly as we pleased, resting as often as we liked. I haven't said very much of the beautiful view. I knew it was there just behind the clouds, because my three previous trips had proved it to me. But unfortunately, both going and coming, we were shut in by clouds. It is a very beautiful sight to see the sun rise over on the top of a sea of cloud; but after all it was a poor substitute for the glories that would have been visible had the clouds not been there.

For a short time we descended in clouds so thick that the mist was almost as bad as rain, compelling us to put on rain-coats. But these few minutes were an exception to what was otherwise good weather though at times cloudy during the whole trip. On this descent the forest, and this time of the "primeval" type, begins just below station number four and continues until the plain is reached. White birches are very scarce in Japan but a considerable part of this wood consists of white birch trees of good size. A Japanese friend of mine who had while in America at college enjoyed the Massachusetts birches, desired to have a picture of some birches painted by a Japanese picture painter. As, however, the painter had never seen any specimens of the tree my friend had to send to the slopes of Fuji to procure bark and photos of the tree. And even then, as he informed me, "the painter was greatly troubled to reproduce the birches!"

That second day we descended for six hours and then walked ten miles across the comparatively level plain making a long hard twelve-hour day. This plain is the high upland grassy land that is not sloping enough to be called the slopes of Fuji, but which nevertheless is really a part of the mountain's base.

At a very small village called Kamiide ("upper-well-gush-forth") we spent the night, having before supper seen a very pretty water-fall called White-thread cascade. The next morning we went on, with one horse between us, along this upland plain with Fuji in sight all day at our right. There was a good breeze but it was quite hot in the sun and for eight miles we had nothing to drink. Our coolie and the horse owner fared better than we for they stopped twice to beg a drink from the miniature water kegs of some of the grass cutters we occasionally met.

The second part of this day was the most beautiful of the whole trip. About one o'clock we came to the first of the lakes, Lake Motosu. These lakes are a chain of mountain lakes at varying levels though all hundreds of feet above sea-level. They are all surrounded by mountains except on the Fuji side and one of the great charms of this trip is the exquisite views of Fuji that are obtained. The best known ,especially to foreigners as there is a small but excellent foreign-style hotel there, is the smallest, it being perhaps three miles long and a mile wide. This is Lake Shoji which we reached half an hour after skirting Lake Motosu. After a rest at the hotel, a compulsory one as we were waiting for our carrier with the baggage, a pretty little foreign-style rowboat took us across the lake.

Then followed four miles of the strangest walking I ever experienced. The path lies along the "carry" between Lakes Shoji and Nishi-no-umi and is almost the whole way over a lava flow. The lava stream comes down the mountain side usually not in smoothly flowing streams but in slow running streams formed of irregularly shaped blocks ranging from the size of a grain of sand to that of a house. After long centuries and millenia these blocks have become moss-covered and the cracks and crevices filled in. Large pines, rhododendrons and other trees and shrubs are now growing upon them. The one path is always sufficiently hard on the feet even after centuries of passing have worn down the uneven surfaces of the lava blocks; but it would be practically impossible to leave the path on account of the extreme roughness of the lava, while the trees, shrubs, creepers and mosses form a tangle truly tropical in appearance.

Most of the lava beds that I have hitherto seen have been of so recent origin that there has not been time for them to disintegrate sufficiently to support vegetation. There are more recent flowes near Fuji which are still naked but this one must be very ancient. This difficult four miles "carry" past, we came to a lake where fortunately a boat was ready to take us for a beautiful ride of one hour to the other side of the third lake, Wishino-umi. From the farther side of this there is only a short "carry" of a mile to the fourth lake, Lake Kawaguchi.

The scenery of all these lakes, especially the views of Fuji, is very fine. Think of the most beautiful New England lake you know, surround it with pine covered mountains, and add twelve miles away the most perfectly conical mountain in the world two and one-half miles high, and you can perhaps get some idea of the beauty experienced on this lake trip.

The night was spent at an inn almost jutting over the edge of the lake. The next day was far the prosiest of all, as it involved only a two-mile walk followed by 21 miles in a bobby little train car. But even so this car passes along the edge of the fifth lake and Fuji was in sight all day long.

These cars are an institution: 7 feet long, so narrow that one's knees touch those of his vis-a-vis, and drawn by one Japanese pony along a track which must weigh at least ten pounds to the yard. There is a regular timetable but freight cars and special cars for Fuji climbers run without reference to any schedule. The track is single with frequent "turn-outs" for passing. When one of these "turn-outs" is entered the driver blows protractedly the brass horn with which each is equipped. If he hears an answering blast he waits until that car has passed. If not he goes ahead. But human ears are faulty and we twice met cars on the single track. The first time the horse was simply hitched to the other end of the car and went back to the "turn-out" which was only a few rods back. The second time we met three cars in line about half way between "turn-outs." After a brief consultation of all the conductors we were ordered out of our car which was then picked up by three or four men and deposited by the side of the track when the other cars passed us. Then it was replaced and we went on. But it doesn't pay to do it that way for we must have lost nearly ten minutes! Can you imagine the language of a Boston motorman under similar conditions? All the language that our Jehus used was to the effect that they were sorry they hadn't heard.

This horse-car ride on the ten-inch-wide wooden seats brought us back home just 80 hours after starting. We felt that the grand old mountain had become dearer than ever for the trip over and around it.

AN EASY AND HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR.

Who does not know of the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, put up an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. It is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the manufacturers upon receipt of price.

TAFT IN MOUNTAINS

Travels to Elevation of 7700 Feet After Viewing Big Trees

Glacier Point, Cal., Oct. 9.—President Taft arrived here last evening. The drive from Wawona, where he spent the forenoon visiting the Mariposa big tree groves, was over twenty-six miles of mountain road, and the president was ready for bed immediately after dinner.

The president was photographed at the base of the "Grizzly Giant," the biggest and oldest tree in the world; and he was photographed also in the stage as it passed through the trunk of the Wawona, one of the largest of the forest monarchs.

The stage ride from Wawona to Glacier carried the president to an elevation of 7700 feet. Last night, guarded by cavalrymen, he slept in a little hotel here.

American Woman Sings a Solo in the Japanese Tongue

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 9.—A solo in the Japanese tongue by Mrs. E. B. Smith was a feature of the welcome which the Japanese commercial commission, now touring the United States, received at a banquet in their honor here last night.

So far as is known Mrs. Smith is the first American woman to essay singing in Japanese. The words of the song were written by her husband, managing editor of the Ithaca Daily Journal; the Japanese translation was made by a son of a statesman in Japan and the music was written by Karl Schmidt of Louisville.

The song will be engrossed on vellum and forwarded to the emperor of Japan, to who mit has been dedicated.

METEOR DISCLOSED BY BROKFN FENCE

Two-Hundred-Pounder Buries Itself Eight Feet In Earth

Walpole, Mass., Oct. 9.—A meteor weighing 200 pounds dropped on the farm of W. P. Nickerson, a former newspaper man of Boston, in Brooks street.

That the meteor struck the earth with fearful force is attested by the fact that it buried itself nearly eight feet in the soil of the field in which it fell.

Covered by eight feet of earth, it might have remained for years without being discovered if it had not in the course of its fall broken a fence which separates two fields of Nickerson's property.

Labor men here met him this morning and gave him a rousing welcome home. A more elaborate reception has been planned for him in Washington upon his arrival there next week.

Mr. Gompers left New York on June 9 and has since that time visited most of the more important European countries.

FAITH IN COOK'S STORY

Gerlache Thinks Doctor Reached the Pole as Well as Peary

Copenhagen, Oct. 9.—Captain Gerlache, who commanded the Duke of Orleans' yacht Belgica in the Antarctic expedition of 1907, has arrived here.

He says that he does not doubt one word of Dr. Cook's statement that he reached the North Pole and declares he cannot understand how anyone who knows Cook can question his story. He is absolutely confident that the American explorer with the instruments he carried would be able to determine within one-sixthieth of a degree where the Pole was located.

Captain Gerlache also is sure that Commander Peary reached the Pole.

TWO HUNDRED DESERTIONS

Many British Jack Tars Desire to Remain In America

TWO SQUADRONS SAIL AWAY

Britons Show Extreme Courtesy by Firing Parting Salute From Each of Their Vessels, While Frenchmen Pass Out In Silence—Admiral Seymour Rides on Locomotive at Rate of Over Mile a Minute

New York, Oct. 9.—Six of the great foreign men-o'-war—three British armored cruisers and three French battleships—put out to sea through the Narrows last night, leaving behind a substantial number of their men. Just how many of the bluejackets remained in the city for one reason or another is a matter of official knowledge only, but it is reported that 200 men from the British ships failed to turn up for duty. Of the Frenchmen it is said that only three out of the 2500 sailors stayed behind. Fleet officers remained to search for the men of both squadrons.

When the British squadron visited New York several years ago it lost 300 men. English sailors have many friends here, and in addition the lure of American wages sometimes proves irresistible.

The great slate gray Inflexible, confident of her speed, remained at her anchorage last night, giving the other three vessels of the British squadron, the Argyll, Drake and Duke of Edinburgh, nearly twenty-four hours handicap. She expects to weigh anchor this afternoon and under escort of the Connecticut, Vermont and Kansas of the Atlantic fleet, will steam out of port.

Rear Admiral Hamilton, hoisting his flag on the Drake, commanded the British squadron which left last night. Admiral of the Fleet Seymour will leave on the Inflexible, and it is probable that his ship will try for a new trans-Atlantic record on the run to Gibraltar.

The French squadron, consisting of the battleships Justice, Verite and Liberte, in command of Admiral Le Pord, got away a little earlier than the British ships. The departure of the six big foreign fighting machines leaves but few of the fifty odd vessels which made up the Hudson-Fulton celebration armada, and by next week the Hudson, which has been under the shadow of hundreds of big guns, will begin to resume its normal appearance.

In giving their farewell the Britons outdid the French in the matter of extreme courtesy. While international politeness by no means requires it, all three of the English cruisers fired a parting salute of twenty-one guns as they passed Governor's island. Old Castle William, somewhat surprised at the extreme cordiality of the English, fired twenty-one for each vessel in return.

The French had previously passed out in silence.

In view of unconfirmed reports here that certain French officers were dissatisfied over the treatment they received during the Hudson-Fulton celebration and that the failure of the French warships to salute in parting was due to pique, an officer on Governor's island said that the salute was an extra courtesy by the British rather than any omission by the French.

Admiral Von Koester of the German navy spent the day at Niagara Falls. His white squadron here took on coal and provisions and will probably sail early next week, as will the Italian cruisers and Mexican cruiser.

The last of the festival fleet to depart will be the Dutch cruiser Utrecht, which was the first to arrive.

Admiral Seymour went sightseeing on a locomotive of the Twentieth Century limited. Seated beside the engineer, he rode forty-seven miles from New York to Ossining—the first seventeen miles in one of the New York Central's big electric engines and the remaining thirty miles in the cab of No. 3450, a 225 ton steam locomotive.

Admiral Seymour had expressed a desire to see what an American locomotive could do, and as soon as the switches and low speed signs of the city were left behind, Engineer Kiley gave No. 3450 a chance to display her prowess. On a clear stretch of track near Ossining the pointer of the speed dial mounted to eighty-four miles an hour and the heavy train whirled over a mile of rail in a fraction less than forty-three seconds.

Half a dozen members of the admiral's staff and officers of the New York Central accompanied the British officer. Seymour was very much interested in the electric locomotive, something which the English railroads have not yet adopted.

INJURIES PROVE FATAL

Victim of Electric Car Accident Died this Morniug

There was a frightful accident on Sea street Sunday afternoon when Clyde Leslie the eighteen months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin H. McConnell was run over by an electric car in front of his home and so badly injured that both legs had to be amputated later at the City hospital, and although the boy passed as comfortable night as could be expected he died this morning at 7.30.

Mr. McConnell lives in the caretaker's house at the John Quincy Adams farm and the accident happened almost in front of his home. Realizing the danger from passing cars and teams the boy's mother had always been very careful to keep the little fellow off the street. Sunday afternoon the boy's father was in the stable and the little fellow left the house to go to the stable to see the cows. Instead of doing so however he wandered into the street and crossed over to the south side of the street railway tracks just west of the turnout.

There is a sharp curve at this point and the tracks are somewhat hidden from view of the motorman. The car which left Quincy at about 3 o'clock was in charge of Conductor Elmer Blandin and motorman W. H. Gould. The motorman had a man on with him breaking in by the name of James Moran. Moran was running the car while Gould stood close to him giving him warning of the dangerous curve. As the car rounded the curve the boy was seen standing near the tracks apparently looking across the field, and unaware that a car was approaching.

As soon as motorman Gould saw the boy he took charge of the controller and brake and immediately reversed the power. At the same time the boy turned and started to walk across the track. The car at that time was sliding on the rails. The fender on the front of the car struck the boy and threw him to one side. In falling however the body went outside of the rail but his legs went under the car, both wheels passing over them.

There were about fifty passengers on the car at the time and they became frantic as their efforts to raise the car were unavailing, and it was necessary to run the car back to get the boy out. In the meantime a telephone message had been sent for Dr. F. E. Jones and the police ambulance. Dr. Jones made a record run to the scene and after applying the necessary bandages to stop the flow of blood, wrapped the boy in a blanket, and placing him in the hands of his father took both in his automobile to the City Hospital. At the hospital Dr. Jones was assisted by Dr. George M. Sheahan. The doctors found the boys legs so badly mangled that it was necessary to amputate them below the knee. In addition to his legs being mangled the surgeons found the right leg to be fractured above the knee.

Although the accident is a sad one no blame can be attached to the car crew, who did all in their power to prevent the accident. The tracks at the point where the accident happened run close to the southerly side of the street, and enter the reserved space a few feet beyond where the accident happened. As the view is obstructed the cars always run slowly at this point and after Motorman Gould reversed the power and applied the brakes the car did not go far. That the brakes were set hard was shown by the rails which were worn bright where the wheels slid along.

MORAN ARRESTED.

This morning a warrant was issued against James Moran, the motorman on the car and he was placed under arrest and immediately taken before Judge Avery and arraigned for manslaughter. The court held him in $1,000 bonds until Oct. 29 on which day the inquest will be held. Bonds were immediately furnished by Supt. Gammons of the Quincy division and Moran released.

If it should be determined at the inquest that Moran was not to blame he will probably be discharged.

E. LANDIS SNYDER.

Service In His Memory to be Held at St. Chrysostom's Church.

A memorial service for E. Landis Snyder will be held Sunday evening October 31st at 7.30 o'clock in St. Chrysostom's church where Mr. Snyder was choir master and organist for several years.

The Rev. James B. Goodrich of Milton, the Rev. Carleton P. Mills of Winchester, Rev. George A. Strong, rector of Christ Church, New York, and the rector Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg will take part in the service.

Archibald E. Briggs of Atlantic has charge of getting together the choir which sang at St. Chrysostom's when Mr. Snyder was choir master. Mrs. Frank H. Wright nee Sibley of Hingham, one of his earliest pupils will preside at the organ.

The holding of this service is made public throughout the city, because it is thought the school teachers and many of his former pupils in the schools will desire to attend and add their testimony by their presence.

BURKE NOMINATED.

County Democrats Nominate Quincy Man for Treasurer.

The Democratic county convention was held at Dedham Saturday and nominated James F. Burke of Quincy for county treasurer. George F. Maxwell of Brookline was nominated for commissioner.

Mr. Burke is too well known to residents of Quincy to need any introduction. He has served Quincy as its Representative in the general court, was postmaster for four years and has also served as a member of the City Council and as City Treasurer. He is at present a member of the School Committee.

Mr. Burke's present business is that of real estate and insurance with an office in the Savings Bank building.

FAREWELL SERVICES.

A perfect day attended the last Sunday of Rev. Henry G. Megathlin as pastor of the Park and Downs Congregational church. At the morning services the church was filled, nearly all turning out to hear their pastor for the last time.

Rev. Mr. Megathlin took his text from Revelations: "I have set before thee an open door which no man can shut." "The Christian Religion," he said, "means more than any other force on earth." He then went on to interpret the different religions, showing how some were established to avert vengeance while others were religions of fear. All of these religions mean bondage because they have always been the projection of men's own ideas. But when the soul meets God, the Christian religion becomes indeed an open door. It stands as an invitation and shows the possibilities of attainment.

The first factor in the religion of Christ is the personal touch of the personal God. Without it all else would be futile. It means moral clearsightedness and a moral life.

At the evening service Mr. Megathlin took the twenty-third Psalm for his subject. In his sermon he noted the three promises in the Psalm—thou shalt not want, thou shalt fear no evil and thou shalt dwell in the house of the Lord. Sunday closed his pastorate here and Mr. Megathlin is leaving this week for Walpole, N. H., where he has accepted a call. Until a permanent pastor has been selected the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Edward A. Norton of Quincy at the morning service.

QUINCY HIGH WHITEWASHED

Unable to Score Saturday in Game With Malden

Quincy High proved easy picking against Malden last Saturday being beaten 28 to 0. One touchdown being scored in the first half and four in the second half.

The day was too hot for any kind of speed and the Malden boys' weight simply pushed Quincy down the field pounding them until at the end of the game every regular and all of the nine subs had been used and every man was thoroughly worn out. The only bright spots in the game were in the first half and the last of the second. In the first period Quincy receiving the kick started to gain and were going up the field on 7 and 10 yard gains when on a tandem formation which netted them 20 yards through tackle, the play was called back and a penalty given. This seemed to take a little of their speed and they soon lost the ball to Malden on downs.

After this they fought stubbornly every inch of the ground but by using her heavy tackles repeatedly Malden at last pushed the ball over for a touchdown.

In the last part of the second half with the score 23 to 0, all the subs were sent in and with E. Prout at quarter they received the ball. Immediately they opened up and before the Malden team were aware of it they had been forced back down the field into their own territory for the first time since the first half. But it did not last long for after a brilliant quarter-back run by Prout which netted about 25 yards, Jim Hill who was at half back, fumbled the ball twice and it was lost to Malden.

The playing of Johnson at centre and Capt. Bates in the back field were the redeeming features of the day and great credit is due both of them for the plucky manner in which they worked for Johnson although hardly able to regain his position, once down, always crawled back somehow and stuck to his job against a man who out-weighed him 30 pounds, until the last whistle blew.

Quincy was out-weighed all along the line and the back field by many pounds. The team deserves great credit however for the manner in which they held Malden the first half and even ripped open her heavy line for big gains.

TEAM OVER THE WALL.

Peculiar Runaway Saturday Night on Spear Street.

There was a peculiar accident that happened on Orchard Place, off Spear street Saturday night. A large express wagon of Gallagher's Express Co., stopped at the library. While the driver was inside the building the horse took it into his head to run down the street. He kept increasing his gait and when he reached Orchard place he turned in going at a lively clip.

At the end of this street there is a five foot wall and a high wire fence just beyond leaving a space of about 5 feet in between. The horse ran directly into this but swerved as he felt himself slipping over so that only the team went over the wall. The horse was lead out safely but for over an hour the driver, assisted by the neighbors and the police, tried to extricate the wagon and were finally successful. The team had nothing in it as the driver was delivering his last bundle at the library.

Barre, Vermont, says "Certainly let our street lights burn all night. The convenience and safety of the people demand it."

Patrons of the public library appreciate the new hours and facilities as is indicated by 6,692 books loaned during September.

There are those who say that instead of taking a steamer for Europe the traveller will some day take passage on an airship for Mars.

An unusually large peanut crop is reported from the south and if worse come to worse and the price of beef continues to soar we can take to peanuts for they are said to be nutritious.

It is pretty hard to go into politics, stay there on a strictly honest basis and yet acquire wealth. Governor Johnson's estate of only $17,000 indicates this.

Looks as though the prairie dog has got to go, three-quarters of a million have been exterminated in less than eight months. The government pay one and one-half cents a head bounty.

Gen. Fred Grant says he has become a total abstainer. Formerly the teetotallers were general regulators of other folks' moral, but now there is a host of people who cut out liquor because it is not a business proposition.

A question came up in the Malden court last week as to whether gasolene is intoxicating. We do not know how it is to drink but certainly there is nothing intoxicating about the smell of it.

MOODY BOYNTON RAILROAD.

Moody Boynton is again at the State House with a railroad proposition. He expects to construct this fall a section of his bicycle railroad beginning at Brockton and going toward Boston. That distance ,as he figures geography and prices, takes him to Mayflower Park, where he will make connections with the Boston elevated system, with a single fare to Boston. He says that this is an entirely separate proposition from that of the Boston, Quincy and Fall River railway, for in this case the work is to be done by a construction company which will have inside rights to the other corporation. He believes that after the connection has been made with the Boston elevated most of the people who come to Brockton from the southeastern part of the State on their way to Boston will transfer to his system and get reduced rate and quicker time.

He has worked out a financial scheme whereby he believes that the construction and operation will be taken care of and that this six miles will be but the beginning of a wide use of his remarkable invention. There are many details which he explains, and he figures that his system will require only 20 per cent. of the gross receipts for its operating expenses, instead of 70 per cent. as is the case with steam roads as an average. The economy of money, the saving of human life and the greatly increased safely and speed make him expect that this work to be done in Brockton will mark the beginning of the revolution of the entire system of transportation in the United States.

OCTOBER.

To many people there is a pathos about the present season. It marks a culmination in the order of life. Heretofore, nature's processes have been those of growth. There has been constant expectation. With the sowing of the seed there was the promise of the bud. When the bud came, the gardener and husbandman looked forward to the flower, and the beauty of the flower brought the rich promise of the fruit. When the fruit comes and goes, there is nothing to look forward to but the chill and destruction of the frost, and the cessation of the activity of nature until spring tide shall turn it to life again.

And yet, after all, in spite of such melancholy reflections, we are now at the very climax of the year. The scorching suns of midsummer have passed and left the air tingling with the very wine of life. Why cannot our poor human nature enjoy the day for its own beauty and inspiration with less thought for the morrow? After all it is winter that establishes life on firm foundation rather than summer. Summer puts forth an experimental growth, winter brings a tonic to the blood that makes this growth permanent.—Beverly Times.

MILITARY MANEUVERS.

Our contention that the recent military maneuvers were of little value is sustained by the war department. Every other year will be often enough for the regulars and militia men to go into camp together. The word from the high officials is that some valuable lessons were learned in that period of stress and privation, but the cost in human suffering is held to have been out of all proportion to the benefits derived. The conclusion is that last summer's campaign taught some lessons almost worth the cost. It was shown conclusively that men of sedentary habits cannot be safely called into open field service without being gradually inured to its hardships, and that a week's encampment under wall tents in a carefully prepared camp does not sensibly fit the men for the hardships of a real field campaign. Nor can a drill once a week in a sheltered armory place the guardsman on a footing with the regular soldier. All of which is true, but as we have said, the armory and camp instruction prepares the militiaman for the service he must render in an emergency and when that emergency comes he will meet it to the best of his ability, and learn to endure hardships in the shortest possible time. The war department has taken a sensible view of the situation.—Lynn Item.

GRAY HAIRS BANISHED.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color. One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days on account of it souring quickly. This objection has been overcome and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of th's preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow. It is sold by all druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

HIGH PRICE OF MEAT.

The Providence Journal discusses the price of meat in that city complaining that the consumer is being mulcted beyond reason. It rightly thinks that a rise in the wholesale price of one cent a pound does not justify a rise of four cents a pound at retail. It says the wholesalers state that the choicest grades of cattle are not sold in Providence. If that be so it follows that Providence consumers are paying exorbitant rates for second class beef. Providence, according to the Journal, has always been notorious for meat prices. In Baltimore and Philadelphia the best porter housesteak retails for 22 and 25 cents. Whereas in many cities in New England second grade porter house costs as high as 40 cents. It is time that the consumers in this section had some release from such exorbitant prices that are prohibited except for the well-to-do. There is where a consumers' league would come into play very effectively.—Haverhill Gazette.

SEATS FOR ALL.

In an attempt to compel the street railway company of that city to furnish a seat for every passenger, the mayor of Pittsburg has entered into a fight in the course of which he has detailed several hundred policemen to watch the cars and to see that his rule is enforced. It might be easier to watch the people and prevent them from boarding a car which was filled. But it is safe to say that he would not attempt to do this. The average citizen would rather hold on to a crowded car by his finger tips than wait two minutes for a car that would provide him a comfortable seat.—Framingham News.

INLAND WATERWAYS.

Washington, D. C. Oct. 11

Representative J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, President of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association whose second annual convention will be held in Norfolk, Va., Nov. 17-20, has spent his vacation in an examination, not only of the waterways of the Atlantic coast but of mid-continental United States and the Puget sound country. Last year Mr. Moore made a careful and systematic study of the waterways of Europe in order that he might intelligently present his conclusions to the Association of which he is President. With a view of still further equipping himself to pass in judgment upon the waterway problems which will confront Congress, at the forthcoming session, leading up to the introduction and passage of a river and harbor bill, Mr. Moore has not only gone over the route of the proposed inside water course from Boston, Mass., to Beaufort, N. C., and the Florida Keys, but he has inspected the upper Missouri, the Snake and the Columbia rivers. As a result of these investigations, the Congressman has pronounced views on the imperative needs of improving the waterways of the United States. Speaking on this subject he said:

"We are just awakening in this country to the importance of deepening our waterways and improving our harbors. There are fully 50,000 miles of navigable streams in the United States, half of which are not sufficiently improved to be of any material benefit to commerce. Thus far Congress has provided for improvements very largely according to the insistence of various localities. One river has received much attention and another river has received little. What we really need in the United States is a comprehensive system by which waterways may be developed so that depths and widths may be standardized for ships or barges. The Congressional Commission which is now touring Europe, will probably bring back some ideas with regard to this subject.

"An instance of the manner in which the people have been lulled to sleep is displayed along the Atlantic coast. Canals have been closed up which, prior to the advent of the railroads, were the chief means of transportation. Today the manufacturers of New England and of many of the Middle and Southern States are simply unable, because of the heavy pressure upon the railroads, to obtain prompt service in the delivery of freight. New England is practically bottled up and to a large extent is handicapped, both in the shipment of freight and in the transportation of passengers in rush times, because of its dependence upon one railroad company.

"This is not wholly a New England condition, however, for any traveler through the great Northwest during the period of the Seattle Exposition, must have observed that the railroads were simply overcrowded and that the population of the country is increasing more rapidly than is the power of railroad managers to obtain new capital to build new roads. For some reason or other, there is strong opposition in Washington to the opening up of the waterways as competitive means of communication. How long this opposition will be able to thwart the popular will remain to be seen. Congressmen are beginning to realize that the people demand facilities for the shipment of commodities and that they want better and cheaper transportation. By the time Congress convenes in December, we will all be better able to judge this situation, for the President's trip down the Mississippi will have been completed, the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association will have met at Norfolk and various conventions, representing different sections of the country will have given expression to the needs of the country upon this important subject. Moreover the Congressional Waterways Commission will have returned from Europe and we will probably have from them some comprehensive scheme of river and harbor improvements in the United States, one of the cardinal planks in the platform of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress whose Convention in Washington December next will round out waterways meetings.

"Taking it all in all we are about to have such an aggregation of waterway improvement, on systematic lines as the country has never seen."

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES.

The Committee on Result of Child Helping Work, in charge of the Wednesday morning program of the coming State Conference of Charities, in Boston, is the only standing committee of the Conference. The first important subject to be considered will be, "Should Parents be Compelled to Contribute toward the Support of Dependent, Neglected, or Delinquent Children." A paper will be presented by Mr. James E. Fee, Superintendent, Division of State Minor Wards, State Board of Charity, Mr. William H. Pear, General Agent of the Boston Provident Association and Mr. S. Howell Wright, Agent for the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children at New Bedford will discuss the subject.

A second paper will be presented by Miss Alice L. Higgins, General Secretary of the Associated Charities of Boston, on the subject:—"Dependence of Families as Affected by Imprisonment of Bread Winner." The discussion will be opened by Mr. Clarence E. Fitzpatrick, Probation Officer of the Boston Juvenile court, and Mr. William C. McDermott, President of St. Augustine's Conference, Society of St. Vincent de Paul, South Boston.

All of these speakers have had large experience in their respective lines, Mr. Fee being the official head of a department having supervision of some 6,500 children, cared for by the state as well as by various cities and towns. His official duties require him to visit all the correctional institutions for minors within the Commonwealth, and enable him to come into close touch with the child problem. Miss Higgins is a woman of wide reputation as a speaker and always presents her facts in a most convincing manner. She has been a prominent figure at all meetings both of the State and the National Conference of Charities.

S. Y. CLUB DANCE.

A most delightful dancing party was held at the Squantum club Saturday evening. It was a "chestnut party" and all the old "chestnut" music was played by the orchestra. One of the special features of the dance was the moonlight waltz. All the lights in the hall were turned out except two brilliant ones hidden behind a large and cleverly made, moon, hanging suspended from the ceiling. Before the party broke up, William Field, a prominent member of the house committee called for a vote from all present and it was voted unanimously to have one more party, next Saturday night. An exceptionally large crowd was present, many strangers appearing as usual. Among them, were several from Quincy High school.

A CONVENIENCE WHILE AUTOMOBILING

IN AUTOMOBILING, as in all other things, you must always be ready to meet the unexpected.

If something goes wrong or breaks in the running mechanism of your car, the quickest way to reach a garage is by TELEPHONE.

Then, too, if you're on a trip and want to order a dinner, arrange for the night, find out about the road ahead, or send back some word you forgot to say in starting, a Blue Bell Sign by the roadside assures you that there is a telephone nearby that will connect you with any possible point in the great Bell System.

STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

Much Good Work Being Done on Hancock Street.

The paving of the west side of Hancock street is now practically completed between the boulevard line and Sagamore street which is as far as the paving will be continued this year. The west side of the street between the boulevard line and the Adams Academy is being macadamized. It is the intention of Commissioner Bainbridge to pave the section between Dimmock street and City Square.

Before this is done however the street railway will relay its westerly track which is now apparently some below grade. The street railway will also take out the present cross over tracks in front of the market of Washburn & McLeod and will put in crossovers similar to those in front of the First church. All of these are much needed improvements and it is planned to have them completed this fall.

The appropriation for paving Hancock street was $10,000 which meant about one mile of paving.

The cost of paving the entire west side of the street between City Square and Neponset bridge was estimated at $40,000 and it is the plan of the City Council to do it piecemeal.

BUILDING PERMITS.

New Building a Little Quiet in Quincy at Present.

New building is a little quiet in Quincy just at present and but few applications for permits have been received by the Inspector of Buildings. Among the new permits issued are:

To N. G. Nickerson for a dwelling on Marlboro street.

To George H. Hersey for a bungalow at Squantum.

To C. O. Dorchester for a cottage at Adams shore.

To C. B. Rollins Co., for a large store house at Norfolk Downs.

To F. Keeller for a cottage at Adams shore.

To Ellen B. Withington for two, 2 flat houses on Spear street.

STORE WINDOW SMASHED.

The store of William Corcoran on Grove street was broken into late Saturday night. As nothing is missing it is thought the thieves must have been frightened away, or it may have been the work of malicious persons as the large show window was smashed and stones were found inside on the floor.

The damage to window is over a hundred dollars. Mr. Corcoran who is well known and popular in West Quincy says he has no enemy that he knows of and does not understand why any one should go out of their way to do him injury.

HIGH SCHOOL FOOT BALL

Players More or Less Injured In Saturday's Game

Quincy High had a layoff yesterday as they were all pretty stiff after Saturday's contest. Rice, Veal, Johnson and Bates especially as they were more or less hurt during the game. Rice sprained his wrist and it may be weeks before he will play again, while Veal's face is badly swollen from a kick in the jaw. Capt. Bates and Johnson will be all right for the next game as they are only sore from the heavy banging that they received at the hands of their heavy opponents. The team will probably have a layoff until this wet weather is over in order to give them a good chance to get thoroughly rested, before the game with Boston College High next Saturday.

The Boston papers made a mistake in the number of touchdowns scored in the first half of Saturday's game, thus robbing Quincy of the credit due them for holding the heavy Malden team to one touchdown in the first period. The Ledger in its attempt to give the people sporting news correctly had a representative on the spot and did not have to make up their account of the game from their office.

Quincy High plays Boston College High school at Quincy next Saturday and as far as known now the game will be in the afternoon. This will be a good game and a large crowd should turn out to view it.

A large number of rooters accompanied the team to Malden last Saturday and they were all pleased with the manner in which Quincy played and are of the opinion that a fast team will be representing the red and blue before the season is very far advanced.

Quincy High expects to have a fast track team this winter and they can, if they will get together and practice, give some of the High schools about Boston a run for their money on the track.

An interesting note is the fact that Russ. Bates who is captain of the football team is also Captain of the basket ball and base ball teams this year. This is an honor seldom bestowed on a single athlete but it is one well earned by the present one, and one which he is well able to handle and make successful. He is level headed and can hold down the job of captain as few schoolboys can as it makes no difference whatever in his playing for he makes no worry out of it, letting things work out their own way. He will certainly have success in all the teams as he has good material both for basketball and baseball.

The interest taken by the teachers this fall in the football work at the school is encouraging and helpful both to the captain and the players.

That play to be given by the pupils in the lower classes to help the football team is worthy of aid as they are beginning what they should have started years ago and that is some financial aid for the football team outside of the collections in the rooms which amount only to just enough to carry the team along. Under the coaching of Molly Brown the play is sure to be worth going to see. It is surely the beginning of a movement to place athletics on a firmer basis in the High school.

The Boston Globe said of the Quincy team yesterday that although Malden had beaten them decisively that the Quincy boys had a fast team and would be heard from before the season was over.

The schedule as it stands to date is as follows:—

Saturday, Oct. 16—Boston College High at Quincy.

Tuesday, Oct. 19—Everett High at Everett.

Saturday, Oct. 23—Bridgewater Normal at Quincy.

Tuesday, Oct. 26—Pending.

Friday Oct. 29—Belmont High at Quincy.

CHINAMAN PERSECUTED

Hoodlums Make Life Miserable for Sam Lee

The case of Sam Lee, the Chinese laundryman who was accused of drawing a revolver on Alfred Davidson when he called for his laundry a week ago last Monday, was heard in the district court this morning before Judge Pratt. The Judge handed down the decision in a measure against the chinaman, but in his remarks he made it plain that in his opinion the chinaman was an honest, law abiding citizen but that he went beyond his right in making a show with such an ugly looking weapon which meant death if discharged. He then held the chinaman in under $200 bonds to keep the peace for three months.

The Chinaman was represented by Julian C. Woodman of Melrose who was counsel for the five chinamen in the recent case in Boston, three of whom paid the death penalty this morning. He was very bitter in his arraignment of the hoodlums and their methods of annoying the Chinaman and also the police for their inactivity in protecting the chinaman from abuse. He claimed that Sam Lee's laundry and he was borne out in this by Assessor Alexander Faulkner and Henry McGrath, a granite dealer of South Quincy, had been entered twice within a year and that all the money in the till had been taken by the robbers. Also that his door had been broken by hoodlums and that night after night the chinaman had been assaulted with fruit and other missles by the rowdies and that the police had taken no measures to stop this thing. On the contrary as soon as there was a chance to jump on the chinaman they proceeded to do so. The counsel pointed out to the judge that if this sort of thing were countenanced that no chinaman would be safe in this city.

The story as told by Davidson, the complainant, was that he went to the laundry for his bundle and that Sam said it was not ready and to call again. The next Sunday he went there and this time the chinaman told him that he had already taken his laundry and had gone away with the check so that he could present it again. He went away this time and the following Monday evening he went to the place again and told the laundryman that he wanted his laundry or he would have to pay for it. He alleges that at this statement the excited celestial ran into the back room and running out with a revolver, pointed it at him. Davidson then says that he ran away and securing a policeman, brought him back to the laundry.

Officer Broberg was the officer and when he got there he says that the revolver was lying on the stand near where the chinaman was working. The chinaman would not give him the revolver, he claimed, and he had to take it away from him which he did. At the police station upon examination it was found to be loaded with five cartridges and having one empty shell in it.

The chinaman claimed that Davidson came in for his laundry and that when he took it he did not give him the check but took it away with him. When he came in the next time it was Sunday and that he told him he had the laundry and there were no words passed. But that the next night, Monday, he came in and started trouble. He claimed that tobacco juice was thrown all over his clean shirts and that Davidson threatened to take one of the shirts on the counter unless he gave him his laundry, and even took hold of one to carry it away. The chinaman then claims that he threatened to lick him and becoming frightened he ran in to the back room and taking the revolver he laid it down on the counter near where he was working in order that he could protect himself if any trouble was started.

He said that he had kept the revolver ever since his store had been broken into about a year ago to protect himself and his money. The business men around him testified as to his honesty and industrious attitude and said that he was a most peaceful and law abiding citizen if left alone.

The judge agreed with the counsel that the Chinaman was abused but thought that for the small proof of any attempt at bodily harm shown that the Chinaman had gone a little too far beyond his rights when he used the revolver in a threatening manner.

SMALL LIGHTSHIP.

That off Houghs Neck the Smallest on the Coast.

What is probably the smallest lightship on the coast or for that matter on any other coast is that which, has been in commission this season at Houghs Neck and was placed and maintained by the Houghs Neck Steamboat company.

It marks the entrance to the channel, and performs its duty just as effectively as if it were 10 times as large.

Its length is about 12 feet, the hull being a skiff, heavily painted in dark red, with a white band amidships much the same as one sees on a relief lightship on a regular station.

The lights are two red lanterns suspended from a triatic stay. On the top of each mast is a day signal, painted black and surmounted by a white ball.

The whole has a very smart appearance, and it is blessed by the skippers who wish to run up the narrow channel between the mud flats to the float of the Quincy yacht club.

WHIST PARTY.

Twenty-one Tables Contest for Prizes at Protection Hall.

A largely attended whist party was held Monday evening at Protection hall under the auspices of John A. Boyd, camp, U. S. W. V. and the Gertrude A. Boyd auxiliary. There were 21 tables in play and the contest was keen. The prize winners were Mrs. A. J. Gould, R. R. Book, Mrs. J. Smith, Mrs. E. E Field Miss Zita Pitts, George Esson and J C. Babin. Another party will be held next week.

MRS. MARTHA D. FROST.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha D. Frost, who died on Saturday evening at the age of 76 years, was held at her late home on Farrington street this morning. Services were conducted by Rev. J. W. Winkley of Boston, a retired Unitarian minister and an old friend of the family assisted by Rev. Carl G. Horst of the Wollaston Unitarian church. Selections were sung by E. E. Bullock.

Mrs. Frost was the widow of Benjamin Frost and a woman of high mental calibre at one time being principal of an academy in the South. Her husband was a civil engineer of note and beside having charge of the building of Hoosac tunnel and the laying out of Central and Prospect Parks in New York, was at the time of his death engaged in the lowering of the Mississippi.

Mrs. Frost is survived by a son E. R. Frost who is in business in Boston and a daughter Clara Duty Frost who is a school teacher in New Britain, Conn. She was a charter member of the Wollaston Unitarian church and has been a resident of Wollaston for many years.

She has always been active in charitable work and the poor as well as her friends will miss her many acts of thoughtfulness done in such a friendly yet quiet way.

On the casket were beautiful roses which at the expressed wish of the deceased were given to each one present at the services.

ALMOST A FATALITY

Bad Railroad Accident Averted At Quincy Adams

There came very near being a frightful railroad accident at the Quincy Adams station Monday evening, and after the danger had passed many wondered why several persons had not been killed or horribly mangled. As it was the engine of an outward express train struck the shaft of an express wagon breaking it off.

The inward train for Boston, due to leave Quincy Adams at 5.27 stood at the depot. On the east side of the track was an electric car and several teams besides several people waiting to cross. On the west side there were also several teams and passengers. The gates at this time were down.

As soon as the inward train pulled out of the depot the gateman, evidently forgetting to look to see if a train was coming from the opposite direction, raised the gates. It happened that there was an express train approaching at a fair rate of speed. Ordinarily the train would have been at full speed but the engineer evidently had seen the gateman raise the gates and realizing that he had not been seen, he shut off steam and was slowing down.

As soon as the gates were raised teams on both sides started to cross. A team on the east side had reached the center of the inward track when a foot passenger saw the approaching express and jumping for the horse's head forced him back.

A teamster on the west side was not so fortunate for his horse had got onto the outward track before he saw the approaching train. Realizing his danger he tried to back his team off the track. The train was then but a few feet away. The teamster succeeding in getting almost off when the engine struck one of the shafts of his team and threw it one side.

The engineer of the outward train had his engine under full control and brought the train to a stop before the engine was fully over the crossing People who witnessed the affair held their breaths in suspense expecting every minute to see someone killed. It was one of the narrowest escapes from a horrible accident that ever happened at this deadly crossing.

The gateman in charge of this crossing is an old man and was evidently a little negligent in not looking to see if there was an outward train approaching before raising the gates.

SOCIAL WORKERS.

The program for Wednesday afternoon of the State Conference of Charities in Boston is in charge of a newer committee on "Social Work with the Sick and Convalescent." This signifies a broadening of the field of both hospital and nurse with a view to giving them larger civic efficiency. The first half of this committee's session will be given to the problem of caring for the sick in small towns; the last half to the sick in a large city. Three speakers will deal with the first topic. Dr. Lewis M. Palmer has for a number of years been active in medical charity in South Framingham a town which is trying the interesting experiment of doing social work for sick people through an organized charity connected with its hospital. Mr. Richards M. Bradley, as an administrator of the Thompson Trust, is concerned with the running of a small hospital and a district nurse in the town of Brattleboro, Vermont. He believes that in order to be of the most service in farmers' homes ,nurses for country districts should have special training in household economics. Dr. Alfred Worcester, who will open the discussion of the subject has done remarkable work in organizing medical charity in Waltham. He was identified with the pioneer work in making district nursing a part of the required course in the training of nurses, and has shown singular skill in stimulating a wide community interest in the various medical activities of his city.

Dr. Richard C. Cabot of Boston will give the leading address on Social Work with the Sick in a large city. In his work at the Massachusetts General Hosital, he felt the need of following up his cases in their own homes, in order to make the treatment prescribed effective. He has established a special department of nurses and social workers to do this "following up." Miss Catherine Brannick, employed at the Massachusetts Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary ,to do similar work, will discuss Dr. Cabot's paper.

As social work with the sick is a new departure in medical charity the presentation of the subject ought to bring out unsuspected resources for this work, and point the way toward making it effective in the widely-differing conditions presented by large and small communities.

AN UP-TO-DATE DRUGGIST

says it is surprising how many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old time-tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy, nothing equaling our grandmothers' "sage tea" has ever been discovered. Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer. Nowadays when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. This preparation is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

ANOTHER SUIT CASE MYSTERY

Apparent Case of Murder Revealed In Rhode Island

FINDING OF A WOMAN'S LEGS

Medical Examiner Says Common Handsaw Was Used to Sever Them From Trunk—Search Being Made For Rest of Body—Discovery of Rural Letter Carrier In Spot Well Suited to Conceal Evidence of Crime

Tiverton, R. I., Oct. 12.—The finding of the severed legs of a woman in a suit case among some bushes in an outlying section of this town brought to light what the authorities are convinced is a case of murder.

The possible similarity of the crime to that of the famous Susan Geary case in Boston at once suggested itself to the officials investigating, but they have made little progress toward unravelling the mystery. The discovery of a New Bedford newspaper of Oct. 10 date with the portions of the limbs in the suit case is regarded as the most important clue thus far obtained, indicating possibly the place of the murder.

The authorities are of the opinion that the woman as murdered in New Bedford, that the legs were placed in the suit case there, and brought to Tiverton Sunday night.

According to Medical Examiner Stimson the supposed murder was committed not more than twelve or fifteen hours before the suit case with its ghastly contents was discovered. That a murder was committed and that the cutting was not done by the experienced hands of a surgeon or medical student is the belief of Stimson, who says that apparently a common handsaw was used to sever the legs from the trunk.

The search for other portions of the body in the woods near the place where the suit case was found was continued by the police and volunteers all night, but no new find was reported. Should the search still be fruitless today swamps in the neighborhood will be dragged.

The spot where the suit case was found is about twenty feet from the edge of the Bulgermarsh road, at a point between 200 and 300 yards from Bliss' Four Corners in this town. It is about eight miles from New Bedford. Bulgermarsh road runs from Newport to New Bedford, passing through the outskirts of Fall River, and is much used by automobile parties.

From Bliss' Four Corners for a distance of several miles north across the Massachusetts line the country along this road is sparsely settled, consisting largely of swamp land covered with wild growth. The nearest house to the scene of the finding of the suit case is at Bliss' Four Corners.

A rural letter carrier, George Potter, was making his rounds Monday afternoon when he noticed a little path leading from the highway into the bushes. He turned off momentarily to go a short distance up this path and had scarcely gone three paces from the highway when he came upon the suit case.

Only one-half of the suit case was there, the cover being missing, and exposed to the letter carrier's horrified view were three portions of human legs, partly wrapped in newspaper. Later investigation by the medical examiner showed that the suit contained the upper portion of the right leg, that from the thigh to the knee, and that the entire other leg was also there, but cut in two pieces at the knee. The foot was quite small. The medical examiner, after taking some measurements, estimated that the woman or girl was probably five feet three inches in height and would weigh perhaps 120 pounds.

A large callous on the bottom of the foot indicated that the girl was accustomed to much walking or standing, and suggested that she may have been a working girl.

Several portions of the New Bedford Sunday Standard were lying loose near the suit case, and one portion was loosely wrapped about a section of leg. The leg pieces were not all in the suit case, one lying near by, another partly resting on the side of the case and the third within it. There were no initials on the case and no mark of any kind by which its ownership could be traced.

The authorities believe that the case was thrown from an automobile or carriage to the bushes sometime Sunday night and that the fact that it had landed in the center of a path in full view of anyone who might happen along that way was unknown to those who desired to dispose of it. In the darkness, the short path would be invisible and the bushes would look dense enough and the locality desolate enough to conceal its secret for months. It is such a place as a person bent on hiding the evidences of crime might readily select.

REFERRED TO PRESIDENT

Chief Executive Will Decide as to Crane's Fitness as a Diplomat

Washington, Oct. 12.—Today probably will see the determination of the question whether Charles R. Crane will be requested to resign his recently acquired office of minister of the United States to China or will be permitted to resume in that capacity his journey to Pekin, whither he was almost in the act of sailing from San Francisco when peremptorily summoned by Secretary Knox to return forthwith to Washington and explain his alleged responsibility for the disclosure in a newspaper dispatch of supposedly confidential information about the attitude of the United States toward the new treaties between China and Japan.

It is believed that the whole affair has been referred by Secretary Knox to President Taft. All the indications point in this direction, and the matter is expected to remain in statu quo pending receipt of advices from the president, who is in the last analysis the official superior of both the secretary of state and the minister to China.

The matter is generally regarded as embodying almost exclusively the question whether Crane has exhibited a lack of that discretion which in the eyes of the diplomatic world is a first essential in the representative of a great government at such a center of international interest as the capital of China.

DOUBTFUL TO LAST INNING

Pitsburg Team Wrests Sensational Game From the Detroits

Detroit, Oct. 12.—Pittsburg defeated Detroit in the third game of the world's championship series by the score of 8 to 6, after one of the most sensational battles in the big series.

Pittsburg gained a commanding lead, five runs, in the first inning by hitting Summers hard and with the aid of some ragged work by Detroit. Another run was added to the Pittsburg total in the second inning and the lead of six to nothing looked to be big enough to give Pittsburg an easy victory, but brilliant rallies by Detroit in the seventh and ninth innings made the outcome doubtful until the last man was out in the ninth.

HURRICANE HITS WESTERN CUBA

Five Persons Killed and Extensive Damage to Property

Havana, Oct. 12.—The most serious cyclone since the big blow of Oct. 17, 1906, struck Cuba Monday, causing extensive devastation through the whole western portion of the island. In the city of Havana many minor buildings were blown down or unroofed, almost all the trees were uprooted and five persons were killed. About twenty-five persons were injured.

The greatest damage done was in the harbor, where forty or fifty lighters, launches and small tugs were either sunk or blown ashore.

The total damage in Havana and vicinity is estimated at $1,000,000. Communication with the interior of the island has been interrupted, except with parts of Havana and Pinar del Rio provinces, in which the orange and other fruit crops suffered severely.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Three Hundred Cases In Massachusetts During Past Summer

Boston, Oct. 12.—An investigation of infantile paralysis by the state board of health has disclosed an unusual number of cases during the past summer, especially ni and about this city. More than 300 cases were reported to the board since July 1, and the distribution has been through eighty cities and towns.

Although little is known of he disease, physicians of the board are of the opinion that its existance is due to some germ. Many of the children afflicted have recovered, while others, it is feared, will have impaired nervous systems.

LOWER COURT IS SUSTAINED

Court of Appeals Affirms Sentence of Banker Morse

IS ONCE MORE IN THE TOMBS

Stay of Execution of Sentence of Fifteen Years In Penitentiary Is Granted, and Prisoner Will Be Admitted to Bail Pending Decision by Supreme Court, Before Which the Case Will Be Taken

New York, Oct. 12.—Unless the supreme court of the United States reverses the decision or President Taft interposes, Charles W. Morse, one time "ice king," coastwise steamship organizer, banker and capitalist, will serve fifteen years at hard labor in the federal prison at Atlanta.

After having been at liberty under $125,000 bail since June 17 last, he is back in the Tombs prison, where he is considering the decision of the United States circuit court of appeals, rendered Monday, sustaining the judgment of the lower federal court, which found him guilty last November of violating the national banking laws.

There was solace in the decision of the court of appeals, however, in that only ten of the fifty-three indictments on which he was convicted by a jury were sustained, and on the strength of this, his counsel, Martin W. Littleton, will immediately carry the case before the United States supreme court on a writ of certiorari. To this end the court of appeals granted a forty days' stay of execution late yesterday and pending a decision by the supreme court application will be made to have the prisoner again admitted to bail.

Morse took the decision calmly, though he was plainly distressed and perhaps surprised. He heard the news in the office of United States Marshal Henkel and was almost immediately taken to the Tombs.

Mrs. Morse was with her husband in the marshal's office. When word came that the decision was against him, she said:

"All along we had the utmost confidence that a new trial would be granted. The decision came as a great surprise to us. But my husband is brave and he will continue to struggle for his liberty. Mr. Littleton will remain in charge of his case and will try at once to secure Mr. Morse's release on bail."

One of Morse's keenest regrets in being forced to return to prison is the interruption of the struggle to rebuild his fortune. Since his liberation under bail he had been re-elected president of the Metropolitan Steamship company, a New England corporation, and of the Hudson Navigation company, operating a line of boats on the Hudson. He is also credited with having discharged the bulk of his debts. From the two big transportation lines which within the week have elected Morse as their president no official statement was forthcoming after yesterday's decision. It is understood that, for the time being, at least, the elections will stand.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

AUTOS IN THE WEST.

W. J. Varner, with his wife, has been making an automobile tour from Pratt to St. Francis in Kansas. Mr. Varner is a Kansas farmer, and his use of the touring car is indicative of the extent to which the automobile has come to have a part in the pleasures as well as the work of the western farmer. The trip is one of between 300 and 400 miles. At one stop on the road Mr. Varner is quoted as saying:

"I believe I am entitled to drive a motor car because I came to Kansas and first located in Grant County in 1884. The methods of transportation then differed considerably. They then came with ox teams, and some of them with horse or mule and one ox, which made a queer looking procession, unless you were somewhat used to it. Yes, I am a farmer ,and I have been down in Pratt County since 1894. I have never been over this road before, which makes it all the more interesting to myself and wife. We have been making good time but we are in no particular hurry."

Mr. Varner on his trip wore rough working clothes, and his wife wore a striped apron and sunbonnet. They gave evidence of being out for enjoyment and not for style.

At a recent bankers' convention in Chicago James J. Hill of the Great Northern railway directed attention to what he considered an alarming tendency in the disposition of farmers and their families to leave the country and make homes in the city. Attention has since been specifically called to the fact that this tendency is being counteracted by the use of the automobile on the farm and ranch. An observer of the tendency among farmers toward motoring says in response to Mr. Hill:

"At one time there were a dozen uses for a certain kind of wagon which might be described today as an unspecialized type. Today a number of agricultural implements accomplish in themselves a part of the service which was heretofore accomplished by such wagons; and, with one exception ,the remainder of the services performed by that wagon is now found to be better performed by a more specialized type; that exception is the transportation of the farmer and his people from one point to another. The new specialized type is not convenient for this purpose, and the farmer resorts to the automobile. He goes to town every day perhaps and spends very little time in doing so instead of every week at the expense of an entire day and service of 'a team.'

"The automobile makes the quarter-section farmers of the west near neighbors and develops a sense of community in agricultural districts which was utterly impossible with the former methods of transportation. It makes the farmer's life and surroundings much more liberal and, under many conditions, far more attractive, even to the young people, than the life of the city.

"The automobile is not a disadvantage to the agriculturist, but it is one of the most potent factors co-operating with his own splendid efforts and accomplishments toward agricultural development."

For backache is really kidney-ache.
A kidney cure is what you need.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys,
Cure back ache and all urinary ills.
Quincy people recommend the remedy.

Mrs. F. Olsen, living at 197 Whitwell street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time my back was weak and gave me a great deal of trouble. I could not sit up in a chair no more than a few minutes at a time without having severe pains in my loins. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells and at times was very nervous. I was becoming discouraged when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store, began their use, and received immediate relief. I did not expect to be speedily cured as my condition was so serious, but I can say that the results could not have been more satisfactory. In a few weeks' time my health was restored and I felt better generally. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly have my highest endorsement."

DIE STOICALLY IN THE CHAIR

Three Chinamen Electrocuted In Charlestown State Prison

ALL WITHIN TWENTY MINUTES

All Received Into Roman Catholic Faith and Walk to Death Without Objection—Witnesses Turn Heads Away as Youth of Nineteen Meets His Doom—Two Others Under Death Sentence For Chinatown Murders

Boston, Oct. 12.—Mongolian stoicism manifest in every line of their countenances, their heads erect, their bodies straight, their steps firm, stolid, and seemingly indifferent to their fate, Hom Woon, Min Sing and Leong Gong, three Chinamen, alone, friendless, aliens in a foreign land, went to their death in the electric chair at the Charlestown state prison this morning, executed by the commonwealth for participation in the murders of four of their countrymen in a raid on a rival Tong in Boston's Chinatown on Aug. 2, 1907.

Each Mongolian went to his death apparently in full realization that his soul was to join those of his ancestors and resigned to his fate. Each had accepted the Roman Catholic faith, having been baptized last Sunday by Rev. Fr. Austin D. Malley, the prison chaplain, who preceded each of the men as they advanced to the chair after receiving a short time previous the last sacraments of the church.

With his crucifix held high above and in front of the face of the man in the chair, Father Malley repeated The Lord's Prayer. On the signal for the current to be turned on he dropped to his knees and was clearly the most affected witness in the death chamber.

Hom Woon, aged 35 years, was the first victim. The current was turned on at 12:13:37. Death was was instantaneous, but a slight pulsation of the heart being revealed by the stethescope of the three examining physicians, the current was applied the second time at 12:19. The man was declared officially dead at 12:22.

Hom Woon was the only one of the trio to evince the slightest resistance to being seated in the chair. With his hands braced against the arms of the chair, he stiffened his body and had to be forced into a sitting position, but he uttered no sound and made no other effort to avoid his fate.

Min Sing, aged 21, seated himself easily in the chair, his face entirely devoid of expression. The buckles were quickly strapped, the electrodes placed and the current turned on at 12:27:30. The straps binding down the left wrist had been left unbuckled, and as the body contracted under the powerful current the man's wrist turned and his straightened forefinger pointed upward.

A pulsation, slighter than that of Hom Woon, showing, the current was turned on the second time at 12:33 to completely annul the muscular action. The second victim was pronounced officially dead at 12:37:05.

Execution of a Boy

A tender, pitying look flashed over the faces of the witnesses and not a few turned away their heads as the third victim, Leong Gong, aged 19, shuffled boyishly into the room behind the giant guard whose duty it was to open and close the doors as he passed.

He was but a boy, full of life, apparently curiously interested in everything in the room, and as he seated himself in the chair he shifted his position gracefully and easily, apparently anxious to assist the guards all that he could. It was a relief when the face strap shut out his gaze and his life went out at 12:41:10.

Father Malley, who up to this time had borne himself with remarkable fortitude, dropped to his knees with a very audible expression of grief, and crossed himself again and again. Not a single pulsation of the heart was found by the first physician to place his stethescope over the boy's heart, so complete had been the demolition of his youthful frame, and death was officially pronounced at 12:46:38.

The electrician announced that in the first execution 1900 volts of 6½ to 7 amperes had been used; in the second 1860 volts with 7½ to 8½ amperes, and the third 1860 volts with 8 to 9 amperes. The duration of the current in each instance was 1 minute, 10 seconds.

The execution was witnessed by Warden Benjamin F. Bridges, who in each instance gave the signal for the turning on of the current as he caught the exhalation of the lungs by the single raising of his gold-headed cane, and seven other persons, including a representative of the press.

The crime for which Min Sing, Leong Gong and Hom Woon were executed and for participation in which Warry Charles and Joe Guey are under sentence of death, while four other Chinamen have been granted new trials after having been convicted of first degree murder, was the "shooting up" of Boston's Chinatown on Aug. 2, 1907, when four Mongolians met their death and a dozen more were injured.

SEPTEMBER WEATHER.

As Reported by L. A. Wells of Blue Hills Observatory.

The weather during September was cooler than usual, the mean temperature of 60.2 degrees being 1.3 degrees below the normal for the month. The highest record was 78 degrees on the 3d, and the lowest was 41 degrees on the sixth. The total rainfall was 4.42 inches, which is slightly less than the usual amount. From the 22d to the 29th rain fell on each day and the total for this period was 3.17 inches.

There was about the average amount of cloudiness and the relative humidity was higher than usual. The total amount of sunshine of 172 hours was 9 per cent less than the normal and on four days there was no sunshine. There was less wind than usual and the prevailing direction was northeast. Frost occurred in the surrounding low lands on the morning of the 20th.

THE OCTOBER HEAVENS.

Mars and Saturn Steadily Approaching Each Other.

For several weeks past Mars has been the most striking object in the heavens. It approached nearest the earth on the 19th ult., but while its brightness varied little during the month, its distance will now increase so rapidly that the planet during October will lose half of its light. Mars is moving slowly westward; Oct. 26, it begins to move eastward, and after this date the observer may see the two bright planets, Mars and Saturn, steadily approaching one another. As the weeks go by they will draw nearer and nearer together but Mars will not finally pass Saturn till the last day of this year, when the two planets will shine out eogether in the southwest, three degrees apart.

Saturn is the bright star about four degrees east of Mars. It comes into opposition with the sun Oct. 13; on this date it is due south at midnight and at its nearest approach of the year, but throughout the entire autumn it will be in excellent position for observation.

The brilliant Venus shines out after sunset, low in the southwest. During October its brightness steadily increases ,and the observer cannot fail to notice how very rapidly it is running southward in the sky. Each evening it must be looked for farther and farther toward the south point of the horizon; until Nov. 9. On this date it begins to move northward, mounting up so rapidly that it soon becomes very conspicuous. Oct. 31 it remains above the horizon for two and one-half hours after the sun has disappeared.

Jupiter is a morning star this month, but it is too near the sun to be observed.

EXPLORING NEW YORK.

I am a life-long resident of New York city, my parents having lived down on Market street long before I was born, and that is nearly fifty years ago. About thirty years ago we moved to the West Side.

I had always thought that the conditions in the so-called Irish tenement districts were bad, but lately I made my first visit to the East Side in a number of years, and it was an eye opener to me. The conditions which prevail at present in the district from the Brooklyn to the Harlem bridge, east of the Bowery and Third avenue, are the limit.

That the three races Slavs, Jews and Indians, which make up about 90 per cent of the population could have been any worse off in their native places than they are here, is beyond belief. If any Congress committee wants to study the immigration question at first hand, let the members spend a week in this district and they will become converts to restricted immigration very quickly. This may sound strange from the son of Irish emigrants, but the largest part of the emigration that we are receiving now is of that kind which is congesting old New York to such a degree that living conditions for the average middle class man are impossible. It is no wonder that thousands of them are moving away every year, and in years to come New York will be city of the very rich and the miserable poor.—John Walsh.

THE MARATHON WINNER.

W. J. Hackett, of North Weymouth, employed at the shipyard, the young winner of the Marathon at the Brockton Fair on Friday is quoted as follows in the Brockton Enterprise of Saturday. "The little girl in Randolph who gave me that bouquet helped me to win more than anything else. I was pretty nearly all in then, but those flowers gave me new courage, and I kept thinking of them all the way to the finish. Don't give me the credit; give it to my trainers. Did I expect to win? Sure! What did I go in for? This is my first Marathon, but you can enter me now for next year. I'm tickled to death to win, and I know the folks at home will be glad too."

—Cuba can be congratulated upon the fact that in the year from June 1908, to June, 1909, her securities appreciated in value, and the figures include private corporations, as well as state and municipal bonds. Her increase in revenue is steady if slow, and all of the industries of the island are reported to be in a healthy condition. A record sugar crop is expected, and in commerce ,a trade balance of over $30,000,000 is predicted. For a nation that was so long a dependent, and composed of people whose temperament makes self-rule a difficult thing, the above showing is one highly complimentary, and promises well for the future. Nations like individuals, must creep before they walk, and every encouragement should be held out to those at the head of that government which is honestly endeavoring to take her proper place, and with such a good prospect of doing it.—Old Colony Memorial.

James O'Neil the West Quincy postman is receiving congratulations all along his route, his family having been increased by the advent of a baby.

The sightly and commodious house building for Mr. and Mrs. Horace F. Spear at Marshfield Hills is nearing completion. It is to be of cement and masons are now at work putting on the mortar.

John Allila who has been at the City Hospital for six weeks with typhoid fever has returned to his home on Grove street and hopes soon to be back at his work with the Blue Hill Quarry Company.

The family of Benjamin Johnson who have been at their bungalow at Adams shore during the summer and fall are to occupy the Stoddard house on the corner of Hancock and Bridge streets this winter. They will move in this week.

BUILDING BOOM.

Four Large Houses to be Erected on the Pratt Estate Spear Street.

Four small modern houses are to be immediately erected on the E. G. Pratt estate on Spear street. Two thirds of the estate has recently been sold by the Quincy Savings bank to Mrs. Addie Bridgham and Mrs. Ellen B. Withington of Cohasset. The parties were negotiating for the whole of the estate but only secured about two thirds of it. It was understood at first that flat houses were to be erected, but this morning it was given out that four single houses were to be erected. Two of them will be occupied by the owners and the remaining two will be let.

Up to the present time permits for but two of the houses have been taken out from the Inspector of Buildings. These call for two houses 28 by 25 feet. The plans call for three rooms on each floor and it is understood that they are to be let all furnished.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANK.

Since the action of the American Bankers' Association in declaring open war on President Taft's proposal for postal savings banks the Postal Savings Bank League, whose headquarters are Chicago, has undertaekn to support the proposed measure with renewed efforts. It is realized that only united action can prevent some years of delay in the adoption of a plan which the United States must ultimately follow, as has practically every other civilized country.

The postal savings propaganda will be carried into New England not only from the Chicago office but from Boston where a New England branch has been organized with Frederick W. Coburn, a writer on popular economic subjects, as its secretary. Mr. Coburn has also been connected with the savings bank life insurance movement from its beginning soon after Mr. Brandeis' investigation showed the need of a reform in methods administering industrial life insurance.

As regards the postal savings plan it is realized that the popular impression of there being no need for more savings institutions in New England is quite erroneous. Even in Massachusetts, which is better supplied with savings banks than any other American state, 172 towns are without a savings bank. Some of these contain good sized villages whose people have to ride five, ten or even fifteen miles to find an institution in which to deposit their savings. Maine has 400 postoffices and but 42 savings banks. The other states of northern New England are but little better supplied. The simple fact is that eNw England although supposed to be the home of thrift has many communities in which the kind of incentive to save that would be offered if every post office were authorized to receive small deposits upon which a low rate of interest would be paid, is distinctly lacking.

In addition to the campaign of education which will be carried forward in this section from the New England office, there will be considerable effect on public opinion from the spirited articles and appeals for dollar subscriptions are being made through the Chicago magazine, the Woman's World, which has the largest circulation of any periodical published anywhere and of which a good fair percentage is in New England.

That the proposed postal savings system would not be harmful in any way to the existing savings banks is the opinion of Mayor W. Cooker of Hartford who has written to the management of the Postal Savings Bank League as follows:

"I do not agree with our savings bank officers that a national system of savings will hurt them in the least, but they seem to look at the matter in what to me is a selfish way, and feel that the postal savings bank would hurt their business. I earnestly hope that your efforts will be successful, as I believe the postal bank would be a great benefit to the entire country, and would in no way hurt the savings bank, but would also be a benefit to this institution.",

An officer of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League, which is devoted to assisting the introduction of the savings bank life insurance and old age annuities in various communities, expresses a similar sentiment in saying. "Whatever will stir our savings banks up to more actively meeting, the requirements of the whole people is bound to be a good thing.

Every institution that promotes thrift helps every other institution of the same general kind. We need in New England just the kind of competition that postal savings banks would create for the savings banks—just as the competition of savings bank life insurance has already aroused the great life insurance companies to lower their rates and make plans for welfare work among their policy holders."

—The State Board of Health is preparing to send out to all school boards and school committees an illustrated pamphlet entitled, "Death in School Drinking-cups," which deserves their very earnest consideration. Alvin Davison, M. S., Ph. D., professor of biology in Lafayette College, is the author of the essay, which originally appeared in The Technical World magazine. In clear and simple terms Dr. Davison describes experiments which proved that the germs of grip, pneumonia, diphtheria, tonsilitis, tuberculosis and other diseases are conveyed by common drinking-cups; and he gives good reasons for his conclusion, which the State Board thus urges upon the school authorities, that public safety requires that individual cups be used or that sanitary drinking-fountains be provided.—Transcript.

☞The sale of the large tract of land on Spear street to out of town people was made through an advertisement in the Ledger. The land has been on the market for years and when it became the property of the Quincy Savings Bank they immediately advertised it at a reasonable figure with the result that a quick sale was made without commission to real estate brokers. It pays to advertise in the Ledger.

☞Those in want of a new suit, or who wish to have their clothes cleaned and pressed, should call on J. Nathan, 14 Granite street, next door to Hotel Greenleaf, (just around the corner.) Courteous treatment to all.

New York, Oct. 12.—The decree of the United States circuit court ordering the foreclosure of all the property of the Western Maryland Railroad company in the suit brought by the Equitable Trust company of New York was filed here with Commissioner Shields.

The decree provides that in default of payment by the defendant railroad within five days of $10,894,-022.23, with interest, to the Equitable Trust company, as trustee, the entire railroad property shall be sold at public auction on a date to be fixed by the special master.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

Arrest of Recluse For Crime Committed Many Months Ago

Providence, Oct. 12.—Joseph P. Corbett, a Seekonk, Mass., recluse, was arrested late yesterday on a warrant charging him with the murder of Charles F. Randall, the paymaster of the Glenlyon Dye Works, East Providence, Jan. 22 of this year.

A secret indictment was brought in by the grand jury and a few hours later the man was taken into custody at his shack by Deputy Sheriff Kinnecom.

He was removed to the central police headquarters here and will be brought into court today.

Italians Celebrate Columbus Day

New York, Oct. 12.—New York and New Jersey are celebrating a brand new holiday today—Columbus day—commemorating the discovery of the new world by the Genoese navigator. The celebration here is for the most part by Italians.

Socialist Gains In Germany

Berlin, Oct. 12.—In a by-election in Coburg the Socialists won another seat from the National Liberals. The Socialist gains are attributed to the dissatisfaction prevailing in the country over the new taxes.

DRIVING A NAIL.

More to It Than Simply Hammering It Into the Wood.

One who thinks that the driving of a nail consists simply in getting the whole length of it out of sight has little conception of the real nature of the operation, says the Scientific American. A nail driven by an expert will often hold several times as much as one ill driven, while, too, it is often made to draw the parts into place. If you have ever watched a mechanic driving nails you have doubtless noted that he rarely drives one at right angles with the face of the work. There is a reason for this. Suppose that he is nailing the "sheeting" on the frame of a building and desires to draw the board down tightly against the one below it. He points the nail downward, and a few well considered blows at the last produce the desired effect. If the board is bent edgewise, so that much force is required, probably he will start the nail in the upper edge, pointing very sharply downward. Again, two nails driven in a board at different angles will hold it in place much more firmly than the same nails would if they were driven at right angles with the face of the board.

Did you ever notice that in driving a nail in very hard wood one man will do it successfully, while another succeeds only in doubling the nail up before the point has fairly entered the wood? The difference lies in the fact that the expert strikes the nail fairly and not too hard, "coaxing" it in, while the other strikes too hard and with indirection. It may be properly mentioned right here that in driving a nail into very hard wood it is usually profitable to dip the end in oil or grease. This will not sensibly interfere with the holding qualities of the nail, while it will be found to very materially facilitate its driving.

His One Good Trait.

Loafer—Can yer spare us a 'a'penny, mate?

Workingman—Wotcher want a 'a'penny for?

Loafer—Cos I got one, and I wants another for the price of 'arf a pint.

Workingman—Ever done a day's work in yer life?

Loafer—No, guv'nor, cawn't say as I 'ave.

Workingman—Well, yer never done a pore bloke out of a job, anyway. 'Ere's yer 'a'penny.—London Punch.

Those Useless Questions.

"Billy, did you ever pick up a live trolley wire with your bare hands?"

"Many a time."

"Didn't it give you a shock?"

"Give me a shock? It killed me dead every time."—Chicago Tribune.

His Opening.

Oatcake—What be your son Jake a-goin' ter dew now that he hez left college?

Heyrix—I dunno yit. He's talkin' some of bein' a doctor, but I've heern tell ez heow thar be a heap uv money in bankruptcy, so mebby he'll try that fer a spell.—Chicago News.

His Bald Spot.

Little Margie's father had a bald spot. While kissing him at bedtime one evening she said:

"Stoop down, papa. I want to kiss you on the head where the lining shows."

The greatest of all faults, I should say, is to be conscious of none.—Carlyle.

STARTS EAST TONIGHT

President Is Having an Enjoyable Trip In Southern California

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 12.—President Taft arrived in the hospitable flower land of southern California and received an enthusiastic greeting. He visited first the deep water and inner harbors of San Pedro. Returning to Los Angeles he was taken for a ride through crowded streets.

The president passed in review of the schoolchildren and made an address to them in which he sought to inculcate a lesson in patriotism by catechising them about the meaning of the flag and their idea of the liberty which it represents. Last evening Mr. Taft was the guest of honor at a banquet at the Shriner auditorium.

The president's visit to Los Angeles primarily was arranged that he might spend a day or two with his sister, Mrs. W. A. Edwards. He rested at his sister's home for a time late yesterday afternoon and spent the night there.

Today the president will be taken to Pasadena and through the orange districts of Riverside. Late tonight he will start for the east on the latter half of his long trip, and both in point of time and in mileage his journey will be half completed.

INSTIGATED REVOLUTION

Sentence of Death Is Pronounced Upon Anarchist Ferrer

Madrid, Oct. 12.—Francisco Ferrer, the former director of the modern school at Barcelona, who has been on trial at that city on the charge of having been the principal instigator of the recent revolutionary movement, has been sentenced to death. He will be shot Wednesday night unless his sentence is countermanded.

Ferrer, who was charged by the Spanish government with being a notorious anarchist, was arrested on Sept. 1 and was accused of being directly responsible for the serious rioting in Barcelona shortly before that date.

Ferrer's arrest caused a great deal of agitation, not only in Spain, but in parts of France and Italy as well.

DEWEY FILES HIS NOMINATION PAPERS

Hitch to Be Decided by Ballot Law Commissioners

Boston, Oct. 12.—Although Henry S. Dewey filed with Secretary of State Olin late yesterday nomination papers bearing sufficient signatures to secure the placing of his name on the ballot as "Theocratic" candidate for governor at the coming state election, Olin refused to accept the papers as being in legal form.

Secretary Olin takes the ground that Dewey's failure to have one of the signers on each of the forty-seven sheets comprising the papers take oath as to the truth of the statements therein invalidates the papers. Dewey secured but one oath for the entire list, taking the ground that the forty-seven sheets constituted a single nomination paper. Olin will call the matter to the attention of the ballot law commissioners today.

MARTIAL LAW IN KEY WEST

Enormous Damage by Hurricane In City and Its Harbor

Key West, Oct. 12.—As a result of the hurricane which struck the southern coast of Florida Key West is a mass of wreckage and the damage to property is estimated at $2,000,-000.

Martial law was proclaimed by the mayor last night and the Key West guards are patrolling the city.

Of 100 local vessels in the harbor Monday morning but five remain at anchor, the others having either gone to sea or been washed upon the beaches.

Brick as well as frame buildings throughout the city suffered alike from the fury of the heavy wind and there were many miraculous escapes from death or serious injury.

Tramps Placed Body of Unconscious Brakeman Across Railroad Track

Newburyport, Mass., Oct. 12.—After rendering George E. Taylor, a brakeman, senseless while he was coupling cars outside this city, two tramps robbed him of $19 and then placed him across tracks upon which a freight was due within five minutes.

Fortunately, other members of his crew noticed his absence and removed Taylor in time. Taylor recovered consciousness at a late hour last night. No trace of his assailants has been secured.

The tropical storm center passed over Key West at noon Monday, when the barometer registered 28.50 inches and the wind attained a maximum velocity of seventy-two miles an hour. On account of the recurving of the storm to the northeastward, the gulf coast is now not within the danger zone.

Forecast for New England: Rain; increasing southeast to south winds.

Cure For Disconsolate Lovers.

Somebody has dug out of an old book of the time of Queen Elizabeth the following advice to a slighted and despondent lover:

Tye one end of a rope righte over a beame
And make a slippe noose at the other extreame.
Just under the beame lett a bucket be sett;
On it let the lovier most manfullie gett.
Right over his heade be left the snicket be gott
And under his eare well fastened the knott.
The buckett kicked cleare, lett him take a full swinge
And leave alle the reste of the worke to the stringe!

Trusting the Dog's Judgment.

Friend—What on earth are you doing to that painting of yours? Dauber—Can't you see? I'm rubbing a piece of raw meat over the rabbit in the foreground. Mrs. Alshoddle will be here today, and when she sees her pet dog smell of that rabbit she'll buy it.—Judge.

A Witty Widow.

A widow of the name of Rugg, having taken Sir Charles Price for her second husband, was asked by a friend how she liked the change.

"Oh," she replied, "I parted with my old Rugg for a good Price."

The Missing Part.

Landlady—You say the chicken soup isn't good? Why, I told the cook how to make it. Perhaps she didn't catch the idea. Boarder—No; I think it was the chicken she didn't catch.

Diplomacy.

"But what made you irritate her father?"

"I had to do it. I wasn't any too popular with the girl until her father forbade me the house."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

After Him.

Aunt Crabbe—I think it is my duty to tell you that I have heard from several sources that Mr. Brown is a very fast young man! Daisy—Fast as he is, I shall catch him yet, auntie!—London Fun.

Very Close.

Warden—How's the campaign going up your way? Sort of a close contest? Sellers (gloomily)—Closest I ever saw. Neither side is giving up a blamed cent.—Buffalo Courier.

According to a professor of the university of Chicago the real test to education could be found in being able to make an affirmative answer to the following questions:

Has education given you sympathy with all good causes and made you eager to espouse them?

Has it made you public-spirited?

Has it made you brother to the weak?

Have you learned how to make friends and keep them? Do you know what it is to be a friend yourself?

Can you look an honest man or a pure woman straight in the eye?

Do you see anything to love in a little child?

Will a lonely dog follow you in the street?

Can you be highminded and happy in the meaner drudgeries of life?

Do you think washing dishes and hoeing corn just as compatible with high thinking as piano playing or golf?

Are you good for anything to yourself? Can you be happy alone?

Can you look out on the world and see anything except dollars and cents?

Can you look into a mud puddle by the wayside and see the clear sky? Can you see anything in the puddle but mud?

Can you look into the sky at night and see beyond the stars?

Can your soul claim relationship with the Creator?

Wonderful questions which were applied to a class in the university wonderful thoughts which will prove an inspiration to every person minded to obtain the benefits of a real education and an incentive to apply the test to every day living and to every day study whether in the school room ,at the club, in the quiet of the library or at home, on the street and in every day contact with the world in trade, in busy thoroughfare or in the social and philanthropic influences with every one in some way has a share.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Members of the Quincy Women's club gathered at the club house in goodly numbers on Tuesday afternoon, it being the first meeting of the season and inaugurating a new set of officers, the biennial election having occurred in May. Mrs. Gurney's words of welcome, kindly chosen and graciously delivered, found a ready response in every heart and opened the meeting most happily. The business of the afternoon immediately followed, the reports from several committees showing a large amount of work accomplished during the summer.

Mrs. MacKay, of the Education Committee reported the children's gardens and sloyd exhibition at City hall the last of August the most interesting of any yet offered in this work, and that the summer classes for girls at the Club house had been most successful and encouraging. Of new work planned by her committee, the most important was a movement to establish a lunch counter at the High school where children might obtain good food at moderate prices. This work if started, promised to be self-supporting and for that reason it was earnestly requested that the club loan to this committee one hundred dollars to start the work.

Mrs. Shaw of the Civic Betterment, told of the Children's play-grounds established in co-operation with the Y. M. C. A. with an average attendance of 92 daily during the five weeks it was continued and showed interesting photographs of the playground, children and teachers. She considered this an important work to continue and enlarge another year.

Mrs. Whitcher reported 300 visits made by the visiting nurse during the summer and urged a more wide spread knowledge of this branch of the club work and the fact that there is no set fee for the nurse, that being left to the consideration and means of the people needing her services.

Mrs. Bickford of the Art and Literature offered an opportunity to members interested in Current Events to form a class under Mrs. May Alden Ward.

Mrs. Wade of the Home Economics announced that a woman's exchange was established and that a series of five demonstration lectures at the club house would be arranged the charge to club members $1, to non-members $1.50.

Miss Turner, chairman of Philanthropy invited co-operation in establishing the proposed young women's club, the first meeting of which was set for Saturday evening Oct. 30th.

Mrs. E. S. Tenney of Arts and Crafts, invited all club members interested in that branch of the club work to come to the club house next Tuesday afternoon when all branches of the work and plans for classes would be fully explained.

The matter of loaning money to the Education committee then came up for consideration and it was voted to loan the desired $100, for two years, at the usual rate of interest allowed at the savings bank. It was also voted to make all ex-presidents of the club honorary members.

After the business meeting, a reception to the new officers and new members gave every one an opportunity to exchange a word of greeting with them and this social hour was thoroughly enjoyed.

An exhibition and sale in the Arts and Crafts room attracted many as did also the first sale of the re-established Woman's Exchange in the executive board room.

Mrs. Russell C. Low, Chairman of the Hospitality Committee, assisted by Mrs. Forrest B. Royal and Miss Frances Wilson were the hostesses for the afternoon. At the tea tables the pourers were Mrs. William E. Alden, Mrs. Clarence Burgin and Miss Flora Underwood, who were assisted by members whose names began with A and B. Delightful music by the Y. M. C. A. orchestra added much to the pleasure of the occasion.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

Quincy Alliance began its season on Monday afternoon meeting in First Church chapel at three o'clock with an attendance of fifty members and guests. Mrs. E. B. Marsh, the new president greeted the members in a very cordial manner. .She spoke feelingly of the shadow thrown over the Alliance by the death of three of its members—Mrs. George W. Prescott, Mrs. L. Annie Pierce and Miss Emeline Newcomb.

The usual devotional and business sessions were followed by music which was unusually pleasing, Mrs. John D. Buckingham singing several pieces in her sweet sympathetic voice, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Otho A. Hayward.

Mrs. George G. Saville one of the directors was to have greeted the Alliance but owing to illness was not present. Mrs. Chandler W. Smith gave an interesting report of the National Conference held in Chicago in September.

After more music the meeting closed with a social half hour, the hostesses being Mrs. J. Henry Emery and Miss M. Flora Underwood.

OLD MEN WANTED.

There is a decided revolution going on in the business world relative to the opinions of employers as to the value of the more elderly men in the service of mercantile houses and elsewhere. The elderly men have been active in life's battle and made a success, have an experience to draw from which the younger men have yet to acquire. By a combination of the two, the one for counsel and the other for the more active duties of life, much would be gained which would prove desirable toward attaining success. Therefore leave a place for the elderlies, or those who have passed that half century of life and have a fair degree of health. There is sterling stuff in the majority of such men, which the world can ill afford to lose, and while we have a cheerful welcome for the younger class, we advise the retaining of those so far as possible, who have made a good record along life's journey and are alive to the duties of the hour and willing to serve a time longer ere they bid adieu to the duties which they are still able to fill with honor to themselves and those with whom they are associated. Give the so-called elderlies a fair chance and it will stimulate them to keep alive their business faculties and render them of continued service to the world—Boston Courier.

MIDNIGHT DOCTORS

are the most unwelcome visitors—even the Doctor himself curses the luck that compelled him to leave his comfortable bed. Suppose you try our method, and keep a big 35c. bottle of Perry Davis' Painkiller in the house and let the Doctor stay in bed and enjoy himself.

EVENING SCHOOLS.

The primary object of the evening schools is to make better citizens. There can be no more solid basis in the foundation of a city than an intelligent class of citizens. The evening schools reach aliens who are beyond the compulsory age, but still desire some training. They cater to climbers who cannot even read nor write their own name and those who, in the elementary grades, have acquired some little education. Haverhill maintains two schools in which elementary grade work is taught. That is work which, in the public day schools, is carried on in the first eight grades. One for the boys, and the other is for girls. The statistics, giving the enrollment of pupils on the opening night, show that there are nearly three times as many boys who take advantage of the sessions than girls. This in a measure may be accounted for in the fact that the men want to learn to read and write so that they may be naturalized and go on the voting list. Of course some of them are more ambitious than this and the teachers in the schools report that a grand work is ahead of them. It is the hope of the school committee that the young women will take more interest, for every effort has been exerted to give them the same course and privileges that are granted to the men.

Superintendent of Schools C. A. Record is a firm advocate of evening school work. In his mind, it is the best way to build up the community. His heart and soul is in the movement and his interest has gone a long ways in arousing the teachers under whose charge the work is carried on. It is surprising to observe the interest which the instructors manifest. They feel that they are bound by a sense of duty which they cannot escape—the duty of moulding the character and capabilities of future citizens.

It is hoped that every young man and woman who intends to make Haverhill his home will take advantage of the opportunity and attend the night schools.—Haverhill Gazette.

THE CHILD IN SCHOOL.

What the school can do to serve the home is the idea which the Committee on the welfare of the Child in School and Home have decided to bring out in the meeting they have charge of at the State Sonference of Charities in Boston on Tuesday evening, October 19th.

The tendency hitherto has been to see what the school could do to supplement the home. The home has been receding and the school taking its place in many ways. It now largely supplies the playground which the home used to supply. It is beginning to supply training for practical occupations, and even in cooking, sewing and housework. Through the school doctor and school nurse it is taking charge to some extent of the child's physical welfare. For those who believe that the public should not do everything for the child but that the home is his natural habitat without which he can never grow to his full development, the question now is what can the school do, not by way of taking more things away from the home, but by helping the home to make good with what is left.

Mrs. Ellen H. Richards, Professor of Chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who has devoted many years to the subject of teaching domestic science, will show what the school can do to prepare future mothers for their work.

Dr. George S. C. Badger, school physician and member of the committee on hygiene appointed by the Boston School Committee, will show what the school doctor and school nurse can do, not merely by sending word home as to physical ailments, but by showing the mother how to deal with them.

There will be a kindergartner to show what the kindergarten has done by making parents and children better acquainted.

Miss E. T. Upjohn, superintendent of nurses of the out-patient department of the Boston Consumptives Hospital, will tell of the service not merely to the physical but to the spiritual up-building of the home that a visitor can do.

Mr. Francis Bardwell, for a number of years town clerk in Sherborn and now employed by the State Board of Charity as visitor to almshouses, will tell how the ideas brought out by the other speakers apply in the country town.

MAY CROSS GREAT LAKE

Big Balloon Leaves St. Louis In Effort to Win the Lahm Cup

St. Louis, Oct. 13.—In an effort to exceed all American balloon records for distance and win the Lahm cup, A. H. Forbes and Max Fleischmann sailed away from St. Louis in the balloon New York at 5:35 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The big gas bag went directly east. Ballast amounting to 2000 pounds was in the basket.

Forbes, the pilot, who is acting president of the Aero Club of America, expects to land in Canada in the vicinity of the St. Lawrence valley. The balloon, according to the weather observer, will cross one of the great lakes. Life preservers, water anchors, rifles and heavy clothing are among the paraphernalia in the basket.

REFORESTRATION IN ITALY.

Italy, which has suffered extremely in the past from the ruin which follows the removal of protective forests is now among the leading nations working for the conservation of forest resources. Extensive operations in reafforestation have been going on for forty years, and the Italian Secretary of Agriculture has just published his report on the progress made in that time.

This report indicates that the Italian Government is keenly aware of the value of forests to the country, and that it is determined to bring its deforested lands into a forested state as soon again as possible. To attain this end, planting operations have been conducted on government land to such an extent that during the last thirty years 122,000 acres have been planted in twenty-five of the provinces of Italy. Of this area, 69,000 acres, or approximately 108 square miles, were planted in the year 1907 alone causing an outlay of nearly 2,000,000 dollars and giving employment to a large number of men.

Reafforestation has been carried on so vigorously that there now remains only about 36,000 acres of government land in need of planting. In addition to conducting planting operations on a large scale, the Italian Government has during the last forty years distributed over 130,000,000 young trees and 237,600 pounds of seed, an amount sufficient to restock approximately 100,000 acres of land, to the people in an effort to encourage planting and sowing by private persons. As the forest area of Italy amounts to only slightly more than 10,000 000 acres, this planting by the government and private persons amounts to approximately one-fortieth of the total forest area of Italy. Further steps must be taken by the government, however, before its forest policy will prove the success of some of its European neighbors.

Forest fires still continue to be the cause of heavy damage. During the year 1907, 1294 fires were reported with an estimated loss of $194,400.00. While this amount is insignificant when compared with the yearly loss from fires in the United States, it is large relatively speaking and would be viewed almost as a calamity in the better managed German forests. Of these fires, ninety-four were due to criminal design, 267 to culpable negligence, 132 to accident, and the rest to unknown causes.

Fire, however is not the only enemy of the Italian woods. The small land owner often fells recklessly and sometimes with good excuse because of the heavy taxation of timberlands. Large tracts which used to be covered by a thick growth of chestnut have, even during recent years, been stripped of every tree.

Like all other countries where forestry is successfully practiced, Italy must not only resort to planting the cut-over areas, but must also perfect a system of fire protection and enact laws to relieve timberlands of excessive taxation.

WOMEN AS VOTE-GETTERS

Citizens of Saratoga Get Ample Evidence of Their Ability

Saratoga, N Y., Oct. 13.—Women's suffrage had a test here when the women of the village worked at the polls all day at the annual school election, distributing tickets on the streets, escorting parties to the polls in automobiles and carriages, acting as "poll drivers" and voting by the hundreds.

As a result of their efforts nearly 4000 votes were cast, the largest in the history of the village. As the "suffragettes" were divided in their support of the candidates the result furnished no indication of their individual ability as vote-getters.

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. MODERN HAIR DRESSING has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

PEARY'S EVIDENCE AGAINST DR. COOK

Alleges Cook Did Not Reach North Pole.

PROOF OF STATEMENT.

Witnesses Quoted Are Cook's Eskimo Boys.

NATIVES LAUGH AT CLAIM.

Point Out Limit of Explorer's Journey on Carefully Prepared Map.

New York, October 12.—The following statement of Commander Robert E. Peary, which he submitted, together with the accompanying map, to the Peary Arctic Club in support of his contention that Dr. Cook did not reach the North Pole, is now made public for the first time. The statement and map have been copyrighted by the Peary Arctic Club.

(Entered according to Act of congress, in the year 1909, by the Peary Arctic Club, in the office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, D. C.)

INTRODUCTION BY PEARY.

Some of my reasons for saying that Dr. Cook did not go to the North Pole will be understood by those who read the following statements of the two Eskimo boys who went with him, and who told me and others of my party where he did go. Several Eskimos who started with Dr. Cook from Anoratok in February, 1908, were at Etah when I arrived there in August, 1908. They told me that Dr. Cook had with him, after they left, two Eskimo boys or young men, two sledges and some twenty dogs. The boys were I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah. I had known them from their childhood. One was about eighteen and the other about nineteen years of age.

On my return from Cape Sheridan and at the very first settlement I touched (Nerke, near Cape Chalon) in August, 1909, and nine days before reaching Etah, the Eskimos told me, in a general way, where Dr. Cook had been; that he had wintered in Jones Sound and that he had told the white men at Etah that he had been a long way north, but that the boys who were with him, I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, said that this was not so. The Eskimos laughed at Dr. Cook's story. On reaching Etah, I talked with the Eskimos there and with the two boys and asked them to describe Dr. Cook's journey to members of my party and myself. This they did in the manner stated below.

(Signed) R. E. PEARY.

SIGNED STATEMENT OF PEARY, BARTLETT, McMILLAN, BORUP AND HENSON, IN REGARD TO TESTIMONY OF COOK'S TWO ESKIMO BOYS.

The two Eskimo boys, I-took-a-shoo and Ah-pe-lah, who accompanied Dr. Cook while he was away from Anoratok in 1908 and 1909, were questioned separately and independently, and were corroborated by Panikpah, the father of one of them (I-took-a-shoo), who was personally familiar with the first third and the last third of their journey, and who said that the route for the remaining third, as shown by them, was as described to him by his son after his return with Dr. Cook.

Notes of their statements were taken by several of us, and no one of us has any doubt that they told the truth.

Their testimony was unshaken by cross-examination, was corroborated by other men in the tribe, and was elicited neither by threats nor promises, the two boys and their father talking of their journey and their experiences in the same way that they would talk of any hunting trip.

To go more into details: One of the boys was called in, and, with a chart on the table before him, was asked to show where he had gone with Dr. Cook. This he did, pointing out with his finger on the map, but not making any marks upon it.

As he went out, the other boy came in and was asked to show where he had gone with Dr. Cook. This he did, also without making any marks, and indicated the same route and the same details as did the first boy.

When he was through, Panikpah, the father of I-took-a-shoo, a very intelligent man, who was in the party of Eskimos that came back from Dr. Cook from the northern end of Nansen's Strait, who is familiar as a hunter with the Jones Sound region, and who has been in Commander Peary's various expeditions for some fifteen years, came in and indicated the same localities and details as the two boys.

Then the first boy was brought in again, and with a pencil he traced on the map their route, members of our party writing upon the chart where, according to the boy's statement, they had killed deer, bear, some of their dogs, seal, walrus and musk-oxen.

The second boy was then called in and the two went over the chart together, the second boy suggesting some changes as noted hereafter.

Finally, Panikpah, the father, was again called in to verify details of the route with which he was personally familiar.

The bulk of the boys' testimony was not taken by Commander Peary, nor in his presence, a fact that obviates any possible claim that they were awed by him.

Certain questions on independent lines from the direct narrative of the Eskimo boys were suggested by Commander Peary to some of us, and were put by us to the Eskimo boys.

Still later, Commander Peary asked the Eskimo boys two or three casual questions on minor points that had occurred to him.

During the taking of this testimony, it developed that Dr. Cook had told these boys, as he told Mr. Whitney and Billy Pritchard, the cabin boy, that they must not tell Commander Peary or any of us anything about their journey, and the boys stated Dr. Cook had threatened them if they should tell anything.

The narrative of these Eskimos is as follows:

They, with Dr. Cook, Francke and nine other Eskimos, left Anoratok, crossed Smith's Sound to Cape Sabine, slept in Commander Peary's old house in Payer Harbor, then went through Rice Strait to Buchanan Bay. After a few marches Francke and three Eskimos returned to Anoratok.

Dr. Cook, with the others, then proceeded up Flagler Bay, a branch of Buchanan Bay, and crossed Ellesmere Land through the valley pass at the head of Flagler Bay, indicated by Commander Peary in 1898, and utilized by Sverdrup in 1899, to the head of Sverdrup's "Bay Fiord" on the west side of Ellesmere Land.

Their route then lay out through this fiord, thence north through Sverdrup's "Heuerka Sound" and Nansen Strait.

On their way they killed musk-oxen and bear, and made caches, arriving eventually at a point on the west side of Nansen Strait (shore of Axel Heiberg Land of Sverdrup), south of Cape Thomas Hubbard.

A cache was formed here and the four Eskimos did not go beyond this point. Two others, Koolootingwah and Inughito, went on one more march with Dr. Cook and the two boys, helped to build the snow igloo, then returned without sleeping.

(These two Eskimos brought back a letter from Dr. Cook to Francke, dated the 17th of March. The two men rejoined the other four men who had been left behind, and the six returned to Anoratok, arriving May 7th. This information was obtained not from the two Eskimo boys, but from the six men who returned and from Francke himself, and was known to us in the summer of 1908, when the Roosevelt first arrived at Etah. The information is inserted here as supplementary to the narrative of the two boys.)

After sleeping at the camp where the last two Eskimos turned back, Dr. Cook and the two boys went in a northerly or northwesterly direction with two sledges and twenty odd dogs, one more march, when they encountered rough ice and a lead of open water. They did not enter this rough ice, nor cross the lead, but turned westward or southwestward a short distance and returned to Heiberg Land at a point west of where they had left the cache and where the four men had turned back.

Here they remained four or five sleeps, and during that time I-took-a-shoo went back to the cache and got his gun which he had left there, and a few items of supplies.

When asked why only a few supplies were taken from the cache, the boys replied that only a small amount of provisions had been used in the few days since they left the cache, and that their sledges still had all they could carry, so that they could not take more.

After being informed of the boys' narrative thus far, Commander Peary suggested a series of questions to be put to the boys in regard to this trip from the land out and back to it.

These questions and answers were as follows:

Did they cross many open leads or much open water during this time? Ans. None.

Did they make any caches out on the ice? Ans. No.

Did they kill any bear or seal while out on the ice north of Cape Thomas Hubbard? Ans. No.

Did they kill or lose any of their dogs while out on the ice? Ans. No.

With how many sledges did they start? Ans. Two.

How many dogs did they have? Ans. Did not remember exactly, but something over twenty.

How many sledges did they have when they got back to land? Ans. Two.

Did they have any provisions left on their sledges when they came back to land? Ans. Yes: the sledges still had about all they could carry, so they were able to take but a few things from the cache.

From here they then went southwest along the northwest coast of Heiberg Land to a point indicated on the map (Sverdrup's Cape Northwest).

From here they went west across the ice, which was level and covered with snow, offering good going, to a low island which they had seen from the shore of Heiberg Land at Cape Northwest. On this island they camped for one sleep.

The size and position of this island, as drawn by the first boy, was criticised by the second boy as being too large and too far to the west, the second boy calling the attention of the first to the fact that the position of the island was more nearly in line with the point where they had left Heiberg Land (Cape Northwest) and the channel between Amund Ringnes Land and Ellet Ringnes Land.

This criticism and correction was accepted by the first boy, who started to change the position of the island, but was stopped, as Commander Peary had given instructions that no changes or erasures were to be made in the route as drawn by the Eskimos on the chart.

From this island they could see two lands beyond (Sverdrup's Ellef Ringnes and Amund Ringnes Lands). From the island they journeyed toward the left hand one of these two lands (Amund Ringnes Land), passing a small island which they did not visit.

Arriving at the shore of Amund Ringnes Land, the Eskimos killed a deer as indicated on the chart.

The above italicised portion of the statement of the Eskimo boys covers the period of time in which Dr. Cook claims to have gone to the Pole and back, and the entire time during which he could possibly have made any attempts to go to it.

The answers of the Eskimo boys to Commander Peary's series of independent questions, showing that they killed no game, made no caches, lost no dogs, and returned to the land with loaded sledges, makes their attainment of the Pole on the trip North of Cape Thomas Hubbard a physical and mathematical impossibility, as it would demand the subsistence of three men and over twenty dogs during a journey of ten hundred and forty geographical miles on less than two sledge loads of supplies.

If it is suggested that perhaps Dr. Cook got mixed and that he reached the Pole, or thought he did, between the time of leaving the northwest coast of Heiberg Land at Cape Northwest, and his arrival at Ringnes Land, where they killed the deer, we must then add to the date of Dr. Cook's letter of March 17th, at or near Cape Thomas Hubbard, the subsequent four or five sleeps at that point, and the number of days required to march from Cape Thomas Hubbard to Cape Northwest (a distance of some sixty nautical miles), which would advance his date of departure from the land to at least the 25th of March, and be prepared to accept the claim that Dr. Cook went from Cape Northwest (about latitude eighty and a half degrees North) to the Pole, a distance of five hundred and seventy geographical miles, in twenty-seven days.

After killing the deer they then travelled south along the east side of Ringnes Land to the point indicated on the chart, where they killed another deer.

They then went east across the south part of Crown Prince Gustav Sea to the south end of Heiberg Land, then down through Norwegian Bay, where they secured some bears, but not until after they had killed some of their dogs, to the east side of Graham Island; then eastward to the little bay marked "Eid's Fiord" on Sverdrup's chart; then southwest to Hell's Gate and Simmon's Peninsula.

Here for the first time during the entire journey, except as already noted off Cape Thomas H. Hubbard, they encountered open water. On this point the boys were clear, emphatic, and unshakable. They spent a good deal of time in this region, and finally abandoned their dogs and one sledge, took to their boat, crossed Hell's Gate to North Kent, up into Norfolk Inlet, then back along the north coast of Colin Archer Peninsula to Cape Vera, where they obtained fresh eider duck eggs. Here they cut the remaining sledge off, that is shortened it, as it was awkward to transport with the boat, and near here they killed a walrus.

The statement in regard to the fresh eider duck eggs permits the approximate determination of the date at this time as about the first of July. (This statement also serves, if indeed anything more than the inherent straightforwardness and detail of their narrative were needed, to substantiate the accuracy and truthfulness of the boys' statement. This locality of Cape Vera is mentioned in Sverdrup's narrative as the place where during his stay in that region he obtained eider ducks' eggs.)

From Cape Vera they went on down into the southwest angle of Jones Sound, where they killed a seal; thence east along the south coast of the Sound, killing three bears at the point noted on the map, to the peninsula known as Cape Sparbo on the map, about midway on the south side of Jones Sound. Here they killed some musk-oxen and, continuing east, killed four more at the place indicated on the chart, and were finally stopped by the pack ice at the mouth of Jones Sound. From here they turned back to Cape Sparbo, where they wintered and killed many musk-oxen.

After the sun returned in 1909 they started, pushing their sledge, across Jones Sound to Cape Tennyson; thence along the coast to Clarence Head (passing inside of two small islands not shown on the chart, but drawn on it by the boys), where they killed a bear; thence across the broad bight in the coast to Cadogan Fiord; thence around Cape Isabella and up to Commander Peary's old house in Payer Harbor near Cape Sabine, where they found a seal cached for them by Panikpah, I-took-a-shoo's father. From here they crossed Smith Sound on the ice, arriving at Anoratok.

The accompanying map is reproduced exactly from the original submitted by Commander Peary with his official statement by which he hopes to prove that Dr. Frederick A. Cook never reached the north pole. The map purports to have been traced out in the presence of the two Eskimos who were with Dr. Cook and, according to Peary, is based upon their actual statements as to Cook's entire journey. The dotted lines in the small map in the upper left hand corner is the route which Dr. Cook says he took on his journey to and from the pole after leaving Cape Thomas Hubbard. The irregular line extending northeast from Isachsen Land is the edge of the land ice, beyond which, Peary declares, Dr. Cook did not venture.

West Quincy people are much excited over the loss of their biddies and think the thieving has gone far enough and that some action should be taken by the police. Owners are awakened in the night by the cackling of their fowl and in the morning find some of them among the missing.

BRIEFS.

Quincy has several clubs which are getting quite mature, the Pickwick and Eliot clubs being well along on the road to the golden anniversary.

George A. Field, formerly of this city, is now located in Providence, R. I. For the past few years he has been employed by the U. S. weather bureau and at present is in charge of the forecasting of the weather.

Captain James M. Nash, formerly quartermaster on the steamer Ontario and for the past four months quartermaster on the steamer Nantasket in Boston harbor, has accepted a position as quartermaster on the U. S. S. North Dakota at the builders' trials next week.

Ward Four residents are much pleased with the work done on Bates avenue, especially teamsters who have had to take a roundabout route to quarries and sheds. Work is now being carried on at the lower end of Bryant avenue and Robertson street extention which will be put in good condition and when all is completed will be a great improvement. West Quincy appreciates the efforts which accomplished the good work.

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIETY.

The Quincy Choral Society held a business meeting at Colonial hall Tuesday evening and it was voted to begin regular rehearsals at an early date. Mr. Arthur S. Wonson of Gloucester was chosen to conduct the chorus this year, as he did last, and Handel's oratorio of the Messiah was the work most favored by all as offering a pleasing and profitable season's study. Many new names of singers who wish to join the society were left with the secretary and the outlook for a successful year is most hopeful.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT.

Baking Festival at W. G. Shaw's Attracting Much Attention.

Everbody is interested in good things to eat which accounts for the unusual attraction the store of W. G. Shaw in City Square has this week for the ladies. It is baking festival week at this up to date furniture store and an experienced chef is showing all comers some of the many possibilities of the famous Stewart stoves.

As good cookers, these stoves stand prominent. They have been on the market for nearly a century and the name of Stewart stoves has long been synonymous with good housewives. This week three of the latest design ranges have been set up in the store and every day pan after pan of good things to eat are baked.

Every man and woman attending the exhibition this week is given a box of good things to eat baked in these ranges ,and aside from that it is well worthy of a visit to see how the ranges bake.

Miss Eleanora Sears Contributes $15. For Speeding in Milton.

There were two quite distinguished visitors at the district court this morning. One was Miss Eleanora Sears of Beacon street, Boston, the well known patronizer of golf and horse racing and Harold Vanderbilt, who appeared as her counsel. Miss Sears was complained of by Chief Pierce of Milton with running her automobile through the town at a greater speed than safety demanded.

When Miss Sears was arraigned young Vanderbilt appeared as her counsel. The warrant for some reason happened to have been made out on an old form and charged her with running her automobile at a greater speed than twenty miles an hour. The words that the speed was greater than safety demanded were committed.

Young Vanderbilt was quick to discover the mistake and moved that the complaint be dismissed. The motion was allowed and a new warrant issued on the correct form. Chief Pierce testified that on the day in question he was in the Milton police automobile and that Officer Fallon, was running the car and that he was watching the speedometer. That as he followed the car of Miss Sears the hand on the speedometer began to climb up until it had reached the forty mile mark. Then the Sears party were held up.

The next day the same party went through Milton going at a speed of 33 miles an hour and the Chief had to warn them to cut it out. After hearing the evidence, the court imposed a fine of $15 which Miss Sears paid with a smile.

KING'S DAUGHTERS AND SONS.

The session opens at ten o'clock and delegates are expected from every circle in the County. A good program has been arranged for both morning and afternoon with recess and luncheon at noon.

CLYDE LESLIE McCONNELL.

The funeral of Clyde Leslie McConnell, the victim of Sunday's sad accident, was held this morning from the home of his parents on Sea street. Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy of the Bethany church conducted the services which were very largely attended. There were very many beautiful flowers which surrounded the casket.

The autumn lectures of the Bible Reading club of the Bethany church will be resumed tonight in the chapel of the church. Tonight's lecture will be by Rev. Dr. Charles W. Blackell of Malden, whose subject will be "Paul's Voyage and Shipwreck." Rev. Mr. Blackell is a fine speaker and the subject an interesting one.

A full report of the first meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club will appear in Thursday's Ledger being crowded out of today's issue.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy) Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY will be happy to answer inquiries.

THE TARIFF REVISION

Hon. S. W. McCall Before Wollaston Unitarian Club

The first meeting of the season was held by the Wollaston Unitarian club on Tuesday evening ,the full quota of members sitting down to the usual roast beef dinner served by the young men of the church.

Congressmen Samuel W. McCall of Winchester was the speaker of the evening, taking for his subject. "Tariff Revision." Rev. Ellery C. Butler of First church, Quincy, pronounced the blessing. At the head table were: President Eugene C. Hultman, Congressman Samuel W. McCall, ex-President Frederick W. Plummer, Rev. Ellery C. Butler, Rev. Carl G. Horst and Frank E. Parlin.

Senator Eugene C. Hultman the new president of the club said that he would not make any inaugural address but would immediately introduce the speaker.

"The subject of tariff revision," said Congressman McCall "is a very old one and one that is apt to be political. As this is a religious organization, I will not throw any trouble on the church by delivering a Republican or Democratic tariff speech but will make this Unitarian. Tariff," said Mr. McCall "is one of the most ancient subjects in American politics. The first congress held a debate on the tariff beginning in April and ending with the signing of the first tariff bill by George Washington on July 4, 1789. All of the arguments advanced today are not new. Many of them saw service in that campaign."

A general revision of the tariff is not to be desired by the people of the United States and a mistake is made in attempting to revise all at once. One of the best features of the bill just passed is that it gives the germ of a tariff commission.

This commission in Congressman McCall's opinion should keep watch of all conditions effecting the tariff and if certain rates were found ineffectual or the machinery to get out of gear should recommend changes to the governing body. In this manner the commission would do away with general revision and the passing of a tariff law which is now left for a number of years or until conditions are so bad that a change is necessitated. England, in its budget passes a revision law every year.

Tariff could not be successfully revised all at once by a committee of archangels, said Congressman McCall. It is not only an economical but also a political question. It would be easy for instance to make a tariff law suitable to Massachusetts. Such a one however would probably be unfavorable to Texas. In the revision of the tariff, Mr. McCall said, one has to bring into view political and sectional considerations.

Congressman McCall then brought up the Payne tariff bill and told of its history from the time hearings were begun a year ago up to the time it became a law on August 5, 1909.

The general opinion of this bill said Congressman McCall ,is that it is not downward revision but a sort of make-believe perhaps. To back this up they bring up the fact that the average of the advalorem duties are one percent higher than those of its predecessor the Dingley bill and thus the tariff has been raised instead of lowered.

This argument however is fallacious, as it does not take into account the articles upon the free list.

The only true way to compare the two schedules is to take the duties in parallel columns and in this manner it is easy to see what the Payne bill has done.

Take for instance, he said, the first schedule which is that of chemicals the increases are trivial in number and are vastly outnumbered by the decreases. In the iron and steel schedule, iron ore which is the basis of all work in this line has been reduced from 40 cents a ton in the Dingley bill to 15 cents a ton in the Payne bill.

The majority of the rough materials in this schedule follow these lines the only increase being in certain finished products. In leather goods, hides which had a duty of 15 per cent in the Dingley bill have now been placed on the free list. This was one of the most difficult changes in the whole tariff, for while it was comparatively easy in Massachusetts, it was different in the West where the population was either financially or sentimentally interested in the subject.

Mr. McCall then told of the substantial reduction in lumber, which is the most powerful of any single item in the tariff. The agricultural woolen and cotton schedules were taken up in the same manner by the speaker.

He then told of the way in which cotton manufacturing had increased in the South and said that New England's salvation in this line lay in the manufacture of the more expensive grades of these goods.

Comparing the Payne and the Dingley bills, Congressman McCall, called attention to the fact that of the 2,000 articles in the tariff, about 1,000 had been left unchanged by the Payne bill while about 250 had been increased and 650 decreased. The idea being a heavy tax on luxuries with the object of raising the revenue, such articles as wines, beers, silks and laces numbering among the increases.

The speaker next dealt with the methods used to supplement the tariff. He told of the unsuccessful attempt to tax inheritances and of the income tax of corporations which he did not favor.

On the whole he said it is a pretty good bill and with the expansion of the tariff commission idea there is no reason why the country should not go on and prosper.

At the close of his remarks Congressman McCall was called upon by various members to explain certain phases of the tariff and their effect on the country. At the request of Hon. Eugene H. Sprague, Mr. McCall related several reminiscences of Speaker Cannon.

The meeting closed with a rising vote of thanks to Congressman McCall, which closed an enthusiastic and successful meeting.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Old Colony Universalists Meet in Quincy, Officers Elected.

The quarterly and annual convention of the Old Colony association of Universalists was largely attended at the Universalist church on Washington street, Wednesday, 151 delegates being in attendance.

The speakers of the morning were Mrs. L. W. Attwood of South Weymouth on, The Church and its relation to the woman's missionary society and Rev. O. Howard Perkins of Brockton on, The Church and its relation to the Y. P. C. U.

At noon a bountiful dinner was served by the members of the Quincy parish.

The election of officers was the first business after dinner the following being elected:

President, Rev. L. W. Attwood of South Weymouth; Vice President, Rev. O. H. Perkins of Brockton; Secretary and Treasurer, Rev. George H. Howes also an executive board of three.

The afternoon speakers were Rev. C. F. Andrews of Plymouth on, The Church and its relation to modern conditions and Rev. R. Perry Bush, D. D. of Chelsea on The Church and its relation to the Sunday School.

The next meeting of the association will take place in January at East Weymouth, they being the guests of the Hingham and East Weymouth societies.

STILL CLIMBING.

Present Year to be the Biggest and Best Ever for the Y. M. C. A.

The Biggest and Best Ever is indeed true for the Boys' Department of the Young Men's Christian Association. The membership is the largest in the history of the local organization and is still climbing. The activities in and out of the building are numerous and the boys are entering into them in good shape. The South Quincy club is being conducted along the same lines as last year and is looking forward to a big year. Another club is starting in Wollaston meeting first this evening and it is to be a similar club to South Quincy. The orchestra are rehearsing regularly and are fast rounding into good shape. The gymnasium classes are being well attended and a great deal of interest shown. The big attractions this week are for Students' Friday night and Junior's Saturday morning.

The attraction for Students is a "College Night" at which Lothrop Withington of the Harvard Varsity Crew and football squad is the speaker. He will tell of training experiences and college life. The orchestra will play and the entertainment will be by Edward H. Frye of Boston in his laughable sketch "Across the Atlantic." It is expected that this will be the most enjoyable evening yet for the students over fifteen. The meeting of Juniors, Saturday morning at 9 A. M. will consist of good lively singing, stereopticon and story of "Ben Hur." This has been arranged especially for boys and every boy in Quincy over twelve is invited to be on hand at the meeting. This is indeed the biggest and best year ever and every boy in Quincy is invited to come in and help.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

High school alumni and friends of the school will have an opportunity to see a good play presented by members of the sophomore and junior classes about the first of November. November 5 is the date. The High School does not hold the place in the life of the city that it should hold. Very few people feel any keen interest in what is really being done at the new building. From time to time there will be occasions when the alumni and friends of the school will have a chance to show their interest in the school life.

On Nov. 5th this play is being presented in the interest of the High School Athletics. No one can say that this is not a worthy object. All alumni will be at the building on Nov. 5 to see how well the members of 1911 and 1912 can present Tommie's Wife. This play was given by the class of 1906. Everyone should see the play a second time.

The football team will play the Boston College High school team Saturday afternoon at the park at 3.30. Eddie Burns will probably referee and a good game is assured.

A word might be said in this column about the athletic association at the high school. Previous to last year the association consisted of all those members of the school who paid 25 cents annually. To make this scheme a success needed constant work and consumed a great deal of time and it was found in the end that it was not satisfactory after all, and that slowly the athletic association stood for practically nothing and was not putting any money into the treasury. So with the advent of Head Master Leslie L. Cleveland thoughts of a new organization were introduced and it was found that every one was in favor of some other manner of taking care of athletics in the school. After careful consideration this scheme was proposed and adopted by the school.

The Captains of the various teams in the school, past, present or future met and amongst themselves agreed on two representatives from each class whom they thought would fittingly represent their class in athletics. Of these two one was elected at a meeting of the class to which he belonged and the four men chosen with the captains of the teams, the principal of the school, the treasurer of the association, who is a teacher and the manager of the teams, comprised the new athletic committee. This committee has the authority in all matters pertaining to athletics and their decision approved by a two thirds vote of the committee is final. The voting power is held by the four members from the different classes and the teachers making in that case four votes a majority. Great work was done by this committee last year in the promoting of athletics in the school and they will be a large factor of the school life before many years have passed.

The athletic committee met yesterday and elected the assistant managers for the basket ball and football teams for the coming year. Harry Smith, '10 of Wollaston was elected basket ball manager and Walter Veal, '10 was elected assistant base ball manager. They are both very popular and stand high in their work at the school and there is no doubt of their ability to hold down the positions.

The two freshmen candidates for the freshman representatives on the athletic board are Ernest Rich of Germantown and George Church of Wollaston. Their names will be voted upon at a freshman class meeting within a week.

The game of football scheduled for next Saturday with Boston College High was to have taken place in the morning but arrangements are being made to change it to afternoon and there is little doubt but what it will be done.

There is an important question in the minds of the Athletic committee just at present and bids fair to make a lot of discussion and needs careful thought before it is decided. That is whether or not the assistant manager should be awarded a Q. Some schools give letters and it is a question now, that they have a student doing the work, whether he should receive a letter in Quincy or not. The alumni is asked to express their opinion and if they feel so inclined as the athletic board would like to find out how they stand on the subject. If any of the past members of the school wish to voice their opinion on the subject they can address communications to headmaster L. L. Cleveland at the High school.

The High school team will play the Hyde Park team this afternoon at the park at 3.30 and they will play them a return game at Hyde Prk, November 12.

The grammar school boys are going to the high school afternoons and taking a course of manual training under Mr. Goddard the manual training teacher. Their schedule is as follows:—Monday, Adams; Tuesday, Coddington; Wednesday, Cranch and Gridley Bryant; Thursday, Willard and John Hancock; Friday, Lincoln. The Monday following the classes go right along taking in the rest of the schools so that in 10 days there are 12 classes. Monday, Mass. Fields; Tuesday, Quincy; Wednesday, Washington; Thursday, Willard; Friday, Wollaston.

Miss Cheever returned to her work this week after an illness of over a week.

Walter Lakin returned to school today and will resume his studies as a senior.

This afternoon immediately after school there will be a school meeting at which Mr. Cleveland will speak to the pupils on athletics and also Russ Bates will address them and see if they can not arouse more interest in the football situation.

Miss Edwina Sweetland of Revere road has returned to school after an absence of more than a year. With her coat of tan and fine physical appearance, it is hard to believe that she has been ill for so long a time.

Be on the watch for the tickets for the High School play. The money received from the proceeds of this are to help out the High School Athletics. High School alumni ought to fill the house and ensure a success.

Pupils and friends are requested to send items of interest concerning pupils of the school past or present to the High school editor, Quincy Daily Ledger. This column will be a weekly feature, on Thursdays. Send all items so that they will reach the office by Wednesday evening.

GRANITE CITY CLUB.

Some Good Scores Made at First of Weekly Whist Tournaments.

The first of the weekly whist tournaments at the Granite City club was held Wednesday evening at the club rooms in the Savings Bank building and called out a goodly number of admirers of the game. Eight tables were in play and twenty-five hands were played.

Some good percentages were secured but not as high as on some evenings. The highest percent was 69.6 which was secured by Thomas G. Smith and the second highest by J. Warren Nightingale with 69.4 percent. The lowest score was 24.4 percent. After the play a lunch of escalloped oysters, rolls, coffee, etc., was served.

SHORT MEASURE.

Quincy Storekeepers In Court for Using False Measures.

Four Quincy storekeepers were summoned into court this morning by state inspector for using false measure in their places of business. But two of these however were tried this morning. There were two complaints against each of these parties, Charles C. Mugford and Carl Wehter. The complaints were for using false measures and for using measures that had not been sealed.

The evidence showed that the parties had used an unsealed tin liquid measure in which to sell beans and cranberries. There were dry measures in the stores and these had been properly sealed. In the case of Wehter it was shown that he was a new clerk and could speak but little English. The cases against this defendant the court placed on file on payment of $2.20 on account of costs, and the measure was forfeited.

The case against Mugford was practically of the same nature. The disposition of this case was the same as that of Wehter only the costs on his warrants only amounted to $1.40.

Miss Lottie L. Tillotson of Hawaii a celebrated elocutionist and lecturer will give an entertainment at the Washington Street Congregational church vestry Monday evening Oct. 18, at 8 o'clock assisted by Miss Eleanor Crane, soprano soloist, and Miss Esther Dahlberg, pianist. Entertainment will be for benefit of Ladies' Aid society connected with the church.

"Haiti has bought another gunboat," says the Savanagh News. This is interesting merely to the extent that it calls attention to the fact that Haiti already had one gunboat.

A writer predicts that "Miss Mary Harriman is to be another Helen Gould." That will beat being any sort of foreign princess we can think of at the moment.

Mr. Bryan announces that he will not debate with Mr. Bailey because "that would direct attention to individuals." Mr. Bryan's stern disinclination to direct attention to "individuals" is well known.

If cotton keeps on climbing, calico prints may become expensive enough by and by to attract the serious attention of the real swagger tailors.

Los Angeles, which proposes to spend $23,000,000 to pipe pure water from the mountains, 225 miles away, owes its growth and greatness and its glorious future to the fact that that climate doesn't produce pikers.

The American Economist thinks that the creation of the Tariff Commission was a "joker" inserted in the bill. Mr. Cannon regards it as merely a joke.

The bisection of California seems about as probable as that New England will form itself into a single State of respectable size.

The nomination of Judge Gaynor of Brooklyn ,as the Tammany candidate for mayor of Greater New York, gives a very curious aspect to the municipal campaign in that city. Not long ago Judge Gaynor was making fierce speeches denouncing Tammany.

Mayor Hunt of Newburyport has resigned his office and with his presses and newspaper material is going into the printing business in Kansas where he will manage the plant of the the Kansas & Missouri electric street railway.

After asking permission for three years to enter Harvard the 11 year old son of Dr. Sidis of Brookline has at last become a special student. He wears knee trousers, is small for his age and probably the only real boy in the college. He was at Tufts last year.

The value of unusual care and watchfulness in selecting the census enumerators who shall take the toll of Quincy's inhabitants and industries in 1910, under government supervision is not to be over-estimated. Too often a lack of real interest and ability has kept the reported enumeration, in many towns and cities far below the actual toll, because the work has been done indifferently.

Mrs. Taft goes back to Washington next week the picture of health, the climate of Beverly having worked wonders. Mrs. Taft and her sister are smart walkers and every day have indulged in long walks, which have proved invigorating and of great benefit. The first lady in the country will be in good condition to enter upon her social duties at Washington.

Careful investigation during nearly two and a half years has convinced members of the executive committee of the Safe Roads Automobile association that a large number of automobile accidents are due directly to failure on the part of operators approaching "blind" corners and curves, especially in the country where the average speed is higher than in cities and towns, to sound a warning signal, as is now required by acts of 1909 chap. 534, section 14 —"upon aproaching an intersecting way or a curve or corner in a way where the operator's view is obstructed, every person operating a motor vehicle shall slow down and give a timely signal with his bell, horn or other device for signalling." Many skilful operators do not signal, in the misguided belief that it is an admission of want of skill on their part, while in fact it is merely an evidence of careful and decent driving.

A DELIGHTFUL TRIP.

Friends of Mrs. Nellie F. Adams will be pleased to know that she is still enjoying the trip through the west on which she started the first of August. Mrs. Adams writes that a copy of the Quincy Patriot reached her at Oregon City. No doubt it was like receiving a letter from home. Since that time she has stopped over at St. Joseph, Omaha, Broken Bow, Neb., Edgewood, and Billings, South Dakota; Livingston and Gardiner, Montana. Then on to Yellow Stone park where six whole days were spent ,then on to Butte, Montana and Spokane, Washington, spending one night at each city. From there to Seattle where ten days was spent, then to Victoria, B. C., and Portland, Oregon, spending one day and a night at each city, then a week at Oregon City, one night at Roseberg and Ashland, Oregon, then to Sacremento arriving at San Francisco on October 3d. She writes of that city "Everything is grand here, so modern and beautifully clean since the earthquake. President Taft is due at the Ferry in just one hour and I must try to see him. I leave here for Jan Jose then go to Santa Barbara and Los Angeles. This is an ideal trip and I am not at all tired as I do not travel at night."

—The mayor of Cincinnati has set aside one day in each week, which is designated as "kicking day," when attention is given to grievances and complaints from the citizens on any matters pertaining to the administration of the city's affair, or calculated to promote its interests. The idea is not without merit, but in some places one day in a week would not be sufficient in which to hear the complaints. One good feature of the plan is that it affords an opportunity to relieve one's mind, which is often a satisfaction, even if no material results are accomplished.

INAUGURATION OF NICHOLS

Noted Scientist Assumes Presidency of Dartmouth College

NOTED MEN IN ATTENDANCE

Ambassador Bryce, a Hundred College Presidents and Practically All the Faculty of Columbia University Participate In Proceedings—Presentation of Ancient Wheeler Punch Bowl an Interesting Feature

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 14.—A host of distinguished men of learning, academicians, scientists, theologians and kings of finance and industry, as well as hundreds of prominent graduates of the college, witnessed the inauguration into office today of Dr. Ernest Fox Nichols as the tenth president of Dartmouth college.

Above the tower of Dartmouth Inn floated the British flag beside the Stars and stripes, in honor of the most distinguished guest of the inaugural, Ambassador Bryce, the recipient of a doctor's degree from Dartmouth eight years ago, who represented the English constituency which, through the house of Dartmouth, made possible the founding of the college by its generosity 140 years ago.

Frank S. Streeter of Concord, as chairman of the board of trustees, formally turned over the insignias of office to the new president, while E. K. Hall of Boston, long prominent in the athletic affairs of the college, conducted the exercises incident to the laying of the corner stone of a new gymnasium.

A noted group of physicists witnessed the induction into office of one of their most prominent members. Practically all of Dr. Nichols' former associates on the faculty of Columbia university were present to testify their esteem for their fellow worker, while a hundred college presidents and delegates from as many more institutions of higher learning made their appearance.

The melody of the chapel chimes roused the notable gathering at 7 o'clock this morning and an hour later the ambassador, college presidents, scientists, theologians, men of wide affairs, alumni and students ended their way across the campus to Rollins chapel to begin the day with the simple, undenominational service which is never omitted any week day during the college year.

After this the delegates, invited guests, officials of the state, recipients of honorary degrees, officers of the college, the faculty, members of the senior class and representatives of the junior, sophomore and freshmen classes formed in procession in the college yard and marched to Dartmouth's new auditorium, Webster hall.

The exercises opened with the rendering of Gounod's "Gloria in Excelsis" the college choir and college orchestra. The invocation was by Rev. Francis Brown, D. D., LL. D., president of Union Theological seminary.

Ernest Fox Nichols, D. Sc., LL. D., was then inducted into office as president of the college, and presented the charter and other emblems of the office by Chairman Streeter in behalf of the trustees. President Nichols responded briefly.

Retiring President Tucker then officiated in one of the most happy and unique traditions of the college, the presentation of "The Welcome of the Wheelock Succession." This was the presentation of a massive silver punch bowl, a beautiful and historical work of art which was brought to Hanover on the occasion of the first commencement of the college in 1771 by Governor Wentworth and a retinue of sixty men, riding on horseback up through the wilderness from Portsmouth, and presented to the first president, Eleazer Wheelock. The bowl has been handed down from administration to administration, typifying the personal relationship of the guild of Dartmouth presidents, under the title of "The Wheelock Succession." The new president accepted the token in a brief reply.

Speeches of congratulation from those representing the different constituencies of the college were next in order. Mr. Bryce spoke for the Earl of Dartmouth and the English constituency, Governor Quinby for the state, President Butler of Columbia university for the delegates, Professor Adams of the Greek department for the Dartmouth faculty, Horace Russell of New York for the alumni, and Charles W. Tobin of Boston, president of the senior class, for the undergraduates.

The inaugural address of President Nichols was then delivered and at its close Rt. Rev. Ethelbert Talbot of Pennsylvania pronounced the benediction.

Old-Timer Goes to Prison

New York, Oct. 14.—Frederick W. Wells, 73 years old, whose features are familiar to the police of many cities, was sentenced here to seven years in Sing Sing as an "habitual criminal." He was convicted of carrying burglar's tools. According to the police Wells is an old and experienced hotel thief.

Robert Hoe Leaves Estate to His Children and Grandchildren

New York, Oct. 14.—The will of Robert Hoe, the printing press manufacturer, which was filed for probate here, directs that practically the entire estate shall be divided between his children and grandchildren. No mntion is made of Hoe's widow, who lives with one of her sons in New York city.

The executors are directed to dispose of all the property in the estate and invest the proceeds in such stocks and securities as they deem proper. The business of R. Hoe & Co. is to be incorporated and the heirs are to receive their proportionate shares of the stock.

SALOONS MUST CLOSE

Mexicans Near El Paso Must Go Without Booze For a Brief Period

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 14.—The Mexican authorities have issued orders closing every saloon in Ciudad Juarez, opposite El Paso, from Friday noon, five hours before the arrival of President Diaz, until Sunday morning, ten hours after he leaves.

This is done, it is explained, as a precautionary measure for the protection of Presidents Taft and Diaz.

Lipton Coming to America

London, Oct. 14.—Sir Thomas Lipton has engaged passage on the steamer Cedric, which will sail for New York Saturday. He expects to discuss with members of the New York Yacht club the status of international yachting, but there is reason to believe that he cherishes little hope of arranging another race for the America's cup.

POTHIER RENOMINATED

Choice of Rhode Island Republicans In Harmonious Convention

Providence, Oct. 14.—Without a dissenting vote to any of the propositions advanced by the party leaders, the Republicans of Rhode Island nominated a ticket of state officers and adopted a party platform. The ticket:

GOVERNOR A. J. POTHIER.

Governor, Aram J. Pothier, lieutenant governor, Z. W. Bliss, secretary of state, J. F. Parker, attorney general, W. B. Greenough, general treasurer, W. A. Read.

More perfect harmony never prevailed in a party convention in this state, and the entire proceedings occupied exactly two hours.

The platform congratulates the state and country on the passage of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, and expresses pride that the senior senator from Rhode Island, Mr. Aldrich, had so prominent a part in the passage of the bill. Governor Pothier's administration was indorsed and support was given to three proposed constitutional amendments.

NEZINSCOT'S MEN RESTORED TO DUTY

Secretary Meyer Disapproves Court Martial Findings

Washington, Oct. 14.—The court martial findings in the case of the four enlisted men of the tug Nezinscot, charged with cowardice, have been disapproved by Secretary Meyer. The men will be restored to duty.

The Nezinscot, while staggering around Cape Ann, Mass., on Aug. 11, before a westerly gale, capsized off Halibut Point and four members of the crew were drowned. It was charged that the four enlisted men, while in the tug's boat, in charge of the boatswain, abandoned struggling men to their fate in not standing by to give them all the help possible.

Various irregularities were discovered in the findings of the court, and rather than again call its members together Secretary Meyer concluded to discontinue further proceedings and to restore the men to duty.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Y. M. C. A. APPEAL.

With Boston, Newton, Cambridge and other suburban cities looking after their young men and boys to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars for new buildings, it reminds us that the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association is carrying a heavy burden with its mortgage indebtedness and its equipment still incomplete. When the building was opened for use four years and a half ago, there was a mortgage of $15,000 left which has cost the citizens of Quincy $750 annually since. In the fall 1906 special rooms for boys were added, at a cost of about $1,800. One thousand dollars of this still remains unpaid, making the outstanding indebtedness $16,000.

The work has been fully maintained each year through the generous support of friends and by careful handling by the management, but the community owes it to its young men to relieve this work of this incumbrance. There is another thing also which should be done at once and that is to complete the swimming pool which was included in the original plans and which was left out from an unwillingness to go into further debt for it. Excavations were made and part of plumbing was put in so the expense of finishing it up would not be excessive.

Such a feature would not only be a tremendous boom to the association, as the plunge is always a very popular feature, but it would be a valuable asset to the city, supplimenting as it would the city baths in teaching boys to swim. The association would probably be willing to teach all school boys to swim, who would attend for that purpose, without membership fee or any other charge, thus the pool would become a constant benefit to parents and the boys themselves aside from it being a most enjoyable feature.

Why not get into the great movement with our neighbors and put our association onto its feet by giving it the few thousands of dollars which it needs to make it of the greatest permenant usefulness.

NO MORE GRAY HAIR.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made and used a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hair before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair, and are fast following suit. The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready to use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. As a scalp tonic and color restorer, this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers, and it can be bought for 50 cents and $1 a bottle at almost any first-class drug store, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

SIZE OF FOOT KILLS A "CLUE"

No Light on Identity of Woman's Hacked Up Body

WHAT AN AUTOPSY REVEALED

Illegal Operation Had Been Attempted, According to Report of Medical Examiner—Remaining Portions of Woman's Body, With Exception of Head, Found Nearly a Mile From Point Where Torso Was Discovered

Tiverton, R. I., Oct. 14.—After several hours of seeming certainty that they had identified the portions of a young woman's body which have been found scattered on the outskirts of this town, the authorities have again lapsed into a state of extreme doubt.

It had been thought that the body was that of a South Scituate young woman, but direct comparisons dissipated this belief. In an effort to establish a connection a size 3 shoe was tried on one of the dismembered feet and found to fit it exactly. The young woman in mind wears a size 5 shoe. Thus the police are left to start afresh in the unravelling of the mystery.

A side attempt to identify the victim and place the responsibility, made in Fall River, was without result, also. It led, however, to the temporary detention of a young man who had been keeping company with a girl who is now missing. The fact that he was unable to account for himself on Saturday and Sunday nights seemed to the police sufficient reason to hold him. Upon ascertaining, however, that the missing girl had no excessive lameness, signs of which were found in the right foot here, the police released him.

Following an autopsy which was held on the torso, Medical Examiner Stimson stated that "there were evidences of an attempt at abortion. There were no signs of peritonitis or any fever."

The cause of death was either not ascertained or not made public. The doctors stated that it could not definitely be placed until the head is located. This is the only portion of the body now missing.

The daily contribution to the gruesome collection of severed parts of the body was again forthcoming Wednesday to aid in building the whole. A continuation of this success today will result in the entire, although dismembered, body.

Yesterday the arms and a leg from the knee down was found at a place off Bulgermarsh road, nearly a mile west of the point where the rest of the legs were found on Monday.

As in the case of all the other parts, the arms and portion of the leg were hidden just off a by-path. This is taken to indicate that a vehicle must have been used, the disposer of the body making excursions into the underbrush at various points along the road.

A minor result of the day's search was the finding near Bliss' Four Corners of a hair "rat" and handkerchief, both blood-stained.

The fact that a criminal operapregnant and that a criminal operation had been attempted was the most important announcement following the autopsy. It is believed, however, that much of the results are being held in secret for the district attorney.

So far as the statement is concerned, the girl may, or may not, have died as a result of the attempted operation. The doctors stated that the heart, when removed, was entirely devoid of blood. When asked the significance of this no statement was forthcoming. It is generally understood, however, that this fact indicates that the young woman did not die a natural death.

Before and during the autopsy a considerable posse of searchers traversed the underbrush and swamps in the vicinity of the previous findings for the missing portions of the body. Until late in the afternoon their efforts were unrewarded. Then George Heywood and Frank Supremond, both of Fall River, came upon the dismembered arms and the lower leg. These were rolled in three copies of a Boston newspaper of Sept. 28, 1909. The place was fifteen feet back from Bulgermarsh road, and on the side of a stone wall opposite the road. It appeared that the person who hid them had walked up the path and thrown them over the wall.

The hunt for the head today was upon a plan of campaign laid out from observations of the methods used in disposing of the other portions of the body. If the head has been buried, however, the search must be without result. The searchers are scouring the sides of every little path along Stafford, Bulgermarsh and Fish roads. The several small ponds in the vicinity will also be dragged.

GOTHAM'S SENSIBLE WOMEN

Opposed to Shrieking Suffrage Propaganda on the Streets

New York, Oct. 14.—Mrs. Clarence H. Mackey, president of the Equal Franchise society, has issued a statement defining the purpose and the position of the society. In it she deplores militant methods, and declares that the movement for franchise for women is not a fight for rights, but merely the logical evolution of justice. The statement in part says:

MRS. CLARENCE H. MACKAY.

"We feel that to secure the franchise for women, it is not necessary for us to imitate methods which are being used in other countries. I will not endorse the militant methods. It has not seemed necessary in the past, and I do not think it will be necessary in the future for us to go out to the street corners and shriek out the propaganda to the passer-by."

DESIRED TO SEE HUSBAND HANGED

Sheriff Denies Cold-Blooded Request of Woman

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 14.—Mrs. Mary Nazarko, wife of Stanley Nazarko, who was hanged today, visited the county jail with Michael Mazreski, the man she is to marry, and requested the sheriff that she be permitted to witness the hanging.

The condemned man was willing that his wife, whom he deserted in Russia ten years ago, and the man who is to be her second husband, should be present and see him mount the scaffold, but Sheriff Rodda said that under no circumstances would he allow the woman to be present.

Nazarko left a will in which he bequeathes $1000 to his wife and her future husband. He was perfectly satisfied that the two should be wed.

Nazarko was hanged for killing a woman with whom he lived in this country.

MISS JOHNSON FOUND

Missing Woman's Mind Had Become Unbalanced Over Worry

Boston, Oct. 14.—After a mysterious disappearance since Aug. 12, Elizabeth G. Johnson, librarian at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and private secretary to Professor Cross of that institution, was located Wednesday at the observation hospital at Deer island.

Miss Johnson was found wandering about the city two weeks after her disappearance from the home of her uncle, Professor Pope of the Institute of Technology, with whom she lived, and her mental condition was such that she was admitted to the observation hospital on Deer island.

Worry over the sickness of relatives unbalanced her mentally, it is thought, for she was unable to recall her name or address.

I had dull pains through the small of my back and on arising in the morning, I would be so stiff and lame that I could hardly dress myself. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store, and in a short time after beginning their use was relieved. After I had taken the contents of two boxes of this remedy, I was in good health and have had no trouble of the kind since. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for this great change in my condition and gladly recommend them.

DAUGHTERS AND SONS

Semi-Annual Convention of Norfolk County Asso.

The twenty-second semi-annual convention of the Norfolk County Association of the King's Daughters and Sons is being held in Quincy today at the First church. The morning session opened at 10 o'clock with a devotional service conducted by Rev. Ellery Channing Butler pastor of church.

Rev. Mr. Butler welcomed the delegates to the city and to the church. In his opening remarks he commended the upright truthfulness of women who say that in this way they were far and vastly superior to the stronger sex.

The greeting of the Quincy Association was by Mrs. F. S. Davis. Her remarks were full of thankfulness that they could have a place together and that they were able to get together in a convention of this kind and for the purposes for which it was held.

In closing her remarks Mrs. Davis quoted Harriet Prescott Spofford's poem "Today."

Upon John Ruskin's writing desk
A slab of chalcedony lay,
And on it, cut in careful script,
The word "Today."

Honored of all a wondrous man,
And held a prophet in his way,
He let "Tomorrow" bide its time,
And used "Today."

Upon the tablet of the will
How good to write, the self-same way,
Putting "Tomorrow's" uses by
The word "Today."

—Harriet Prescott Spofford.

The response to Mrs. Davis was by Miss Marion Denbroeder of East Weymouth.

The balance of the morning session was taken up with the reading of the records. Reports of secretary and treasurer and of the different circles and the transaction of county business.

At 11.45 there was a noontide prayer and at 12 o'clock an adjournment was taken for a social hour and lunch which was served by the Charitable Tens Circle.

The afternoon session opened at 1.30 with devotional exercises conducted by Rev. Charles B. Ames assistant pastor of the church.

This was followed by a roll call of circles; music: "Gordon Rest," Mrs. M. Wheatie Farley, state secretary; offering. Address, Miss Susan R. Brokenshire, state treasurer "Pond Home" corporation meeting. Music and twilight hour.

CHILDREN.

"Tag Day is coming! The matron of the Day Nursery hopes that every child in Quincy will save up five pennies between now and Oct. 23 to buy a tag; every one who wears a tag on "Tag Day" shows that he is helping to care for the little children at the Day Nursery whose mothers are obliged to leave them there while they go out to work. The matron is sure that every child in Quincy wants to help.

QUINCY GIRLS.

How many Quincy girls read last Saturday's Ledger and saw the invitation of the Women's club?

All For the Men.

A parson was sent for by a dying parishioner, who had always sternly refused to have anything to do with him before. He hurried to her bedside, found her in a most contrite mood and made the best of his opportunities in a long extempore prayer, ending with a sonorous "Amen!"

The last word made her sit up with sudden energy. "Aye," she exclaimed, "that's it! It's a' for men and nowt for us poor women in this world!"

Wind Wheelbarrows.

One of the strangest sights in China is the wind wheelbarrow. It is drawn by a donkey, and when the wind is fair a sail is set. The wheel turns in the middle of a wooden frame, sustained by iron bars. Upon the frame are hung all kinds of utensils. The donkey is generally mounted by the paterfamilias, the son and heir is at the stern assisting all he can, while the mother and younger ones ride on the vehicle.

Stage Struck by Train

St. Johnsbury, Vt., Oct. 14.—Alonzo Hudson, driver of a stage, attempted to cross the railroad track in front of a train, but was just a second too late, the locomotive striking the stage, injuring Hudson seriously and killing his wife, the only other occupant of the vehicle.

The Misdirected Letter.

By TIMOTHY C. DICK.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Abner Simmons entered his bachelor apartment after returning from business, sighed, sat down in an easy chair and felt very lonely. Presently he looked up at the mantel, and there stood a letter. It was addressed in a woman's hand to Mrs. Abner Simmons.

To Mr. Simmons this address was a mockery. It suggested a home, a pleasant looking woman tripping downstairs at hearing her husband's latchkey in the door, followed by a troop of girls and boys; a connubial kiss and several pairs of little arms around papa's neck.

All this Mr. Simmons saw in the oblong letter addressed to her who was not. Of course there was a Mrs. Simmons for some man of the same name as himself; but, alas, there was no such person for him! What should he do with it? He took it down from the mantel and examined it closely. A hand was stamped on it with its forefinger pointing to "Try this" and "Try that." There were so many of these suggestions "to try" that Mr. Simmons believed the letter had been the rounds and no Mrs. Simmons found. How could she be found since she did not exist? He determined to make a dead letter office of himself, open it and return it to the writer.

Mr. Simmons took out a letter and a card photograph. The photograph was that of a woman from thirty to thirty-five years old, and as he looked it seemed to be the face of her whose reception of him had filled his fancy. The letter was signed, "Your loving sister." The address was given, and Mr. Simmons put it in another envelope, with a brief note stating his motives in opening it and asking for information of Mrs. Abner Simmons and how she happened to exist without his being any better for her existence. He wished to keep the photograph, but did not feel authorized to do so. He addressed it to the street and number given in the letter.

In about a week a reply came. The writer said the name on the letter was not Simmons, but Timmens. (After all there was no Mrs. Simmons.) The photograph was a likeness of Miss Margaret Butterworth. The writer, Miss Cornelia Boyd, was transmitting it to Mrs. Timmens. The letter concluded with thanks for the favor Mr Simmons had done the writer.

Just what Mr. Simmons had said in his note about the photograph does not appear, but Miss Boyd must have noticed something of admiration and been ready, as most women are, to help out a romance, for she was not called upon to mention the picture, as she did. Mrs Simmons wrote again, asking if Miss Butterworth were related to James Butterworth, an eminent divine and an uncle of the writer. A reply came that Miss Boyd could not answer the question and gave Miss Butterworth's address

Mr. Simmons cooked up quite an ingenious letter to Miss Butterworth. After mentioning that he had seen her picture and how he came to see it he said that the features were remarkably like those of the Rev. James Butterworth, his esteemed uncle, and he was sure that he (Simmons) could claim her for a relative, probably a first cousin. He received a polite reply that the lady had no such relative and had never heard of any such person This was not surprising to Mr. Simmons, whose knowledge of the reverend gentleman was precisely that of Miss Butterworth. The clergyman was an invention.

The genealogical plan having failed, Mr. Simmons wrote again to Miss Boyd, frankly stating that he would be interested to meet the original of the photograph and asking if in the kindness of her heart she would suggest a method for the purpose. All the world loves a lover, and Miss Boyd gave him a list of half a dozen friends of Miss Butterworth, any of whom might introduce him provided they knew him to be a gentleman.

Meanwhile Miss Boyd had put her friend on to the fact that she had an unknown admirer, and it was Miss Butterworth who suggested the names of the possible introducers. One, and only one, of the names was known to Mr. Simmons, and he was a member of Simmons' club. The attentions Mr. Simmons suddenly began to shower upon this man were only understood when a request came for the introduction.

It was an advantage to Mr. Simmons' cause that for several months Miss Butterworth was cognizant of the fact that she had an unknown admirer. Her fancy during this time was feeding on Mr. Simmons' personnel. Miss Boyd, whose misdirected letter had led to this possible romance, made inquiries about Mr. Simmons, found friends who knew him and pronounced him a good man. This Miss Boyd exaggerated into "a noble, good man." Miss Butterworth, too, was on the shady side of thirty and not unwilling to meet her fate. Before the introduction she had been given Mr. Simmons' antecedents, his businsss and social standing by her friend, who asked permission to do the introducing. All that remained was to see Mr. Simmons.

When she did see him the impression was so favorable that the way from this point was made easy for him. He proposed to her the evening he met her, she gave an answer tantamount to an acceptance, and they were married in due time.

And now the fancy excited by the supposed name of Mrs. Simmons (who, after all, has little or nothing to do with this story) is being rapidly fulfilled.

FORBES CAPTURES LAHM CUP

Breaks All Speed Records For Long Distance Flights In Trip Beginning at St. Louis and Ending In Eastern Part of West Virginia—Pilot and Mate Descend Because They Thought They Were Near Ocean

Richmond, Oct. 14.—Winning the Lahm cup for the longest flight made in a balloon under the auspices of the Aero Club of America, and breaking all speed records for long distance flights, A. H. Forbes of New York as pilot, and Max Fleischmann of Cincinnati landed Wednesday afternoon at 12:45 in Chesterfield county, twenty miles south of Richmond.

The trip was made in the balloon New York, in which Forbes won the duration prize in the Indianapolis contest.

Starting from the gas works in St. Louis at 5.30 Tuesday afternoon, the distance of 731¼ miles was made in nineteen hours and fifteen minutes at an average rate of thirty-eight miles an hour.

The balloon passed Lynchburg at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning. Soon after noon an apparently large body of water was seen seen ahead and a large town came into view below. Forbes and his companion, realizing the fast time they were making, thought the water might be Chesapeake bay and the city Norfolk, adjudged it better to descend before the ocean was reached.

The hazy weather helped to deceive the aeronauts in this respect, and it was not until after a landing was effected that they discovered that the town was Petersburg and the water the James river.

Forbes and Fleischmann came to Richmond as soon as they could get their balloon to a railroad point. Fleischmann left last night for his home in Cincinnati, while Forbes left this morning for New York.

Thirty minutes after ascending the balloon attained a height of 3000 feet and during Wednesday an average of 7000 feet was maintained, while a maximum of 8000 feet was reached.

WRECK ON LAKE ERIE

Captain of Steamer and Five Men Drowned While Seeking Aid

Detroit, Oct. 14.—The wreck of the steamer George Stone on Point Pelee during a storm upper Lake Erie added a gruesome chapter to the history of marine disasters on the Great Lakes. Six lives were lost and twelve lives were saved. The vessel was not insured and belonged to M. A. Bradley of Cleveland.

The six victims lost their lives when Captain Howell and seven others were capsized in the surf attempting to go ashore for assistance. Two of the crew clung to the overturned boat for four hours until until they drifted ashore, six were drowned when the lifeboat capsized and the remaining ten of the crew were taken off the wreck by the steamer F. M. Osborne.

CRANE'S RESIGNATION

No Response From President Taft In Regard to the Matter

Washington, Oct. 14.—No response has been received by Charles R. Crane from President Taft to the dispatch he sent the latter Tuesday morning, tendering his resignation as United States minister designate to China. Crane expressed the belief that Mr. Taft has probably been "too much on the go" to give consideration to the matter.

Asked if he expected to stay here for a time Crane said he was uncertain as to his movements. "There are other places besides Washington," said Crane, "where a fellow can have a good time."

$1,000,000 Bail Refused Morse

New York, Oct. 14.—Martin W. Littleton, chief counsel for Charles W. Morse, informally offered $1,000,000 bail for the release of his client, now in the Tombs, but this unprecedented offer was refused by the three judges of the United States circuit court of appeals.

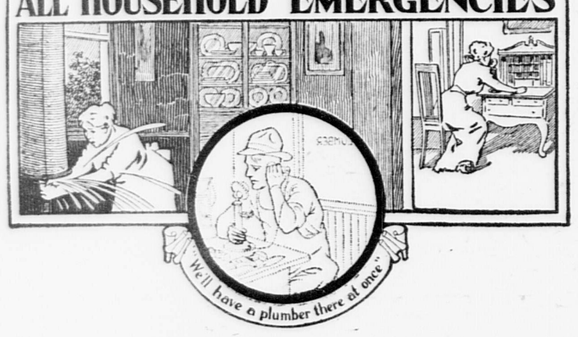
ALL HOUSEHOLD EMERGENCIES



THE phrase "All Household Emergencies" covers everything from a fire in the attic to a leaking pipe in the kitchen, and the only way to meet all of them is BY TELEPHONE.

Remember, too, that sudden demands for "the doctor," or for special provision for the unexpected guest that has been persuaded to "come out for dinner" are included in this category.

The TELEPHONE is as necessary to the Housewife as to the Businessman. One use of it may save the price of several years of service.

If the family are scattered, the Bell Long Distance lines always keep "home" within easy reach.

BEHIND THE WICKET

What is Going on Behind the Lodge Room Door

The same plan of working the three degrees of Odd Fellowship that was so successful last winter has been adopted for the coming winter. Under this plan John Hancock lodge of Wollaston will work the first degree, Mt. Wollaston lodge of Quincy the second degree and Neponset lodge of Neponset the third degree, on all candidates for the three lodges above named. Judson L. Smith is the Noble Grand and Charles F. West the degree master for John Hancock lodge. Frank W. Flowers the Noble Grand and Charles S. Jones the degree master of Mt. Wollaston lodge, and Arthur W. Priest Noble Grand and degree master of Neponset lodge.

On Tuesday, Feb. 22, the three lodges will assist Puritan lodge of Braintree in an exemplification of the work at Braintree. Puritan lodge will have the initiatory degree, John Hancock the first degree, Mt. Wollaston the second degree and Neponset the third degree.

In addition to the above the following staff visitations have been arranged. John Hancock at Quincy Nov. 16; Mt. Wollaston at Neponset Dec. 20; Neponset at Wollaston Jan. 26; John Hancock at Neponset, March 14; Mt. Wollaston at Wollaston, March 14; and Neponset at Quincy May 24.

Representatives from more than 100 courts of the Massachusetts Catholic Orders of Foresters, forming the Aged Home Association, met Monday evening at St. Rose hall, 17 Worcester street, Boston, and discussed in detail the plan for the establishment of a home for aged members.

While no definite decision was reached in the matter of selecting a site for the proposed home, it was unanimously agreed that such site should be somewhere in the central portion of the state. Sites in the cities of Brockton, Worcester and Springfield have been considered, but according to Florence A. Lawler, the presiding officer, the present financial status of the organization does not permit of immediate purchases.

This phase of the situation also came up for discussion with the result that a committee was appointed to visit the different courts and obtain financial aid.

A plan is now in operation by which members are requested to give a cent a week to swell the aged home fund. It is estimated that if 30,000 members of the order would fall in with this idea, the necessary amount would be forthcoming shortly.

Col Abner B. Packard camp, Sons of Veterans hold a regular meeting tonight. The camp has several candidates to be mustered in. Plans are being made for a grand entertainment to be held the first meeting in November.

Cornelius M. Duggan, of the H. S. C. of the Forresters, made an official visit to Hughes court of Boston Tuesday evening.

John Capaccioli has been duly elected and installed as secretary of Manet council Royal Arcanum. His address is 79 Centre street.

The second degree staff of Mt. Wollaston lodge I. O. O. F. held a rehearsal of the degree Tuesday evening. Next Tuesday evening they will work the degree on candidates of Mt. Wollaston, John Hancock and Neponset lodges.

The first degree was worked on candidates for the three lodges mentioned above at Wollaston Wednesday evening by John Hancock lodge.

The meeting of Quincy lodge of Elks Tuesday evening was largely attended. Additional encouraging reports were made by the Exalted Ruler, W. J. Coleman. Several applicants for membership were elected.

The success which met the production of the opera Mikado by Quincy council Knights of Columbus last winter has prompted the members to present another opera the coming winter. The opera selected is "The Chimes of Normandy" which it is planned to present the latter part of January. Daniel Bowen who rehearsed the company for the Mikado will have charge of the training of those who will take part in the new opera. They will commence rehearsals next week. The cast will include all of those who took part last winter.

The degree team of Court Roger Walcott Foresters of America has reorganized under the leadership of W. J. Hebert. The team met Wednesday evening for rehearsal.

Mrs. Elizabeth P. Sawyer, president of the department of Massachusetts, Woman's Relief Corps, has issued an appeal in behalf of the department relief fund which is maintained by contributions. Most of the deserving cases do not come within the jurisdiction of any particular corps, but every case is carefully investigated, and the assistance rendered consists of orders for groceries, coal and wood, provisions, tickets for lodgings and meals. No money is given except in the cases of a few army nurses and soldiers' widows who receive regularly a small sum from this fund. Some of the applicants are veteran soldiers who either are on their way to homes of relatives, or to soldiers' homes. Last February this department assumed the permanent care of two aged widows of veterans, helpless and without friends, and whose pensions were inadequate to provide for them. This extra demand has reduced the fund. All contributions should be sent to Mrs. Fannie M. Jones, department treasurer, 657 Washington street, Boston.

Is your lodge represented in this column? If not see to it that your secretary forwards all items of interest every week. A special feature is made of lodge room news on Fridays.

ENJOYABLE TRIP.

Newspaper Scribes Enjoy Auto Trip Through South Shore.

In response to an invitation of C. C. Hearn, the City Square druggist three newspaper scribes, including a representative of the Ledger, had an enjoyable automobile ride, through the picturesque South Shore, Thursday afternoon. Master Charles Hearn was at the wheel and handled the car like a veteran. Leaving City Square shortly before 3 o'clock the party sped away toward Hingham. Avoiding the famous Hingham traps they passed around Crow point to broad bridge Hingham, thence to Nantasket to Hull. Returning from Hull the trip was continued through the picturesque Jerusalem road to Cohasset, thence to North Scituate beach, to Scituate Harbor returning by the Dreamwold farm of Thomas W. Lawson, through Cohasset and South Hingham to Quincy where they arrived shortly after 5 o'clock having covered nearly one hundred miles with but one stop of less than a minute.

The car ran beautifully, and although the wind was a little sharp the air was very bracing. The scribes feel very much indebted to Mr. Hearn and Charlie for their pleasant afternoon.

Failure of Visitors to Kick Goal Saves a Tie Game

Quincy high had all it could handle yesterday in the snappy Hyde Park team and only beat them by the score of 6 to 5 after a hard struggle. Quincy got their touchdown in the first half by some good line plunging in which Tommy Veal figured conspicuously. Russ Bates kicked the goal and they had just time to line up again when the whistle blew. In the second half a lot of second string men were thrown into the game and they repeatedly brought the ball down to near the Hyde Park goal only to lose it on downs and finally the visitors got within striking distance, and finding a nice soft place at tackle they proceeded to plug at it until they went over for a touchdown. The ball went over on the extreme corner of the field and they had to punt out. But in the punt out the player securing the ball failed to make a fair catch of it and they had lost their chance to tie the game. Quincy put up a good argument considering the condition they were in and the short notice they had of the game but there was nothing startling about them especially on the defence. The change in center proved to be a good move as that part of the line was like a stone wall all through the game.

The best work for the team was contributed by Buster Arthur, Russ Bates and Tommy Veal. Russ breaking away once on a fake play and nearly getting clear for a touchdown. For the Hyde Park side Fellows showed up in great style and it was through his efforts that they scored their touchdown.

The high school management wishes it stated that the game scheduled for next Saturday with Boston College High will not be played as the College team is to go to Salem to play, through some mixup in the correspondence between the managers. The management is however trying to arrange a game with some team for Saturday afternoon. The summary:

Going up in a balloon and coming down most anywhere is not a remarkable feat in these days but the recent trip of H. Helm Clayton from Fitchburg to Winchester was a distinct triumph. Mr. Clayton's years of experience in kite flying and wind observation on Blue hill enables him to understand wind currents so well that he can land pretty near any point he starts out for.

KNOWLEDGE THE REAL NEED.

First teach men how to farm, says President Butterfield of the Massachusetts Agricultural College and the Herald is moved to observe that the mere transplanting of city dwellers into the country will solve neither the problem of the abandoned farm nor that of the crowded city tenement. Develop a system of intelligent, profitable farming ,and there will be sufficient natural attraction to overcome the undesirable drift from country to city or to provide for the interchange of population which would produce the best results of assimilation. Peasant farming accompanied by European standards of living, will only relieve the city problem by creating another equally undesirable in the country town. Intelligent, scientific upbuilding of the farming industry, maintaining the high standards of New England country life, is the only process by which an adequate solution of the problem can be reached.—Framingham News.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

DEPEND ON DIVINE POWER.

Editor Daily Ledger:

In your issue of the 4th, Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy is said to have given "credit to the Christian Scientists for availing themselves of this principle of suggestion and using it for good, but he declared that they had 'overworked' it and claimed too much for it."

It is very evident that Dr. Hardy's impression that Christian Scientists have "claimed too much for it" is based upon his mistaken belief that Christian Science practice consists of mental suggestion. It should be noted that Christian Science depends entirely upon the Divine Power and that "too much" cannot be asked of God. It is entirely proper to believe the Scriptural teaching. "All things are possible with God" and that nothing is too stupendous for the Divine Power, although as a matter of course mortals must understand how to utilize this power in the treatment of the sick.

Yours sincerely,
Alfred Farlow.

AMATEUR GARDENING.

Successful Gardening by Quincy Man Told by Quincy Writer.

House and Garden for October is of special interest to Quincy people as it contains an article written by Mrs. F. C. Babcock about the success of amateur gardening of Dr. Walter Gardner Kendall of Atlantic, which we reprint. The subject of the sketch is "Prize Fruits on a One-Acre Homestead: how a Boston amateur gardener carries off prizes for fruits—the details of his extensive methods of gardening—how to raise prize currants, grapes, gooseberries, apples, pears and plums."

There is a one-acre lot in Atlantic, Mass., which, in the hands of its owner, Dr. Walter Gardner Kendall, yields such remarkable returns that it seems but fair that his methods and results should be detailed for the help of other amateur gardeners.

Dr. Kendall is well known locally as a successful huntsman, dog fancier and home gardener. In the latter capacity he contributes to the weekly exhibits of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Horticultural Hall, Boston, and has been a persistent winner of the prizes offered. Every year his large and handsome gooseberries and currants secure first prizes. It is particularly interesting and instructive, therefore, to find out just how he does it. Dr. Kendall gives special thought and care to these fruits, subjecting the bushes first to careful pruning and thinning out of dead wood, followed by deep digging about the roots, and a generous mulching with stable litter. The worm which attacks so savagely both currants and gooseberries, is hunted diligently. It yields always to frequent applications of hellebore mixed with flour which is best put on the bushes on wet or damp days. One of the modern insecticides has also proven entirely efficacious in ridding the bushes of these pests. The doctor's favorite currant is the Wilder; his choice of the gooseberries is the Bates. This superior gooseberry was developed from a chance seedling found on the premises of Mr. Bates of Hingham, Mass., who recognized a promising healthy plant, and by cultivation developed this seedling to fulfil all his expectations. He produced just what fruit-growers wanted in the gooseberry—large, light-colored, smooth, thin-skinned fruit, sweet and of fine flavor. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society voted Mr. Bates a valuable medal as a recognition of his success, and as a benefactor to fruit-growers. Dr. Kendall has removed all of his old gooseberry bushes in favor of the Bates seedling.

Dr. Kendall's favorite fertilizer for the small fruits is raw ground bone-meal, mixed with wood ashes. Sometimes, to attain quick results he uses a preparation of nitrate of soda, made into a weak solution and applied to the roots.

Of the larger fruits, such as apple, pear, peach and plum trees, Dr. Kendall has made a careful study, and they respond finely to the low trimming and heading which is his rule in pruning. "Trim as low as possible," he says. The apple he ranks highest is the McIntosh, for which he predicts a leadership in quality and quantity. As an insecticide Dr. Kendall has a method of his own, and gathers by the bushel almost, "the miller that makes the worm that eats the apple." On each apple tree he hangs by a string or wire a glass jar or wide-necked bottle. In this is put a preparation of molasses and water, half and half. The millers are tempted by the sweet liquid, drink themselves to death, and remain in sticky masses, which are removed and burned.

Dr. Kendall confines his efforts in pear culture to the varieties known as Bartlett, Seckle, Dana Hovey and Bosc. His personal choice is Worden's Seckle, as it has all the good qualities of the ordinary Seckle, but is larger and finer in many ways.

It is, however, in grape culture that Dr. Kendall shows the greatest individuality of treatment. When the vine is in the blossom it is watched with sleepless eyes for rose bugs. These pests he combats successfully by steady hand-picking and immediate burning. As soon as the grapes form so as to show the probable shape of the bunch, the whole vine is gone over carefully, and two-thirds of the green fruit cut off. Dr. Kendall argues here, as with other fruits, "Better one bushel of the very best than ten of poor or even of medium quality." In training the grapevine he has a method of his own. It is not allowed to grow more than four or five feet high before the vines are stretched from the trellis or support to a tree or post a few feet away, and upon these separate wires the grape-bearing branches are trained. The fruit clusters thus have the best chance possible for absolutely unobstructed growth, air and light. Dr. Kendall's grapes have several times been prize winners. His leaders are Delaware, Worden, Campbell's Early and Green Mountain.

The doctor has tried cultivating the modern Japanese plum, but has set the variety aside in favor of the older American strain known as the Jefferson. The latter has been lost sight of in recent years, but is invaluable for domestic use, rich in flavor, prolific in bearing.

Like many other amateur gardeners, Dr. Kendall has had his fancies and fads in experimenting with foreign fruits and nuts, but says the returns do not warrant the time and expense. Apricots, nectarines, etc., have been nursed to maturity, but the New England climate is not favorable to such attempts. Huckleberries and blueberries, of our wild fruits, have been planted within the garden border, but, in his experience, they cannot be satisfactorily domesticated.

Doubtless, one secret of Dr. Kendall's success with his single acre is the intensive cultivation he gives it. By intensive cultivation is menat heavy fertilizing, rigid pruning, and generous thinning-out of the green fruit. Another secret is the personal care he gives to everything and the fact that he has the interested help of a man whom he has trained to the work, and who has been his faithful assistant for fifteen years.

The experience of Dr. Kendall in his selection of varieties is the experience of one man in one particular locality. It should not be inferred that no other varieties of currants or gooseberries or pears are worth while. Another gardener under like conditions of soil and climate, or Dr. Kendall in another location, would perhaps have made an entirely different selection.

SWALLOWED RING OF DEAD WOMAN

Young Woman Became Frightened When Caught Stealing

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 15.—Charged with the larceny of a diamond ring, valued at $150, from the finger of a dead woman, Miss Margaret Landers, aged 23, was arrested.

According to the police, Miss Landers admits the theft. She went to the home of James Geary, where the body of Mrs. Geary was resting in a casket. Miss Landers, according to her own story to the police, removed the ring from the dead woman's finger, and, frightened at being detected in the act, swallowed the gem.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

President Communicates With Crane Through Secretary Carpenter

Washington, Oct. 15.—All doubt as to what action the president would take with respect to the resignation of Charles R. Crane, minister designate to China, was dispelled by the receipt of a dispatch from President Taft addressed to his secretary, Mr. Carpenter, directing him to convey to Crane announcement of the fact that the resignation had been accepted. The telegram reads:

"Convey to Mr. Crane following communication: 'I concur in the letter under date of Oct. 12, which the secretary of state has addressed to you, and I greatly regret that the circumstances found to exist by him make it necessary for me to accept your resignation.'"

NOT UP TO EXPECTATIONS

Excessive Vibration Will Cause Removal of Military Masts

Newport, R. I., Oct. 15.—From the Atlantic fleet word reaches Newport that the newly installed military masts on the battleships have not met with success and that they will be removed in time because of the vibration these new additions produce.

On the flagship Connecticut, during target practice recently, officers with the range finder in the mast found the vibration so great that they were compelled to withdraw and take a position elsewhere for their operations in connection with the practice.

The Dominican Revolution

Cape Haytien, Oct. 15.—It is reported that General Guellito, former governor of Monte Christi, has landed men and munitions between Puerto Plata and Monte Christi. A Dominican gunboat arrived too late to prevent the landing. The revolutionists will proceed to Dajabon.

DINED WITH YOUNG WOMAN

Naval Officer Returns to Gunboat and Takes Own Life by Hanging

Newport News, Va., Oct. 15.—After having dinner with a young woman and spending the evening in her company at the Chamberlain hotel, Old Point Comfort, Lieutenant Carl A. Richter, U. S. N., 28 years old, chief engineer of the gunboat Marietta, went to his vessel in Hampton Roads at midnight and his dead body was found hanging by a strap to the wall in his quarters in the morning. He had been dead several hours.

All attempts to obtain a statement from any of the officers on the Marietta have proven futile. The identity of his companion at the Chamberlain has not been learned. She may know something of the cause of the suicide. Richter graduated from Annapolis in 1906.

COMMUNICATION CUT OFF

Portions of Tennessee and Alabama Suffer From Severe Storm

Memphis, Oct. 15.—That a destructive storm of wind and hail swept over west and middle Tennessee and north Alabama last night is evidenced by the fact that no communication of any character can be had with those sections.

Telegraph and telephone wires are down and reports from small towns in the extreme western counties of Tennessee state that a severe wind storm occurred, unroofing houses, levelling telegraph poles and doing other damage. No loss of life is reported.

The town of Denmark, Tenn., has been wrecked, two persons were killed, several are known to have been injured and others are missing, according to a dispatch received here.

Death of Admiral Milligan

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 15.—Rear Admiral Robert W. Miligan, U. S. N., retired, died suddenly last night, aged 65 years. He was chief engineer of the battleship Oregon when she made her remarkable run from the Pacific coast to Cuba, during the war with Spain.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

"HERB DOCTOR" AND CHAUFFEUR

Detained In Connection With Tiverton Murder Mystery

VICTIM A FALL RIVER GIRL

Belief of Officials Working on Suit Case Tragedy Strengthened by Finding of Clothing of Amelia St. Jean, Who Disappeared Last Friday —"Professor" Hill Admits Having Consulted With Her

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 15.—After a rigorous examination, lasting several hours, the Fall River police announced early this morning that they are holding "Professor" Frank Hill, an "herb doctor," and Wilfrid Thibeault, a chauffeur, in connection with the murder of the woman whose body was found at Tiverton, whom they believe to be Miss Amelia St. Jean of this city.

It was stated that the men are not arrested, but merely detained. Thibeault admits having kept company with the girl and Hill admitted having consulted with her regarding a criminal operation, according to the police.

In separate rooms, the men were submitted to an exhaustive grilling from 6:45 p. m. to midnight. Thibeault gave an alibi which, if true, covers his movements on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

"Professor" Hill, according to the police, admitted having been consulted by the St. Jean girl about an illegal operation to which she had submitted and stated that he had owned several bags such as that in which portions of the body were found. That bag contained the name "Frank Hill" written on the inside cover.

Miss Amelia St. Jean, who has been missing since Friday, was 19 years old. She had been with the "Human Fish" company, which exhibited at fairs during the summer, having returned about six weeks ago. She came to Fall River to live with her father, Joseph St. Jean, while her mother is living in Woonsocket. It was St. Jean who interested the police in the absence of his daughter as a possible clue to the identity of the young woman whose body was found strewn over the Tiverton countryside.

The police, the father, and all others interested, admit that the body has not yet definitely been identified as that of Miss St. Jean. This is impossible without the head, which is missing.

Clothing Is Identified

Tiverton, Oct. 15.—The absence of the head of the body which has been found scattered through the Tiverton countryside is an impassable gap in the efforts of the police to identify the victim of the gruesome mutilation.

If the head was at hand to show whether the body was that of Miss Amelia St. Jean of Fall River, the police of that city state that pending arrests would be precipitated. The police of that city grilled two men, one of whom is known to have kept company with Miss St. Jean. The other is a man whom the police state they have long suspected of having performed criminal operations.

The minds of the officials now tend toward the belief that the body was that of Miss Amelia St. Jean, and supports to their theory are not wanting. Most important, probably, was the identification of clothing contained in a bundle found in Mt. Hope bay as being that worn by Miss St. Jean on Friday. The identification was made by Mrs. Eva Lamerieux of Fall River, who stated that the hat, shoes, stockings and underclothing which it contained had been borrowed from her by her neice, Miss St. Jean, on Friday morning. Papers of the same date as those found covering or near the limbs which have been found, were wrapped about the clothing.

An attempt of Joseph St. Jean, father of the missing girl, to identify the portions of the body here as that of his daughter was without success. Although expressing the belief that the body was that of his daughter, he still was unable definitely to find any identifying marks upon it. It was at his suggestion that the Fall River police originally turned to the fact of Miss St. Jean's absence as a clue to the identity of the victim. Mrs. St. Jean, living in Woonsocket, who has been spearated from her husband for several months, is to come from Woonsocket today to attempt to identify the body as that of her daughter.

Although meagre in results, Thursday's searching was conducted on a broad and well-manned basis. The blood-bespattered countryside adjoining Bulgermarsh road, where have been found the portions of the body thus far discovered, was searched systematically. The results were a switch of hair of dark brown color and two blood-stained handkerchiefs.

BASEMAN JONES BADLY INJURED

Two Other Detroit Men Suffer In Game With Pittsburgs

Detroit, Oct. 15.—Detroit kept in the great fight for the world's baseball championship by defeating Pittsburg, 5 to 4, in a battle full of thrilling sensations, and the two teams are tied with three victories each. The seventh and deciding game will be played here Saturday.

A rally in the ninth inning by Pittsburg was stopped after one run was scored, but three Detroit players were injured in stemming the rush of Pittsburg runs to the plate.

Tom Jones, the Detroit first baseman, was the most seriously hurt. His neck and spine were injured in a collision with Wilson at first base and this resulted in Pittsburg scoring its run of that session. Catcher Schmidt had his right leg badly gashed and Moriarty's left knee was badly hurt.

FRIENDS ARE WORRIED

Realize That Senator McCarren Is In Very Serious Condition

New York, Oct. 15.—Patrick H. McCarren, the Democratic leader of Brooklyn, who underwent an operation for appendicitis, is fighting for recovery with the same grit that has won many of his political battles. His condition is serious, and his friends and political associates, while they believe that he will ultimately recover, are extremely anxious. McCarren is 61 years old.

The Democratic leaders in Brooklyn were completely upset by the sudden removal of McCarren from the campaign. Although conferences were held to choose someone to fill the senator's place no selection was announced.

Boston Man Who Wrote Black Hand Letter to Whitla Is Convicted

Boston, Oct. 15.—There was an echo of the famous Whitla kidnapping case of Sharon, Pa., in the United States district court here, when Ernest H. Martin was convicted of sending a "Black Hand" letter to James P. Whitla, threatening to kidnap his son for a second time unless $10,000 was paid to another man in this city.

According to the evidence the Black Hand letter was mailed in Dorchester, the postal district in which Martin resides. He admitted on the stand that he sent a friend, John W. Wright, to get the decoy letter which Whitla sent to the address given in the Black Hand letter, and Martin was arrested while waiting for Wright to get the letter. He will be sentenced later.

TEN THOUSAND SHUT OUT

Halls Inadequate to Accommodate Christian Church Delegates

Pittsburg, Oct. 15.—Topeka was chosen by the delegates attending the annual convention of the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church) as the place where the 1910 convention will be held. Des Moines and Boston made a strong fight for the honor.

So great was the enthusiasm which marked the three big meetings Thursday that more than 10,000 delegates were unable to secure seats or even admission into the halls. The majority of the speeches and talks were appeals for home missions.

Mrs. D. C. Barclay, the only surviving daughter of Alexander Campbell, founder of the Disciples of Christ church, who is 69 years old, arrived here to attend the meetings. Mrs. Barclay lives at Bethany, W. Va.

SAGE FOR DARKENING THE HAIR.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time, tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the brew. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy. This preparation is sold by all first-class druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

Nickerson, Mrs. Leslie L. Cleveland, Mrs. Charles A. Campbell, Mrs. Chester I. Campbell, Mrs. A. H. Waite, Mrs. E. R. Johnson, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Robert Barker, Mrs. Joseph Lewis, Mrs. Walter F. Jones.

The evening's entertainment, in charge of Mrs. N. G. Nickerson, was a very interesting one and opened with a periodical trip.

This consisted of a story which was read, the blanks being filled in with the name of some magazine by the audience.

Mr. Ralph Odiorne accompanied by Miss Grace Farrington, both of Cambridge and formerly of this city, rendered several fine violin selections which were received with great favor by those present.

Mrs. Leslie L. Cleveland contributed much to the evening's enjoyment with a clever monologue depicting the trials of a housewife and as an encore recited a poem. The vocal solos of Albert Freeman accompanied by Mrs. Freeman were loudly applauded and several encores were given. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman are newcomers to Wollaston but it is hoped they will appear many times in the future.

The evening's entertainment closed with instrumental selections by Mr. Odiorne and Miss Farrington.

J. B. DODGE.

BY-LAWS OF MOTHER CHURCH

Approved by Founder of Christian Science and Board of Directors Must Sustain Them—New York Practitioners Recently Deposed Can Obtain No Satisfaction by Visiting Boston to Defend Themselves

Boston, Oct. 15.—Several communications bearing upon the recent removal of the name of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson of New York from the official list of Christian Science practitioners will appear in next Saturday's issue of the official organ of the First Church of Christ (Scientist) here. A communication from Mrs. Mary B. G. Eddy, headed "Take Notice," says:

"I approve the by-laws of the mother church, and require the Christian Science board of directors to maintain them and sustain them. These directors do not act contrary to the rules of the church manual, neither do they trouble me with their difficulties with individuals in their own church, or with the members of the branch churches.

"My province as a leader—as the discoverer and founder of Christian Science—is not to interfere in cases of discipline, and I hereby publicly declare that I am not personally involved in the affairs of the church in any other way than through my written and published rules, all of which can be read by the individual who desires to inform himself of the facts."

Mrs. Eddy, therefore, will not give audience to any committee that may come over from New York representing Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson and the sixteen practitioners of that city recently deposed.

—Former Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., returned Thursday from Europe, looking the picture of health as the result of several months rest and travel in foreign lands.

—There is snow in the air, reports from New York state being snow flurries in New York City and snow so heavy in the vicinity of Lockport as to break down thousands of fruit trees.

LEFT RECORDS ON THE SUMMIT

Cook Says That He Can Prove He Scaled Mount M'Kinley

HAD CONFIDENCE IN BARRILL

Explorer Says He Cannot Comprehend Why Guide Should Have Sworn to Story That Height of Ten Thousand Feet Was Not Exceeded, Being Then Fourteen Miles Distant From the Mountain's Top

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 15.—Expressing astonishment at the statement of Edward Barrill in the New York Globe, Dr. Cook maintained that he ascended to the summit of Mount McKinley and that if an expedition will follow the route he took it will find the records deposited by him at the summit of the peak. Referring to Barrill's sworn statement, Cook said to a representative of the press:

"I cannot really understand why Barrill should have made such a statement as the newspapers reproduce if he was acting under normal conditions. I must say it surprises me. We were always on the most friendly terms. Until I know of the conditions under which this alleged affidavit was made I will make no specific reply to it. My account of the trip has been published. For the present it is the bald statement of one man against another.

"If an expedition of experienced mountaineers will follow the route that I took and will go to the top of Mount McKinley they will find there the records which I deposited on attaining the summit of the mountain in the manner described in my book, 'To the Top of the Continent.'

"I have always had the most complete confidence in Barrill and cannot comprehend why he should have sworn to such a story. The fact that General Hubbard is proprietor of The Globe throws a light upon the affair which was not previously apparent. I shall see Barrill, I hope, when I reach New York, but I do not know when or where.

"It appears to me that there was money behind his statement. He was, perhaps, annoyed that he had not my paid his wages, but that was not my fault and I remedied the matter as soon as I got back from the Pole."

Dr. Cook refused emphatically to enter into further details, saying he would reserve his comments until the time when he could be assured that the alleged affidavit was genuine and also as to the circumstances under which it was obtained from Barrill.

"Will you say that the accusations contained in the Barrill affidavit are positively untrue?" was the question put to Cook by a large body of newspaper men late last night. The reply was:

"Decidedly yes,
(Signed) "F. A. Cook,"

Dr. Cook, who had previously declined to commit himself, did not hesitate a moment when the question was placed before him in writing.

Dr. Cook after midnight said: "I never even knew Barrill kept a diary. I never saw it, consequently I could not have asked him to alter anything whatever. The only thing I ever saw him do was to make sketches. Any statements of his that I suggested the changing of dates and altitude is a lie."

Sworn Statement of Cook's Guide

New York, Oct. 15.—The Globe prints a copy of the affidavit made by Edward N. Barrill, who accompanied Dr. Cook at the time he announced his reaching the summit of Mount McKinley. The affidavit was made before a notary public at Tacoma, Wash., on Oct. 4, and has just been received in New York.

Barrill's affidavit states in effect that he was the only person present with Cook on the date when he claims to have reached the summit of Mount McKinley; that they did not in fact reach the summit, and the nearest point to the summit reached was at least fourteen miles distant from the summit of that mountain, the elevation at no time exceeding 10,000 feet.

Barrill's affidavit also brings into question a number of the photographs which Cook has given as representing the summit and other high altitudes of Mount McKinley.

Not Personal.

Count d'Orsay had an explosive temper. Sir Algernon West says that the count "once called on the publishers, Messrs. Saunders & Otley, on Lady Blessington's behalf and used very strong language. A beautiful gentleman in a white neckcloth said he would rather sacrifice Lady Blessington's patronage than stand such personal abuse. 'I am not personal,' said D'Orsay. 'If you are Saunders, then —— Otley; if you are Otley, then —— Saunders.'"

Learned It by Ear.

The dear little girl arose, bowed and recited it in this manner:

"Lettuce Denby up N. Dewing,
Widow Hartford N. E. Fate;
Still H. E. Ving, still per Sue Wing,
Learn to label Aunty Waite."

Then, with the tumultuous applause of the audience ringing in her ears, she sat down in happy confusion.—Chicago Tribune.

The will of the late Robert Bates Palfrey of No. 40 Maple street, Milton, which has been filed in the Norfolk Probate Court, Dedham, makes these bequests: To Robert Palfrey Utter, a silver spoon, the handiwork of Paul Revere, and the old Palfrey family Bible; to the Bostonian Society of Boston, a chair which belonged to John Hancock, and also badges and medals of the Army and Navy, and two commissions granted to Palfrey's father; to the oldest issue of his nephews, or, if there are none, to the grandson of his brother, W. W. Palfrey, a Josephine vase, which was given to the testator's uncle William Waterman by the Empress Josephine of France, wife of Napoleon.

The Milton fire department is to have a new automobile for the use of the chief. Last year $2500 was appropriated for additional fire apparatus. and the appropriation was renewed this spring, but only $1000 was needed for the new combination which was recently put into comission, leaving a balance of $1500, which will be used for a fire auto.

NEW RULES ARE ADOPTED

Important Meeting Republican City Committee

An important meeting of the Republican City Committee was held Friday evening at Republican headquarters.

The principal business of the evening was the revision of the by-laws of the committee. In main the by-laws remain the same, as there were but few changes adopted.

The first change was in the matter of the selection of the Finance committee. Under the old rules this committee was appointed by the President of the City Committee. Under the new rules the Finance committee is composed of the President and Treasurer of the City committee and the chairmen of the several ward committees:

Another change provides that each member of the City Committee shall be assessed $2 for the fixed expenses of the committee. No other assessment shall be made.

The new rule about which there has been a considerable sidewalk talk is that in regard to members of the City Committee aiding or assisting in the nomination of election of candidates of other parties. The committee takes the ground that the city committee were elected by the Republican voters to represent them. That if they do not do so they should be suspended.

As this rule is an important one it is given in full. It must be understood however to refer only to members of the City Committee.

"No member of the Republican City committee shall aid in the nomination, or election of any persons, whose nomination is not endorsed by the Republican party, whether such person is seeking city, county, state or national office."

The only other change is in regard to members of the committee violating the rules. This clause or rule provides the way of dealing with members who violate the above rule.

The rule in regard to violation provides that whenever any charge is made to the executive committee in writing, against any member of the committee the person charged and the person preferring the charges shall be summoned before the executive committee. If in their opinion the charges are sustained the matter shall be brought to the city committee who after a hearing may suspend the member.

After a business session there was an informal talk on the mayoralty question. Several names were mentioned as possible candidates but nothing definite was decided upon.

TOLD BLAINE HER TROUBLE

Quincy Man May Solve Mystery of St. Jean Murder

What may be an entirely new feature in the amazing murder mystery of Rhode Island where the young St. Jean girl was found cut to pieces was made known today when James A. Blaine of 8 Morton street of this city left on an early train for Woonsocket, R. I., with as he regards it, almost positive information as to who committed the murder. Blaine says that when he was in Woonsocket two weeks ago he saw the St. Jean girl and if it was her body that was found a fact not definitely established as yet, why she told him enough so that he believes that he can lay his hand immediately on the man who is guilty of the awful crime. He has known this girl for years and very well. The last time he saw her he says she told him of this man and that she was afraid of him because he had threatened to kill her when she had asked him for money to aid her. But nevertheless she was going to meet him the following day and ask him once more for some money as she was in bad straits. Blaine who is employed at 17 Milton place, Boston, saw the girl last on September 28 while in Woonsocket. He will not reveal the man's name but says that it is neither of the two men arrested but that he is a theatrical performer and she met him while looking for an engagement with some theatre.

Councilman John Smith was instrumental in sending the man to the Rhode Island police in the hopes that his information might be the very solution which they are waiting for. James Blaine is a well known young man of West Quincy and feels perfectly sure that if the body is that of the St. Jean girl his information will bring the murderer within the pale of the law.

State Campaign Now In Full Swing and Getting Warm

LABOR ISSUE LAGS A LITTLE

Some Light on the Democracy and the Tariff Question—Campaign of Publicity by the Democratic State Committee

The state campaign is now in full swing and both parties are planning to make the most active kind of a canvass seen in Massachusetts in several years. It will be even more interesting than in 1908, a presidential campaign, because in that year there was very little enthusiasm for the presidential candidate of the Democracy and only a luke-warm interest in the state ticket of that party.

The Democrats plan to have rallies in the cities and most of the important towns of the state before the campaign is over and the Republicans will doubtless cover all of the ground gone over by the other side. There are two important issues in the canvass, the tariff and labor. There are others, but these lead all in importance, not excepting the income tax.

The injection of Eugene N. Foss into the campaign has served to liven up the Democracy and to give a working capital to the organization of that party. It has been extremely difficult in the past for any party to run a campaign without much of any money, but the Democrats this year evidently have more of that article than the Republicans. It is uncertain where it comes from if not from Mr. Foss. There are not very many of the old Democratic leaders who have given much to the party in recent years and there is no strong evidence that many of them are helping it out this year.

In 1908 Governor Draper was elected by over 60,000 plurality. It does not seem possible that this could be cut to the vanishing point, but there are some who think it will be necessary to work to retain a majority of 25,000. The Democratic rallies so far held have not been indicative of any great enthusiasm among the rank and file on that side. The rally in Everett, which was widely advertised, was attended by less than 1000 people, while one in Brockton last week, where both Vahey and Foss spoke from the platform, was attended by about 200. These figures do not indicate any great amount of popular interest in the campaign. Of course, it takes some little time to work up interest and perhaps this week will see a greater overflow of enthusiasm. It has always been accepted as a fact that the Democratic party could be aroused more quickly than the Republicans. There are still two weeks of solid campaigning and very likely before this time has elapsed considerable interest may be aroused. It is always hard, however, to wake up Republicans in an off year, but a most strenuous attempt will be made to do it, and there are some indications that prominent men in the party outside of the leaders and officials are beginning to bestir themselves.

The labor issue does not seem to grow very rapidly. It is going to be very difficult for the labor leaders to make the state believe that Governor Draper is anything but fair to his employes. He has been so eminently honorable, fair and above-board in everything he has done since he came to the state house that the public refuses to believe that he would do anything to injure any person. Regarding his veto of the bill to increase the penalties for violation of the eight hour law, even the labor men themselves are gravely divided. A considerable element of the wage-earners believe the governor did just right in acting as he did. They recognize the fact that a good many labor leaders devote about as much time to the cultivation of party politics as to improving the conditions surrounding the wage-earner. It is evident to a good many of the rank and file that these leaders often times seek a pretext for plunging the labor movement into politics and thereby benefiting some ambitious politician and proving a permanent injury to the labor cause. It is inconceivable that they should do this for the mere love of politics, and the rank and file is always suspicious of such moves.

The Democrats have already made large contracts for a campaign of publicity throughout the state, the extent of which is said to amount to $20,000. That is a large sum for such a purpose and Republicans will be compelled to get to work to counteract its effect.

Mr. Vahey and Mr. Foss are making a good deal of talk on the tariff issue. They claim to be actuated by a great zeal in the interests of the wage-earner and the salaried man. However that may be, the country has had nothing but misfortune from tariff tinkering by the Democracy. If the working people would enjoy another era like that which preceded and followed the passage by a Democratic senate, house and president, of the Wilson tariff act in 1894, they can easily have it by signifying their desire for it. In 1891 Massachusetts elected a Democratic governor on the tariff issue. In 1892 the country elected a Democratic congress and a Democratic president on the same issue. It was that congress and that president which made possible the Wilson tariff bill and the four years of industrial depression, business stagnation and ruin coincident with Mr. Cleveland's term of office.

One may hear today, by attending a Vahey-Foss rally, the same arguments which were used in the campaign of 1891 and also in that of 1892.

Democratic leaders promised the working people everything good they could think of to bring about a change of administration. None of those promises were fulfilled. They were not made for that purpose. The only object in making them was to get into office. The people who believed in those promises and looked for their fulfillment felt nothing but sadness after they had lifted the Democratic party into power. That has been the invariable history of such campaigns and such promises.

William L. Douglas was elected governor of Massachusetts on a platform of retrenchment and reform in state affairs and on a tariff issue as well. His election had no more influence in shaping tariff legislation than it had in changing the course of the planets. It was only an issue on which to get into office. After his election and a careful investigation as governor he confessed that there was no extravagance in the conduct of the various departments of the commonwealth. Governor Bates was defeated on fictitious issues alone in that year of 1904. And he was one of the best governors the state has ever seen.

THAT CHUM OF MINE.

By Tuus Amicus.

Our acquaintance beginning in the classic halls of Dartmouth College and finally extending to a delicious intimacy can only be explained under the general law of opposites. For my chum at the age of twenty-eight had already reached man's settled estate, and had passed beyond my nineteen year old frivolities. His whole make up consisting of a stately bearing, a head of premature grey hair, high forehead, and a beaming face tended to inspire trust and confidence of the most implicit sort. I found him to be a stanch friend with a wide experience, and at the same time so reserved that I at once connected him with some romantic history. However, his taciturnity on this subject and that of the fair sex and his retiring disposition in their presence soon convinced me of my mistake, and showed me that he was still unharmed by Cupid's darts. But when so touched I felt that he would be a true friend to that woman the soul of honor ,and a man that could be trusted in every sense of the word.

Four years of college life passed very quickly. We were now Bachelors of Arts. I remained for further study while Frank hurried to his Vermont home to see his invalid brother. Acting on the advice of their family physician my chum and his brother set out for Colorado. Here he soon became acquainted with a gentleman from Maine, the owner of a cattle ranch near Denver, who several years previously, had moved to Colorado on account of the tubercular tendency of his wife. Their only child, Jennie, had inherited her mother's beauty, and at the age of twenty showed all the signs of healthy womanhood.

Frank holding a position on her father's ranch, was enabled to enjoy his far famed New England hospitality and soon felt the alluring charms of his much admired daughter. It became evident that something more than friendship existed between them. My staid old chum had undergone a change. He laid plans for future usefulness, and that winter he attended lectures at the Denver Medical college.

With now and then a visit to Jennie the six months passed quickly by, and the spring came bringing Frank back to the ranch. All this time his brother had been gradually growing worse, and had become too feeble to be moved. His death occurring soon after meant that Frank should return East with the body for burial.

While preparing for this sad mission, we were told some years later that Frank and Jennie received the parental blessing. They parted with vows of eternal constancy ,and promises of long and frequent letters.

One cold frosty night in November 1898 I was attending an oyster supper at church. During a lull in conversation my attention was called to a gray haired man with a young face, who seemed to be looking closely at me as though searching for a face almost forgotten. No wonder for I had greatly changed during the last few years, and especially since I began to grow a beard. The gray haired man was no other than my old chum Frank, still the same specimen of noble manhood. When I spoke his look of recognition was manifest, and his hand shake gave me an indefinable pleasure. Although having been in the city for several months we had not met before owing to the fact that his school of dentistry was separately located from my school of medicine. However we at once resumed our old chumship.

Of course we had much to talk about, everything, I might say, except the ladies concerning whom and his associations with them Frank had never a word to say. However, I noticed letters from Denver in a feminine hand at first every week, and finally only once in three weeks which fact gave me much food for reflection. I further learned that he was beginning to pay attention to a certain Miss Margaret Blank, a very estimable young lady of ——— church, where he attended. Here they were often seen together. Every Monday evening found them at the oratorio rehearsal, and theatre often graced their presence. It was evident that they greatly admired each other.

In his long letters to Jennie, Frank had told his fiancee all about Margaret, who in turn was in blissful ignorance of his past relations. My chum did not deem it necessary to tell her for matters were fast tending toward a rupture on the part of Jennie, hence he thought it unwise to trouble Margaret with his previous history. Such was the state of affairs when we were graduated from dentistry and medicine, when my chum after having taken the State Board went north to practice. I accepted a hospital position and settled down to a year's work.

On a very warm day in August I was reading in the cool reception room of the hospital when the maid handed me the card of Dr. Frank Jackson. I mused that it was a very dull time of the year for my chum to come to Philadelphia, and that Margaret could be the only cause. In this I judged correctly. It seems that after his arrival home he had written Margaret concerning his existing relations with Jennie and assuring her that the same could be easily sundered if she would only give him encouragement for the ardent love he bore her. Margaret wrote that her high sense of honor would not permit her to interfere with Jennie, and yet she hoped that she and Frank would always be good friends. This was followed after consultation with her relatives by a very invective letter stating that her associations with such a worthless fellow should now forever cease.

Meanwhile Jennie had made up her mind to continue the engagement, and so wrote Frank to cease his relations with that Philadelphia girl. This was an inspiration to Frank after Margaret's abusive letter. In his attempts at honor and justice he at once made up with Jennie and assured her of his undying devotion. No sooner had this letter been mailed beyond recall than he received one from Margaret in which she apologizes for her former letter, states that she is very unhappy and wishes to be friends once more. Imagine Frank's state of mind. The girl he loves also cares for him. However his high sense of duty causes him to write to Margaret of all that he and Jennie had done recently. In her answer Margaret praises Frank for "his word of honor" and assures him that this was to be her last letter. A week later he receives his usual letter from Denver, and is very much surprised to read "I have at last decided that we are not suited to each other. I now cancel the engagement and enclose the ring as positive proof of the fact. Jennie."

The above certainly well illustrates Virgil's phrase of "Mutabilis est femina" and here is the beginning of the end of my story. A short letter from Margaret tells him to come to her at once as influence was being brought to bare upon her to marry a widower many years her senior.

Frank telegraphed, "I come at once."

His reception was not cordial. Margaret's changeable mind had wired him not to come, which message of course, Frank had not received. He was told that there was no hope as under such circumstances her father would disinherit and disown her. Hence they parted. Things were getting decidedly interesting. My chum became my guest and we watched for developments. After waiting two days he sent her a letter stating the purpose of his visit and giving her his address.

On the morning of the third day after the parting the postman brought two letters for Dr. Jackson from Margaret, one two days and a half old sent to our old address and the other hardly twelve hours old to the hospital. The latest said call that afternoon.

The doctor returned at five P. M. with radiant features. His first words were "Congratulate me, old man, for Margaret and I are to be married this Christmas, and you are to be best man." Mirabile dictu! and so they would be married and would live happily ever after was to be the tame ending of an exciting romance.

Of course the next few days were spent with Margaret making happy plans for the future. She was at once to begin her preparations for her coming wedding. She was to make warm clothing for her cold home in the north. Preserves and cakes were also on her list. And the many other things that she would do for "the only man in all the world to her" would require an extra edition of at least 1500 words.

The ring was bought, and the vows were plighted for over the hundredth time as only lovers know how to do. Frank took the north bound train with the kisses burning on his cheeks and such words ringing in his ears as "Oh, Frank, I certainly do love you!" Yes, he was extremely happy.

Making a short stay in New York and Boston he reached home on the seventh day. As he expected he found a letter there from his beloved Margaret. With a heart overflowing with love for the dear girl he opened the letter and read,—

"Dear Doctor:—

When you were here I pitied you and hated to see you disappointed. This was the sole cause of my recent actions. Forgive me, but our engagement can not be consummated. By registered letter I have this day returned the ring. Forget, and blot me out entirely from the tables of thy memory. I shall however ,always carry with me many pleasant recollections of the past. Margaret."

AN OLD-TIME PRESCRIPTION

in a modern product. From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair and making it grow. In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready to use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. Such a preparation is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, which is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or which is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

No Wonder She Swooned.

Mrs. Lysander John Appleton's mother instinct divined last evening that her son, Chauncey Devere Appleton, was in trouble, so she took him to her room and said. "My son, tell your mother what troubles you."

It turned out that the young man was having a hard time. The girl he has been "going with" had refused him. Mrs. Appleton was indignant. She thinks it would be an honor for any girl in the west to marry an Appleton. "Why did she refuse you?" she asked her son, with fine scorn.

"Well," the boy replied between his sobs, "she objects to our family. She says pa's a loafer, that you're too fat and that everybody laughs at Dayse Mayme because she's a fool and talks about nothing but the greatness of her family." Chauncey threw water in his mother's face, but at 3 o'clock this afternoon she was still in a swoon, with four doctors working on her.—Atchison Globe.

Applied Christianity.

Mother had baked several varieties of cakes, among them being some small, decorated ones for the children. All had received their share and were busy disposing of them upon the back veranda—that is, all except Isabel, who for some misdemeanor had been refused a share of the feast. Now, Isabel was four years old and had been attending a Sunday school for several weeks past, and in the school she learned a number of texts. She stood by the window watching the others make merry until her longing was too much for childish patience. So she walked over to the table, reached out her hand and solemnly repeated, "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want." Then a little fist closed firmly upon the largest, finest cake.—Woman's Home Companion.

P. J. Garrity, 367 Granite street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I suffered so severely from kidney disease that I could hardly get about. I was restless at night and could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained a heavy sediment at times. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. After I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. MIGHT HAVE WRECKED TRAIN

Express Package Found to Contain Dynamite and Powder

IN RUDELY CONSTRUCTED BOX

Shipped From Town In New Brunswick to Boston, Where Trainmen Make Discovery That Startles Them—Shipment Destined to New York and Thence to Italy—Owner of Explosives Under Arrest

Boston, Oct. 16.—Consternation reigned among the railroad officials at the North Station when upon unloading an express car that had come through on the train from Bathurst, N. B., a stick of dynamite tumbled out of a crudely constructed box and an examination disclosed that the package contained twenty sticks of dynamite and nearly fifty pounds of black powder.

On a technical charge of violating a city ordinance in transporting explosives into the city without permission Michaele Sonia, aged 48 years, was arrested last night in the North End.

The train upon which the explosives were shipped is one of the heaviest that comes through to this city from the maritime provinces and carries regularly between 500 and 600 passengers. What might have been the consequences had the train met with an accident or had the box got a bad jolt the trainmen do not like to think about.

The danger box was roughly built, and while being unloaded from the baggage car, with the crowds of commuters hurrying by from the suburban trains to their places of business, a stick of dynamite tumbled out upon the platform.

Fortunately there was no explosion, but no unprotected glass case ever received half the delicate handling that rough package had until its further contents were inspected by the police and Fire Marshal Smith.

The claimant of the box was waited with considerable eagerness by the police and fire marshal, and several hours later an expressman presented a check. He was then followed to a house in North square, where Senia was arrested on the technical charge of violating a city ordinance governing the handling of explosives.

Close questioning of Senia by officers last night brought out facts that made them especially thankful that the nature of the contents of the box had been discovered before a catastrophe resulted.

Senia, who boarded the train at Bathurst, said he had intended to take the 6 o'clock train for New York last night and then sail on the steamer Alicia on Wednesday for Italy. Senia intended to take his box with him. The possibilities of this kind of travel on the train or on the steamer, especially on the latter in rough weather, were not pleasant to the hearers of the Italian's story.

Besides other explosives, several cartridges and a box of matches were found in the box, and on the person of the traveler three knives were found.

AFTER AMERICA'S CUP

Lipton Coming Over to Try and Arrange For Another Race

London, Oct. 16.—Sir Thomas Lipton, who sailed for New York on the steamer Cedric today talked encouragingly of his prospect of securing another race for the America's cup.

"I am going to New York," he said, "in the hope of arranging another race. I realize that there are many difficulties in the way, but am convinced that they can be overcome because I know that the New York Yacht club is composed of good sportsmen who, rather than have the race die a natural death, will, I feel sure, do their utmost to meet me. Neither country wishes the race to become a dead letter."

The Business World

New York, Oct. 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says that higher rates for money, while they are an occasion of some hesitation in speculative markets, are nevertheless a natural consequence of the widening industrial and mercantile activity and the movement of the crops. The cold weather is quickening the distribution of fall merchandise.

Douglas Shop Trouble Ends

Brockton, Mass., Oct. 16.—Resumption of business by the W. L. Douglas Shoe company in this city was believed to be assured when announcement was made that an agreement had been reached between the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers' association, the executive board of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union and officials of the Douglas company.

After Lahm Cup Record

St. Louis, Oct. 16.—A. B. Lambert and S. L. Von Phul left last evening in the balloon, St. Louis No. 3 in an attempt to better the Lahm cup record of 731 miles established Oct. 13 by A. H. Forbes and Max Fleischmann. Lambert sailed as pilot and Von Phul as aid.

THE TRUE BLUEBEARD

He Was a Cruelly and Malevolently Maligned Frenchman.

NOT A MURDEROUS MONSTER.

He Had Matrimonial Misfortunes, It Is True, but He Seems to Have Been the Only One Who Came to Grief on Account of Them—His Tragic End.

The supposedly detestable Bluebeard, the monster of murderous polygamy, the very name of the ogre into whose mouth one used, if one could, in childhood's happy hour, to throw india rubber balls, was in truth a man who has been as cruelly and malevolently maligned by history as Nero, Richard III., Macbeth, tutti quanti. So says M. Anatole France—and pray who can speak with higher authority on the real facts of faery?—in "Les Sept Femmes de la Barbe-Bleue et Autres Contes Merveilleux." One knew already that Charles Perrault first wrote, in about 1660, the historical biography of Bluebeard, but one did not know until now how deeply Perrault, probably through false information, wronged the memory of an excellent and ill treated personage. From M. France we learn that M. Bernard de Montragoux, of old and noble descent, lived in 1650 or thereabouts at the ancestral Chateau Les Guillettes, on his estates between Compiegne and Pierrefonds. The castle, of frowning outward aspect, was inside a treasure house of taste and wealth. Its owner, contrary to long existing tradition, wore no beard, only a mustache and a little tuft below the lower lip. He was known through the countryside as Bluebeard because his hair was very black, and therefore his close shaven cheeks and chin were markedly blue. He was a fine figure of a man who, in spite of his manifest advantages as a good match, did not get on well with women of his own rank in life. This was due to an incurable shyness on his part. Pleasant and pretty girls who had been well brought up attracted him immensely, but also filled him with an indescribable terror.

The first notable result of this affliction was that the unfortunate orphan, for such he had been since his early youth, incapable of making proposals for the hand of any of the attractive and high born ladies in the neighborhood, married a certain Colette Passage, a fascinating girl in her way, against whose character nothing seems known, who was going round the country with a dancing bear. Things went well enough for a few months, and then Colette, who had at first reveled in being a lady of quality, began to long for her old freedom. The longing became irresistible, and at last she took her departure secretly with her justly beloved bear. It is noteworthy that they made their escape by way of a room that had a door leading to what had been water meadows, and so to open country. Perrault called this room "le petit cabinet," but it was also known as "the wretched princesses' room," because a Florentine painter had covered its walls with the most lifelike figures of Circe, Niobe and Procris. The tragic effect of these paintings was enhanced by the porphyry flooring of the room, which suggested bloodstains.

Montragoux appeared inconsolable at the disappearance, which was complete, of Colette, his first wife, and doubtless his lot would have been far less unhappy if he had never tried to console himself. This, most unfortunately, he did by marrying one Jeanne de la Cloche, who turned out to be a violent dipsomaniac. Bluebeard was of a nature so kindly and noble that, although in a fit of mad passion she nearly killed him with a kitchen knife, he continually hoped to reclaim her by kindness. But one day she strayed into the generally shut up princesses' room, took the painted figures for real people and was so terrified that she rushed wildly into the open fields, tumbled into a deep pool, and so was drowned.

So things went on, a new affliction with each new wife, and in each case the final catastrophe was associated with the princesses' room. The climax to the unhappy career of the more than worthy and lovable Bernard de Montragoux came with his seventh wife, Jeanne de Lespoisse, cleverest and most fascinating of a family of utterly unscrupulous adventurers. No one knew anything about the supposed late husband of the mother. Of the two brothers, a dragoon and a musketeer, one was a low rascal and a mere sponge; the other lived on gaming and on the good nature of women to whom he made love. Anne, the sister, was the incarnation of malicious cunning. Associated with this precious family was a certain Chevalier de Merlus, who had a great deal to do with the final tragedy of M. de Montragoux's career. The nature of this tragedy may be inferred, but it is curious that, while Perrault represented Bluebeard as taking a journey in order to lay a trap for his wife, the fact was exactly opposite. Both before and after his marriage he had heaped benefits on all these wretches. When he was obliged to go away in the matter o an inheritance he gave all his key without reserve to his wife, warnin her out of pure love against the unhappy associations of the princesses' room. As soon as he was out of the way a trap was laid for him, and it was in that very room that he was most treacherously assassinated. The worst and the best of it was that M. de Merlus, after marrying the wealthy widow, became an exemplary husband and subject of the king.

THE TEASEL.

A Queer Plant With Water Traps For Its Insect Victims.

Among common plants there are few more remarkable than the teasel. There is little doubt, says a well informed natural history contributor to the London Chronicle, that the teasel is as much a flesh eating organism as any spider that ever spun a web.

Moreover, its method of securing its victims, though quite as ingenious as that of the spider, is much more comprehensive as well as more efficacious. Not only does this extraordinary plant capture all species of flies and gnats, great or small, but caterpillars, slugs, wood lice and the like are all frequent victims.

How this is brought about forms one of the most wonderful incidents in nature's fascinating story of the year. The spider weaves her net of the finest silk; the teasel makes her snare out of dewdrops. The plant grows up straight as a church spire, throwing out its leaves in pairs at intervals up the juicy green stem. The twin leaves unite at their base to form a deep cup, and the leaves are so contrived that the moisture precipitated on them runs down into this reservoir.

A well developed plant will thus catch and hold in four or five of these water traps a full half pint of liquid, and the heat of the sun appears to evaporate so little of it that the cups will be brimming even at the close of a hot June day. The smooth, steep leaves all lead down into these pits, and their gradient gets sharper as the water is approached.

Thus the teasel's victims are made to "walk the plank" to their death, and once in the water there is no hope of return. They soon drown, and every teasel well has at its bottom a layer of slime formed by their disintegrated bodies.

It is of course difficult to prove that this deposit is absorbed by the plant as nutriment, but careful dissection will show at the base of each cup a ring of apertures—sink holes, in fact—which lead into the substance of the stem and the presence of which affords little room for doubt on the matter.

The Demon Rum.

The subject given out for an essay in one of the public schools was "The Evil Effects of Alcohol." Here are extracts from some of the compositions:

"Alcohol has a very marked effect on the doctor's conclusions in cases of sickness."

"Medical men say that fatal diseases are the worst."

"Some people think the abuse of drink is a sin, others think it is all right, and others take it as a medicine."

"At the present day many people are in jail for committing suicide while under the influence of strong drink."

"Doctors say that the increased death rate from the effects of boozing shortens life."

"Alcohol mocks at you, and at last it biteth like a servant and stingeth like a bee."

"The Bible says look not on the wine when it is red, but Rhine wine is not hurtful."—New York Press.

THE BIGGER LEDGER.

The new press has not arrived yet but is looked for any day now. The foundations and equipment are about ready so that there will be no delay in setting up and running when it does arrive. Quincy will have a paper to be proud of in a few weeks, an eight page paper when demanded by a rush of news and a six page through the quiet season. Arrangements are going forward for special features and a large corps of writers will contribute to make the Ledger a readable, newsy home paper. On the staff are editor, associate editor, head reporter and ten local reporters as well as special feature reporters.

United States and Mexico are preparing to exchange weather reports daily. It is to be hoped they won't swap weather also.

An historical pageant at Franklin park, Boston, would be of great educational value to the city and the park an ideal place for it.

That is a beautiful building proposed for the Boston Y. M. C. A., to be built on Arlington street facing the Public Gardens, and its arrangements and equipment seem about perfect.

Prosperty seems to be in Brockton the Savings bank reporting a gain the last six months in deposits of $326,000.

It is a remarkable fact that in the last ten years only one precinct, the first in ward 4, has voted for liquor licenses, and that only in 1899 and 1900. In 102 precinct elections, no-license has prevailed 100 times, and in 73 of the precinct elections, more than half the registered voters have said "No." The largest vote for license, 31 per cent, of the registration, was in 1899, the smallest, 18 per cent, was in 1905 and also in 1906. The largest vote against license, 62 per cent., was in 1907, and the smallest, 47 per cent, was in 1900. The largest vote ever cast against license was last year.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

SOLICITING NUISANCE.

Editor Daily Ledger:

Allow me space in which to call attention to a matter that is rapidly becoming a good deal of a nuisance, in the hope that those responsible therefor may see the justice of putting an end to it. I refer to the practice of some churches sending out solicitors to ask contributions from persons belonging to other churches. The thing is getting too common. First it is a mortgage that is to be reduced; then a church has to be repaired; then it is something else; and each time you are respectfully asked to stand and deliver a dollar that ought to go to your own church or to the landlord or grocer. The average man is a moral coward and cannot say no to such an appeal, although he feels disgusted with the request.

A moment's reflection will convince any fair-minded man of the injustice of such a proceeding. Let mortgages be reduced by all means and let churches be renovated and repaired, but not at the expense of those who have no interests in the church or whose interests are in other churches. A church that cannot pay its own way has no justification for trying to exist. There are enough of the self-supporting kind in Quincy to accommodate all who need spiritual assistance.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

OF QUINCY GRANITE

Handsome Monument to Be Erected at Baton Rouge

The granite shaft to be erected at Baton Rouge, La., by the state of Massachusetts, in memory of her officers and soldiers, who were in the department of the gulf, during the Civil war, started on its long journey southward Friday from West Quincy.

This beautiful monument, which is of Quincy granite, is a square needle shaft, 38 feet high, resting on a base about 10 feet square.

On its face is a bronze eagle, with its wings uplifted over the carved granite shield of Massachusetts, surrounded by a bronze garland, above the bronze panel, with the following inscription:

MASSACHUSETTS.
In memory of
The officers and men of the Federal Army and Navy from Massachusetts Who lost their ives in the Department of the Gulf during the civil war.

The sculptor is John A. Wilson of Boston, and the work was executed in West Quincy by J. N. White & Sons.

The dedication will take place Nov. 15, as at first decided upon. Governor Draper had been asked by Louisiana envoys to change the date to Oct. 29, when President Taft will be present but, on account of the election coming on Nov. 2, it was thought best to hold to the original plans and the state party of 23 will start for Baton Rouge Nov. 9.

COLLEGE NIGHT.

Students Enjoy College Night at Y. M. C. A.

One hundred and fifty students were on hand to enjoy the college night held at the Y. M. C. A. last evening. It was one of the most delightful evenings ever spent in the association for this class of fellows. Lothrop Withington of Harvard Varsity crew and football squad was the speaker and told of the training of a varsity crew tracing the progress of a crew from start to the finish of the season. The association orchestra rendered music and was highly appreciated. Edward H. Frye of Boston was the entertainer and made a big hit with the boys. BAZAAR SECOND NIGHT.

Large Crowd in Attendance and a Big Business Done.

There was a large crowd on hand Friday evening at the second night of the bazaar in Faxon hall given by the Cirle Daughters of Viking, 933 C. O. F. of A. and court John Ericson. From 7.30 until late in the evening the happy crowd flowed in and out of the hall which was filled with all sorts of amusement and entertainment. A fine program was rendered during the evening and the selections were continually encored. The shooting gallery was in full swing all the time and under the charge of Andrew Johnson it will surely be one of the most successful forms of entertainment. Tonight will be the big night and the management has made ample arrangements so that all will be assured of a good time. There are some beautiful pieces of handiwork on the fancy tables and the candies for sale take the eye of everybody.

The entertainment last evening consisted of the following selections: Piano duet, Miss Edna Salster, Miss Hannah Sanberg. Trio, Miss Anna Sanberg, Miss DeBore and Miss Anderson. Declamation, Miss Anna Bjorkman. Solo, Miss Bertha Carlson. Piano solos, Miss Ellen Anderson.

All of the tables did a good business the second night of the fair and all will be stocked up fresh for the crowd expected tonight. The members of the chapters in charge of the various tables Friday night were as follows:

Candy—Mrs. P. Johnson.

Fancy table—Mrs. E. J. Sanberg, Mrs. L. Loddengard, Mrs. C. V. Leaf.

Wheel of fortumne—Algert Ericson, Oscar Holquist.

Cane board—August Johnson.

Arrows—Alfred Larson.

Japanese ball table—Nels Nelson.

Grab box—Mrs. G. Lundberg.

In charge of door—Nels Loddengard.

Fish pond—Lors Dalbert.

Refreshment table—Mrs. E. Jeppson, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Cecelia Ericson, Miss Ellen Brant.

Shooting gallery—Andrew Johnson.

The fair is proving to be an immense success and it is due mostly to the efforts of the following committee in charge: Charles Pearson, Chairman, Oscar Almquist, Secretary, Nels Nelson, Lors Dalberg, Nels Loddengard, Algert Ericson, Charles Ericson.

The committee of ladies from the circle is composed as follows: Mrs. E. J. Sanberg, Mrs. A. Thompson, Mrs. C. V. Leaf, Mrs. P. Johnson, and Mrs. T. Shalster.

These two committees have had full charge of the fair and it is due to their efforts that it is proving to be such a great success. Tonight there will be a fine program arranged and the hall will probably be taxed to its utmost to hold the crowd which will turn out.

MAY DISBAND.

Lack of Interest May Cause Citizens' Association to give Up.

Unless more interest is shown in the future, than there has been in the immediate past in the Citizens' association the chances are that the association will go out of business. The association has quite a large membership but since the bottom fell out of the scheme to revamp the city charter, interest seems to be lacking.

A month ago a meeting was called to take action on the nomination of officers for the ensuing year, the by-laws providing for the appointment of a nominating committee in October. Lack of a quorum however prevented that meeting from being held.

The annual meeting of the association has been called for next week and at that meeting it will probably be decided whether or not the association, for which so much was promised, will continue to exist.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONFERENCE.

The annual meeting of the South Shore branch of the Sunday school union will be held with Christ church parish Tuesday afternoon and evening with the following program:

4.00—Election of officers, Parish House.

4.20—Devotional meeting in the church; led by Rev. P. S. Cline of St. Stephen's church, Boston.

5.45—Supper for the delegates, Parish House.

8.00—Discussion of Sunday school problems.

COCHATO CLUB.

Entries are being made for a ladies' bottle pin tournament to open Nov. 8. The list closes Oct. 30.

The weekly social gatherings on Saturday evening are increasing in interest, and the season is already in full swing.

The schedule for the men's bottle pin tournament is not yet complete but the opening games will be bowled next week as follows:

Tuesday, Teams 1, 2 and 3.

Wednesdays, Teams 4, 5 and 6.

Thursday, Teams 7, 8 and 9.

The Cochato Club's entertainment series will open on Friday evening, Oct. 22, with a program that promises to be both interesting and pleasing.

It is to consist of songs by the Misses Turner two Southern girls who attracted such favorable attention and so won their audiences on their recent trip abroad that as a special mark of favor they were invited to sing before the King and Queen of England. They will entertain with some of their genuine old fashioned Negro melodies, which they do with such artistic conception and perfect dialect.

Ralph Smalley, leading 'cellist of the Boston Symphony, and without doubt, therefore, the leading 'cellist in this country today, will be present and render several selections. The brilliance and skill with which Mr. Smalley performs upon his favorite instrument are so well known as to need no special comment at this time. He is a lover of high class music with the melody left in, so that his selections never fail to charm.

There will also be several numbers by Nina Bearce Wilbur, dramatic reader and impersonator. Her recent successes with the Lotus Club guarantee the quality of her work, and so as a whole, the club may look forward with pleasure to the opening of the winter's course,.

WOODWARD GIRLS ENTERTAINED.

The class of 1907 of Woodward Institute was very pleasantly entertained by Miss Mabel E. Lovejoy at her home on Butler road, Friday evening. During the evening many new games were introduced which caused much merriment and laughter.

At nine-thirty the guests adjourned to the dining room. Here the table lighted with candles which threw a soft glow over all, was artistically trimmed with fruits, vegetables and fall flowers, dahlias predominating. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, candy and fruit were served.

After the collation an hour was spent in singing, at the close of which the girls departed with hearty thanks to their hostess for the pleasant evening she had given them.

OUR HOSPITAL

(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.

(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS

Boston Theatre.

At the Boston theatre Joseph M. Gaites' musical comedy production, "Three Twins" has scored the biggest kind of a hit and at every performance, capacity audiences are seen. The secret of "Three Twins" success lies in the excellent comedy that the author has put into his story and in the superb cast, headed by Clifton Crawford and Bessie McCoy, which participates in the service of good things. Mr. Crawford, who is the leader in the funmaking, appears on the stage within a moment after the opening chorus and immediately puts the audience in a hilarious mood. From then until the finale of the last act there is no let up in the smart pace set for the comedy, song and dance. While, during every moment of the dialogue, the laughter is incessant, the musical and specialty features have not been neglected. "Cuddle Up a Little Closer" is a delicious waltz song done by Daisy Leon early in the performance. "Good Night Sweetheart" and "Little Miss Up-To-Date" are other whistly numbers. The "Hypnotic Dance," by Mr. Crawford and Miss McCoy, is a wonderful terpsichorean revelation and "The Yama Yama Man," which is sung and danced by Miss McCoy, with the assistance of twenty pony dancers, is in a class by itself.

Keith's Theatre.

Once in a generation the name of an actor becomes identified with a play and both are synonymous of success. One of the biggest money makers of recent years was "Brewster's Millions" which was produced by Frederick Thompson of Luna park fame with Edward Abeles in the principal role. Mr. Abeles certainly sprang into prominence and attained a wide popularity as a comedian in the cities where "Brewster's Millions" was shown but he was ambitious for other work and in vaudeville has found that ambition realized. He is probably the highest paid actor from the legitimate stage in vaudeville today and he has a play that in its way is as meritorious as "Brewster's Millions." It is called "Self Defense" and Mr. Abeles takes the part of a deaf mute who has been charged with a crime and the entire piece is full of strong situations. Mr. Abeles will appear at Keith's next week sharing honors with feature that has been attracting such wide attention, Annette Kellermann, in her exhibition of diving and diabolo. Another new feature will be Kelmar & Brown, one of the most novel and artistic dancing acts that has been shown in recent years, the work being done amid beautiful surroundings, while both Mr. Kelmar and Miss Brown are original and graceful dancers.

Food Fair.

Crowds are at the Great Food Fair from various New England points. Every day is a bargain day at the World's Greatest Food Fair and Home Furnishing Exposition in Mechanics building, Boston, from the moment one enters the great building. If a lady, she is presented a handsome souvenir. Then as one continues along the corridors lined on both sides with magnificent exhibits made by more than 400 exhibitors, one can keep busily employed sampling various articles of cookery or of things which go into this art and are considered essential nowadays to please the palates of even the ordinary individual, not to mention the epicure. All of these displays and those which make for the beauty and the comfort of the home are most artistically arranged and adorned. Then, it must not be forgotten that all of the great and numerous entertainments at this fair are free. In Grand hall are given twice every day the splendid concerts by Vessella's great band of 50 Italian musicians. In the basement, arranged like a great tent, is given several times daily J. W. Gorman's old time circus with a fine program of arena acts and clowning by experts in their respective lines of work. In Paul Revere Hall students from Booker T. Washington's Institute at Tuskegee, Ala., give concerts singing the folklore songs of the negro for the past two centuries.

American Music Hall.

At no time during the past two seasons has there been such interest in vaudeville in Boston as there is at the present time. This is due in a great measure to the remarkable bills which are being presented weekly at the American Music hall. Next week the world's premier ventriloquist, Arthur Prince will make his first appearance in the Hub for several seasons. Mr. Prince is the man whom the London newspapers credit with making the ventriloquism in London as staple a feature as the moving pictures. With his life-like dummy "Jim" he furnishes enough amusement to satisfy the most critical. Hand cuff artists are always surrounded with more or less mysticism and this is particularly true of Hardeen the king of hand cuffs who is another feature of the strong bill next week. Hardeen has broken out of jails out of water tight casks and has even gone so far as to escape from a specially built boiler securely riveted without leaving any trace as to how he succeeded. That he will prove a sensation is a foregone conclusion. That dainty former star of the Pollard Opera Company, Daphne Pollard will be an attractive feature on the bill. She has the unchallenged reputation of being Australia's foremost singing character comedienne. As an animal act Rafayette's dogs is the greatest act of its kind on the stage. These dogs are marvels of canine intelligence and do about everything a man does except talk. Besnah & Miller, whirl wind singers and dancers, Foster & Foster presenting the "Volunteer Pianist and four other big acts will complete the bill.

Park Theatre.

Readers interested in American government and fond of a good exciting play, are advised to see "A Gentleman From Mississippi" now running at the Park theatre. This is the kind of a play that deserves to succeed, and its success is great. The writing of this play and its very fine production by William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer reflects credit upon the American stage and the theatregoing public in this country. The play is purely American, the characters are all American, the colored men that appear on the stage are actually genuine negroes, not preposterous imitations. Thomas Wise, who plays the part of Langdon, gives a most admirable impersonation. He is actually the individual that he represents. The same may be said of Douglas Fairbanks, who plays the part of the breezy, young newspaper correspondent. "A Gentleman From Mississippi," is an amusing play, full of laughter and sentiment from beginning to end, but it is, above all, an instructive play. It emphasizes the power of truth and honesty, it makes the big audiences think. It is not like so many unworthy plays that merely amuse, and, too often, actually appeal to base emotions. This power of a good play, a stage with a purpose, conscientious actors and managers cannot possibly be exaggerated. The play is seen and heard. Men and women gather together, and association increases the strength of their emotions. The reading of a book is an isolated process and impresses the average mind much less vividly than the exciting presentation of a play, with music, lights, motion, live people, thought emphatically, artistically and vividly expressed.

Viviano Children Turned Loose In Streets of Chicago

PICKED UP BY A DETECTIVE

Found Seated on Curbstone, the Courageous Little Fellow Trying to Comfort His Younger Cousin—Fathers of Both Are Wealthy Italian Merchants of St. Louis, Who Refused to Give Ransom

Chicago, Oct. 16.—Two Italian children, identified from photographs as Tomasso and Grace Viviano, who were kidnapped from St. Louis Aug. 4 last and who have been sought since by the police of many cities, were found early in the morning wandering aimlessly on the North Side of the city by Detective Stephen Parodi of the Chicago Avenue police station.

TOMASSO VIVIANO

The children when found were sitting on the curbstone at North Halstead and Rease streets. Both were weeping, the little girl, who is less than 4 years old, sobbing bitterly, and Tomasso, her cousin, who is 5 years old, trying to comfort her.

Detective Parodi took the children in his arms and asked them where they lived. Tomasso said that he did not know. Remembering the Viviano case he asked Tomasso if his name was Viviano. The boy nodded his head as if to confirm his identity.

The detective hurried with the children to the Chicago Avenue police station. Photographs of the missing St. Louis children were immediately procured from the central detective bureau and Inspector O'Brien was convinced, on comparing them with the homeless foundlings, that they were the long sought victims of the St. Louis kidnapping which had taxed the ingenuity of the detectives in many cities for weeks.

GRACE VIVIANO.

Tomasso was asked by the inspector and Captain Bohm where he and Grace had been since they were taken from their home in St. Louis. The child could give no intelligent answer. He said he did not know where he lived and could give no account of his abandonment.

Inspector O'Brien notified the St. Louis police of the recovery of the children. Meanwhile detectives are searching Italian sections of the city in an endeavor to learn who abandoned the children and where they had been since their mysterious disappearance from St. Louis last summer.

The police believe that the kidnappers had the children secreted in a secluded section of the city and turned them loose when efforts to extort ransom failed.

Captain Schoppe and Sergeant Adraveno of the St. Louis police department, who knew the Viviano children, arrived here last night and positively identified the boy and girl.

Parents Victims of Black Hand

St. Louis, Oct. 16.—Grace and Tomasso Viviano, cousins, who were found in Chicago, were kidnapped from their home here Aug. 2. They were last seen with Samuel Turissi and since then he has been sought by the police. The girl is 3 and the boy 5 years old.

Four hours after the children disappeared a special delivery letter signed "Mouth Shut" and written in Italian, was received at the Viviano home. The letter demanded a ransom of $25,000.

The father of each child is named Pietro Viviano. They are manufacturers and have been Black Hand victims. Twice the front of their store was blown out and once it is known they paid money under threats. They always refused to prosecute the suspected persons.

They were overjoyed when they learned their children were alive and made arrangements to leave for Chicago.

Five persons were held by the police in the kidnapping, but they were released. Three other suspects were never found.

COOK DOUBLY HONORED

Receives the Freedom of the City of New York and a Gold Medal

New York, Oct. 16.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook yesterday received the freedom of the city conferred by the board of aldermen, branded as a lie the affidavit of Edward N. Barrill, the guide who says he did not attain the summit of Mount McKinley, and finally fired the shot which started a twenty-four-hour automobile race at Brighton Beach.

The conferring of the freedom of the city upon the explorer was a formal affair, conducted jointly by the board of aldermen and the Arctic Club of America. The club presented to him a gold medal in recognition of his discovery of the Pole, while the aldermen took the occasion to recognize him officially for the first time since his arrival on home shores.

Cook announced last night that he had organized an expedition to ascend Mount McKinley and procure the records which he says were left there on his former ascent. This step will be taken to refute the charges that he did not attain the summit of the mountain as set forth in the affidavit of Barrill.

Known Deaths In Southern Storm Number Thirty-Seven

Memphis, Oct. 16.—With the known deaths already numbering thirty-seven and with thirteen others reported dead, with scores seriously injured and many others painfully bruised and scarred, and with the property damage amounting to $1,000,000 or more, the havoc wrought by the storm which swept portions of Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Arkansas and South Carolina grows hourly.

Apparently the storm broke over the middle and west Tennessee and proceeded in a southeasterly direction across the state into Alabama and Georgia, assuming the proportions of a hurricane as it swept along, leaving desolation and ruin behind. In some places it is reported that the wind attained a velocity of ninety miles an hour.

THE CAMERA.

Some of the Wonderful Things of Which It Is Capable.

The camera, which divides time into thousandths of a second and records the impressions of each, makes permanent pictures of events which pass too quickly for the dull human retina to recognize. It is only through the camera that the motions of the wings of flying birds and of the legs of swift running animals have been analyzed. To the camera the fuzzy drivers of the swiftly speeding locomotives stand out clear cut and stationary, while each flying drop of rain in the driven storm is distinct and seems frozen in its place. The tarpon fisherman, familiar with the first wild leap of the frenzied fish as it casts hook and bait fifty feet in the air, sees first in the finished picture the outstretched gills, the convulsive opening and closing of which had escaped his eye, however closely he may have looked for it.

Often the eye of the camera will decipher documents of which the writing had been substantially obliterated by age, and I have successfully copied with the camera the utterly faded photograph of a classmate of forty years previous and thereby been enabled to present to a grizzled veteran a likeness of his curly haired youth. Changes in the pigment of the skin undiscoverable by the eye appear with distinctness on the sensitive plate, and it is said that ample warning of approaching disease has been thereby given.

By means of the invisible rays lying beyond the violet of the spectrum objects may be photographed in the darkness and, with the aid of the so called X rays, through substances otherwise opaque. When from the darkness of night and storm the forked lightning flashes, the camera makes a vivid and permanent picture of each fiery trail. Creatures that travel by night can be "caught" in the brief blaze of a magnesium charged pistol, the flash of which is of too short duration for the creature to move or the dull human eye to recognize the subject.—A. W. Dimock in Van Norden's.

JAPAN A LAND OF COLOR.

Farms of Two or Three Acres Divided Into Many Tiny Fields.

Land is so scarce in Japan and the people so numerous that a farm rarely consists of more than an acre or two. These little farms are divided up into tiny fields. During the season of the year in which we made our journey one of these fields was filled with sprouting barley, light green in color; another field, perhaps the next, with vetch, a lavender colored, cloverlike fodder; a neighboring field with a dark green grass from the seed of which a lamp oil is manufactured; another with the pale yellow flowers of the mustard, and scattered here and there fields filled with what looked like a variety of lily, some white, some red, some yellow, but all equally brilliant.

Then to get the complete picture you must imagine patches of flowering azaleas dotting the roadside; towering, round topped camellia trees breaking the sky line with frequent splashes of bright green; usually in the shade of these trees houses with white plastered walls and red tiled roofs; about the more pretentious of these houses white plastered walls, above which appeared a profusion of palms, roses and strange native flowers, and in the doorways of the garden walls kimono clad Japanese girls, the kimonos as many and as gayly colored as the garden that framed them.

I have traveled in but one other country that is so gayly colored, and that was some few years ago, when, in the company of a number of other youngsters and an evil smelling magic lantern, I used to make frequent visits to the Land of Primary Colors.—George MacAdam in Outing Magazine

Good Kitchen Company.

One housewife in this town doesn't know anything about the servant problem, at least so much of it as has to do with the keeping of a maid of all work, the quality of such service not being counted. This is because her servants always become devoted to her because of her brightness and magnanimous treatment of them. Having only the one servant of doubtful skill and accomplishments, this housewife has to spend a good deal of time in her own kitchen. The other day Julia expressed her appreciation this way:

"Miss Fanny, yo' ce'tinly is good kitchen comp'ny."—Louisville Times.

BATHING HINTS.

Advice to Those Who Slight Important Details.

Have you ever used bath bags? No? Well, they are cheap, quickly made, and, once tried, you will never be without them. To make them, cut pieces of cheesecloth 9 by 15 inches and run these up to form bags. Fill each one with the following mixture: A gill of bran, a gill of oatmeal, a gill of cornmeal, a gill of pulverized orris root, a saltspoonful of ground cloves, the same of powdered borax and a gill of shaved toilet soap. The bag should not be stuffed full, but the contents should be loose. Allow the bag to soak in the bath water a few minutes, so its fragrance will be imparted. One of these little bags will last two months and must be hung up to dry each time after using. Should you enjoy a stronger perfume it is obtained by adding half an ounce of lavender flowers to the bag or by pouring a little lavender or violet water in the tub or basin in connection with this. The skin feels delightful if gone over with a bath brush. It seems to start the circulation as nothing else will. Then sponge off with the bath bag. Twice a week is sufficiently often for this perfumed bath, and upon retiring is decidedly the best time. Don't take very hot baths, and don't be foolish enough to take a "cold dip" in the mornings unless ordered by the family physician. Let the water be as near the temperature of the body as possible. Don't use the old fashioned sponge for bathing. It is decidedly obnoxious and insanitary. Don't bathe directly after eating—not for half an hour at least. Don't ever take a bath in a cold room. Don't take a cold bath when tired, but a warm one will rest and refresh you greatly.

Don't wash the face too frequently when traveling. Cold cream removes dirt better than hard water, and don't forget the alcohol bottle; also cheesecloth wash cloths, which can be used and then thrown away.

Don't attempt to remove dirt and dust from the face with cold water, and don't wash the face and hands with hard water if you can get soft. A small quantity of powdered borax makes the hardest water soft and agreeable. Don't wash the face with cold water when warm from exertion or when overheated. Don't remain long in a bath, but don't neglect a daily one of some sort. Don't dress immediately after it, and, above all, don't neglect the "sun bath" as well as the one of fresh air.

Don't think you are getting rid of wrinkles by filling them with powder, but before retiring bathe the face with hot water, so hot it has to be sopped, then with very cold water, and pat it dry with a soft linen towel. Don't rub it. By careful bathing, paying attention to these suggestions, the average woman will realize that cleanliness does come next to godliness. Don't worry if you want to look youthful. Fears, doubts, care and anxieties leave furrows that nothing will obliterate. Retire as early as you can, with no thoughts of tomorrow. Remember that sufficient unto the day is the good thereof (not evil).

Bathe yourself freely with clean, pure, uplifting thoughts, and face powders as well as all other cosmetics will find small sales if depending upon you for support.

The Queen Bee.

The truth is that throughout all the wonder workings of the beehive the queen is little more than an instrument, a kind of an automaton, merely doing what the workers compel her to do. They are the real queens in the hive, and the mother bee is the real subject. The workers have made her for their own wise purpose, just as they make the comb and the honey to store in it. The egg she is hatched from is in no way different from any worker egg. If you take one from a queen cell and put it in the ordinary cell it will hatch out a common female worker bee, and an egg transferred from worker comb to a queen cell becomes a full grown queen. Thousands and thousands of worker eggs are laid in a hive during the season, and each of those could be made into a queen if the workers chose. But the worker egg is laid in a small cell, and the larva is bred on a bare minimum of food at the least possible cost in time, trouble and space to the hive, while when a new queen is wanted a cell as big as your finger tip is built, and the larva is stuffed like a prize pig through all its five days of embryo life until, with unlimited food and time and room to grow in, it comes out at last a perfect mother bee.—Van Norden's Magazine.

Funeral Stories.

The great French artist Ingres when in Rome had a violent cold, and Mottez asked him how he managed to catch it. Ingres replied that it was through attending the funeral of M. X.

"What—X., the art critic?" said Mottez. "I thought you hated him."

"That is why I went to see him buried," said Ingres.

Several years ago, at the funeral of a well known fire insurance official in Liverpool, much detested by his staff, it was remarked that an unexpectedly large number of them attended.

On one of them being asked for an explanation he said: "We wouldn't have missed it on any account. We want to be sure that he is buried."

The great artist, like the obscure clerk, has his littlenesses.

A Postal Romance.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1909, by T. C. McClure.]

Inspector Graham of the postal service happened to be at Chestnut Grove at the time the postmistress died, and he took charge of the office and did what he could in other directions. The deceased had left two daughters, one twelve and one eighteen. Squire Davis and two or three others scarcely waited the burial of the widow before planning for the postmastership and invoking the aid of the inspector. This they did not receive, however. He promptly recommended Bessie, the eldest daughter, for the place, and she was shortly appointed.

For the next year the postoffice at Chestnut Grove was the best conducted of any on the inspector's route. Not the slightest fault could be found in any direction. Had the inspector visited the office four times in the year he would have covered his instructions, but his calls were made much oftener.

Before the year was up Miss Bessie had to admit to herself that the inspector was showing something besides official interest, and the knowledge embarrassed and pained her. She had learned that he was free to marry. And why all these visits if he was not in love with her? The girl had a secret. It was a secret from the inspector only, and she trembled every time he came for fear that he would discover it. A dozen different village gossips could have betrayed that secret, but they had not been encouraged to talk. Squire Davis had often had it at his tongue's end, but had checked himself and said:

"Not a word from me. I said there would be a scandal, and there will be."

The girl postmistress had entered upon her second official year, and Inspector Graham had arrived to pay one of his semi-social calls, when he was met by a storm of excitement. He had been doing a great deal of thinking during the past three months. He had satisfied himself that he was really and truly in love with Bessie and wanted her for a wife, and he believed that he had found favor in her eyes. On this occasion he meant to tell his love and know his fate.

"This is what has happened," said Squire Davis, who was the first to meet him as he stepped off the cars. "A registered letter containing $50 for me has been lost in the mail."

"But Miss Jordon couldn't have taken your letter," protested the surprised and perturbed inspector.

"Mebbe not, but what about that feller who's been hanging around there for a year?"

The inspector was an official now instead of a friend. He at once got to work on the trail of the missing letter, and before night he assured himself that it had actually passed through the office at Sand Hill, which was next on the east. This being so, it must have arrived at Chestnut Grove. The night of its arrival was a very stormy one, and there was no one in after mail until long after it had been distributed. Inspector Graham sat in the office and thought it out and knew that the letter had arrived and been taken. He could not bring himself to believe that Miss Bessie was the thief, and yet it hurt him to think that it might have been taken by another—by the young man to whom Squire Davis had alluded. The girl had had a lover for a year past and had concealed the fact from him. It didn't occur to him that it was her right and that he had really no business to know, but he felt that an injury had been done him. There was but one way out of the business, and he took it. As he called the postmistress in he was more of the official than he had ever been.

"Miss Jordon," he began, "did Henry Williams assist you to distribute the mail on the evening of the 4th?"

"Y-yes," she replied as her face went white.

"And Henry Williams took the letter. You know he did."

"I—I can't be sure," she said as she broke down and sobbed.

"You never told me that you had a lover."

"N-o. I didn't—didn't think."

"Why did he take the letter?"

"Oh, sir," sobbed the girl, "he wanted to go away and find work and earn money so that we could be—be married. It was a temptation. He must have taken it, but we'll pay it all back."

"And he loves you?" asked the inspector, with a lump in his throat.

"He does. I know he does, and if anything was to happen to Billy"—

When the inspector crossed the street to the inn Squire Davis was still in his office, hoping to hear that an arrest had been made.

"Well, will the girl lose her place and be sent to prison?" he asked as Graham came in.

"No."

"But why not? She certainly got my $50."

"You didn't lose $50. You lost only $10. You had that sent to you hoping it would be taken. It was taken, but not by Miss Jordon. Henry Williams is the one, and there's your money back."

"But, sir, I demand"—

"You'd better drop it, squire. You have lied about the amount, and the authorities at Washington know that you've been itching to be postmaster here. Just spread the news that you've got your money and let it go at that."

And when morning came Inspector Graham went back to the postoffice to say:

"Miss Jordon, that registered letter is all right. Squire Davis has received it. And now, as I shall ask to be changed to another route and may not see you again for years, I wish to bid you goodby and wish you all the luck in the world."

Thibeault and Hill Held as Slayers of Amelia St. John

GIRL'S HEAD STILL MISSING

Positive Identification of Dismembered Body Will Be Difficult, If Not Impossible—Police, However, Are Confident That Fall River Girl Whose Clothing Was Found In Mt. Hope Bay Was Murdered

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 16.—The formal lodging of a charge of murder against Wilfrid Thibeault, a chauffeur, and Frank Hill, an "herb doctor," both of this city, was the principal development in the still unexplained tragedy revealed by the finding of portions of a young woman's body in Tiverton, R. I.

Both men calmly, and with firm voices, pleaded not guilty, but no evidence was introduced in the police court and they were held without bail for a hearing ten days hence.

The autopsy on the portions of the body thus far found resulted in a report by the medical examiner that there were evidences that an illegal operation had been attempted, and the Fall River police allege that Thibeault and Hill had been consulted concerning an operation by Amelia St. Jean, a young woman who disappeared from this city a week ago.

Both the Fall River and the Tiverton police express confidence that the Tiverton victim was Miss St. Jean. Apparently their strongest reason for thinking Miss St. Jean was the victim is the identification of a bundle of clothing bearing what may be bloodstains, which was found in Mt. Hope bay Thursday, as clothing borrowed by Miss St. Jean on Friday last from her aunt, Mrs. Eva Lemerieux of this city, and worn by her when she was last seen.

The girl's parents were unable to identify the portions of the body in the custody of the medical examiner at Tiverton when they made a trip there, but it is the general belief of those interested in the case that a positive identification would be difficult, if not impossible in any case, with the head missing.

Police officers continued the search for the head in the swampland along the Bulgermarsh and Fish roads in Tiverton yesterday, despite the pouring rain, but without result. The dragging of a portion of Mt. Hope bay, off Taber Beach, near where the bundle of clothing was found, likewise produced no clue.

Unless the case should take some unexpected turn, it is improbable that any definite progress will be made toward solving the mystery until the head of the murdered girl is found.

A bundle of blood-stained clothes, which the police state they believe were used in wiping and cleaning the bloody traces of mutilation from the vehicle used in transporting the body, were found in bushes opposite the home of Wilfrid Thibeault. Although the clothes are those of a woman the police believe they never belonged to the victim. They state that they think the clothing formed part of a collection of old clothes which the disposers of the body grabbed hurriedly to remove the traces of the crime.

KAISER SEES WRIGHT FLY

Thoroughly Familiar With Technical Features of the Aeroplane

Potsdam, Oct. 17.—Emperor William witnessed a half hour's flight by Orville Wright, the American aeroplanist, during which he reached a height of about 600 feet.

After Wright descended the emperor engaged him in a lengthy conversation. The emperor had many questions to ask the aviator and showed himself to be thoroughly familiar with the technical features of the aeroplane. He discussed the alleged infringements of the Wrights' patents and pointed out the parts of the machine in controversy. He expressed the desire to meet Wright's sister, and Miss Katherine was presented to him.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Woman Blames Parrott for Teaching Husband to Swear—High Stepping Dames Object to High Steps—School Boy Pleaders for Woman Suffrage Win High Debate—The Hub Has a Cold Cash Reformer—Boston's Great Basin No More Tin Wash Basin.

Here are harvest days. An interesting event to all ages and classes will be the New England Fruit show which is to take place at Horticultural hall next week. Exhibits from all the New England states will be included and the producers are vieing good naturedly to present the most marvellous aggregation of good things. The only fruit growers who will not exhibit are the commuters of Lonesomehurst and Isolatedville. People move to these villages to give their children the benefits of country air, and the small boys do the rest.

Boston, home of reforms, has developed still another reformer who is willing to back his theories with good cold cash. Edwin Ginn, the well known publisher, is sufficiently anxious to see international peace established to be willing to contribute the sum of $50,000 annually to a school where the principles of diplomatic relations and international amity shall be taught. Mr. Ginn has also provided that at the time of his death the sum of $1,000,000 shall be dedicated to this worthy cause.

The Phillips Brooks Memorial is now on the way to a speedy installation. The grass plot on the north side of Trinity church has been enclosed behind high boards and the excavations begun. As soon as the foundation is completed the pedestal will be shipped from New York, and the bronze group which the Boston people have long been waiting to see will be in its place of honor in due course. It will be a valuable addition to the already famous beauty of Copley Square.

Suffrage for women is so much in the air at present that it has become a topic for high school debates. An amusing outcome of a recent debate between the boys' and girls' teams of a surburban school occurred this week. The subject was "Resolved that complete suffrage should be granted to women"—the boys taking the affirmative and the girls the negative. The boys won! From now on until after the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Equal Suffrage Association on Oct. 22, the date of the great suffragist meeting in Tremont Temple, the city will be full of determined ladies, prepared to argue their own cause quite as eloquently as the high school boys argued it for them.

Boston's basin no longer looks like a tin wash basin. The concrete esplanade along the water front to the rear of Beacon Street is nearly completed as is also the ornamental gatehouse at the mouth of Stony brook. A very short time will witness the completion of what probably will be the most popular promenade in the city in both summer and winter, constituting a circuit of the basin by way of the Harvard bridge, Cambridge riverway, the new West Boston bridge and back to the starting point by way of the Beacon street esplanade. The picturesqueness of the scene creates increasing wonder and admiration as the finishing touches are applied.

Rah for the high steppers. The distressing case of a premier danseuse in a burlesque company who once walked four blocks out of her way rather than cross a muddy street which necessitated lifting her skirts above her ankles evidently has a number of parallels in Connecticut. It is an accepted fact that the blue stockings of Boston shall be modestly obscured, but a similar supposition comes as something of a surprise from a suburb of New York. However, President Mellen of the New Haven road to be endeavoring to frame up a suitable answer to the petition received from the members of the W. C. T. U. of the Nutmeg State pleading that the high steps on his cars be abolished for the eminently commendable and ladylike reason aforementioned.

The sublimity of human love has at last been measured. A woman has been discovered who worships her husband with such an overwhelming devotion and confidence that she blames the parrot for teaching him to swear. What an easy time that man must have—no stealing in in the wee sma' hours for fear of a curtain lecture, no frowning when he is late to supper, and the privilege of swearing unrepoved all he wants to. He is unfortunate, of course, in being imposed upon by his employers and made to work late, and doubtless his loving spouse sits up waiting for him in order to have his slippers warm and get him a dainty lunch after his trying day and evening. Safe to say she will never be a Suffragette, unless some kind friend wakes her up—and then! Poor John!

"Take this car for the Skating Rink" will be a sign familiar to Bostonians this winter, if rumors be true. It is said that the Hub is to have a real, bone-fide ice rink, to be completed in the near future, with a refrigerating plant which will guarantee ice at all times, even in our variable climate. There are to be accommodations for hockey, curling, and every sport connected with skating, each having its own section in order to avoid confusion and accident. It will also be possible to convert the immense building into an auditorium suitable for horse shows, automobile shows, a hippodrome, and affairs of like nature. The rink will fill a long felt want in the Hub, for the ice ponds in the vicinity are uncertain propositions.

The Hub takes much pride in the fact that it has one of the greatest poets of this generation in America within its confines. The prophet is without honor in his own country as a rule, but one of the exceptions is Sam Walter Foss, the genial, humorous, big hearted, good natured librarian in a suburban library, whose contributions to poetlore are becoming constantly more highly appreciated. One of the interesting events of the week was a programme of readings by Mr. Foss given at the School of Expression, when he presented some of his best writings. The poet is a personal friend of Dr. Curry's and is considered at the school as everywhere to be one of America's leading poets. Perhaps the best known among Mr. Foss' poems is "The Volunteer Organist," but he has written a great number of them, everyone breathing the sincerity and real Americanism of the native New Englander.

A few cents from each citizen may close many dens of inquity. Recognition of the efforts of the New England Watch and Ward society is being given by Bostonians to a degree hitherto unknown. This society, aided in the last few months by one or two of the Boston newspapers, has long been carrying on a single handed fight against the corruptions of the Hub. Last Sunday the ministers in a number of the churches of Boston spoke at length on the work of the society, urging the congregations to do all in their power to help it along. It is not generally understood that the society is supported entirely by contributions, often small in amount, from such persons as are interested in the furtherance of civic righteousness. Its efforts are still hampered by lack of funds, but despite this it has done wonders in its fight to suppress gambling, opium dens, the selling of cocaine, and many other menaces to the rising generation. The society is now engaging in a crusade against the conditions which endanger the happiness and lives of young girls and women, in which it deserves to receive the hearty support of many public spirited citizens.

Ethel Angier.

A Night Hawk Baby.

"Don't you ever put the baby to bed?" an astonished visitor at last exclaimed after the better part of the evening had worn away and the child of six months was still sitting up, gooing cheerfully. The young mother laughed. "Oh, yes," she explained with serene wisdom. "We put baby to bed at 12 p. m., and he sleeps until 12 m. Then he has his bath and goes out in the gocart and sleeps most of the afternoon. Haven't you known many mothers who simply sacrifice all their time to the babies while they are little? I made up my mind before baby came that he would have to conform to our ways, not we conform to his. He has just as much sleep as babies who go to bed at 6 and sleep until 6, and he doesn't interfere with our evenings. We can take him with us when we go out or we can go feeling that he will be perfectly happy while we are away, because he won't cry for mother until midnight. We're regular night hawks, and so is baby."

The visitor was speechless.

"Don't you think it's a good system?" the mother continued. "We think it is splendid."

"I think," the visitor answered in noncommittal tone, "that it would take a New York mother to invent the system."—New York Press.

Too Eminent.

"Why don't you ask your office boy to wash those windows?"

"I ain't got the nerve to do it, old man. He was the valedictorian of his class."—Washington Herald.

Innocence is better than repentance, an unsullied life better than pardon.—Binney.

DEATH HOVERS NEAR

Friends of McCarren Realize That His Condition Is Very Grave

New York, Oct. 16.—State Senator Patrick H. McCarren, the Democratic leader of Brooklyn, is lying between life and death, with his physicians hoping for the best but prepared for the worst. It is no secret among the senator's friends and in political circles that his condition is very grave.

He took a turn for the worse so alarming that he expressed a desire to make his will, which was done. Last night a Catholic priest was called in and administered the last rites.

When McCarren is awake he insists in talking about the municipal campaign with the few who have been admitted to see him. Dr. Hughes says his patient's greatest worry is that the campaign will be all over by the time he hopes to get out of the hospital.

EXPLOSION OF BOILER

It Causes Students In a Harvard Dormitory to Hurriedly Vacate

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 16.—Harvard students living in Holyoke Hall were thrown into a panic and got out of the building very hurriedly last night when a small steam boiler exploded in the basement, blowing a hole thraugh the lower wall of the dormitory.

Charles Apted and Patrick Shoulder were looking for the source of a leak which had been noticed about the boiler when the explosion occurred. Both men were scalded by hot steam, but neither was seriously injured.

To the students in the apartments of the building it seemed as if the whole structure was about to fall, and everybody made fast time to the street, expecting momentarily that the building would topple over. The cause of the explosion has not been determined.

REVOLUTIONISTS HOLD EAST COAST

Uprising of Nicaraguans Now In Full Swing

Washington, Oct. 16.—Advices received at the state department show that martial law has been declared in Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, and that President Zelaya has decreed the Atlantic coast ports closed as ports of entry. It is also reported that the entire east coast of Nicaragua is in the possession of the revolutionists and that the revolt has extended to the western part of the country.

The closing of these Nicaraguan ports is proving an embarrassment to the steamship lines which have received goods for shipment there. It is believed that freight landed at closed ports now in the hands of the revolutionists are liable to confiscation as smuggled goods should the Zelaya government subsequently secure possession of them.

DEWEY IS SHUT OUT

Gubernatorial Nomination Papers Are Declared to Be Defective

Boston, Oct. 16.—Ex-Judge Henry S. Dewey cannot run for governor this year. The ballot law commission handed down a decision last evening that the convention from which a certificate emanated giving him the designation of Independence League nominee for governor was not a lawful state convention.

The commission also decided that the nomination papers giving him the designation of Theocrat were not properly attested.

The convention which has been declared illegal was held on Oct. 2 in the parlor of Albin M. Richards of Cambridge, and was attended by four persons. It was organized as the Independence League state convention.

BURIAL OF FERRER

Authorities Insist Upon Interment In a Common Ditch

Barcelona, Oct. 16.—The relatives of Senor Ferrer were permitted to follow the body to the grave yesterday. It lay in an open coffin, according to the Spanish custom. Bullet holes were visible in the forehead.

The authorities refused to permit interment to be made in a private grave and buried the body in a common ditch. Permission was granted the family, however, to mark the spot with a stake.

Chorus Singer Must Go Back

New York, Oct. 16.—Hans Steiner, the Metropolitan opera house chorus master, who has been held at Ellis island while a special board of inquiry investigated charges made against him, was released and allowed to come to New York, but Karl Neininger, a chorus man who was held with Steiner, was ordered deported to Germany.

Athens Saved by Poetry.

When B. C. 404, after a heroic struggle, Athens, the "City of the Violet Crown," was captured by Lysander there were not wanting clamorous voices to urge that the city whose lust for empire had brought such woes on Greece ought to be laid level with the ground.

The Spartan general at first lent a willing ear to his powerful allies, but while the council was still debating this momentous issue a plaintive voice was heard from the city walls chanting those noble lines from the "Electra" of Euripides, that most human of the poets of Greece, in which the heroine contrasts her fallen lot with the splendid exploits of her father, who had dismantled the towers of Troy.

Lysander bent his head and pondered on fortune's cruel reverses. Triumphant as Agamemnon, who could tell but that he might be reserved for a fate as cruel? The lesson of moderation was accepted. Athens was saved.

Milton has immortalized this dramatic event in one of his best known sonnets:

The repeated air
Of sad Electra's poet had the power
To save the Athenian walls from ruin bare.

Comets and Great Men.

It is somewhat remarkable how often the death of an eminent person has been marked by the appearance of a comet. A certain writer, indeed, after going through a list of comets for 600 years, says that it is "as if God and nature intended by comets to ring the knell of princes, esteeming bells in churches upon earth not sacred enough for such illustrious and eminent performances." To mention only a few, Lotharius the Younger, Louis II., Charles the Bald, Theotillon, bishop of Tours; Henry II. and Richard I. had their knells thus rung by comets. Even in Shakespeare's time the comet was considered a fitting accompaniment to the obsequies of kings:

Hung be the heavens with black, yield day to night.
Comets, importing change of times and states,
Brandish your crystal tresses in the sky,
And with them scourge the bad revolting stars
That have consented unto Henry's death.

—London Outlook.

Thoughtless Clerks.

Every business has a good will cap, and every satisfied customer is a feather in that cap. Trained men at high salaries are employed to keep tightly in place the feathers that are already there and to add new feathers. It is the advertising department that is most conspicuously engaged in the feathering process, while the adjusting department is most characteristically employed in keeping the plums firmly anchored. Both of these departments are maintained at a large proportionate expense, which goes to show the value of feathers. Who, then, in the organization of a business could be mischievous enough to pluck the feathers from the good will cap? Who, indeed? Yet all day long here and there throughout some stores peck, peck, peck, go ruthless beaks, impelled by raven brains in the heads of vacuous clerks.—Bookkeeper.

Painful.

A little story comes from way back concerning Forrest, the tragedian.

It was during his last appearance at Niblo's Garden, in New York. At the time he was suffering untold torture from the gout. A sort of runway had to be constructed from the stage to the dressing room, for he was quite unable to step up or down stairs.

The performance had been "Coriolanus," and Forrest was petulant from pain and tired with his work. He stumbled against the runway, causing such a twinge in his toe as to make him cry out with the pain.

A young actor standing by unfortunately addressed the tragedian at the wrong time, saying:

"Dear me, Mr. Forrest, that must have been exceedingly painful."

"Not half so painful as your acting," was the crusty response.

"Never Too Late to Mend."

Most of us associate the phrase "It's never too late to mend" with Charles Reade's famous novel, and very likely some of us think he invented it. But it is really one of the most ancient gems of popular philosophy. A correspondent of London Notes and Queries has discovered it in a petition from the commonalty to the mayor and aldermen of the city in 1433. It must have been of a respectable age even then, seeing that it is quoted as one of the "proverbs" of the period.

A Failure.

"There isn't enough analogy in the English language," proclaimed the bright young student. "If we say 'male and female' to distinguish sex, why not say 'lion and felion' too?"

"Wouldn't distinguish," replied the practical professor, "considering both are felines."—Baltimore American.

Our Neighbor.

What is meant by our neighbor we cannot doubt. It is every one with whom we are brought into contact, whosoever it be, whom we have any means of helping.—Dean Stanley.

FREEMAN FOR MAYOR

Wollaston Man Wanted as Republican Candidate

The joint caucuses to nominate candidates for Mayor, school committee, councilmen at large and councilmen from the wards will be held Tuesday Nov. 16, which means that city politics will begin to look up very soon. It seems to be pretty generally understood that Mayor Shea will again be the candidate of the Democrats to succeed himself. As to who the Republican candidates will be however seems to be a matter of some doubt.

Some people have been very busy for the past few weeks trying to select a candidate for the party and have brought forward numerous names. Meanwhile the party itself has been quiet and has apparently done nothing. At the meeting of the Republican City committee last Friday evening however the matter of a candidate for Mayor was the subject of considerable informal talk.

While no candidate has been selected as yet, as far as known, it is a fact that the City Committee has appointed a committee to wait upon a well known citizen in the interest of the Mayoralty question.

That gentleman is no other than Councilman Richard R. Freeman of Wollaston. Mr. Freeman has not only served the city in the halls of the legislature but he has also served a number of years in the City Council and without question would make a strong candidate as he would doubtless be able to swing Ward Five back into its old time Republican majority.

Whether or not Mr. Freeman can be induced to allow his name to be used is an open question. It is said that Mr. Freeman was present at the meeting which appointed the committee but did not at that time say what his attitude would be.

That there will be considerable new timber in the City Council seems probable. Several of the present members have said that they would not again be candidates. In Ward One it is doubtful if Councilmen Abele or Whiton return. In Ward Two Councilman Walsh is somewhat in doubts if he will again be a candidate. Ward Three none of the present members will return. Councilman Nelson and Russell have moved out of the ward and Councilman Richards it is said does not desire another term.

In Ward Four Councilmen Smith and McDevitt will again enter the contest but Councilman Flaherty who is a candidate for Representative will probably not run. In Ward Five it is said that Councilman Bean will not return and should Councilman Freeman be the Mayoralty candidate there will be at least two vacancies there. In Ward Six all three of the present candidates will probably be candidates for re-election.

Of the Councilmen at large there is some doubt who will drop out. Councilmen Gilson and Hadlock will be candidates but what the attitude of Councilmen Beal, Bishop and Bryant will be is in doubt.

NOTABLE VISITORS.

Japanese Commercial Commission to Visit Quincy Saturday.

The Honorable Commercial Commission of Japan is to pay a visit to Quincy next Saturday when they will make an inspection of the plant of the Fore River Ship Building Co. The party which numbers about 35 will come from Boston in a special car attached to the 9 A. M. train. This car will be run to East Braintree from which point it will be taken over the Fore River Co. private tracks to the works.

Here the party will be met by a number of representative citizens in addition to the officials of the Fore River Co. In the Quincy party will be Mayor Shea, City Clerk Keith, City Solicitor McAnarney, Commissioner of Public Works Bainbridge, Hon. Eugene C. Hultman, senator from this district, President Hobbs of the City Council, and Frank Fessenden Crane, Dock and Water Front Commissioner.

In addition to an inspection of the plant permission has been obtained from the government for an inspection of the dreadnaught, North Dakota.

HELD IN QUINCY.

Quarterly Convention of County Federation of Catholic Societies.

The quarterly convention of the Norfolk county federation of Catholic societies was held in Quincy Sunday at St. Mary's hall and was very largely attended. James F. Burke the county president, presided over the meeting and the delegates were welcomed by Rev. Henry T. Grady, pastor of St. Mary's church.

Interesting reports from the national convention in Pittsburg were made by County President Burke, J. W. McGrath of Sharon county secretary, Miss Catherine Gormley of Hyde Park county financial secretary, Frank J. Lavery of Atlantic county treasurer, and Rev. James J. Chittick of Hyde Park, county chaplain.

Rev. James J. Chittick of Hyde Park gave an eloquent talk on "Helping in the Moral Uplifting." It was voted to hold the next convention in January in the conference room of the cathedral of the Holy Cross, Boston. A luncheon was served at the close of the convention.

ENGINEERS' SOCIAL.

Amalgamated Association Hold Social Evening.

The Amalgamated association of engineers held a social evening last Saturday night and there were several members from the Boston association who also enjoyed the fine program arranged by the committee composed of, William Harvey, Harry Gates, Allan McGeachie, George McDougal, William T. Irving. Harry Marr was chairman of the committee and it was due to his efforts that they had a varied program. Refreshments were served and a good time enjoyed by all. The program consisted of piano solos by E. Myers and songs by George Patterson, William Harvey, John Young and William Boyd.

BAZAAR CLOSES.

Saturday night was the closing of the three days fair held under the auspices of the circle daughters of Viking 933 C. O. F. of A. and court John Ericson, at Faxon hall. The largest crowd of the three nights was on hand the closing night. There were several prizes given out and the winners were as follows:—Sofa pillow, Cecelia Ericson; Vase, Algert Peterson; Teddy bear, Sigrid Kallstrom; Leather bag, Carl Anderson; Pin cushion, Anna Johnson, Shoes, Edward Servendahl; Doll, Esther Johnson. The entertainment consisted of singing and musical instrumental solos by members of the chapters and was thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience.

LEARN MILLINERY.

Quincy girls have a good chance to learn to do their own millinery if they join the new club Saturday Oct. 30, at the Women's club house, 148 Goffe street. Girls over 16 years are cordially invited that evening.

AUTOING ABROAD.

Herbert A. Hover has just returned to Spokane from an 18,000-miles tour through the United States and Europe, which he and his wife, now visiting relatives at Leavenworth, Kansas, accomplished in 18 months with a 30-horse power, four cylinder car. They had numerous exciting experiences while abroad and were snow-bound for eight days in the Alps, where they were also all but plunged over a sheer precipice of 1,000 feet by a heavy car bearing down upon them while turning a curve.

After completing 10,000 miles in the United States, starting in southern California on the Mexican border and touching Canadian territory, they sailed from New York on the ill-fated steamship Republic and were exposed to the elements on deck and open boats for 24 hours before being taken ashore. Mrs. Hover sustained a nervous shock and contracted a cold from which she has not yet recovered.

"Europe is a veritable paradise for reckless drivers and the so-called 'joy-riders.'" Hover said in speaking of his trip abroad. "The roads are unusually good and such a thing as a speed limit is not known; and, as a result, there are frequent head-on collisions, which invariably end fatally, in addition to destroying hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property annually. From four to five collisions a week on the road between Nice and Monte Carlo is not out of the ordinary.

"Another thing is the system of graft by the drivers from which there is no escape. Besides paying his mechanic $150 a month the tourist is also forced to give up 25 per cent commission on all purchases. A hired car cost from $1,200 to $1,500 a month in addition to the foregoing and with the chauffeur's personal expenses this runs the bill up to $2,000 a month."

QUINCY MEN ARE RESCUED

Their Boat Was Capsized Sunday in Hull Gut

Four Quincy men had narrow escapes from drowning in Hull gut Sunday. Arthur Mueller, Charles Johnson and Willie Jansen were the first to be rescued, and their rescue came just in time to save them from a watery grave.

The three men started from Quincy at 2 A. M. on a smelting trip in a small sailboat owned by Mueller. While off the Hull station of the Boston yacht club, Jansen, it is said, climbed up the slender mast of the little boat. There his weight, added to the force of the westerly wind, caused the boat to capsize.

The men were thrown into the water. Their cries for help were heard in Hull village, about a mile away. Before anyone on shore could go to their assistance, however, the sloop Lucy of South Boston, Capt. Wells which was also on a smelting trip, was seen to bear down upon the three men as they clung to their capsized boat.

All three men were exhausted and nearly unconscious when rescued. Jansen was in a particularly serious condition and it was some time before he could be revived.

In the mean time the life saving crew had been notified and they put out in their new power boat. When the life savers reached the sloop Lucy they found the crew still working over Jansen. It was some time before he was resuscitated. Later the Lucy took the three men to Quincy.

Later in the day a small sailboat was reported by the life saving lookout to be drifting out to sea with one man on board. The life saving crew put out and overhauled the boat near Hardings ledge.

It proved to be the Agnes owned by A. E. Thayer of the Fore River. Thayer said he had left Quincy Saturday night on a fishing trip and had passed the night at anchor off Boston light.

When he awoke Sunday morning the wind was blowing a gale. He tried to enter the harbor, but found the wind and tide were too much for him, and unable to make any headway he kept drifting to leeward. He was towed to the lee of Peddocks Island from which point he said he could reach Quincy without further assistance.

MRS. CATHERINE SHEA.

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Shea of Robertson street was held this morning from St. Mary's church and was largely attended. A high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William J. Duffy. The regular choir with Miss Mary McKay, as organist, sang the Gregorian Mass. At the offertory Mrs. James H. Fennessey sang De Profundus. There were many beautiful flowers. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery the bearers being James Leary, W. Leahy, Mr. Hayden and Cornelius Crowley.

Mr. Wrigley is to give two performances of a cantata the last of November, one in Quincy and the other at Braintree, for which he will require singers to augment the chorus; eight sopranos, four contraltos, four tenors and eight bass. GIVEN A WATCH.

Fore River Boy Who Won Marathon Remembered by Friends.

William J. Hackett of the Fore River Apprentices who won the Marathon race at the Brockton fair was tendered a testimonial at the town hall in East Weymouth Friday night, which was attended by several hundred of his friends. Several well known vocalists and sketch artists aided in the entertainment. At the close of the festivities Hackett was presented with a beautiful gold watch, fob and chain. The presentation speech was made by Rev. Maurice J. Lynch of the church of the Sacred Heart.

Hackett was taken completely by surprise and for a few moments was speechless. He then thanked his friends for their very pleasing gift.

Editor Daily Ledger:

Kindly allow me space in your paper to say a word in regard to the piece which appeared in the Ledger of Saturday evening, Oct. 16, under the heading "Soliciting Nuisance." While I feel it is a waste of time to take any notice of such an article, I cannot resist the temptation to ask a question of, and offer a suggestion to, one who takes the liberty to call the average man a "moral coward," simply to cover his own weakness. What is meant by "a church that cannot pay its own way" and a church "of the self-supporting kind" and what church in this city does not solicit, one way or another, either directly or indirectly from others than its own members.

Any answer to the above from "Citizen" I would suggest be over his own name and address and I am sure that the so-called "Nuisance" as far as "Citizen" is concerned, will have an end put to it and perhaps some of the money given simply because the giver is a moral coward, will be refunded, for I feel no church in our beloved city wants money under such conditions. I help to support my own church, and am glad that I can in a small way assist some other once in a while and keep the landlord and grocer good natured too.

Tomorrow is "apple day." Everybody is supposed on that day to eat an apple, not only to promote fruit growing, but to aid digestion.

This might be called an after glow season as bushes are flowering and vines bearing a second crop of berries. One of the children's gardens in Waltham last week raised a second crop of strawberries, which were large and sweet flavored.

Washington evidently believes in reforestration for more than a million fruit trees will be set out in the central and western part of the state. These with those already planted will make upwards of five million trees. As they are fruit trees great good is sure to result to the state.

Something of the magnitude of the postal card business may be inferred from the announcement that the postmaster general at Washington has just awarded a contract calling for the supplying of 3,487,000,000 of these articles for the four years beginning with January next. These are the ordinary postal cards, such as are furnished through any United States post office. When to these are added the innumerable "souvenirs," domestic and foreign, from which no one can escape, there is no occasion for surprise that a big part of Uncle Sam's mail consists of postal cards.

Four million pounds of beans, for which the growers will receive from three to three and a half cents a pound, were produced on 4,000 acres of land on the Kendrick ridges in Latah county, Idaho, this season, and, as a result of the success of the industry, buyers say that the coming year should see a yield worth not less than $250,000, or double this year's crop. The average yield was 1,000 pounds the acre, while the cost of production was not more than $2.50 an acre, leaving a net profit of $27.50 an acre from land worth between $35 and $40 an acre. Threshers have started to hull the crop and the finished product will be ready for the market in three weeks. One hundred cars are required to haul the beans, some of which will go as far east as Boston and points on the Atlantic seaboard, but the bulk will remain in the Northwest.

GIVE WARNING.

The Safe Roads Automobile Association, a company of automobilists who are doing practical work for the safety of the highways, issues a pertinent reminder to motorists of the law requiring the sounding of horns in approaching blind corners and crossings. There is little danger of over-indulgence in the "honk-honk" on the road, and even an unnecessary toot is a justifiable precaution against the possibility of an accident. Safety requires reasonable care on the part of other users of the road, as well as on the part of the motorist, and fair warning of the presence of the automobile is an essential to due care on the part of others.—Herald.

INCREASED DEMAND FOR LABOR.

One of the most gratifying details of the business expansion is to be found in connection with the increasing demand for labor. Authoritative statements regarding the better conditions in this important particular conclusively prove that the outlook for wage earners is considerably better than it has been for any time within two years.

On the basis of the quarterly bulletin, issued by the State Department of Labor, in New York, it is seen that returns for the first six months of 1909, from 192 representative trade unions, with 89,000 members, or 24 per cent. of the total union membership in the State, show a continuously declining proportion of idle members from 29.3 per cent., at the end of January, to 17.1 per cent, at the end of May. For the end of June a slightly increased percentage (17.4 per cent.) is shown.

The decrease in idleness during the first half of the year was due entirely to increasing business activity, as shown by the causes of idleness reported. In fact, idleness, on account of the state of trade of all idleness, decrease than the total of all idleness, such a decrease being counterbalanced in the total by an increase of idleness due to labor disputes.

Apparently the elimination of labor disputes would mean even larger employment of labor.—Banker and Tradesman.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

AUTOMOBILE RUN.

The new rules of the American Automobile association, which call for a rather severe system of penalization, will govern the two days reliability run of the Bay State Automobile association on Oct. 21 and 22.

This will be the first time that the new rules will be used by a motoring organization. The committee will establish checking stations at intervals of about 25 miles. One object of these checking stations is to avoid speeding. In laying out the time schedules the committee will have the legal speed limit in mind, and no attempt will be made to place a premium on fast driving. The idea is to show the reliability and endurance of a stock car over a route such as might be taken by an ordinary machine in the hands of a private owner.

The first day's route calls for a run of about 320 miles over good roads from Boston to Quincy, to Holbrook, Bridgewater, New Bedford, Fall River, Taunton, Providence, Pawtucket, Woonsocket, Worcester, Fitchburg, Acton, Concord, Lexington to Boston.

On the second day a run of 215 miles is mapped out, taking the cars from Boston to Lowell, to Nashua, Manchester, Concord, Rochester, Dover, Portsmouth, Newburyport, Beverly, Salem and Lynn to Boston.

HER REASON.

The Providence Journal puts it to us very directly in the following paragraph, saying at the close, "What do you think about it?"

Suffragists throughout the country are not pleased with Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, Chicago's superintendent of schools, who by virtue of her office was invited to the luncheon which the Commercial club gave to President Taft. When the fact that Mrs. Young had been asked became known, suffragists from various parts of the country wrote her in congratulation, saying that "it will be a great day for the American women." "I am not going," Mrs. Young wrote back. "It is a man's organization entertaining a man, and I am not going to thrust myself in."

SEX HYGIENE.

The trend of present day methods of doing social work is according to the principle that prevention is better than cure. The most stupendous evil that is practically neglected through a false conception of modesty or prudery, is ignorance of the sex hygience. To arouse an interest in this important subject, and place it where it belongs ,the coming meeting of the Massachusetts State Conference of Charities in Boston will devote to it the evening session of October 20.

The need of a treatment of this subject is shown by the enormous prevalence of Venereal diseases, and the danger from them to public health. It is a conservative estimate that one-eighth of all human disease and suffering come from these diseases, and that nearly half a million of our young men are annually infected in our own country alone. We annually expend millions of dollars in caring for the results of these diseases, such as blindness, deaf-mutism, idiocy, insanity paralysis and other incurable diseases, but not a dollar practically for their prevention.

The importance of preventive work will be described by Dr. Abner Post of Boston, a specialist in these diseases for many years. His paper will be discussed by Mr. Bernard J. Rothwell, President of Boston Chamber of Commerce and others.

Some practical points in "Psychology of Sex," will be presented by Dr. G. Stanley Hall, President of Clark University. A paper on "How to Reach the Boys," will be read by Dr. M. H. Bailey of Cambridge, who lectures to the Harvard Students on Sex Hygiene. "How to Reach the Girls" will be told by Miss Maude E. Miner, Probation Officer of the Night Court, New York and "How to Reach the Parents," by Dr. F. D. Donoghue of Boston.

President Charles W. Eliot will preside and introduce the subject. The session promises to be the most important of all the various sessions in an unusually interesting program.

BROCKTON CANAL.

The Fall River Herald publishes a long story about the Brockton canal, stating that another route has been proposed which would leave Brockton out—Brockton which has done so much for years to keep the canal idea alive.

A map accompanies the story showing the proposed route, as well as the Brockton route. The Herald says: "An alternative route that has been proposed for the Boston section of the contemplated canal connecting Boston harbor with Fall River may revive the so-called Brockton canal scheme, with Brockton left out. The route surveyed by authority of an act of the Massachusetts legislature of 1901 was through Taunton and Brockton to Weymouth, and the estimated cost was $57,618,358.

"In the river and harbor bill passed by the last Congress, Representative William S. Greene of Fall River secured a place for a paragraph relative to making a preliminary report on the feasibility of a canal through Rhode Island and from Fall River to Boston, by way of the Taunton river.

"This would leave Brockton, the city which led in developing the canal plan, off the route; but it would eliminate some natural obstacles and would, it is estimated, cost but about half what the canal would by way of Brockton.

"Such a waterway across Massachusetts has been discussed in connection with a proposed continuation from Narragansett bay across Rhode Island, back to Point Judith, to a point back of Watch Hill, R. I. There are practically no difficulties in the way of the Rhode Island canal. The engineers have already flagged a route, which closely follows the shore line, where there is nothing more to do than to dredge the channel through the lowland's connecting the numerous bodies of water. With the proposition to utilize the Taunton river it begins to look as if this waterway, which would afford vessels a protected route from New York to Boston, would be constructed.—Brockton Enterprise.

SHIP SUBSIDY MOVEMENT.

Senator Elkins of West Virginia, who has just returned from Europe, is among the latest of prominent public men to declare in favor of the upbuilding of the American merchant marine by means of government aid. He favors a plan, however, that will doubtless strike man friends of the subsidy movement as just the thing to be avoided. His idea is that the government should grant a rebate of five per cent on dutiable goods brought into the country in American vessels. The objections to this are that it would have a tendency, if proposed at present, to revive the tariff agitation; that it would give further provocation to those who oppose the protective feature of our tariff system; that it would lead to all sorts of confusion in the management of our custom houses, and that it would be certain to invite retaliation on the part of foreign nations.

The subvention of mail-service vessels along the lines laid down by President Taft at Seattle, or, rather, as provided for in the measure that has been prepared for presentation at the coming session of Congress, seems to be at once the safest and easiest way of accomplishing the end in view.

Alexander Del Mar, president of the Latin American Chamber of Commerce writing on the subject within the last few days, declares that there is but one remedy for the present deplorable condition of our shipping interests. This remedy while in his judgment having many defects, is the one just alluded to. If we would have our commerce carried in American vessels, under the stars and stripes, we must offer inducements to capitalists to invest their money in American ships.

Senator Elkins is not alone, perhaps, in the belief that the rebate plan would be the better one. In this connection it should be said that every possible form of proposal with the view to governmental aid has been discussed by the Merchant Marine League, and out of them all the mail-ship subsidy proposition has been accepted as the best. Some of the other plans look very promising at first glance, but when closely examined it is seen that they would not work out successfully in actual practise.—Boston Monitor.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

HOUGHS NECK.

Editor Ledger:

With all the improvements which are going on in Quincy, it seems as if Houghs Neck should get its share. The sea is washing away portions of Great Hill and endangering some of the finest residence there. The city should build a sea wall to protect this section. With $90,000 paid yearly in taxes by these residents one could hardly blame them for expecting some return. All the return they are getting now is a few lights.

Why does not the city hire several of the new stores which are being built in Houghs Neck, since they are too poor to build a school? The outlay would not be much greater and it would be much easier for the children.

Another thing that might be remedied is the car service which at the present is anything but good. Let us hope that Houghs Neck may see some of these improvements in the near future.

Mysterious Death of William I. Buchanan to Be Investigated

Washington, Oct. 18.—The news that William I. Buchanan had died suddenly in London Sunday under mysterious circumstances was received with general regret by officials of the state department and others to whom he had become well known during an official career extending over a period of fifteen years.

Mr. Buchanan was found just before midnight on the sidewalk in Park lane, near the American embassy. The cause of his death is not known.

WILLIAM I. BUCHANAN.

It is assumed here that the American embassy in London will make an investigation of the circumstances surrounding Buchanan's sudden ending.

Mr. Buchanan's official career included serveice as minister to the Argentine republic. While holding that office he settled as arbitrator a famous boundary dispute between the Argentine republic and Chile. He was the first American minister to Panama. He served as a delegate to the second, and as head of the delegation to the third Pan-American conference. He represented the United States ably at the Central American peace conference and was connected also with the negotiations of the United States-Colombia-Panama treaties. His recent achievements as high commissioner to settle the disputes between the United States and Venezuela were important and successful. At the time of his death he had been appointed agent of the United States for the peaceful arbitration of the one case not already consummated as a result of his negotiations at Caracas.

Mr. Buchanan had achieved much in diplomacy and private business and his reputation for tact and ability was recognized in many parts of the civilized world, but particularly in Washington and the capitals of the Latin-American republics. He was born on a farm near Covington, O., in 1853, and was educated in the country schools.

AN EXCHANGE OF COURTESIES

Presidents of United States and Mexico Clasp Hands

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 18.—The long expected meeting between President Taft and President Diaz of the republic of Mexico took place here.

President Diax assured President Taft of his warm personal regard and his high esteem for the man who accomplished so much in the Philippines, in Cuba and elsewhere, and who had now the honor to be the chief executive of so great a nation as the United States.

President Taft declared he was glad to meet President Diaz. He was glad to know the president of such a great nation; especially glad to know the present president who had made the nation great.

Both presidents dwelt upon the cordiality of the relations existing between the United States and Mexico.

Less than a score of persons were permitted to witness the meeting of the two executives. Even these were excluded later when Taft and Diaz withdrew into an inner room of the chamber of commerce building where the historic meeting occurred, being attended only by Governor Creel of Chihuahua, who acted as interpreter.

EIGHT CARS LEAVE TRACK

New York Central Railroad Officials In a Wreck

WERE ON AN INSPECTION TRIP

They Escape Injury, but One Passenger Is Killed and Fourteen Injured—Accident Attributed to Broken Rail—Fireman Races Down Track Barely In Time to Flag Express Train and Avoid a Great Crash

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 18.—A New York Central express bringing William K. Vanderbilt, a director, W. H. Newman, former president of the road and President Brown of the New York Central back to New York from an inspection trip was wrecked just south of Rhinecliffe station. James Krakowski of New York, a young Pole, was killed and fourteen others were injured.

Eight of the nine cars of the train left the rails. The smoker and day coach landed in a heap and across the northbound tracks and it was in these cars that the casualties occurred. The fireman of the wrecked train by a margin of two minutes flagged a northbound express and saved it from crashing into the broken cars.

Vanderbilt and Brown left New York last Wednesday to make a run over the new Clearfield branch of the New York Central and on their return connected with train No. 28, due in New York at 5:45 Sunday morning. Train No. 28, known as the New York express, left Albany in four sections, to the third section of which the two private cars of Brown and Vanderbilt were attached. It was made up of three baggage cars, two coaches, one of which was a smoker filled mostly with Polish Jews, two Pullman sleepers and the two private cars.

The train passed Rhinecliff station at 4:30 o'clock, running seven minutes late and doing its best to make them up. Just below the signal tower there is an easy curve to the left making away from the Hudson. The rails are sharply tilted, throwing the cars at an angle toward the northbound track. The train had not passed the tower more than 100 yards when Engineer Wright felt the cars behind him drag hard, as though they had missed the rails. He slapped on the air and drew to a standstill within 1000 yards. Wright found one of the baggage cars still on the rails, everything else being in the ditch between the two passenger tracks. The forward truck of the first Pullman had dug into the gravel ballast so deeply that its floor was flush with the gravel, but it had not tipped over. The second Pullman, Brown's car and Vanderbilt's private car were still on their wheels, but sharply tilted.

H. Schelmeyer, the fireman, felt around the cab for a red lantern as he recalled that No. 73, the midnight express which left New York at 12:30 o'clock, was due to pass his train a bit south of Rhinecliff and he figured that it was a matter of minutes to flag her. "It seemed a week before I found that lamp," said he, speaking of it afterward. But he found it, raced down the track and caught No. 73 by two minutes.

There were some fifty or sixty men in the smoker. The second day coach was filled mostly with women and children. On the left side of the smoker was Krakowski. When he felt the brakes go on and heard the thunder of the wheels on the ties he poked his head close against the window pane to see what was the matter. A tie came out of the dark and crushed his head to a jelly.

President Brown and Vanderbilt got out of their cars as soon as they could. Brown took charge of the work of claring away the wreckage. The southbound track was torn up for 800 yards and had to be relaid. No trains passed over it until late last evening.

A broken rail is thought to have been the cause of the wreck.

Anarchists Do Not Mourn the Taking Off of Ferrer

BELIEF OF EMMA GOLDMAN

Tells New York Audience That Spanish Teacher Was Killed by Catholic Church Because He Was Tearing Superstition From the Eyes of Children—Voice of Dead Man Will Haunt King and Governors of Spain

New York, Oct. 18.—"It is far more honorable to die the death of Francisco Ferrer than to be President of the United States," said Emma Goldman Sunday afternoon to a meeting of 600 people in Clinton hall. "It is far, far more honorable to have lived the life of Francisco Ferrer than to be the pope at Rome under his triple crown of gold and jewels."

The meeting was held by the Anarchists and their sympathizers in honor of the memory of Ferrer. Miss Goldman said:

"I came here not to mourn Ferrer, but to celebrate his death. When you consider the life of greed, of cowardice and of selfish utilitarianism that the average man and woman in this world leads, then you must rejoice that there are men like this Ferrer who are willing to die, rather than continue to live like dogs under the whips of their masters. It is a good sign for you and for me, who believe that we are working in the path that Francisco Ferrer has trod for us.

"Even the despots of Spain dare not say that they killed Ferrer because he dared to take part in the general strike of last July. They killed him, rather, because he dared to think himself and to teach children to think for themselves, rather than to follow blindly in the superstitions of the Roman Catholic church and the government allied with that church. He knew that the true awakening of the new regime must come through the children of this generation, and he committed a crime in teaching them how to see with their eyes, which all governments and all churches abhor.

"Ferrer was killed by the Catholic church, that terrible black spectre which for hundreds of years has spread destruction over Europe. The church killed him because it knew that if Ferrer succeeded in tearing from the eyes of the children of Spain the veil of the church's superstition they would strike when they grew older at the unholy trinity of corruption: church, state and capitalistic class.

"Ferrer knew of the terrible destructive influence of the Catholic church over the minds of the people. There are 500 people in prison in Barcelona this minute, arrested after the general strike riots, who are being tortured now in the name of the Christ and the Catholic church.

"In this country, remember, the powers that be killed men through perjured testimony on Nov. 11, 1887, (she referred to those condemned for the Haymarket bomb throwing) and the only reason why they don't kill more people without fair trial over here is that because America has not yet produced such men as Francisco Ferrer. The moment that such a man or a woman as this martyr of Spain arises in this country to do the work he did, the American government will just as coolly and just as deliberately strangle that person in just as savage and barbaric a manner as did the government of Spain.

"The American workmen have not been clubbed enough, starved enough. Ferrer at least has nothing to fear right now. But how would you like to be in the boots of the little assassin king, Alfonso? How would you like to be in the boots of all of the governors of Spain and all the priests? I wouldn't. Their danger is not from lurking Anarchists with bombs in their hands. Their danger is from the voice of Ferrer, crying from the ditch there by the fortress of Montjuich, which will be heard for generations by all who work for the coming of the new order."

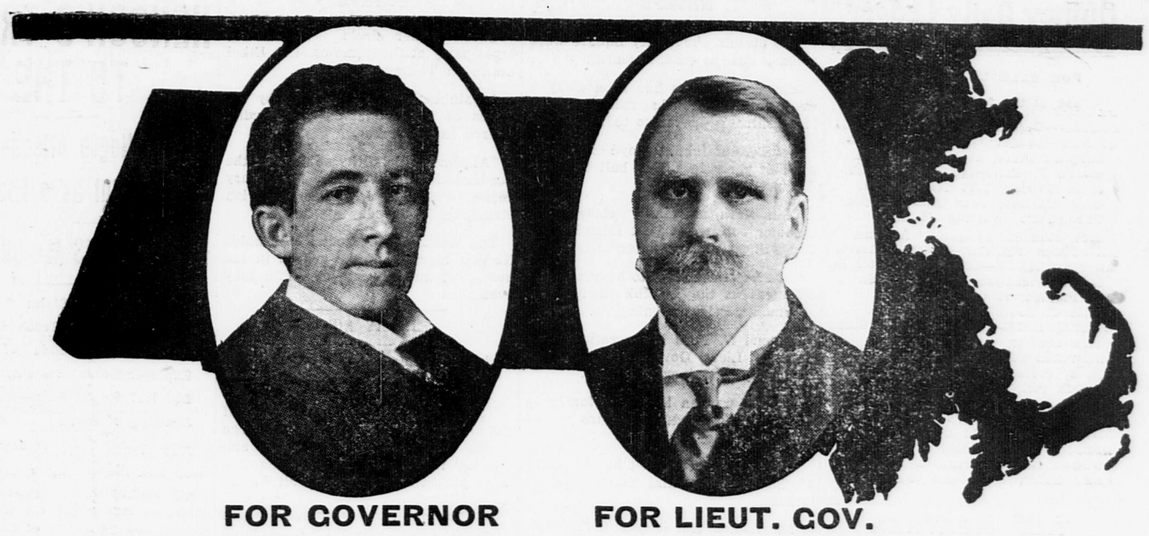
When she finished speaking, she read some resolutions of her own composition—some hot ones, they were—and she superintended their passing by the meeting. The memorial meeting had opened with the playing of a funeral march by an attenuated orchestra. Several speakers preceded Miss Goldman, but they were not inflammatory.

25,000 at Communion

Pittsburg, Oct. 18.—The greatest religious gathering ever held, perhaps, in the country, took place at Forbes' Field here when about 25,000 persons assembled at the ceremony of the Lord's supper, the event being the principal feature of Sunday's session of the convention of the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church).

Insurance Company Robbed

New York, Oct. 18.—The discovery that the Equitable Life Assurance society has been systematically robbed by one of its clerks for a considerable time led to the arrest of the clerk, James R. Doran, after Doran had been indicted for forgery. The extent of Dorans stealings is not known.



FOR GOVERNOR JAMES H. VAHEY
FOR LIEUT. GOV. EUGENE N. FOSS

THIS IS THE PLATFORM THEY STAND ON

1. An immediate reduction of tariff duties on the necessaries of life.
2. A rebuke to the republican party for its iniquitous tariff revision humbug.
3. A comprehensive reciprocal trade treaty with Canada, not confined to non-competitive products.
4. The income tax and the election of only those candidates for the legislature pledged to the ratification of the constitutional amendment therefor
5. Anti-imperialism.
6. The nomination of United States Senators by direct popular vote.
7. Direct nominations.
8. The extirpation of the State House lobby.
9. Effective legislation to prevent corrupt practices in elections.
10. The re-enactment into law of the eight-hour bill passed by the legislative session and vetoed.
11. Reform of injunction abuses.
12. Trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.
13. Opposition to government by commissions.
14. A thorough investigation of the finances of the state government.
15. Home rule for the cities of the Commonwealth.
16. The establishment of agricultural schools throughout the Commonwealth.

The democratic party is unalterably opposed to special privileges. It harbors no hostility to wealth, but demands equal opportunities for all; for the manufacturer, the merchant, the farmer and the consumer, freedom from unjust discrimination and the oppression of monopolies; for the working man, wages, conditions and hours of labor, and prices for the necessities of life, consistent with the development of faculties, the preservation of health, the maintenance and education of children, and the attainment of American ideals in citizenship.

The republican organization has placed itself in open antagonism to the most progressive elements of its own party. The democratic party thus becomes, by force of circumstances, the only means of expression of popular reform and of the enlightened sentiment of the people. Where there is identity of purpose there should be community of action; and all good citizens should regard it as their patriotic duty to subordinate party regularity to the public good.

VOTE FOR VAHEY AND FOSS

A NECESSARY EXPENSE.

Some one said in our hearing the other day, "You might as well expect to raise chickens without breaking the eggs as to succeed in business without advertising."

The time which the merchant spends regretting money used in advertising is about like the regrets for money spent for board. The man who earns $1,000 a year might as well figure that if he saved it all for 20 years he would have $20,000 plus interest. The fact is, however, that but few men who ever advertised ever regret it. It is the men who are afraid to risk their dollars in even a small experiment who hang back.

No man can succeed in any business if he is unwilling to try a few experiments of this kind. Let him reflect that to succeed he must do in a moderate way what the big city merchant does in a big way. Did any big city establishment ever get a start without liberal advertising? Can you name any such? If so, why expect that the merchant in the medium and smaller sized cities can get his start without putting a similar proportion of this receipt into judicious advertising. Failure to advertise is about like the farmer who grinds his seed-corn—Beverly Times.

PASSING OF SMOKING CAR.

That the smoking car is losing its distinctive place on railroads is said to be a fact despite the practice of still attaching it to all the trains in this part of the country. The Chicago experiment of doing away with the smoking car on elevated trains is said to find a hopeful echo in many parts of the country. It is not the intention to keep all the men from smoking when they travel, but to curtail the chances somewhat, that the majority may be prevented from smoking themselves to death. The capacious smoking car has become the place for putting out of the way the objectionable travelers, and there are many of them. They are more objectionable because of the reason that they know in advance that they will be afforded the liberties of the smoking car, regardless of the peace of mind of the people who are not exactly nuisances. To get around these difficulties, it is proposed to have small smoking compartments in the railroad coaches, as there are now in the palace cars. That has a tendency to improve the situation, railroad men claim. The tough travelers have to conform more to the rules of decent society to find places in the coaches ,and they will soon catch up with the set pace of the roomy smoker is taken away from them. There is no American to divide the passengers into first and second class, but the first class is to be the pattern for all kinds.—Framingham News.

OUR LARGEST BATTLESHIP.

The mammoth new battleship, North Dakota, which is our biggest "Dreadnaught" will go into dry dock at the Charlestown navy yard, Wednesday, Oct. 27. She is now at the Fore River yards, Quincy, receiving her finishing touches. While in the dry dock, where she will remain for two days, she will receive her final underwater cleaning and painting before the official trial trips.

If you want to see the most elaborate and powerful fighting machine in the world, remember the date, Oct. 27.—Medford Mercury.

AN EASY AND HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR.

Who does not know of the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, put up an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. It is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the manufacturers upon receipt of price.

HENSON'S TRIP TO THE POLE

Peary's Negro Attendant Blossoms Out as a Lecturer

HE WELCOMES ALL QUESTIONS

Disputes Cook's Claim That Thermometer Could Reach 83 Degrees Below Zero—Friends of Brooklyn Explorer Resent Statement That He Did Not Reach Pole—Eskimos and Drawing of Maps

New York, Oct. 18.—Three hundred and fifty or more persons willingly bought their way into the Hippodrome last night for the pleasure of popping questions of an acrimonious nature at Matthew Henson, the negro who stood with Peary at the earth's north axis and the latest lecturer to enter the field of Polar controversy. The 350 obtained so much of their money's worth that for an hour the bare spaces of the house sizzled with sharp questions and sharper retort and in the darkness of lights out there was a lovely bedlam.

The promise had been made by William A. Brady, Mat Henson's manager in his forthcoming lecture tour, of which last night's effort was only a stiff tryout, that the sole American companion of Peary at the Pole would "answer fully any question put to him by the audience about either Cook or Peary."

It was evident before the grilling of Henson had progressed far that he was being held as a proxy for his commander by an audience very much inclined in Cook's favor. But that did not worry Henson.

After the audience had been held with a series of moving pictures taken in many Arctic regions besides those visited by Peary, Henson, in evening clothes, shyly took his place before a reading desk in the lonely acreage of the stage.

"Above 80 degrees north men don't talk as much as they do down here," was Henson's opening apology. "I am new to this lecture business and I'll have to use notes. Perhaps, if you all like me and I stay in this business, I won't have to use notes pretty soon."

Henson then gave a statistical summary of the trips he had made with Peary to the Arctic regions during the past twenty-odd years and in the dark sounded the restless shuffling of feet.

"You were with Peary when he got to the Pole?" a voice interrupted.

"I certainly was," Henson came back promptly. "There were four Eskimos, Commander Peary and myself."

"That's all I wanted to know," sounded the assurance out of the dark and Henson continued. He had thrown upon the screen fifty or sixty slides from photographs he had taken himself during the course of the journey northward. These pictures illustrated his narrative up to the point where Peary, on his final dash, was 120 miles from the Pole, and there Henson stopped.

The minute that he ceased the questions began to fly over the dark rows of benches. For some reason the man behind the lights saw fit to keep them turned off for a while.

"Dr. Cook says he experienced temperature of 83 degrees below zero; did you ever experience such temperature?" was the first of the queries.

"No, nor any other man living," was Henson's prompt reply. "No man could live and breathe in such temperature. The lowest temperature that we experienced on the dash to the Pole was 58 below zero."

From this on questions of all kinds, mostly about the claim of Cook having discovered the Pole, were asked. Finally, when in answer to one Henson said he did not think Cook reached the Pole, a storm arose in the gallery, where the Cook backers seemed to have massed, and pandemonium reigned for a time.

Out of confused chours of yells came challenges to Henson that he explain that last statement.

"Well, we knew that he had sneaked up north ahead of us and we knew that he had said he had climbed Mt. McKinley when he hadn't. We knew that if he bluffed one time he would another."

No Need For Talk.

"Does the baby talk yet?" asked a friend of the family.

"No," replied the baby's disgusted little brother; "the baby doesn't need to talk."

"Doesn't need to talk?"

"No. All the baby has to do is to yell, and it gets anything there is in the house that's worth having."

The Truth Forced Home.

"I'm afraid," she sighed, "that I'm getting old."

"Why?" he asked.

"When I go to the grocery now the clerks don't nearly break their necks trying to beat one another in getting my orders."—Exchange.

HARBOR DEFENCES.

Lieut. Col. Charles J. Bailey, CA. USA., has returned to Washington from the Fore River shipbuilding company at Quincy, where several submarines are being built. He made a thorough inspection of these vessels and will make a report to the Chief of artillery recommending that the navy department be requested to permanently station several torpedo boats at harbor entrances where it is impossible on account of the swift current or great depth to anchor mines. Officers of the coast artillery are working out a plan of cooperation in coast defense between the coast artillery corps and the submarine vessels of the navy. The submarines, according to the present plans, will remain under the control of the navy department, but will cooperate with the army in coast defence work.

South Framingham, Mass., Oct. 18.—The discovery that two notes aggregating $50,000 are outstanding against the town, although no record of either note appears on the books of any town official, has led to an investigation by the selectmen, and to the appointment of a temporary town treasurer to take the place of John R. At a meeting which lasted all night and a further conference Sunday afternoon, the selectmen decided to appoint Arthur M. Fitts temporary treasurer pending further investigation.

ENFORCE NO-LICENSE.

"It never has been possible to enforce no license in any city of any considerable size in the United States, unless it has been close to some 'wet' locality where liquor could be obtained," declared Hugh F. Fox, Secretary of the United States Brewers' Association and a prominent worker in charitable and philanthropic enterprises in an address before the Economic Club of this city at its dinner tonight. Mr. Fox was pitted against ex-Governor Hanly of Indiana who is known as the "$40,000 orator of the anti-saloon crusade" and who made an elequent plea for the extension of prohibition to the larger cities of the country. The discussion was on the subject "Is no license a good thing for cities of the size of Worcester?" and was brought about by the fact that this is the largest city in the country under no-license laws. Ex-Governor Hanly's appeal was based chiefly on ethical and moral grounds while Mr. Fox devoted himself to presenting an array of figures to prove that it is impossible to prevent the sale of liquor in cities of any size. He mentioned Cambridge, Chelsea, Newton and other Massachusetts cities which are virtually a part of Boston as places where the enforcement of anti-liquor law was fairly good for the reason that those who wished to drink would do so within the limits of Boston itself. In other New England cities and large towns which had voted for prohibition, he declared, the anti-liquor laws are nullified through sales by drug stores, kitchen bars, "dress-suit case peddlers" and other clandestine dispensers of liquor and he mentioned Brockton, Fitchburg, Worcester and various other towns and cities as illustrating this condition of affairs. He also quoted the results of investigations in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan as showing that in no city of 20,000 or over is there anything even approaching a cessation of drunkenness or of the more or less open sale of intoxicants.

Another startling assertion by Mr. Fox was that more alcohol actually is consumed in cities under prohibitory laws than in those where the sale of liquor is legalized. He explained this by the greater consumption of hard liquor containing fifty percent of alcohol in so-called "dry" towns as compared with the use of beer containing three percent of alcohol on account of the greater ease of concealing it, and also by the increased consumption of thinly disguised alcoholic preparations.—Worcester, Oct. 18.

—Justice goes it blind. Even the plea of Harold Vanderbilt didn't suffice to cause a Quincy justice to decide that Miss Eleanora Sears wasn't driving her automobile over the speed limit. Perhaps the justice knew something of Miss Sears' remarkable athletic career.—Brockton Enterprise.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Peter T. Fallon a public weigher.

TO PREAMBULATE LINE.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Selectmen of Braintree relative to the preambulating of the Braintree and Quincy line. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Gilson offered an order for a special committee of three to preambulate the line Nov. 18. Councilman Bryant moved to amend by making it a committee of one. The order as amended was adopted. President Hobbs appointed Councilman Gilson as the committee.

PETITIONS.

Councilman Walsh presented a petition for a fire alarm box on the corner of Rockland and Hooper streets Houghs Neck. Referred to Committee on Fire Department.

Several petitions for minor licenses were received and referred.

Flannigan and the Chairman of the Committee stated if this license was granted he would later in the evening offered an order revoking Flannigan's license. Orders adopted.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on several applications for minor licenses. Councilman Walsh moved the report on the application of W. H. Gould to run pool tables at Houghs Neck be laid on the table. Voted.

BROOK ROAD.

The Finance Committee reported a substitute order for $8,000 to pave Brook road.

Councilman Abele and Whiton offered a minority report that the order ought not to pass.

Councilman Abele said his objection to the order was a financial one. We have already appropriated $91,000 for streets in addition to the $6,600 passed at the last meeting. This was too much for any one year. It was rather expensive work.

Councilman Whiton said it was merely a question of finance. Whether we can afford it if passed it means $105,000 for streets this year.

Councilman Bishop said this was a matter which effected the business men of South Quincy. Nearly all the loads of granite for that section use this street. Before this street is reached two horses will haul the load but four horses were needed here.

Councilman Bryant favored the passage of the order. The committee stood five to two. He thought we could afford it. Our streets are in a deplorable condition and he was glad to see that this council was taking hold of the matter.

In reply to questions by Councilman Nowland, Commissioner Bainbridge said the street was forty feet wide and about 1000 feet long. A very small amount was appropriated last year for permanent improvements, something like $25,000.

Councilman Nowland said there was no doubt the street needed paving but he thought we were going a little rapid.

Councilman McDevitt said what was done last year was no comparison. It was a public necessity. It was good investment for the business men.

Councilman Gardner favored. It was time some of the streets were fixed up.

In reply to a question the Mayor said that if the order passed the street would be paved this fall.

The minority report was rejected and the committee report accepted. The substitute was accepted and the order ordered to a second reading. The rules were then suspended and the order passed. Councilmen Abele, Nowland and Whiton voting no.

MOTIONS.

Councilman Smith offered an order calling the state election for Nov. 2. Adopted.

Councilman Smith offered an order designating the polling places for the municipal caucuses Nov. 16, Adopted

Councilman Walsh offered an order granting William H. Gould a billard and pool table license.

In reply to a question Councilman Hadlock chairman of the license committee said that the location was in the shop of Garbarino at Houghs Neck. Mr. Gould when asked by the committee who was to run the tables practically said that Garbarino was to run them.

Chief of Police Burrell in reply to a question said that Gould had said

NOTES OF THE GRIDIRON

What is Going on in the Local Athletic Field

Quincy High will journey to Everett today where they will attempt to hold the fast team of that city to a small score. Lakin having returned to school, will play at left tackle and Phil Rice will be pulled out of the back field and put in at right tackle. This should strengthen, what so far has been the weakest spot in the line.

The names of six men were given to Capt. Bates yesterday as being ineligible to play for the next two weeks because of deficiency in studies. These are H. Prout, Bugler, Johnson, Blackmur, Bill and Claflin.

It is hitting the team rather hard in the case of Bugler and Johnson as it was only the last game that the coaches were able to strike a center which could stop the opposing backs. With Brown at center and Bugler and Johnson at guard the center of the line was like a stone wall in the last game. Rich and Favorite will probably start today's game at guard. Blackmur will also be missed but in the case of the other men the team will not suffer much, if at all.

Russ Bates feels sanguine on his chances of holding the fast Everett team today.

A curious incident and one well worthy of mention as showing the feeling of good fellowship evinced between high school teams was witnessed when the Quincy team went out of town on their last game, which was with Malden. The team had landed in Sullivan square just as the Worcester high team, which won over Everett 12 to 11, got there. Worcester gave her high school yell and Quincy came back with their's but followed immediately by 3 times 3 for Worcester and from that time until they reached the South station the two teams kept up a continuous stream of fun and good feeling. As the Worcester train pulled out of the South station a mutual school yell was exchanged and with a wild hooray the Quincy team ran for their train. This in spite of the fact that Quincy had been beaten that day 28 to 0.

Although the football season is not half over as yet the basket ball fans are beginning to talk. The Y. M. C. A. should have a good team this year as the new director is said to be a particular star at this game. Let us hope he is and that for one year the association will be represented by a team which can show some class. High school will have a fast team with Russ Bates as leader and they should do much better than the poor showing made by last year's team.

The Fore River apprentices should ring in for considerable notice. For although, an unknown quantity in this sport, by their showing during the past year in other sports they should make good. We also understand that plans are on foot to start several professional and semi-pro. teams but how successful the efforts will be is an open question. Quincy should be represented by at least one team in this sport and there are enough good players in this city to make it a "champ." combination once it is started.

The runners are out in force these fine days getting in their last little bit of out door training before it becomes too cold. At the park almost every day there are to be seen several High school boys putting in some events for the interscholastic cross country run. "Babe" Marceau, Kendall and Poland expect to do something in this line and there is no reason why they should not. At the Park Monday Marceau was timed for two miles and despite the fact that the first mile was run in slow time he finished in 10 min. and 8 sec. And he was not exerting himself at all for the occasion, for until he had finished he did not know he had been timed.

We were glad to see that the gallant little Marathon runner William Hackett received recognition from his friends in Weymouth and hope that there is a lot more coming as he certainly deserves it all for his magnificent effort in winning the recent Marathon.

Demi Gourlie Q. H. S. '08 was on the football field Monday and as he will be around town for a week he expects to get down every day and help in the development of the back field.

Brockton has quite a cosmopolitan population according to some census statistics, which gives 396 colored, 20 Chinese and 10 Indians.

Rhode Island savings banks report prosperity as indicated by an increase in deposits of over nine thousand dollars.

One thousand mayors went to the St. Louis celebration on the invitation of the mayor of that city. St. Louis should learn all about the cultivation of plum trees.

Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, Chicago's progressive superintendent of schools, announces her purpose to open night schools in which she expects to educate young women in housekeeping, so that they will be able "to make the modest salaries of their future husbands go furthest." Will the young men with modest salaries exhibit sense enough to marry Mrs. Young's graduates?

Uncle Josh Whitcomb was seventy-six years old Saturday, the event being quietly observed at his home in Swanzey, N. H. We wonder if there is a theatre going person in the country who has not a warm feeling for Denman Thompson, who has for over thirty years played the role of "Uncle Josh" in the Old Homestead.

Buffalo is setting out 2,500 trees at a cost of $7,500 along both sides of its streets and proposes to continue the work until every street in the city shall be beautified. How differently cities and towns view the tree question, here in Quincy the merchants would gladly sacrifice the elm trees as they think they detract from the businessfied looks of the Square.

Atlantic-by-the-Sea is receiving a real estate boom just now and when one reads the announcements he wonders if he is in Quincy or elsewhere. One reads: "The place must be seen to be fully appreciated only 13 minutes from the South station to Atlantic, with 82 trains a day. Contractors are now stripping the loam from the cross streets, preparatory to their acceptance by the city, which means that it is only a matter of detail to supply the new houses with every city convenience and comfort."

What is declared will be a factor in building boilers for locomotives and save millions of dollars annually to the railroads is a patent granted on a non-leak flue joint invented by Charles S. Coleman, a veteran railroad man, living at 2612 Adams street, Spokane. The device consists of a steel point, six inches in length, which is welded into the boiler, making the joint inside ,instead of outside, as at present. Operating department officials of roads in the Northwest say that the present cost of repairs and new work, due to leaky flues, amounts to from $1,000 to $2,000 a locomotive a year, or from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 a year in the United States and Canada, adding also that a new locomotive will not run more than three months until its flues must be repaired, and from that time the added cost of each trip is from $3 to $10. Coleman has been a boiler-maker, machinist and is now a fireman. He was one of the crew that carried President U. S. Grant and Henry Villard over the Missouri division of the Northern Pacific railway to the point in Montana, where the golden spike was driven to hold the rail connection the eastern and western portions of the road.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

NEW COURSE OF STUDY.

The new woman superintendent of the Chicago school system appears to have hit upon an idea worth incorporating into the curriculum of schools in every large town and city. She calls it the "Chicago" course; elsewhere it would be the Boston or Framingham or any other course. It deals with the life of the city in which the schools are located and for it the Chicago woman is willing to sacrifice algebra. She will have the eighth grade pupils start in on five hours a week of the course. They will study Chicago history, Chicago geography ,and will take excursions abroad through the city with competent instructors, studying the city in all ways—learning their own city thoroughly, and branching beyond that point to study their state and its resources. All this looks like good business, and when a bright scholar leaves school he will know his own city. How many people are there even in a town or city no larger than Framingham that have a first-class, practical, working idea of just what there is in their town or city and just what its resources ,history, and possible future are?—Framingham News.

CURFEW LAW.

A few years ago there was an agitation for a curfew bell to take young persons off the street at a prescribed hour. Several cities adopted an ordinance creating a curfew hour, and bells were rung, or whistles blown, to warn the youngsters that they must hurry home or take the chances of an arrest. Like many another example of crank regulations it soon fell into disuse. At Malden, for instance, curfew is sounded on the fire alarm, but very little attention is paid to it, except for some annoyed citizen to murmur, "What a nuisance." In Marlboro conditions are similar, and the Marlboro Times says: "The whistle now blows its accustomed warning with reasonable regularity, but it strikes no terrors to the hearts of the juveniles who should be in bed or close thereunto, and beyond notifying the public that it is a little before 9 o'clock in the evening, it appears to have no further interest for anyone." For the city or town government to undertake to regulate a matter for which parents should be responsible is an abuse of authority. It does not work well, and the custom is likely to be relegated to the regions where the original curfew has so long slumbered.—Lynn Item.

POSITION HARD TO FILL

Diplomatic Gossips Busy Figuring on Next Minister to China

Washington, Oct. 19.—The selection of a minister to China will probably be deferred until the return of President Taft to Washington. It is said by a high officer of the state department that nobody has yet been chosen.

The situation following the sudden resignation of Mr. Crane is a complex one. Mr. Taft had great difficulty in selecting a minister to China whom he regarded as available for the post and finally, after several others had declined the appointment, Crane was chosen. In the present instance, however, it is believed here that the president and Secretary Knox will have an even more difficult task of selecting a satisfactory man for the post.

In the meantime, the diplomatic gossips have been busy and the names of many prominent men have been suggested.

Nagel Removes Inspector

Washington, Oct. 19.—Secretary Nagel, on recommendation of the commissioner of immigration, removed from office Daniel D. Davies, immigration inspector in charge at Chicago. It was alleged that Davies had made over charges in connection with meals and attendance furnished to detained immigrants.

Without health life is not life; it is only a state of languor and suffering.—an image of death.—Rabelais.

GRAY HAIRS BANISHED.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color. One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days on account of it souring quickly. This objection has been overcome and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of th's preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow. It is sold by all druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

TALKS OF CAMPAIGN PLANS

Intends to Spend a Million Dollars Toward Securing Votes For Women In America—Bold and Aggressive, but Does Not Favor Use of Force—Enthusiastically Received by American Sisters In the Cause

New York, Oct. 19.—No mere financier, politician, or explorer ever received a welcome that could hold a candle to the one the American suffragettes got up for Lady Cook, who was a passenger on the White Star liner Celtic.

Every one who saw the tug John F. Crimmins draped from stem to stern with yellow and blue "Votes For Women" flags steam up the harbor ahead of the liner and heard the shrieks of rejoicing from the throats of seventy-five fighters for franchise drown the patriotic airs of the biggest brass band that could be found awake was inclined to agree with her.

A squad of deputy surveyors and inspectors escorted Lady Cook down the gang plank and a group of enthusiastic yearners for the ballot endeavored to bear the white haired pioneer to the street on their shoulders. Mrs. Loebinger and Miss Helen Murphy prevented this, however, and limited the demonstrations to a series of handshakes.

Upon the completion of this ceremony five minutes were allotted to the camera brigade, and then the executive committee of the National Progressive union escorted Lady Cook to a taxicab, the first of a line of twelve which started immediately for the Twenty-Third street headquarters. There a general reception was held. Then Lady Cook told a little about her plans for the coming campaign.

"I have more faith in President Taft than I had in his predecessor," she said. "He does not think that he is the only important thing in the country, and he has a judicial mind. I think he will listen to reason and that he realizes that the time has come when the women of America must be reckoned with. Therefore I am determined not to beat about the bush any longer, but to go to Washington and have it out with him. I shall probably take a house there in December, and shall start a campaign similar to the one that my sister Victoria and I carried on in the '70s.

"I am going to devote my life and my fortune to helping women to win the ballot, and I am not going to stop at anything that I think will further my aim. I intend to spend $1,000,000 on the American campaign."

"Are you an advocate of militant methods?" she was asked.

"I suppose my life is the best answer to that question," she replied. "I have never hesitated when there was anything to be done, no matter how humiliating the doing of it might be to myself. But while I thoroughly believe in being bold and aggressive, I do not favor the use of force.

"When I come back from England in December, I shall bring with me Mrs. Despard, the president of the League of Freedom. She is the leader of the so-called 'silent suffragettes' who stand for hours outside the house of commons waiting to hand a petition to Mr. Asquith."

NO ALIMONY DEMANDED

Margaret Illington Files Suit For Divorce From Daniel Frohman

Reno, Nev., Oct. 19.—Margaret Illington filed suit for divorce from Daniel Frohman in the district court here, giving as grounds his failure to provide for her support during the last two years.

The complaint simply recites this and the fact that the plaintiff had lived in Reno more than six months, that there are no children and no community property. No alimony is demanded.

The actress has been in Reno nearly a year and has gone out only for early morning walks or horseback rides.

Toadstools Cost Three Lives

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 19.—As a result of eating toadstools in mistake for mushrooms, Harry Sanson, 17, is the third member of the family to die from the same cause. Mary Sanson, the mother, 40, and the 10-year-old daughter, Emma, died two days ago.

Wedding Tour Interrupted

New York, Oct. 19.—Ossip Gabrilowitsch, the pianist and husband of the daughter of Mark Twain, whose bridal trip was interrupted by appendicitis, was operated upon in this city. He withstood the operation well and his recovery is expected.

McCarren Anxious to Get Out Again

New York, Oct. 19.—As evidence of Senator McCarren's improved condition he asked his nurses how soon he would be able to get up and go out. He was informed that he would have to remain quietly in bed for some time to come.

ROOTERS' HAPPY DAY

They Turn Out In Force to Do Honor to Champion Pittsburgs

Pittsburg, Oct. 19.—The Pittsburg baseball crew was last night given an ovation such as no other baseball team had been accorded. The whole town and surrounding county turned out to do them honor, first with a parade, which wound up at Forbes field, where the checks were presented the players by Congressman Burke.

It was a nondescript mob which followed the twelve bands, players, three military companies and city officials and some political clubs that formed the parade. Mobs of rooters came from all sections of the city.

In the center of the diamond at Forbes field a stage had been erected. Congressman Burke made an address felicitating the players, Barney Dreyfus, the National league and the city for winning the pennant and the championship series. He called each player to the stage and introduced him to the mob, making a brief address on his prowess.

"Babe" Adams, thrice winner over the Detroits, received the greatest ovation. Besides his part of the winnings, he received a purse of $1264 which had been subscribed by his admirers. Each of the players was roundly cheered.

"ONLY TO AID FRIENDS"

Town Treasurer's Excuse for Being Entangled In Heavy Forgeries

Framingham, Mass., Oct. 19.—Town Treasurer John B. Lombard was formally placed under arrest last night after making a clean breast of his connection with the forged notes of the town.

It is now believed these notes will total $100,000 and possibly more. Lombard, who is ill in bed, was not taken from his home, but a police officer was stationed in the room.

His arrest made the third for the day, Charles S. Cummings and Edward A. Mead, Boston bankers, having been taken into custody in the morning.

Lombard's plea was that he had sought only to aid friends in distress, but had reaped no personal gain.

ROOSEVELT'S POLICY OF STRENUOUS LIFE

Poet Miller Says It Is Responsible For Much Crime

San Francisco, Oct. 19.—Joaquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, in an address to the San Quentin prison convicts, after warning them against the evils of lying, said:

"There is something wrong with the way people in this country live. They are too strenuous, too active, too highly aroused. Roosevelt, as the head of this great nation, rushed the people into all sorts of crime. His strenuous theory of life is crimeful. He has infected us with sort of insane activity. American madness is energy. It is a mania particular to us, and Roosevelt is responsible for much of it."

VAN WORMSERS' PET DOG

Portrait of Canine Will Hang on Wall of University Library

Cincinnati, Oct. 19.—The board of trustees of the University of Cincinnati have taken steps to comply with the wishes of the late Asa Van Wormser to have the painting of his pet dog, Reuben Springer, hung beside the painting of Van Wormser and wife on the walls of the university library building, which structure was donated by Van Wormser and is named after him.

The dog was named after Reuben Springer, a philanthropist of this city, who died many years ago. C. T. Weber of this city painted the picture of the dog, as he had those of Van Wormser and his wife. The painting is framed exactly as are the pictures of the Van Wormsers.

JAIL FOR PICTURE MEN

Chief Offender Also Fined $500 For Misuse of the Mails

Boston, Oct. 19.—After administering a severe rebuke to Peter F. Porter, a photographer, of North Attleboro, and his nephew, Lewis E. Porter, a photographer, of Somerville, for sending obscene pictures through the mails, Judge Dodge of the United States district court sentenced both to the county jail at New Bedford.

The elder Porter was fined $500 and sentenced to one year. The nephew, who the judge declared had been influenced by his uncle, was sent to jail for three months.

Danes to Keep Cook Records

Copenhagen, Oct. 19.—The Danish Royal Geographical society has advised the University of Copenhagen against renouncing its priority claim to the examination of Dr. Cook's Arctic records.

NEGROES ARE REJOICING

Jack Johnson's Victory Causes Them to Desert Posts of Duty

Memphis, Oct. 19.—Jack Johnson, the Galveston negro pugilist, has tied up traffic on the Mississippi river in this section. Big steamboats are docked at several ports owing to scarcity of labor with which to supply a crew, and river men blame Johnson's victory over Ketchel for prevailing conditions, as all the roustabouts are celebrating.

The James Lee, one of the largest Mississippi boats, is tied up here, although she was to have left Friday. Deckhands, picked exclusively from the negro race, refused to enlist in order to remain ashore and hear the returns from the battle, and the festivities have continued since the victory of one of their race.

STORE CLERKS AND COURTESY.

The New Bedford Standard has a very timely and useful editorial on courtesy in the store. Every salesman ought to be courteous, as the Standard says; that is what he is paid for. A man who cannot treat customers right is entirely out of place behind a counter, and there are times when discourtesy is unquestionably flagrant in stores. Yet it must be remembered that the clerk has a story to tell also. He is heckled by customers who want impossible bargains and who insist upon taking up a vast deal of time when they not only incommode the clerk by their slowness, but also are bothersome nuisances to people who are back of them and who want a chance to get to a counter and buy. There are people who are not at all above speaking loudly and harshly to clerks, and manifesting toward them a superiority which often isn't the fact, for the clerk is likely to be just as good as the customer of the haughty and overbearing stripe. The clerk gets tired, too, like other people, and when a human being is tired and bothered something occasionally snaps that has held his feelings in check up to that time. Clerking is not all fun, and customers who are snappy, surly, and difficult to get along with in a store have no reason to protest if they are sometimes answered in turn by the people back of the sales table. The clerk of course shouldn't answer back, and should let the incident pass as a specimen of bad manners, which he is not bound to imitate; but we can see where it must occasionally be hard to keep the temper sweet in a store. We imagine that where a customer treats a clerk with fairness and courtesy he receives the same sort of treatment in return. —Brockton Enterprise.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

Three important conditions are contributing to weaken the position of the New York stock market. These are the growing firmness in money, the gradual passing of stocks from strong into weaker hands and the unfriendly attitude of European banking interests towards recent stock manipulations over here. Against these three adverse influences it will be difficult at the present time to make any great advance in the stock market.

There is a gradual hardening in money rates owing to the steady depletion of bank reserves. Three months' time money is already quoted at 5 per cent. Crop and trade requirements are now approaching their zenith the result being a forced shifting or contraction of speculative loans, and consequently higher rates for call money. The note of warning has been emphasized by a further advance in the Bank of England rate. It is well known that as our own monetary resources began to decline there was a heavy shifting of American loans to European markets. Much of this borrowing was on account of powerful interests here who were engaged in conducting a speculative campaign which in some respects was unparalleled. Europe disliked our operations of this character, not only because of habitual conservatism but also because of their dangerous character. Foreign bankers have, therefore, administered a timely and much needed rebuke to a certain class of operations; a rebuke that may somewhat discourage their continuance at this time. The only great banking center which has not manifested resentment at our speculative methods is Paris, but Paris has only a secondary interest in our financial affairs, and is just now more intensely occupied over the inflammable political conditions existing in Spain and the danger of a social or political explosion. For this and other reasons speculative operators are able to find little encouragement at that particular center.—Henry Clews, Banker.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

—According to a New Bedford authority the employment of children under 15 years of age to participate in "tag day" collections is illegal. Chapter 42, revised laws, section 25, reads: "A parent or other person who employs a minor under the age of 15 years in begging, or who, having the care or custody of such minor, permits him to engage in such employment, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $200 or by imprisonment of not more than six months." It is easy, reading between the lines, to see that this marks the beginning of the end, so far as the employment of children is concerned in promoting "tag day" schemes.—Haverhill Gazette.

The Woman Question.

Little Willie—Say, paw, what is the "woman question?" Pa—It's numerous, my son. For example: What shall I wear? How does my hair look in the back? Is my hat on straight? etc. —Exchange.

The Resemblance.

Facetious Old Lady (to tramp)—You remind me of a piece of flannel. Tramp—I do, eh? And why so, missus? Facetious Old Lady—You shrink from washing.

The Ruling Passion.

A certain arithmetician is so devoted to figures that when he has no problem before him he casts up his eyes.

—The agitation for the upbuilding fo the American merchant marine by the establishment of a system of federal subsidies gained impetus at the end of last week when the President of the United States, in a public address at Seattle, pronounced himself unqualifiedly in favor of the legislation sought by the advocates of the proposed method of solving an important national problem. "It behooves us Americans," said the President, "to take steps to repair a condition that exists in reference to our merchant marine that is humiliating to our national pride." In referring to the probable cost of the rehabilitation of the flag upon the seas of the world, Mr. Taft said: "We earn a profit on our foreign mails of from $6,000,000 to $8,000,000 a year. The appropriation of that amount would be quite sufficient to put on a satisfactory basis two or three Oriental lines and several lines from the East to South America." Mr. Taft announced his purpose to urge upon the next Congress the passage of a ship subsidy measure.—Christian Register.

HAPPY WOMEN

Plenty of Them in Quincy, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Quincy reader
Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. George L. Nott, 99 North Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have every reason for holding a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled a great deal by headaches and dizzy spells wich were so severe at times that I had to grasp something for support to keep from falling. My sight was also affected, spots often appearing before me and my back ached intensely. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. I was helped from the first and after I had taken the contents of five boxes, I was cured. Other members of my family have used this remedy with equally good results."

SEA STREET.

Councilman Whiton by request offered an order appropriating $10,000 to rebuild Sea street between Canal street and the engine house at Houghs Neck. Referred to Committee on Streets.

LOAN ORDER.

The loan order for $6,600 to provide funds to rebuild Marlboro, South and Billings streets took its second reading and the rules were suspended.

Councilman Whiton asked of the Commissioner what is meant by rebuilding South street.

Commissioner Bainbridge said, here in Quincy it meant putting in a rock base and covering it. Resurfacing is to take a stone road and patch it.

In reply to further questions he said that a rock base on South street would not be put in unless it needed it. In some places it will be necessary to dig out and in other places to fill. He intended to rebuild the street. About $6,500 was expended in resurfacing Washington street.

Councilman Whiton said there was no question but what a part of South street was in bad shape. From Harlow's hill to Elm street was in good condition. To appropriate $5,000 to rebuild this street was a humbug. He questioned the legality of the order. The order is a farce. Washington street is narrower than South street and if it took $6,500 to resurface that street what can be expected of South street which is longer and wider. It was rank financing. It was simply appropriating money for current expenses.

Councilman Walsh was surprised to hear the last speaker say South street was in good condition. There were ruts in it six inches deep and stones sticking up through it.

Councilman Abele said that it was a current expense. He believed it was illegal and poor policy.

Councilman McDevitt said that Washington street was 12 or 15 feet wider than South street. He did not see that it was a bunco game.

Councilman Nowland asked the Commissioner how late work was done on the streets and the latter replied that he worked until frost came.

The order was then passed to be ordained Councilman Abele, Nowland and Whiton voting no.

Councilman Flynn offered an order for street lights on the corner of Mill street and Souther place and on Taft street. Referred to the Executive.

PARISIANS ARE THRILLED

De Lambert Soars High Over Eiffel Tower In His Aeroplane

Paris, Oct. 19.—Count De Lambert, the French aeroplanist, just before dark last night accomplished one of the most remarkable and daring feats yet to the credit of heavier-than-air machines.

Starting from the aerodrome at Juvisy, he flew to Paris, a distance of about thirteen miles. After maneuvering over the city at an average height of 400 feet, he ascended in gradually diminishing circles and passed several hundred feet above the Eiffel Tower. He then returned to Juvisy.

Thousands who watched from the streets of Paris could barely credit their senses when they saw the aeroplane, a tiny object gliding swiftly above the tower.

Count De Lambert was given a tremendous ovation on his return to Juvisy.

OFFICIAL VISITATION

Grand Officers Visit Quincy Chapter Eastern Star

The official visitation and inspection of the grand officers to Quincy chapter 88, O. E. S., was held Monday evening at Electa hall. Mrs. Melissa A. Shephardson, the deputy with her marshall Miss Savilla M. Hayden, both of Attleboro arrived in Quincy during the early evening and were met at the station by the reception committee of Quincy chapter. P. M., Mrs. A. S. Furnald, P. M., Mrs. Mary P. Tilley, and P. P., E. Linnell Higgins, and escorted to the hall where an informal reception was held until 6 o'clock at which hour a banquet was served.

The business meeting was held at 8 o'clock at which time the grand officers were received with due ceremony. After the inspection the degree was exemplified upon four candidates by the officers of Quincy chapter headed by W. M. Mrs. Clara R. Catarius. The work was very finely rendered and the officers received many words of commendation from the grand officers. During the work there were several musical selections by Miss Lottie M. Barnicoat.

Following the business session there was a social hour during which the deputy and her marshall were presented with souvenirs. A souvenir of the evening was also presented to the acting Grand Patron, Arthur W. Stetson, Past Patron of Boston chapter. A bouquet was also given to Mrs. Flora A. Matherson of Braintree P. M., who is an honorary member of Quincy chapter. The hall was very prettily decorated for the evening.

YORKTOWN DAY.

State Society Daughters Revolution on Pilgrimage to Quincy.

In celebration of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown 128 years ago, the state society Daughters of Revolution are holding their annual pilgrimage today in Quincy. The program of the pilgrimage is an entirely informal one. It included a visit and lunch at the Dorothy Q house, a visit to the shrine under the First church and to the John Adams birthplace where the visitors were entertained by Adams chapter.

Many of the ladies arrived early this morning and the forenoon was spent in an inspection of the many historic articles at the Dorothy Q house. Among the early arrivals were Mrs. George E. Smith of Swampscott, State Regent, Mrs. George Plummer of Lynn, Vice Regent, Miss Mary A. Todd of Lynn, State Registrar, Mrs. Eleanor B. Wheeler of Dorchester, State Treasurer and Mrs. Flora Adams Darling founder of the society.

At one o'clock a lunch was served in the old kitchen at the house to about one hundred. The servers were Mrs. Eleanor F. Gross of Melrose, chairman, Mrs. Charles Stover of Cambridge, Mrs. Fred C. Leslie of Newton Lower Falls, Miss Mary A. Todd of Lynn, Miss Maria R. Wheeler of Newton, Mrs. William A. Jackson of Malden and Mrs. Francis A. Snow of Brookline.

Many of the Daughters did not arrive until lunch time after which they were shown about the old mansion. Later they left for a visit to the shrine under the First church and still later they visited the John Adams birthplace where they were received and entertained by the Daughters of Adams chapter. Here a buffet lunch was served. The day is an ideal one for the pilgrimage and as Quincy is rich in historic places the day will be one of pleasure to all.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

PRACTICE NOT JUSTIFIED.

Editor Daily Ledger:

The letter of "Citizen" in Saturday's Ledger raises a question that ought to have been raised long ago and many will appreciate it. The communication of "Broad-Minded" does not meet the question by any means. Even if every church in the city solicited outside of their own fold (which they do not) it would not justify the practice. As a matter of fact, Mr. Editor, all our old established or leading churches are self supporting, and while their members have difficulty sometimes in making ends meet they do not call on others for aid. Churches that cannot exist without calling for outside assistance should unite and thereby become independent.

FOR FOUR DAYS OF RECREATION

President Taft Reaches His Brother's Ranch In Texas

GOLF, HUNTING AND RIDING

Arrives at Brother's Home After Spending Busy Day In Lone Star State, During Which He Lays Corner Stone of a Memorial Chapel —Reviews Ten Thousand School-children and Talks to Veterans

Gregory, Tex., Oct. 19.—A wildcat hunt, a day's tarpon fishing, motorboating and automobiling, jackrabbit chasing and golf are a few of the diversions in which President Taft is expected to indulge in the course of his four days' rest at his brother's big ranch here.

The president arrived here at 9:30 o'clock last night determined to devote the next four days to having a good time. There have been stops on the Taft trip which have been intended as breathing spells for the president on his 13,000 mile jaunt, but at each place Mr. Taft was accompanied by politicians and local committeemen who insisted on talking.

At the Charles P. Taft ranch no local committeeman will be allowed within the precincts unless possibly on the last day, when the president may consent to deliver a little speech at Corpus Christi. The president's brother has provided a big, strong horse for his guest, and the president will do considerable riding. They will do their wildcat hunting in the evening or about dusk, when the creatures venture from the woods in search of prey.

Charles P. Taft has several fine hounds that are all trained for wildcats, and local hunters stand ready to assure the president that the glory of the great African game killer will be obscured at least for one day if he will consent to join in the chase. Ducks and geese also have begun to come in from the north and the president may try his luck with them. The golf links on the Taft ranch have been laid out especially for the president's visit.

The president left San Antonio at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The Texans had kept him on the go from 7 o'clock in the morning, when he was entertained at a breakfast. An hour later found him at the Sam Houston army post, reviewing the troops. At the army post the president laid the corner stone of a memorial chapel given by the city to the post. This time it was no make believing laying. The president picked up a mason's hammer and chipped a good sized piece off the stone.

"This stone is hardly square and true," said the president. The mason agreed with the distinguished corner stone expert and handed a little hammer to Taft.

"Hit there," said he, pointing with his finger, and the hammer descended. The chip fell off and the stone cutter said "splendid." Then they gave the president a trowel. Mortar was on a board nearby, but to Taft's critical eye it was a bit dry. At any rate, he poked the trowel into it two or three times and worked it over before spreading it on the foundation.

On the way back to the city from the army post the president reviewed 10,000 of San Antonio's schoolchildren. He delivered a speech later to a big audience on the plaza in front of historic Alamo. The president passed through the old building in which Davy Crockett, Bowie and others sacrificed their lives and stopped once or twice to have historic spots pointed out to him.

In reference to his recent meeting with President Diaz of Mexico, the president said:

"Two days ago it was my good fortune to take part as the representative of the people of the United States in a ceremony tending to show the peace and good will and the bond of friendship that now exists between the United States and the great republic of Mexico. Happy those who, after the quarrels and the battles and the bloody wars, can live to see the participants taking part in a ceremony of union and peace and sincere good will."

At this point the president turned toward the lines of veterans of the Civil war, one wearing the blue and the other the gray. They stood before the stand, shoulder to shoulder.

"The sentiment," he added, "comes to me as I see here the soldiers of the Grand Army of the Republic on one side, and on the other the Confederate Veterans, gathered to pay their respects to the chief magistrate of the nation under the starry flag that they all now love so well."

Washington, Oct. 19.—Secretary Nagel will leave this afternoon for Missouri. He will join the presidential party at St. Louis on Oct. 25.

MR. FREEMAN UNDECIDED

Will Give Answer on Mayoralty Question in Letter

The article on the Mayoralty question in Monday's Ledger was the first authentic news of what the Republicans were doing in regard to a candidate at the coming election. Numerous names have been mentioned during the past few weeks but it remained for the Ledger to give the general public the inside facts of the situation.

It was generally admitted on all sides Monday night that Mr. Freeman would make an exceptionally strong condidate but it is still an open question whether he will permit his name to be used as a candidate. Mr. Freeman will not be hasty in his decision but it will take time to fully consider the matter.

It is understood that he has informed the committee that he will consider the proposition and make his answer known in a few days in a letter to the general committee.

A CIVIC MOVEMENT.

Y. M. C. A. Stands for the Uplifting of Young Men.

The slogan of the great $500,000 Y. M. C. A. campaign now going on in Boston, "A Great Civic Movement for a Great Civic Need," is a good one and is attracting favorable comment editorily and otherwise by the press in general.

The Young Men's Christian Association is not a narrow sectarian organization, it is broader than creed has wider outlook than sect. It is today the country over and in Quincy a movement for the uplift of young men, is an ally of every civic force which makes for righteousness and is suplimentary to the church, the home and the school.

Its hand is held out to all men where education and character building are possible, irrespective of religion or nationality.

The association does not ask charity its usefulness has been raised to a position of civic dignity and commends itself to the philanthropic sense of the community. The work which the local association has done and is doing educationally among the industrial class, its work among the boys collectively and individually throughout the city, its noon shop classes and its Bible classes, talks and meetings for the betterment of the young manhood of the community and its effort among the alien population might well turn the minds of Quincy's thoughtful people to the needs of this local organization, which is carrying the burden of a mortgage indebtedness and so seriously crippling its best usefulness from year to year.

Is not this an opportune time for our citizens to organize a like movement to that now progressing so enthusiastically in Boston and put the local association in a position of greater usefulness?

NEW HOURS.

New hours have been established at the post office by Supt. Hammond for the benefit of the business men. Hereafter the office will be open on week days from 6.15 A. M. to 10 P. M. On Sundays the office will be open from 9 to 10.30 A. M. and 7 to 8.30 P. M. The carriers' window for the delivery of carriers' mail will be open from 9 to 10.30 A. M. on Sundays.

INTERESTING LECTURE.

An elocutionary and lecture entertainment was given at the Quincy Point church Monday evening by Miss Lottie L. Tillotson of Hawaii, before a large gathering. She described the picturesque scenery of Hawaii and the mode of living on the islands. She also recited several humorous rhymes. During the evening there were vocal solos by Miss Eleanor Crane and piano solos by Miss Esther Dahlberg.

DUNKES—BOEHM.

Mr. Joseph Frank Dunkes of Baltimore and Miss Mabel M. K. Boehm of New York were married Monday evening by Rev. E. N. Hardy at the parsonage. Mr. Dunkes has recently come to the city from Newport News and has a fine position at the Fore River ship yard. Mrs. Dunkes has spent the last three years largely in travel and came to Quincy only a few days ago from California, where her parents are now residing, to begin her married life here in the East. Mr. E. M. Hoffman a life long friend of the happy couple was present at the nuptials to offer his hearty congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Dunkes will for the present make their home at 48 Edison street. Quincy society will extend to them a most cordial welcome.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASON'S PLANS

AMONG THE CLUBS.

Junior Alliance of First church meets in the chapel on Monday evening at half past seven, when they will be addressed by Rev. Lewis G. Wilson, secretary of the American Unitarian association.

The Friday club opened its season last week at the home of Mrs. D. E. Wadsworth, the executive board being in charge of the program. This year the club is back from foreign lands and will study Colonial America. Oct. 22 the club meets with Mrs. Wilson Marsh of Irving place with Mrs. Wadsworth and Mrs. Frank A. Page as the committee for the afternoon, the subject being "Early Spanish Americans."

* * *

Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard is to give a paper on "Comradeship" at the meeting of First Church Alliance on Monday afternoon in the chapel. There will also be a talk by Miss Helene Taplin of the Hale settlement house in Boston, who will tell of her work which promises to be very interesting.

* * *

A reception is to be tendered the waiting list of the Brockton Woman's club by the club on the afternoon of Oct. 26. It is an innovation this year and will doubtless meet with success and become a yearly feature.

* * *

Quincy Alliance under the leadership of its president is arranging a series of entertainments for the winter season. They will be given in the chapel of First church and be varied in character. The first one on Oct. 29th will be dramatics by the Jonas Perkins School association of East Braintree, and the other two will be a recital and a musicale.

* * *

Brockton has a college club of women residing in that city and neighboring towns which holds regular meetings and has a large membership.

On Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 27, Miss Hope Fagan of Boston, is to address the Wollaston Alliance in the vestry of the Unitarian church taking for her subject "A short story of Settlement Work."

The Philergians of Braintree had a home afternoon on Tuesday under the auspices of the Art and Literature committee. The subject "Journeyings at Home and Abroad" was under direction of Mrs. William F. Rogers, Mrs. Frank H. Waters and Mrs. George H. Wetherbee.

Every member of the Junior Friday club was present at the opening meeting of the club on Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Abigail B. Wood on School street. That all were glad to get together again after the long summer was evident from the cordial greetings and animation which prevailed throughout the meeting. Miss Grace M. Isaac, chairman of the program committee was in charge of the meeting, the A's assisting. France is being studied this year, Ancient Gaul, being the special subject for Monday. During the closing social hour the hostess dispensed ices and cake. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Ernest D. Gourd at Needham.

The Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association holds its annual meeting Friday and Saturday, October 22 and 23, at headquarters in Copley square, Boston, opening at 10 A. M. Their star guest will be Mrs. Parkhurst, the London suffragette, who has been imprisoned for her vehemence in the cause.

The Quincy Day Nursery Association is busily at work arranging plans for a successful "tag day" on Saturday when they hope to receive contributions of at least a thousand dollars. * * *

The Hyde Park Current Events club is discussing the matter of incorporating the club.

A really remarkable club is the Whitman Woman's club which has a membership of 450 and a waiting list of 120 and the town is not a large one. It would seem as though every woman was or hoped to be a club member.

QUINCY HIGH IS DEFEATED

Everett High Defeats Them by a Score of 29 to 0

The score read 29 to 0 after the finish of yesterday's game at Everett. The local lads played hard and put forth all the energy and knowledge they possessed but were unable to cope against the weight and speed of the Everett team. The Quincy backs were able when they had the ball to carry it down the field and time and time again they were in Everett's territory and with luck breaking right, might have scored, but always there was a fumble. This feature of the game was the worst of any this year and Everett fumbled even more than Quincy did. At one time the ball changed hands four times, on fumbles, within the radius of 5 yards.

Billy Manning was the particular star in the back field and Bouncer Lakin did the work of half the team on the line. He was everywhere and easily handled Norris the tackle, who is looked upon as one of Everett's best men. Russ Bates was right on hand with the gains and did magnificent work on the defensive. Hill and Arthur on the ends did work worthy of mention and Hill's punting pulled Quincy out of some bad holes. There was one man on the field, however, who was noticeable every time there was a fumble and if he didn't get the ball he was very near to it. This was Brown, who was played at center yesterday. The score the first half stood 6 to 0 in favor of Everett and it was only after the hardest kind of work that they succeeded in scoring. When the half ended the ball was on Everett's thirty yard line in Quincy's possession.

Quincy's right tackle was weak and it was through there that Everett drove many of her plays. Veal did good work on the offensive but he seemed to be afraid of himself on the defensive and let a number of tackles get by that he should have had with ease. The guards also were weak, especially Favorite, who seems to have lost all the power that distinguished him on the second team last year. Rich was a little stronger but there was nothing startling about him. Harmon at full back, in a new position is the man who deserves a lot of commendation for the way in which he handled himself, making few mistakes and backing up the line in great shape.

For Everett of course Charley Brickley played his usual star game and his brother at quarter showed that he is coming right along and that for a few years yet Everett will not want for a Brickley in the football squad. Whittimore also played a great game for Everett and on ground tackle plays Norris of Everett gained the distance repeatedly through Rice.

The game was of little value to either team and there is small value for Quincy to buck up against teams that are as heavy and well trained as the teams representing Somerville, Everett and Malden. The boys did good work and they fought their hardest for every inch of the ground and and although beaten to a standstill, they are not at all discouraged, realizing as they do that they were up against a heavier and faster team and an eleven of seasoned players.

Citizen's communication in Saturday's Ledger under the heading of "Soliciting Nuisance" seems to have aroused considerable comment pro and con judging by the letters received by the editor, all of which appear as received in the "Of Public Interest" column.

Every community has a few important large charities in which each resident should take a personal interest. Quincy is no exception and perhaps the greatest need here is the house of mercy on the hill, the Quincy Hospital, which each year makes an appeal for help by a house to house canvass. The Visiting Nurse established by the Women's club is also worthy of help and still another is the Day Nursery. This is a home for children whose mothers go out to earn their living. The children are left in the morning in the care of the matron and called for by the mothers after their work is over for the day. The children have sanitary surroundings, wholesome food and are in a safe place. On Saturday the Day Nursery Association is to make an appeal for aid to continue this work and is to have a "tag day" when it is hoped every one will contribute, no matter how small a sum.

Statistics compiled by the state grain commission show that 2,995,000 acres of non-irrigated land in Washington, devoted to cereals, produced in 1909 a crop of 49,565,000 bushels, of which 35,095,000 was wheat 9,290,000 oats and 5,180,000 barley. Twenty bushels the acre was the average for wheat, while barley and oats averaged 60 bushels each. Practically all the wheat was produced in 13 counties in eastern Washington, in the districts designated as the Big Bend, the Palouse and Walla Walla. Whitman and Lincoln counties led all in the area devoted to grain, producing jointly 16,500,000 bushels of wheat, of which 8,500 000 is credited to the first named, which also had the first place with oats, reporting 3,000,000 bushels. Skagit county is second with between 1,500,000 and 1,600,000 bushels of oats. Columbia county gained first place with a production of 2,240,000 bushels of barley, while Garfield county was second with 1,800,000 bushels. The average prices paid during the last 10 years were: Wheat, 60 cents; oats, $1,10, per cental and barley $1 per cental. The present price of wheat in Washington ranges from 85 to 90 cents, but many growers, who claim to have about 60 per cent of this season's crop in hand, are holding out for $1 a bushel.

CENSUS ENUMERATORS.

It is estimated that about 2,500 enumerators will be needed for the national census in Massachusetts next year. Charles F. Gettemy, who will have general charge of the work, has issued a statement relative to employees. He says:

"The census of population and agriculture for Massachusetts is to be under my supervision, and I shall have the designation of a certain number of enumerators for this purpose. 'Enumerators' are the persons who take the house-to-house canvass. Applications for these positions may be made to me in writing at any time, and if made now will be placed on file and given careful consideration later when the matter of organizing the staff for the field work is taken up.

"I should like to have such applications accompanied by the indorsements of one or more responsible persons in the community who may be personally acquainted with the applicant, letters being preferable to petitions. All applicants, including those who may call in person, will be required to make application in writing and applicants need not therefore, feel obliged to call in person.

"It is the intention that a simple, practical test shall be devised, intended to determine fitness for the position of enumerator. This will not, however, be in the nature of what is ordinarily understood as a civil service examination, and will necessitate no extended preparation in advance.

"Among the essential qualifications for a good enumerator are ability to read and to write English legibly, honesty, industry, intelligence, coupled with common sense, tact and neatness of person; and ability to speak the language of the community in districts where there is a considerable element of persons unable to speak in English. The pay of enumerators will be based upon a rate of from two to four cents per name secured, with certain additional compensation where agricultural data are called for.

"For the census of manufactures, mines and quarries, which is to be taken independently of the population census, a certain number of special agents will be required whose qualifications are to be determined by an examination to be held in certain designated cities of Massachusetts on Nov. 3 next.

"Applications for these examinations must be filed with the director of the census, Washington, D. C., before the close of business, Oct. 25, and such applications must be made out on a special form of blank which may be obtained by application to the director of the census.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

LOMBARD ARRAIGNED IN BED

Town Treasurer Pleads Not Guilty to Specific Charges and Bail Is Set at $20,000, Which Is Furnished—Clique Believed to Have Been Associated With Him—Cummings and Mead Arraigned In Boston Court

Framingham, Mass., Oct. 20.—Specific charges of forgery was made against John E. Lombard, former treasurer of the town of Framingham, at a bedside arraignment yesterday afternoon. The police had previously refused to name the man whom they accused of forgeries of Framingham about $100,000 of two of Framingham notes. Charles S. Cummings and Edward A. Mead, the men who were first arrested in the case, are not accused of forgery.

Lombard was arraigned in his bed at his home on Clinton street. The aged man was propped up on pillows while the charge was read to him. In a feeble voice he pleaded "not guilty." Judge Kingsbury, who was at the bedside, set the bail at $20,000.

Bernard F. Merriam, a woolen manufacturer of Framingham, and Lombard's wife qualified on the $20,000 bail bond for Lombard, and the police guard was taken from his home. The American Surety company stands behind these two bondsmen.

From the trifling loan of $200, made ten years ago to "tide over a friend," it is now believed that the forged notes circulated by Lombard will amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars, possibly well toward the three-quarter million mark.

Already $325,000 of these notes have been found, and there is reason to believe that perhaps as large a number have been sold in the west and have yet to be heard from.

Associated with Lombard, it is believed, was an extreme clique who have for years been using the credit of the town of Framingham to realize on forged notes huge sums of money.

The police are now working upon another end of the case which promises startling revelations.

Lombard, it is said, knew only Cummings and Mead, but others, it is said, were in the game, and more arrests are expected.

Cummings and Mead Held

Boston, Oct. 20.—Charles S. Cummings and Edward A. Mead, who are charged with being implicated in forging notes of large amount against the town of Framingham, were arraigned before Judge Bolster in the municipal court. The lawyers finally agreed that their clients should both waive examination and the two men were held for the November grand jury. The amount of bail, $20,000 for Cummings and $5000 for Mead, which was previously fixed by Assistant District Attorney Curtis, was allowed to stand.

The two men were charged with the larceny of a note for $24,122.22, the property of the Franklin Savings bank. When first arrested it was understood that there were two counts against the men, each for $25,000 notes, but this was reduced to one count, and the amount which is named is the residue of a discounted $25,000 note.

Chief Inspector Dugan said that he could not possibly have his testimony ready for two weeks, as there were a number of matters which he wanted to investigate. He said that the men did not come to him until late Monday afternoon, and he had had no time to look into the case.

Neither man was able to furnish bonds.

RED CROSS STAMPS.

Club women throughout the country use the Red Cross Christmas Stamps generously knowing that each one purchased adds to the fund for helping tuberculosis patients. The stamps are all ready on sale thus early in the season. Last year the sales of these stamps amounted to about 30,000,000, so great was the response of the public and they were not put on sale until the latter part of November. Consequently it is probable that this year, in taking time by the forelock, the Red Cross may surpass its former success.

The principle of the new stamps is the same as last year. Their cost to the public is one cent apiece. No profit from their sale goes to anybody except sufferers from tuberculosis. The natural result is that every stamp bought by the public is so to speak, one bullet fired in the general war against tuberculosis ,an attack made under the generalship of the Red Cross.

The stamps will not carry a letter, but every letter is able to carry one of them.

The stamps are printed in red and green on a white background. They are about half as large again as an ordinary postage stamp. In the centre is a red cross. Above the cross, in green, are the words, "American Red Cross 1909." Sprigs of holly with berries are artistically interwoven. Beneath the cross are words, "Merry Christmas, Happy New Year." A square border of tiny red crosses surrounds the whole.

This year's design, it is understood, is to be permanent, simply changing the date each year. It is the result of competition of thousands of artists.

Some may remember that in 1862 the stamp plan was used as a means of raising funds for the relief of soldiers wounded in the civil war and for improving sanitary conditions. Other countries have used the plan with success.

The Red Cross first adopted it in Delaware in 1907. It probably resulted from the suggestion of Jacob Riis, who had realized the possibility of the stamp in Denmark. He said:

"Everyone who sees this stamp on a letter or a post card wants to know what it means. When the people want to know the fight is won. It is because they do not know a few amazingly simple facts that people die of tuberculosis."

CANALS ARE UTILIZED

All Heavy Freight Transported Over Them In Many Countries

Concord, N. H., Oct. 20.—United States Senator Gallinger has returned to his home in this city, following his European tour as a member of the national waterways commission. In speaking of the trip he said:

"While the report of the commission has not been prepared it may not be impolitic to state the differing conditions between this country and Europe.

"For instance, most of the canals of Europe were built before railroads were dreamed of and some of them have been in use for hundreds of years. In Germany, Austria, Belgium and France the government owns the railroads as well as the canals, and has absolute control over the transportation by both routes, giving all the heavy transportation of freight to the waterways.

"In a country like ours, where the railroads are owned by private corporations, no such division of tonnage would be possible."

RECORDS STAND FOR THEMSELVES

Cook's Polar Trip Has Nothing to Do With Mt. M'Kinley

Toledo, Oct. 20.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook will again lead an expedition in person to recover the records which he says he left at the summit of Mt. McKinley, the highest mountain in America. In an interview before leaving Toledo Cook declared his intention of clearing his veracity of the slur that has been cast upon it. He did not say when his expedition will start.

"Are you willing to stand or fall in your position in the North Pole controversy depending upon whether your records are found or not at the summit of Mt. McKinley?" he was asked.

"Why, no," he said. "I couldn't do that, even though I am certain the McKinley records will be found at the summit. But my Polar records must stand for themselves. They are absolute proof in themselves that I reached the Pole."

DOCTORS LESS SANGUINE

McCarren Has a Relapse and Is In a Precarious Condition

New York, Oct. 20.—Patrick H. McCarren, state senator and Democratic leader of Brooklyn, who was eliminated from the municipal campaign by a sudden attack of appendicitis which necessitated an immediate operation, is again in an extremely precarious condition.

He had rallied well until a relapse, caused by an almost sleepless night and an attack of hiccoughs which racks his weakened body and aggravates the condition of a fluttering heart.

It is evident that his physicians are less sanguine than at any time since he was stricken.

Butterick Company Adds Capital

New York, Oct. 20.—The stock of the Ridgeway company, publishers of Everybody's Magazine, will be taken over by the Butterick Publishing company, and the capital of the latter concern will be increased from $12,000,000 to $15,000,000 to allow the consolidation.

Taboo Tariff War by France

Washington, Oct. 20.—Government officials here are not disposed to regard the action of France in deciding to require the maximum duty on imports from the United States as an evidence of an impending tariff war.

Hatters Return to Work

Orange, N. J., Oct. 20.—After being out on a strike since Jan. 15, 1300 employes of E. V. Connett & Co.'s two hat factories here and at Newark went back to work. An agreement calls for a board of arbitration to settle all future disputes between the firm and its employes.

CANADA NOT WORRYING

Not Inclined to Believe The We Are "Arming" Vesels on Great Lakes

Ottawa, Oct. 20.—The report that the United States is arming vessels in the Great Lakes is not believed by the Dominion government. No intimation has reached Ottawa of any intention on the part of the United States to violate the agreement between the two countries, and it is not believed that any such action would be taken without consultation with Canada.

The terms of the treaty in 1817 are in brief that each country can place one vessel on Lake Champlain armed with one 18-pounder, one vessel on Lake Ontario, armed with one 18-pounder, and two vessels on the upper lakes, armed with one 18-pounder each. The agreement may be dissolved on six months' notice by either country.

Blacksmith Charged With Alienating Affections of Married Woman

Gardner, Mass., Oct. 20.—John R. Cossaboom, a chairworker employed in a local factory, has brought suit in the sum of $10,000 against Allan A. Harrington, a Leominster blacksmith, charging the latter with alienating the affections of Mrs. Cossaboom.

Mrs. Cossaboom is 35 years old. She recently received an inheritance of $20,000. Harrington is married, but is said to have separated from his wife five years ago.

AN UP-TO-DATE DRUGGIST

says it is surprising how many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old time-tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy, nothing equaling our grandmothers' "sage tea" has ever been discovered. Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer. Nowadays when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. This preparation is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt to Spend Long Time In Germany

Omaha, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt, daughter of William J. Bryan, announces that her two small children will be educated in Germany and not in American schools. While the children are attending school in Berlin Mrs. Leavitt will devote her time to voice culture. The Leavitts will sail on Dec. 1. In the meantime Mrs. Leavitt will continue lecturing in all parts of the country except in Nebraska.

MRS. RUTH BRYAN LEAVITT.

"You know about the prophet in his own country," she said, when asked why she had never lectured in this state. "I never had any intention of running for congress from Colorado, as has been represented," she continued. "That is a pure fabrication. I think every woman should vote whenever she has the right to do so."

GAINED WIDE FAME AS CRIMINOLOGIST

Lombroso Claimed That Many Noted Men Were Crazy

Rome, Oct. 20.—Professor Cesare Lombroso, one of the world's foremost criminologists and probably the foremost psychologist of Europe, died at Turin.

Lombroso had long been the sponsor for various systems of scientific handling of criminals. The main argument of his teachings was that crime was a disease.

Lombroso was born in Venice in 1836, and in his early manhood was a military surgeon. He created a world-wide sensation when in a lecture delivered in Turin in 1901 he attributed lunacy to the czar, the kaiser, King Edward, the sultan of Turkey, Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria, Archduke Otto, the heir to the Austrian throne; King Alfonso of Spain, Napoleon III, Emile Ollivier, Joseph Chamberlain, Cecil Rhodes, Rudyard Kipling and Felix Faure.

Despite his profound studies on the morbid mental attitudes of humanity, Lombroso was in practical every day affairs a child. His ignorance in money matters was colossal.

TAFT IS "JUST LOAFING"

Can Enjoy Feeds For a Few Days Without Having to Speak For Them

Gregory, Tex., Oct. 20.—President Taft began his three days of doing as he pleased on his brother's ranch by playing 18 holes of golf in the morning and by "just loafing" through the afternoon and evening.

Ranch hands killed two wildcats, two wild boars and a raccoon, which they presented to the president. Last night a 'possum which was caught in a church at Aransas Pass was given to the president.

Mr. Taft was as happy as a boy out of school. The idea of eating a dinner without having to speak for it and of going the livelong day without having to bow and shake hands and smile appealed to him strongly.

He declared that he wished that his dolce far niente vacation could last a week and three days instead of just the latter period.

DEATH OF MISS ST. JEAN

Authorities Feel Certain That It Occurred In Shop of "Professor" Hill at Fall River, Following an Unsuccessful Operation, the Body Subsequently Being Dismembered—Girl Died After Administration of a Drug

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 20.—Police Inspector Medley, who is at work on the Tiverton murder case, made the following announcement:

"We have discovered blood-stained furniture and other articles, which establishes the fact in our minds beyond a reasonable doubt that an operation upon Miss Amelia St. Jean of Woonsocket, R. I., was performed, unsuccessfully, in the office of Professor Frank Hill on Bedford street a week ago last Friday afternoon, and that she died there and the body was subsequently dismembered in that shop."

When Medley was questioned further regarding his statements he said:

"Our evidence is absolutely positive that the St. Jean girl came to the office of 'Professor' Hill on Bedford street, shortly after she had eaten her dinner Friday afternoon. The examination of the stomach of the body of the girl found at Tiverton shows that the food was still in the process of digestion. The operation was evidently unsuccessful, a drug was used in hope of restoring life, and the girl passed into a faint.

"Not being a skilled physician, 'Professor' Hill, in my mind, believed that she was dead and went about disposing of the body. He dismembered its parts, packed the torso in the box found Sunday afternoon, and the remainder of the body in the telescope bag. In the evening he drove out into the country and after passing Bliss' Four Corners, he started to distribute the dismembered parts of the girl's body along the lonely country roads."

Just how the girl was killed has not as yet been determined. Medical Examiner Stimson declared that illegal treatment had not caused death.

The report of Professor William F. Whitney of the Harvard medical school, received yesterday afternoon, declares that the girl died after a drug had been administered following an unsuccessful operation. Whitney, it is said, declares that after examining the stomach of the dead girl he is convinced that she died shortly after partaking of a meal. It is the theory of the police, based on the Whitney report, that after the unsuccessful operation a drug was administered to restore consciousness after a period of insensibility, and that the girl died after the administration of this drug.

There were no bruises on the body with the exception of one arm that looked as if she had been held by a strong hand when possibly she was making a hard but ineffectual fight for her life.

SAYS HE WAS CHOKED

Aged Pauper Brings Charges Against Head of Poor Farm

Wakefield, Mass., Oct. 20.—Alleging that he was brutally seized by the throat and partially choked by Superintendent Gault of the local poor farm, William O'Neil, 74, an inmate of the institution, made a complaint at the Malden district court. Subsequently a summons was served on Gault.

O'Neil avers that he asked Gault's permission to visit a physician who resided about a mile and a half from the poor farm. Gault, he avers, refused to grant him the permission and to emphasize his refusal, roughly shook him by the arms.

When he remonstrated over this treatment, O'Neil further alleges that Gault then grabbed him by the throat and proceeded to choke him.

Superintendent Gault claims that he merely shook O'Neil because the latter acted mutinously.

CARRIAGE MEN HARD HIT

Automobiles May Oblige Them to Retire From Present Business

Washington, Oct. 20.—Automobiles have displaced carriages to such an extent that carriage builders either will be obliged to retire from business or devote their attention to the construction of automobile bodies.

In effect, this was the statement made by Maurice Connolly, president of the Carriage Builders' National association of the United States, at the thirty-seventh annual meeting in this city.

Athens, Oct. 20.—That the military league meditates further designs compelling the king to abdicate is a rumor that has been current for some time past.

WHY REELECT DRAPER?

Governor Draper has given to this State an able business administration. He has sifted every problem which has been brought to his attention in good conscience and with American good sense. His record as chief executive marks a straight line of consistent action, always progressive and always sane. His appointments have been excellent and his devotion to the Commonwealth unquestioned. His political opponents respect and admire him for his courage, even if they have not at all times agreed with his convictions. The thinking voters will be with Eben F. Draper this year, as last and to the glory of the Commonwealth, they are still in the majority.

The principles he represents were born in the hour that the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. Crusade after crusade has swept over the Commonwealth, but those principles still remain embodied and perpetuated by the same patriotism, the same progressive spirit and the same judgment that has characterized the administration of Governor Draper. He has set his standard high and has never deviated from the rule of right. He has never subordinated the interests of the State to the interests of party, and he has placed the demands of the people high above that of the politicians. He is the true representative of a Commonwealth where people are neither too much afraid of the dollar nor too eager for experiment, where they maintain the school but do not lose sight of the factory, where they are not averse to wealth but are not forgetful of men.—Haverhill Gazette.

DAUGHTERS AT QUINCY.

State Society Daughters of Revolution Spend Day In Quincy.

The attendance Tuesday at the annual pilgrimage of the state society Daughters of Revolution to Quincy on the anniversary of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis to Gen. Washington, brought out a much larger number of ladies than was anticipated. A few of the daughters arrived during the morning but it was not until 1 o'clock that the larger party arrived. The first place visited was the Dorothy Q house, where over one hundred registered. The affair here was entirely informal and after inspecting the various rooms in the house, a lunch was served in the old kitchen. The kitchen looked unusually attractive for this occasion and the ladies were charmed with the many historic articles with which the house is furnished.

In the afternoon the daughters visited the birthplace of John Adams, where they were entertained by Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution, from half past three until five o'clock. Previous to the at home to the visiting Daughters a reception was tendered by the Chapter to Mrs. Flora Adams Darling, founder of the society. In the receiving party were Mrs. Darling, Mrs. Francis F. Brewer, Vice Regent of Adams chapter, and Mrs. Frank Granger, former state regent.

The reception was of rather an informal nature and during its progress light refreshments and tea was served by Mrs. E. Granville Pratt, Mrs. Osborne Rogers, Mrs. George T. Magee, Mrs. William Porter and Mrs. E. A. Wilde.

Mrs. Darling was introduced and spoke briefly in regard to the room which she is to furnish at the old house. Brief remarks were also made by the Vice Regent, Mrs. Brewer and Mrs. Granger.

The majority of those present Tuesday came from Boston and the immediate vicinity. There were, however, several from distant states. These included Mrs. Flora Adams Darling of Washington, Mrs. J. C. Thompson of Seattle and Mrs. May Caroline Hathaway of Spokane.

TO USE BAD ROADS.

Two Days' Reliability Run of Automobile Association.

The new rules of the American Automobile Association will govern the two days' reliability run under the auspices of the Bay State Automobile Association which starts Thursday.

This will be the first time that the new rules will be used by a motoring organization. The committee will establish checking stations at intervals of about 25 miles. One object of these checking stations is to avoid speeding. In laying out the time schedules the committee will have the legal speed limit in mind, and no attempt will be made to place a premium on fast driving. The idea is to show the reliability and endurance of a stock car over a route such as might be taken by an ordinary machine in the hands of a private owner.

It is reported that in laying out the route for the runs the association has tried to avoid good roads and have selected streets that are not advantageous for automobiles to use. It is for this reason perhaps that the first day's run takes the party through the streets of Quincy, whose streets are admitted to be in bad condition. It is said that there will be several hundred machines that will participate in the run.

The route for the first day is one of 320 miles and is from Boston to Quincy, to Holbrook, Bridgewater, New Bedford, Fall River, Taunton, Providence, Pawtucket, Woonsocket, Worcester, Fitchburg, Acton, Concord, Lexington to Boston.

On the second day a run of 215 miles is mapped out, taking the cars from Boston to Lowell, to Nashua, Manchester, Concord, Rochester, Dover, Portsmouth, Newburyport, Beverly, Salem and Lynn to Boston.

OPENING SOCIAL.

The Wollaston Young People's social society opened its second season in the Wollaston Unitarian vestry on Tuesday evening. During the business meeting which preceded the entertainment, a constitution and bylaws, drawn up by a committee with Dr. Bowles as chairman, were read and accepted.

The evening's entertainment consisted in a magazine wedding. For this couples were chosen by lot and each was given a magazine from the advertisements to clip the various events of a wedding, such as the bride, groom, honeymoon, mother-in-law, etc. At the close of the evening the results were passed around, many clever combinations being effected.

The committee in charge of the entertainment was composed of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Boynton, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Severance, Mrs. Gorham Nickerson and Mrs. E. Tyler Brigham.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

BE GENEROUS.

To the Editor:

In answer to the writer in the Oct. 16th Ledger in regard to the "soliciting nuisance" the person whom someone has been fortunate enough to succeed in prevailing upon to give a few cents to some worthy cause or to some church. Probably not eight out of every ten people could tell with what church the greatest public spirited man that our city has ever known, was affiliated, namely Henry H. Faxon. He gave to all churches and to all worthy causes without complaint and his heart grew big by giving.

The support of the churches in our loved United States is a patriotic duty for this is the land of churches. The very foundation our country was laid on, was that of not the church but the churches as they represented freedom in religion.

The statement that it is a shame to have to give to a church which doesn't benefit the giver is hardly worth answering for every land holder, yea, every citizen is benefited by every church in the community whether he ever enters that church or not. It is a statement proved beyond argument that rights ,property, and life are safer in the same proportion with the growth of the churches. There is no one who can say "I have no interest in that particular church." This spirit would remind one of the familiar prayer:—

"Lord bless John and his wife,
Me and my wife,
We four and no more."

This in an age of division of labor in spiritual matters as well as temporal. Shall we, then, because the church we belong to is not fitted to do a certain part of the work of the kingdom, withhold our support from the church and thus crippling the work, for a chain is as weak as its weakest link? Every broad minded person must answer "no."

Are we less generous than the Jew whom we typify as the least generous of all people? The Jew gives at least his tenth to the service of the Lord. No, finally, the very fact that a man is ashamed to say no when he is approached for a contribution of this kind, is proof that in his heart he recognizes his duty to give.

John Clifford was fined $10, John Coughlin $2, and Michael W. Barry was sentenced to two months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy. The case against Barry was continued on probation until December.

Thomas W. Nagle was fined $10 for larceny at Quincy.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

SHAKESPEARE CLUB.

On Thursday afternoon of this week the first meeting of the Atlantic Shakespeare Society, will be held at Mrs. Charles Coe's on Billings street. On this occasion Mrs. Cummings of Clive street will enter upon her duties as president, the second president of the society since its formation some years ago.

The club is to take up the study this year of Othello, Henry VIII and As You Like It, respectively.

ATLANTIC STUDY CLUB.

The members of the Atlantic Study club are anticipating a most interesting program for their winter's work on Spain. A brief study of the geography and history of Spain as a whole will be taken up this to be followed by a "tour" of the principal cities and towns each to be studied in detail as to its history, architecture ,art, etc. From time to time special papers bearing directly on the main subject will be prepared by different members. The remainder of the year's work will be devoted to Spanish art and artists and Spanish literature.

The club plans each year to present to the Quincy school some fine picture. Last spring an excellent copy of Reynolds "Age of Innocence "was given to the third grade.

LANTERN COST $10.

It Belonged to the City and Nagel Stole It.

It cost Thomas W. Nagle just $10 to help himself to a lantern that did not belong to him. He could have purchased one just like it in any hardware store for a dollar, but he thought to get it cheaper.

This one belonged to the city and was being used to mark a danger spot on Hancock street where some repair work was being done. Nagel unfortunately, for him, got caught, and in court this morning he was assessed the sum of $10. The next time he wants a lantern he will buy it at the store.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

East Norfolk Sunday School Association Meeting in Quincy.

The annual convention of the East Norfolk district Massachusetts Sunday School Association is being held in Quincy today at the Bethany Congregational church. The convention opened at 12.15 this noon and was for pastors and superintendents only.

The afternoon session opened at 2 o'clock with Rev. Alfred Ray Atwood, the president, presiding. The opening service of welcome was by Dr. Hardy, the pastor of the church who extended the welcome of the city to the delegates. The afternoon program included an address "Personal Sunday School Evangelism" by W. F. Mallalieu, L. L. D., which was followed by an address by Miss Bessie Roper Conant on "Opportunity and Organization."

The balance of the program included reports of the secretary and treasurer, offertory and appointment of committees. Department sessions were held at 4.15 at which the following departments were taken up. Elementary Grades, by Mrs. L. E. Ware; advanced grades, by Hamilton S. Conant; home department, by Miss Louise C. Tower and Northfield exhibit by Miss Sarah Holbrook.

Supper will be served at 6 o'clock to be followed by a social hour in charge of Rev. Edward Evans. The evening session will open at 7.15 with a gospel praise service led by Thomas B. Pollard with Madam Beale Morey as organist, an address by Rev. Clarence A. Vincent, D. D., on "The Idealism of Faith" offertory and address by Rev. O. P. Gifford, D. D., on "Winning Souls."

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIETY.

A series of Tuesday evening rehearsals at Colonial Hall was begun this week by the Choral Society under Conductor Arthur S. Wonson, the singers taking up the study of Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah." There was a large attendance and the way this young society began singing those grand choruses was enough to warm the heart of any music lover. Conductor Wonson was delighted with the spirit and progress of the rehearsal and predicted a splendid season's work. It is already more than probable that the Quincy Choral Society, as it now stands, is going to make an honored name for itself among musical organizations but there is plenty of material in this vicinity for a chorus twice as large and it should not be long before many more singers avail themselves of this splendid opportunity to study the best music as a moderate cost and under first class instruction.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

MEETING OF MEN'S CLUB

Interesting Debate on Disarmament of Nations

The Men's Club of Christ Church held their scheduled debate Wednesday evening in the chapel and there was a good number present. The subject which was up for discussion was a resolve that the United State should take the initiative in the disarmament of the nations. There were two principals on each side, followed by remarks from the rector, Mr. Armstrong, and some of the members, after which John D. Mackay, Esq., who was invited to discuss the general features of the debate, spoke at some length.

N. M. Spencer, who opened the discussion, took the affirmative side and spoke for ten minutes. He was followed by Merton A. Turner for the negative. Then came A. McLeod for the affirmative, followed by Henry W. French who argued in the negative and illustrated his point in good style with a humorous story. Mr. Armstrong spoke briefly and declared that there was protection in the principle of non-resistance and he hoped for a general disarmament. Walter E. Burke favored disarmament, but set forth reasons why this country should not lead in that direction. William Walker spoke to the same effect.

Lawyer Mackay was then called on and spoke for about fifteen minutes. After urging upon the members the value of debate as a mental exercise and advising them to cultivate the habit, he reviewed the arguments pro and con and argued in favor of the negative. He said that armies and navies were costly burdens and hoped for a curtailment of their operations, but thought the nations whose navies were a menace to peace should first disarm and the United States last, as this country had shown on many occasions that its sense of justice in world affairs was highly developed. Back of all decrees, decisions and injunctions that are respected was the power to enforce them and it was necessary for the present and for a long time in the future for the United States to have a strong navy to enforce its rights in all parts of the world. He heartily believed in Roosevelt's big stick policy being continued until other nations acquired the same fine sense of justice as our own. A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Mackay on motion of Mr. Turner. The judges decided the arguments in favor of the negative and the principals in favor of the affirmative.

Matters of business were disposed of and plans discussed for giving an entertainment at the Sailor's Haven, Charlestown on November 4. Light refreshments were served.

BONITA DELIVERED.

The submarine boat Bonita was delivered at the Charlestown navy yard this afternoon by the Fore River shipbuilding company, making five of the little ships now at the local yard. The Narwhal, Stingray, Tarpon and Grayling were delivered in the past fortnight. The Snapper will not be delivered for several weeks, it is said, and it is also understood that the program regarding the delivery of the Salmon has been changed, and that she will be turned over at some other naval station, probably at Newport.

MAYOR SHEA TO RUN AGAIN

Informs Press He Will Be Candidate for Re-election

While it has been generally understood that Mayor Shea would be the Democratic candidate for Mayor again this year it was not until this morning that he made known his intentions as such to the press. When seen at his office at City Hall this morning and asked point blank by the newspaper men if he was to be a candidate for Mayor again this year, he blushingly said that he was.

Mayor Shea was first elected to the office of Mayor at the election of 1907, the vote for the Mayoralty candidates being as follows:

William T. Shea, 2620.
Walter E. Piper, 2088.
Charles W. Hanscom, 63.

He was again the candidate at the election of 1908, receiving the largest majority ever given a Mayor in this city. His opponent was Ex-Councilman Eugene R. Stone. The vote for Mayor last year was:

William T. Shea, 3076
Eugene R. Stone, 1960.

Who his opponent will be this year is still a matter of doubt, although it is said that the Republicans have several available candidates. Among those mentioned are Ex-Mayor John O. Hall, who will heed the call if his party desire him, and Ex-Councilman Walter F. Nichols, who could probably be induced to be a candidate.

WILL NOT GIVE UP.

Citizens' Association Decide to Continue Organization.

An important meeting of the Citizens' Association was held Wednesday evening to discuss the matter of whether the association should continue or whether it should cease to exist any longer. While the attendance was not large, the sentiment was decidedly in favor of continuing the organization. It was thought advisable by the speakers that meetings should not be held as frequently as called for by the present bylaws. After some further discussion the President was empowered to appoint a special committee to revise the constitution and bylaws and report at a future meeting.

GRANITE WHIST CLUB.

There was a good attendance Wednesday evening at the whist tournament under the auspices of the Granite City Club.

The usual twenty-five hands were played after which a lunch was served. H. A. Jones scored the highest per cent 79 plus and Ralph P. Currier, second with 71 plus per cent.

RECEPTION TO SUPT. BARBOUR.

The Quincy Women's club under the auspices of the Education committee of the club is to give a reception at the club house on Wednesday evening, October 27th, to Mr. Barbour, the new Superintendent of Schools. The aim of the Education committee is to bring the superintendent and the parents of Quincy into close touch and afford an opportunity for sociability. It is desired that the members of the club invite their husbands as guests for the evening, as the committee would like the fathers, as well as the mothers, to meet the superintendent. The unmarried members of the club may invite, as their guests, some men of their families. The uncles and brothers usually have some school child's interest and welfare at heart. The teachers of Quincy are also to be invited to this reception.

The affair promises to be one of great enjoyment. The club house is spotlessly clean and fresh and with the help of autumnal decorations and good music a delightful evening should be passed.

Mr. and Mrs. Barbour will be assisted in receiving by the chairman of the school committee and wife; the club president, and the chairman of the Education committee.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

There will be a school meeting soon to arouse some interest among the students in regard to athletics in the school. Mr. Cleveland will address the students as will also Ross Bates. The teams at the school are the most poorly supported of any about Boston. There is no money and even the thing which costs the students nothing is lacking, enthusiasm, this any one can give without much trouble and if the undergraduates would turn out to the games in a body and get some cheering going when the team is in a tight hole they would be helping a whole lot. Instead however they hang around the school and when the team wins it's, "How did you do it, some mistake;" and if they lose it's, "Oh well I told you so, never had a decent team at high and never will;" forgetting the many great teams that the school has turned out in the past despite the same adverse conditions.

Miss Mabel L. Anderson returned to school this week as a post graduate.

Quite a number went over with the team the last two out of town games but unfortunately the majority instead of being students of the schools were past members who although working in Boston showed more interest in the team than those in the school at present.

Reporters were seen at the game in Everett this week representing the Ledger and the authorities at the school are glad that at last proper recognition of the sports at the school are being taken by the home papers. All the other cities send men away with the teams to give a detailed account of the game to those who are unable to attend.

The third and fourth year pupils taking a course of instruction in German, at the High school, have formed a German club. They will rehearse German songs and recitations and a small German play to be given among themselves during the coming year. Miss L. Birge the well known and popular German teacher is at the head of the club and its success is assured.

The cover design for the Golden Rod has been chosen and the business manager, Roy Sidelinger is rushing the business end of the magazine right along so that the first edition will appear about Thanksgiving time. There will be a large picture of the football squad taking up one whole page of the issue and this fact alone makes the paper well worth purchasing.

Tommy Veal and Dick Smith the two recently appointed Assistant Managers are busy getting their games for the coming basket ball and base ball season, and already have several games on their schedules so that there will not be the trouble there was about the football schedule this year where they had to get games from week to week as best they could, because the arranging of the schedule was left too long.

Miss Irene Bradbury is teaching school this year at East Freetown, Mass., and getting along finely with her work.

Demi Gourlie, Q. H. S. '08, was around the school last week renewing old acquaintances.

Walter Lakin who returned to school last week has gone out for the football team and he will no doubt strengthen it a great deal as he played tackle last year.

Miss Marjorie Kendall of Atlantic, Q. H. S. '09, who is a student at Wellsley College this year spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents.

Miss Nana Fisher who graduated in the class of 1908 is teaching school in Concord, N. H.

William Coleman a graduate of Adams Academy and who attended Quincy High school last year is a student at the Union College in New York state. He is a promising candidate for the position of Varsity quarter.

No game of football has been arranged as yet for next Saturday to replace Bridgewater Normal who cancelled this week, but every effort is being made to get one with some team for Saturday afternoon.

A number of the teachers at the school instead of going home to lunch when they have extra work to attend to after school are furnished a substantial lunch at the lunch counter in the basement by Miss Ames the domestic science teacher.

The pupils at the school are congratulating Mr. Cleveland on his recent victory last Saturday over Charles Kendall a pupil at the school, when he secured the best net score of the season and won the sterling silver pitcher offered by Dr. W. G. Kendall.

Billy Manning who was taken from the Everett game because of injuries while still slightly lame will be in good condition for a game Saturday should there be one.

The High school play which is to be given two weeks from tomorrow, Friday, is progressing in fine shape. There are rehearsals every day under the direction of Miss Mary Brown, instructor in English at the high school, and every minute of the short time left will be made use of. This play was given by the seniors of the school one year and it was universally liked and there is little doubt but what this year the younger scholars will make it prove just as interesting and enjoyable. The spirit with which those connected with the play have taken hold and done their part in this endeavor to raise some money for the Athletic side of the school speaks well for them and shows that school spirit is not altogether dead in the school. Miss Brown has been unusually fortunate in the selection for the different members of the cast and the interpretation of their parts by some of the amateurs actors and actresses is really excellent. The tickets will in all probability be put on sale early next week and in all parts of the city so that all may obtain them who wish to witness a live little play and at the same time help along the high school athletic fund.

Waltham has gone wild over the game of football. The blood game of the season will be played Saturday between Waltham and Somerville and several thousand Watch City residents will take it in.

The senior class of the Stetson High school of Randolph is to conduct a series of concerts and socials the coming winter to raise funds for the purchase of ornaments for the assembly hall of the school.

The senior class of the Brockton High school have taken steps to revive the school publication Brocktonia, that was dropped on account of expense. A committee has also been appointed to take steps to cancel the debt of the paper.

NEW PRESIDENT.

Dr. J. M. Watson of Braintree President of Sunday School Asso.

The sessions of the annual convention of the East Norfolk Sunday School Association at the Bethany church Wednesday afternoon and evening were very largely attended. The program was carried out practically as given in Wednesday's Ledger The evening session was the largest attended. This session opened with a praise service led by Thomas B. FREEMAN DECLINES

Appreciates Honor of Being Candidate for Mayor

A special meeting of the Republican City Committee was held at headquarters, in the Adams building Wednesday evening. The meeting was called to hear the letter read, that the President William M. Chase, had received from Richard R. Freeman on the matter of becoming the party candidate for Mayor at the coming city election.

At a meeting of the committee held last week Thursday a special committee was appointed to wait upon Mr. Freeman and urge him to become the party candidate for Mayor. That such action had been taken was not made known until published in the Ledger. Mr. Freeman promised to consider the matter and send his answer. This he did early in the week and the meeting Wednesday evening was to hear it read.

Just what was said in the letter is not known for after it was read the committee voted not to give it out to the press. This much however is known, that Mr. Freeman while thanking the committee and appreciating the honor conferred upon him in asking him to become the party candidate he could not see his way clear at the present time to accept.

Following the reading of the letter there was a general discussion on party matters and the selection of a candidate for Mayor. After some discussion the matter of selecting a candidate was taken out of the hands of the special committee and put in charge of the Executive committee.

There is much activity in Democratic ranks this fall as indicated by the big parade in Boston tonight when over 2000 will carry torches.

With 48,312 names dropped this year from the pension rolls of the government it would seem as though there could not be a veteran left. It is an army in itself.

Sub-stations and branches of the Boston postal district are receiving their annual fall inspection by Postmaster Mansfield and as there are same sixty places to visit it will take a few weeks to complete the rounds. Quincy has one of the best equipped offices in the district.

Mrs. Cora W. Carpenter, M. D., who is practicing her profession in Persia, writes from Tabriz to her father, John A. White, a resident of Spokane, that she has been advised of her assignment to Constantinople, where she will work independently in the harems, making her the first white woman physician to practice there. She says that a Mohammedan woman will die before placing herself in the hands of a man physician, adding that hundreds are dying every year. Mrs. Carpenter writes also that "the need of a woman physician is urgent at either place, Tabriz and Constantinople," adding: "One of the men at Tabriz who can speak a little English said, 'Entire city welcomes you,' which makes it rather pathetic to leave."

Mayor Kent of Brockton does not agree with the critics of the no-license system when they assert that no-license can operate successfully only in rural or semirural communities, and cites the experience of Brockton as a notable example of a city of over 55,000 that has found the no-license policy profitable in every direction. "For 20 years the open saloon has been abolished by the voters of this city," Mayor Kent says. "During one year there was a lapse. The city went back to the license system. That year may be surveyed dispassionately now and accurate comparisons made. The municipal treasury was reduced to a far greater extent than it profited, owing to increased expenditures for police, added demands upon the poor department and other expenses. "Every class of business men in Brockton strongly favor no-license, and all now agree, because of purely material reasons and aside from all sentiment, that a city is better under no-license."

In St. Paul the city council has passed an ordinance requiring the use of anthracite or equally smokeless fuel for switch engines operated within the city limits.

A mighty good move and an idea that Quincy might well adopt.

Smoke is dirt.

Smoke is destructive.

Smoke is waste.

The housewife, the business man and the railroad manager may find in these three statements their respective reasons for doing away with smoke.

A health officer in one of our large cities followed a trail of smoke from a locomotive to see how far it extended. He went more than two miles under the blanket of smoke before he came to the edge.

Quincy is growing and more people than formerly now live in arrears affected by engine and factory smoke. No railroad should deliberately choose to be a bad neighbor to them.

Eventually, as in other cities Quincy will have electric switch engines. With the railroad traversing the city as they do, the time should not be very far away. Then we shall be relieved of the smoke and the noise, too.

LOWELL INSTITUTE LECTURES.

Dr. William Everett of this city began on Monday a course of lectures on English orators in the Lowell Institute course in Boston. The lectures will be the same which were to have been given two years ago on the Clark Foundation at Trinity college, Cambridge. They are partly historical and partly critical, but an important feature will be the reading of selected passages from the speeches of the orators themselves. Dr. Everett was seventy years old Oct. 10. His first course before the Institute was given in the winter of 1864; and this will be his seventh course. One of the lectures of his first course, on the University of Cambridge, was listened to by the venerable Dr. James Jackson, born in 1777.

SOCIAL NURSING.

Miss Upjohn superintendent of nurses at the consumptives hospital, Boston, at the conference of charities in Boston Tuesday evening said in part: "The position of the nurse in social service is recognized as one of public usefulness and economy; primarily she is a link between the centres of organized social groups and the home, and her efficiency is always in proportion to her intelligent co-operation with the resources of the community and State. Through social nursing the extension of the hospital into the home has become safe and assured of good results.

The home care of chronic and convalescent at once develops a double service to the public, first by giving the hospital an opportunity to care for a greater number of acute diseases, which, left in the home, must die; and secondly, by restoring to the home those responsibilities which are so rightfully family ones ,and so necessary to the function of family service. While the school is instructing and fitting the child for better standards of life, the nurse is busy in the home creating new wants and standards for the parents and by practical demonstration making their application possible—thus stimulating the home to share the interest of the school.

The importance of this practical demonstration is especially valuable in the homes of the foreign-born. Take the case of a child excluded from school because of pediculi. The child is told he cannot come to school for some days, and he is given a printed card stating the reasons for his exclusion and instructions as to the treatment needed. Many times this card is lost before the child reaches home, more often it is unread because the parents are unable to read English, and again it seems quite unimportant to a mother who has either failed to recognize the condition or accepted it as indicative of a healthy scalp. To have the nurse follow the child into the home, where she actually gives the treatment before the eyes of the mother, makes the object lesson so interesting and important that the mother seldom fails to be won over, and in turn takes pride in doing the "job" herself."

CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES.

The following address on "The Sick in Small Towns," by Richards M. Bradley, of Brookline was delivered at Ford hall, Wednesday afternoon at a conference of the Massachusetts State charities.

Mr. R. M. Bradley said in part: "In meeting the problem of sickness there is a call not only for what the doctor and the nurse are especially fitted to do, but also for what all other people are best fitted to do. It is not only a medical problem, but an all around human problem that must be met. There is a bad gap in our work, caused by the mistaken idea that we can buy our Christian charity business intelligence, social work, and everything else connected with sickness from the doctors and the nurses. I know little about microbes except that they seem to work together in sickness better than men. What the men need is to get together and do business instead of acting against the enemy as an unorganized mob. Under our present ways of not standing together and organizing the sickness business, the whole family machine goes to smash, and the family has to run for luck to get out of its trouble.

"Suppose people got together with their neighbors, and put business organizations into the production of help in sickness, organizing an association for mutual neighborly aid. They would establish an office that would know everybody in the neighborhood that needed any kind of aid in sickness; also they knew every kind of person that could do something in the way of aid. The whole force to fight sickness would be employed in such a way that each member of it is used to get the fullest benefit out of his or her service. Skill would be used where skill is needed, and labor where labor is needed. There would be an opportunity all through for social service and neighborly help, but business principles would be applied to saving life and there would be an organized army to fight the enemy instead of an unorganized mob.

JURY FAVORS MRS. BATONYI

Decides That Beautiful Woman Is Entitled to Divorce

DECREE NOT YET GRANTED

Verdict In Case Which Has Been Before Courts For Two Years Must First Be Confirmed by Judge—Austrian Husband Has Suits Aggregating $1,500,000 Pending For Alleged Alienation of Affections

New York, Oct. 21.—The jury before which Mrs. Frances Work Burke-Roche Batonyi brought suit for divorce from Aurel Batonyi, the Austrian horseman, returned a verdict in favor of Mrs. Batonyi. The verdict will have to be confirmed by a judge before a decree will be granted.

The verdict closed two years of charge and counter-charge between the beautiful daughter of Frank Work, the New York millionaire, and Batonyi, the Austrian horseman, who has associated with wealthy horse fanciers since he came to this country in 1899.

Mrs. Batonyi sued for divorce on statutory grounds, first alleging at least ten instances of unfaithfulness. At the trial, however, she withdrew her other charges, and tried to prove only two, which involved her husband with two New York women.

It was during a coaching trip on the box of the public coach Good Times that Batonyi met Mrs. Burke-Roche, then divorced from her first husband, an English public man of some note. A brief courtship ended in August, 1905, in their marriage.

MRS. BATONYI

A year later the news was broken to Frank Work. The aged millionaire flew into a passion, it is said, and, Batonyi alleges, threatened that unless his daughter began steps at once to free herself from the horseman he would disinherit her. Soon afterwards the action for divorce was begun by Mrs. Batonyi.

The husband retaliated by bringing a counter suit in which he named eleven corespondents. He also sued his wife's father, her sister and brother-in-law, her cousin and Work's confidential secretary, claiming damages aggregating $1,500,000 for the alienation of his wife's affections. These actions are still pending.

"KNOCK HIS BLOCK OFF"

What Jeffries Will Do to Johnson, According to Sam Berger

New York, Oct. 21.—James Jeffries is expected to arrive here on the Lusitania today. For nearly three months he has been in Europe, but he has not allowed pugilism to escape his mind. Sam Berger, Jeff's manager, arrived in town Wednesday and gave out a statement to the effect that Jeffries would surely fight and would also "knock Johnson's block off."

Berger declared that as soon as the boilermaker stepped down the Lusitania's gang plank he would convince everybody that he intended to take Johnson on at the earliest possible moment.

Boston, Oct. 21.—The city of Springfield was enjoined from selling $400,000 additional bonds for the building of municipal structures, by Judge Morton in the supreme court yesterday afternoon, on the ground of alleged extravagance.

The hearing was given at the suggestion of Mosley Holcomb of Springfield, who claims that the city does not need any new buildings.

MODERN HAIR DRESSING
has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

DOCTRINE OF JOE CANNON

Speaker Declares That He Is Not Afraid to Preach It

HE IS GOING AFTER SCALPS

Cummins Pointed Out as One of Chief Offenders Among Twenty Congressmen and Seven Senators Who Voted Against the Payne-Aldrich Bill—Iowa Republican Senator Is Accused of Joining Hands With Bryan

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house of representatives, is after the scalps of the congressional "insurgents."

"Twenty members of the house and seven senators voted against the Republican tariff bill," said Cannon. "They are warring against the Republican majority in congress and against the Republican president who signed the bill.

"Either they are Republicans, or we are. If they are Republicans, I am not. If I am a Republican, they are not. That is my doctrine, and I am not afraid to preach it."

Any representative assemblage that wants plain talk from the speaker of the house and can furnish an audience worth while can get a speech. From now on the output of argument and attack will not be confined to the insurgents. Cannon insists on his say. Explaining his Elgin speech, Cannon said he did not charge that Senator Cummins of Iowa had entered into a political compact with W. J. Bryan and would openly support the Democratic ticket.

"I said it was an open secret in Iowa that Cummins would oppose every member of congress who supported the Republican tariff bill," said the speaker. "Mr. Bryan has taken the same stand.

"Mr. Bryan does not have any hope of obtaining a revision of the tariff in the next congress. He wants to get a Democratic house which will pass a bill which the Republican senate will turn down, and thus furnish him with an issue for 1912.

"Mr. Cummins, in opposing Republican congressmen who voted with their party, is joining hands with Mr. Bryan. The country does not want the tariff question torn up again in the next session. The cry has been for a quick settlement, so that business can adjust itself and settle down. Now, what would be the effect of keeping the fight alive for the next three years?"

Mr. Cannon gave hearty endorsement to President Taft's tour through the country. He said that in so far as he had learned the president's tour was successful. He announced himself in favor of a president's getting around and seeing the people.

"You can't put this country in a pint cup any longer," said he. "We are 90,000,000 strong and furnish one-third of the products of the civilized world, more than England, Germany and France put together. The president is benefited by traveling about and seeing things. Kindergarten instruction is great, not only for children, but for men."

$3.75 Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker and a complete assortment of MOTHER'S CEREALS - all for $2.84

The Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker actually cooks without fuel. It solves the servant problem, the fuel problem and the delayed dinner problem. It saves 80% of your present coal or gas bills, and 90% of your present kitchen worries. When you own a Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker, you simply place your oatmeal (or anything else that you want to prepare) on the stove, bring it to a boiling point, remove, place in Fireless Cooker, put the pad in position, tug the draw-string, and go to bed. While you're sleeping, the food will keep cooking itself. Nothing can boil over or burn or spoil. During the day you can start soup or joints or vegetables, place them in the Cooker, visit your neighbor, go to the matinee, or shop, without any thought of a hot, stuffy kitchen range.

Now, there is only one way that you can get a Mother's Oats Fireless Cooker, unless you want to go to a store and pay $3.75 for it, and that is by being a user of Mother's Cereals, the best cereals, prepared in the largest mills, and sold everywhere by the best dealers in every town. In every package we place a coupon, and when you have 125 coupons we'll send you the $3.75 Fireless Cooker for nothing. If you want a Fireless Cooker in a hurry, you can either buy ten packages of MOTHER'S OATS or any other Mother's Cereals, and get the Cooker immediately by paying $1.15 in cash or upon the following basis:

50 coupons and $ .75 cash
35 coupons and .90 cash
25 coupons and 1.00 cash
15 coupons and 1.10 cash
10 coupons and 1.15 cash

But the best way of all is to go to your grocer and ask him to supply you with which contains a complete assortment of different delicious cereals for every palate and for every meal. Not only is it an advantage to buy your staple cereals in sufficient quantity at attractive prices (just as it's cheaper to buy flour by the barrel or butter by the crock) but in every Mother's Kit there is in addition to the saving of quite a considerable sum of money, a special Fireless Cooker Certificate, equal to eighteen coupons, which, when added to the coupons from the packages in the kit, enables you to secure a Cooker by merely adding 89 cents. A Mother's Kit consists of eighteen assorted packages of Mothers Cereals, packed in sanitary sealed packages, in which they are guaranteed to keep in perfect condition indefinitely.

8 packages of Mother's Oats, standard size
2 packages of Mother's Yellow Corn Meal
1 package of Mother's White Corn Meal
1 package of Mother's Wheat Hearts
1 package of Mother's Corn Flakes (Toasted)
1 package of Mother's Old-Fashioned Steel Cut Oatmeal
2 packages of Mother's Granulated Hominy
2 packages of Mother's Coarse Pearl Hominy

This Kit can be purchased at your grocer's py simply paying $1.95 (a little more at distant points). The grocer himself will either redeem your coupons and deliver the $3.75 Fireless Cooker, or, if you so desire, send the coupons and 89c directly to us and we will ship the cooker to you, express collect.

CHEATED THE CUSTOMS

Weigher Confesses to Long Conducted System of Robbery

New York, Oct. 21.—That the United States government has been systematically cheated out of hundreds of thousands of dollars by large importers in league with dishonest customs officers was shown in this city at the trial of Antonio and Philip Musica, cheese importers.

Many other cities beside New York are affected and big men are said to have been behind the swindles. The operations have been extended over a long period of years, it is said.

George E. Birge, a customs weigher, one of the witnesses in the trial of the Musicas, told in detail how he had under-weighed a large importation of cheese for the Musicas and as his share of the profits received $194. He stated that he had had similar dealings with hundreds of other firms and individual importers, large and small.

"ABSOLUTELY LOOTED"

Startling State of Affairs In National Bank In Wisconsin

Washington, Oct. 21.—As the investigation proceeds into the affairs of the failed First National bank of Mineral Point, Wis., it is becoming evident that the failure is one of the worst in the history of the comptroller of the currency's office.

"The bank was absolutely looted," said an officer in the comptroller's office. The vice president of the bank, Philip Allen, Jr., is under $60,000 bail, charged with embezzlement of $168,000. The cashier, a brother-in-law of Allen, killed himself. It is certain that other arrests will be made. The official reports indicate the bank carried anywhere from $200,000 to $400,000 of forged paper.

WITHOUT FLAGS OR BRASS BAND

Mrs. Pankhurst Welcomed to America by Suffragettes

SUBMITS TO INTERVIEWERS

Says If American Women Are Going to Get the Vote They Must Do It Quickly or English Sisters Will Be Ahead of Them—Does Not Know Whether She Will Be Imprisoned When She Returns Home

New York, Oct. 21.—No flag-draped tug went down the bay to meet Mrs. Pankhurst, who arrived last night on the White Star liner Oceanic. Nor did any brass band play Hail to the Chief when the ship docked. There was some cheering, but it all came from the throats of about twenty suffragettes.

Ever so many more had planned to go down to welcome the English leader, but the customs house officials limited the number of passes for the pier. Those present looked as if they realized that it was a pretty small demonstration to put up for a woman who is accustomed to collecting 20,000 persons of both sexes for a parade of a meeting by merely pressing a button or two.

MRS. EMMELINE PANKHURST

Mrs. Pankhurst looked very pale. She was obviously very tired, and seemed disinclined to talk. She was escorted to the Woman's University club, where she was bombarded with questions.

"Do you really think that militant methods are more effective than conservative ones, Mrs. Pankhurst?" she was asked.

"If I didn't I would hardly have pursued the course I have," replied Mrs. Pankhurst, with a weary smile.

"What was the hardest thing you ever did for suffrage?" asked a woman from Boston.

Mrs. Pankhurst hesitated a moment, and then said that she didn't remember that anything had seemed hard. "The hard part would be not to be doing anything," she added.

"I believe in suffrage," continued the woman from Boston, "but I must confess that I can't quite imagine myself starving in prison for it."

For the first time during the interview, Mrs. Pankhurst's eyes flashed. "Ah," she exclaimed, "you don't believe enough!"

"But do you think the American women are going to get the vote before you do?" she was asked.

"I really am not in a position to express an opinion on that subject," was the reply, "but I am sure that if you do get it before we do, you will have to get it very quickly, for we expect to get it before the Liberal party goes out of power if they stay in two years longer. Hundreds of working men have been converted to our cause by the women going to prison. Every sensational move that we make is designed to arouse the sympathy of the voters against the government. We go to every bye-election and try to defeat the government candidate in order to make the government see that they are losing ground with the voters. That is the only thing that ever really influences the ministry."

"Do you think there will be any blood shed in this struggle you are waging against the Liberals?" demanded one questioner.

"I hope not," said the leader indifferently. "There are, however, many women who are ready to give their lives for the cause if necessary."

"Will you have to go to prison when you go back?" inquired a questioner.

"That hasn't been decided yet," said Mrs. Pankhurst. "It all rests upon the question as to whether the bill of rights which grants the privilege of presenting a petition in person is pronounced obsolete or whether it is to still form part of the law of England."

Mrs. Pankhurst left for Boston this morning, where she will speak tonight. She will return to town Sunday and will be the principal speaker at the mass meeting to be held Monday night under the auspices of the Equity League for Self Supporting Women. She will then start on her lecture tour, the object of which is to raise funds for the English campaign. Mrs. Pankhurst charges $300 for each address she makes.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Quincy Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Quincy citizen says:

James P. Daugherty, Hammond Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am glad to let other sufferers know what they have done for me. I was bothered a great deal by back ache and had but litt'e strength or energy to do my day's work. I took many so-called kidney cures, but did not succeed in finding relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at the Cox Drug Store. I was surprised and gratified at the prompt way in which they relieved me. My back was soon strong and free from pain and I felt better generally. I would go to considerable trouble to induce anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills, as I have so much confidence in them."

POLICE WILL RIP UP HILL'S OFFICE

Thinks St. Jean Girl's Head Is Hidden In the Building

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 21.—Believing that the missing head of Amelia St. Jean was hidden by her slayer somewhere about the office of "Professor" Frank L. Hill, the Fall River police secured permission from Henry C. Cook, the owner of the property, to tear it all down if necessary.

Following a conference with Police Inspector Medley and District Attorney Swift of Fall River, and Medical Examiner Stimson and Chief of Police Manchester of Tiverton, in Providence, Attorney General Greenough gave official indorsement to the theory that the girl died and was dismembered in this city.

The attorney general ordered the Rhode Island authorities to deliver the body collected in seven parts scattered along the lonely stretches of Bulgermarsh road, and all the exhibits in the case, to the custody of the police of Fall River and Medical Examiner Gunning.

SELLING OF VOTES

Textile Workers' Delegates Say It Retards Labor's Cause

Washington, Oct. 21.—Some plain talk was indulged in here at a session of the eighth annual convention of the United Textile Workers of America.

The subject dealt with ways and means to obtain an eight-hour day. Delegates declared that labor would never obtain what it was contending for, as the working man sold his vote and thereby threw away the most powerful weapon that could be used to better his position.

Several delegates said that to the promiscuous vote selling among union men was due the many failures of labor representatives in their efforts to secure satisfactory laws before state legislatures.

Fitchburg Will No Longer Be Starting Point For Balloons

Fitchburg, Mass., Oct. 21.—The discontinuance of balloon ascensions from this city was announced just after J. W. Flagg had left the ground in the balloon Boston for his first lone flight.

The Fitchburg Gas and Electric company, which has furnished the gas for the inflation of the balloons which have gone up from Fitchburg frequently during the past few months, informed the balloonists that it would be unable to perform this service in the future, as all the gas manufactured by the company is now needed for other purposes.

Charles W. Guy of Butler road the well known furniture dealer has accepted the Democratic nomination for Councillor from the second district. Mr. Guy for many years carried on the furniture business in Quincy. He is the author of several books and was the instigator of the "Newsboys' day." Mr. Guy was born in Dover and has always been a strong temperance man.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS' DEPARTMENT.

The boys' work in the Young Men's Christian association is one of its strong features and especially is this true in regard to the local association. The work is broad and extensive and takes in every class of boy life in the city. The object is to meet the needs of all boys and through educational classes, gymnasium work and ethics build and strengthen his character, to make him a man in its fullest meaning.

The activities in the local association are divided into three classes, for students, juniors and employed boys. For students, college nights have been the big feature, where men of different colleges have been secured to speak to these boys on college life and training. These have in some cases instiled into a boy ambition for higher education.

For juniors numerous activities are on hand at all times outing, hikes, clubs of all kinds, educational trips and talks, bible classes and religious meetings are a few of the many. All these activities help to build up the character of the boy and mold and shape his life into a worthy American citizen. The work of the Young men's Christian association with boys at this age is especially commendable as this is the formative period of life and all the good influences that can be secured are needed to help the boy make the most out of himself.

The work for employed boys is a strong feature. Its work in the shop among the boys, its practical talks, its socials, its game tournaments, its educational classes, its bible classes, its religious meetings all help to make life sweeter, more worth while, less of drudgery, create higher ambitions and helps to make men of these human cogs in the great wheels of industry.

Not only does the Quincy Y. M. C. A. conduct work in their building but have thrown lines out in different directions. The club at South Quincy reaching sixty or seventy boys and the one at Wollaston again show the broad work the Y. M. C. A. is doing. Much could be said about the wonderful work being done in these clubs but again they are reaching out to help every boy in our city.

The Association cooperates with every other interest in the city which stands for the upbuilding of boy life. The need in the city for a work of this kind is great and the local association is indeed filling the gaps in fine style.

WHATSOEVER CIRCLE FAIR.

Large numbers attended the fifth annual fair of the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters held in the vestries of the Wollaston Congregational church on Wednesday afternoon and evening. That the affair was a great success was due in no small measure to the efforts of Mrs. Albert Sayward who had charge.

Artificial chrysanthemums formed the main decorations. These were arranged in festoons and clusters around the vestry and their artistic effect was due to the arrangement of Chester I. Campbell by whom they were loaned. In evidence also were crosses with the insigma of the society upon them.

"Aunt Dinah" in the person of Miss Mildred Sayward proved an attraction and the grabs which she had met with a ready sale. Estes orchestra furnished selections at intervals through the evening.

A fine supper ,which was partaken of by a large number was served under the efficient direction of Mrs. C. S. Adams by the following committee of ladies: Mrs. Willis Bond, Mrs. C. E. Barker, Mrs. W. H. Whitney, Mrs. F. S. Andrews, Mrs. Marcus Chase, Mrs. M. O. Thompson, Mrs. L. C. Holbrook, Mrs. Eric Ewertz, Mrs. Samuel Chapman.

Refreshments were served and at a late hour the guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Dunn much happiness.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

NOT LACKING IN GENEROSITY.

Editor Daily Ledger:

In Reader's letter last night I notice he refers to the Jew as a "horrible example" of lack of generosity in church giving. In proportion to his means the Hebrew is the most generous of the pious. He asks no assistance from outsiders and if he chooses to aid the cause of Christianity as opposed to Judaism, who can blame him. Let every church pay its own way. The Jews do not have expensive synagogues or try to worship in buildings above their means. The Hebrews are well able to pay their own church debts and a Jew has yet to be found who asks a Christian to donate to his church. Therefore, I do not see as the Jew should be brought into this affair and hope that the gentleman from Atlantic will not refer to the Jew in that way again.

Of Two Quincy Young People at Home of Bride.

CRATER IN THE BERING SEA

Lake Reported Steaming Constantly and Having No Bottom

Washington, Oct. 21.—Belching steam jets in a crater lake in Behring sea, the lake constituting the greater part of a constantly changing island, whose shore waters are so deep that soundings failed to reveal a bottom except in a single spot, were reported to the treasury department.

The message came from Captain Jacobs of the United States revenue cutter service, commanding the Behring sea fleet at Unalaska, Alaska, and was in response to instructions from Washington to investigate and photograph Bogoslof island, whose frequent changes in configuration have formed the basis of other official reports.

Several steam jets, Jacobs says, rise from the centre of the lake and the lake is steaming constantly. The harbor opening on the west side of the island is now entirely closed. The lake, the captain reports, is without doubt the crater.

LOMBARD NOT ONLY ONE TO BENEFIT

New Developments In the Framingham Forgery Case

Boston, Oct. 21.—A Framingham dispatch to The Post says: That a coterie of town officials have been cognizant of Town Treasurer Lombard's issuing notes through Charles S. Cummings of Boston, on which notes somebody got premiums of thousands of dollars, is the latest development in the Framingham forgery case.

That these premiums and the money derived from the issuance of town notes were divided is the charge made by a prominent citizen last evening. Who this money went to and who the men are who shared in it is now being investigated.

Investigation has proved that certainly last January, and probably before that time, those on the inside of the town's financial history knew that Lombard was dishonest.

TAFT AT A ROUNDUP

Horse Bucks at Seeing Snake as President Was About to Mount

Gregory, Tex., Oct. 21.—President Taft had a touch of ranch life when he rode a cow pony to a roundup of 1200 head of cattle on the Rincon section of his brother's ranch, saw two wild steers cut out of the bunch and roped, witnessed the branding of several calves and saw fifty steers taking a dip in a disinfecting tank through which they had to swim for fifty feet.

A rattlesnake, with seventeen rattles and a button, was killed at the Rincon ranch house. The president's horse, Sam, spied the dead snake just as the president was about to take the saddle to go to the roundup and bucked viciously. After President Taft had once got safely astride, however, Sam was a good horse.

SERIOUS ASSAULT.

Passenger on Car Makes Assault on Conductor Winters.

Conductor George M. Winters of the street railway was the victim of a cowardly assault at Houghs Neck Thursday night. Winters had charge of the car which left Quincy at 6.20. On the car was one of these bullies that are permitted to run at large. On the way down the said bully had some words with the conductor in regard to the ventilator on the car.

When the end of the line was reached the conductor started to shift his trolley pole. In one hand he held the two bug lights, used on the rear of the car and in the other hand the trolley rope. Then it was that the passenger approached him and made a vicious kick at him. This kick which evidently made the man angry for he again approached the conductor and made another kick at him. This time the kick landed on the conductor's stomach.

It felled the conductor and without waiting to see the result of his assault the man walked away. The conductor fainted away several times during the evening and is in a serious condition. No arrests have been made up to noon.

He is a well known furniture dealer on Canal street, Boston and it was he who introduced Dec. 24 as "Newsboys' Day" throughout the world. On that day newsboys wear a tag that requests each customer to pay five cents for his newspaper. This plan, as introduced by Mr. Guy, has proven itself to be a great success, through it many a newsie having a merry Christmas.

Mr. Guy was formerly a farmer and shoemaker. He is the author of several books, among them "Whoa, New England Stories for Big and Little Folks." He has always been a strong temperance man.

CHILDREN OF SCHOOL AGE

Some Interesting Figures Shown by School Census

The result of the school census just completed, by Charles H. Johnson the census taker, of the school department, shows that there are 7,539 children in Quincy of the school age, that is between 5 and 15 years of age. Of this number 3,811 are boys and 3,728 girls. The net gain during the year was 177 as against a net gain of 108 in 1908. The number of deformed children is 56.

Every ward in the city shows a gain excepting Ward Four, the West Quincy ward where the return shows a loss of 22 from last year. The largest gain was made in Ward 3 the number being 54, Ward 2, came next with a gain of 44 and Wards 5 and 6 with gains of 41 each. Ward 1, made a gain of 19.

An interesting item in regard to the census is that it shows the number of pupils, of school age, in the Houghs Neck district, where a new school building is to be erected and the number of children in the Montclair district where the site for a school building is being considered. Mr. Johnson reports that the number of children of school age at Houghs Neck as being 240 and in the Montclair district as 170.

The number of children by ages is as follows:—Five years, 612; six years, 859; seven years, 794; eight years, 838; nine years, 850; ten years, 747; eleven years, 721; twelve years, 700; thirteen years, 742; fourteeen years, 676.

The number of children by wards is as follows:—Ward One, 1,110; Ward Two, 1,096; Ward Three, 1,784; Ward Four, 1,608; Ward Five, 908; Ward Six, 1,033.

These figures show that Ward Three has the largest school population with Ward Four second, while Ward Five has the smallest number.

The following table gives the number of children in each ward by ages:

BOY STRUCK BY TRAIN

Was Walking on Tracks at West Quincy When Struck

Francis Batoni the three year old son of Joseph Batoni of Rail street, was struck by the train at West Quincy this morning and was seriously injured. As near as can be learned the boy was walking along the tracks and did not notice the approaching 11.16 train for Boston. The boy started to get off of the track when the engine struck him and threw him some distance. Dr. John H. Ash was called and took the boy to the City Hospital in his automobile. At the hospital it was found that he had sustained a fractured skull and was in a serious condition.

The place where the accident happened was just north of the depot near Grove street.

GIRL SHOT.

It was learned this morning that there came very near being a serious accident to a little girl Thursday afternoon on Whitwell street. It seems that two girls about 7 or 8 years old were in the store of Charley Mang on Whitwell street and that in some way one of them got possession of a loaded revolver and pointing it at the other little girl, pulled the trigger. The ball or wad which was in the cartridge, which could not be determined, hit the little girl named Mabel Swanson in the neck. The child that fired the shot was named Edith Winquist and she lived near the little girl on Whitwell street.

Dr. Ellsworth was called and he said that the wound was not very serious and that the child would recover all right unless poisoning should set in.

A Ledger reporter saw the girl and her mother this morning and while unable to run around much the girl was able to be up and about. The mother of the Swanson girl said that her daughter came home to her yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock and told her that while she had been fooling in the store owned by Charlie Mangs that Edith Winquist found a revolver in a cigar box in the window of the store and that while fooling, the little Winquist girl had aimed it at her and pulled the trigger. She was very close to her at the time and her face was badly pitted with powder marks. The father of the injured child said that he thought that there must have been a bullet in the revolver but the wound would not bear out this statement as it was large and round and did not extend below the surface looking as if a round wad had struck the neck. No action has been taken by the parents of the child and they gave the Ledger reporter to understand that no action would be taken.

Another Indian summer is with us. Warm and balmy after two frosty days.

That Quincy comes up to the Rooseveltian standard can not be doubted when reading the census of school children as compiled by Charles H. Johnson.

That is hard luck for the girls in the Chicago shops, no hair puffs, false curls or big ribbon bows; black dresses with high collars; and only one ring and locket allowed for jewelry and they must not be large or brilliant.

The Y. M. C. A. is right to the front these days with new buildings, celebrating anniversaries and increasing membership and activities.

250 GOOD STORIES.

The Youth's Companion abounds in stirring stories of adventure and heroism. One may describe an escape from accidental peril, another a strange encounter with wild creatures—man or beast.

Many of these stories are true as to facts, and only disguised as to names and places. A score or more of such stories will be published during 1910, in addition to nearly 200 others—250 good stories in all, and no two alike. And this is not counting the serial stories, which it is believed will be considered by old Companion readers as the best The Companion has ever published.

Every new subscriber will find it of special advantage to send at once the $1.75 for the new 1910 volume. Not only does he get the beautiful "Venetian" Calendar for 1910, lithographed in thirteen colors and gold, but all the issues of The Companion for the remaining weeks of 1909, from the time the subscription is received. OPPOSITION WINS IN SPAIN

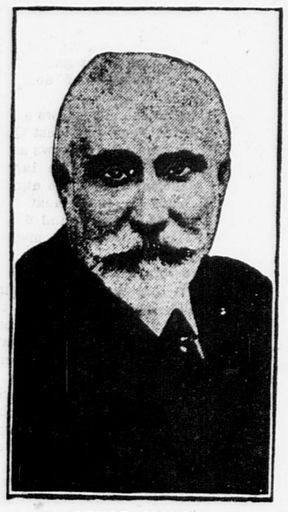
Maura and His Conservative Cabinet Driven Out

LIBERAL MINISTRY IS FORMED

All But Two Offices Filled, With Moret as Premier—Popular Demonstrations Against War In Morocco and Execution of Ferrer Hastened Crisis, Which Follows Stormy Scene Between the King and Maura

Madrid, Oct. 22.—Senor Moret, the Liberal leader, has achieved the result at which he aimed in attacking the Maura government, and he appears as the head of a nearly completed cabinet of moderate Liberals. In addition to the premiership Moret will take the post of the minister of the interior, thus personally assuming the control of domestic order and the task of pacifying Barcelona and Gerona.



SENOR MAURA.

Perez Caballero returns to the ministry of foreign affairs, where he presided in Moret's cabinet in 1906 and in that of Marquis De Armijo's, which succeeded that of Moret.

Two other members of Senor Moret's former cabinet will enter the new ministry, namely, General De Luque, as minister of war, and Senor Gazet, as minister of commerce. Senor Alvarado will be minister of finance and Admiral Concas, minister of marine.

The offices of minister of justice and minister of public instruction have not yet been filled.

The Maura cabinet resigned Thursday and King Alfonso immediately accepted the resignation. The action foliowed a long conference between Premier Maura and the king, in which the agitation resulting from the execution of Francisco Ferrer was thoroughly gone over. The retirement of the ministry is a victory for the factions of the opposition.

The cabinet which resigned was formed Jan. 25, 1907. It was Conservative and succeeded in power the fall of no less than five Liberal ministries in the preceding eighteen months. The religious issue had been the root of these dissentions and the return to power of Maura, leader of the Conservatives, and who had before held the premiership, was regarded as a sweeping victory for the Clericals and one likely to arouse a revolutionary spirit.

This proved to be the case, the opposition finally uniting in opposition to the government's conduct and furtherance of the war in Morocco. The stern measures taken in putting down the recent anti-war demonstrations in Spain tended to inflame the opposition and the execution of Ferrer, followed by popular demonstrations of disapproval, brought matters to a crisis.

When parliament reopened the Liberals, Republicans and Socialists bitterly assailed the government, but the cabinet showed a disposition to fight for its life. Then came the reported scene between King Alfonso and Premier Maura when the king is said to have bitterly reproached the premier for failing to give him an opportunity to exercise the royal prerogative in a pardon for Ferrer.

The news that Maura, whose attitude has been for the strictest military punishment of Ferrer's friends, had surrendered under the attacks of the opposition and the anger of the king, was received in Madrid with demonstrations of joy.

PREDICTS BUSINESS PANIC

Foss Says It Will Come Unless Tariff Is Remedied

Boston, Oct. 22.—A great reception was accorded the candidates on the Democratic state ticket at the big ratification meeting held in Tremont temple last night.

Every seat in the big hall was taken, from pit to gallery. It is estimated that close ontò 3500 people listened to the oratory of Senator Thomas P. Gore, the blind senator from Oklahoma.

The candidate for governor, James H. Vahey, was cheered for fully five minutes as he arose to speak. For the first time in many years the united Democracy of Massachusetts were represented on the platform.

Eugene N. Foss, candidate for lieutenant governor, said:

"I ask you, Governor Guild, what can you do in the Republican ranks? Haven't you been run over time and time again by Lodge's 'steam roller,' and now the organ of the ultra-high protected interests, the personal organ of Governor Draper, insults you and the people of the commonwealth? With self-respect how much longer can you remain where you are? You belong to the Democratic party this year.

"The Payne-Aldrich tariff bill is the most iniquitous measure ever on the statute books. It means a tariff war with Canada, Germany and France. No doubt a tariff war is upon us, and if we don't reverse this policy at once we shall have such a falling off in business in this country as to make the last panic and all previous ones seem tame in comparison."

Not a Candidate For Senate

Lynn, Mass., Oct. 22.—Former Governor Guild, in reply to Eugene N. Foss, stated here that he would not be a candidate for the United States senate against Senator Lodge, and that he never expected again to be a candidate for public office.

Mr. Guild reaffirmed his position on the tariff and stated that it should be reformed. He declared that his views were those of President Taft.

GREAT STACK OF FIREARMS

Captured by French Force In Engagement With Moslems

SLAVE RAIDERS ARE ROUTED

Occupied Area In Central Soudan as Large as That of Italy and Had Long Held Supremacy, Killing Outsiders Who Penetrated Their Domain—Army of Eight Thousand Vanquished With Great Loss

London, Oct. 22.—News has been received of the conquest of Wadai, the last stronghold of the Mohammedan fanatics in the Central Soudan, by a small French force. The information comes from Dr. Kumm, secretary of the Soudan United Mission, who left England in October, 1908, to visit the mission stations in northern Nigeria.

Dr. Kumm, writing under date of Fort Archambault, in the upper Shari river, tells how the irreconciliable remnants of the various Moslem forces congregated in Wadai, which is of about the same area as Italy, under Sheikh Senussi, who had imported great numbers of Winchester rifles and other modern firearms and some cannon.

No white men, except Mr. Nacktigal, a German, in 1872, ever crossed Wadai, other explorers having been killed or barely escaping the fanatical inhabitants.

It was against the population of slave raiders that a French force, consisting of a handful of European officers and a few hundred audacious and dangerously well trained Senegalese troops, operated.

A party of eighty, with their officers, beat 3000 of the Wadians at Dogotchi in April, 1908. Three months later 500, with their officers, utterly routed the Wadaian army of 8000 men, whose general, Agid Mamid, was killed, with two sons of the sultan of Wadai and 1300 men. The captured rifles made a pile twelve feet high. The French lost forty-nine killed.

This, writes Dr. Kumm, means a great deal for the Central Soudan. It means that slavery is abolished, Moslem conquest checked, and the establishment of peace, probably for the first time in the history of those regions.

SENATOR JOHNSON DEAD

Republican's Seat at Washington Will Be Filled by a Democrat

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 22.—United States Senator Martin N. Johnson, Republican, died here last night of Bright's disease. Governor Burke, Democrat, will name a man of his party to fill the vacancy.

MARTIN N. JOHNSON.

Senator Johnson was one of the Hayes electors in Iowa in 1876. He removed to Dakota in 1882 and took up government land, on which he resided to the time of his death. He was born in Wisconsin fifty-nine years ago and was a lawyer and a farmer.

CHANGES USUAL PRACTICE

Croker Will Be In New York Before Municipal Campaign Closes

London, Oct. 22.—Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall, will sail tomorrow on the Mauretania for a protracted visit in New York city. Since his retirement as leader of Tammany he has timed his visits to New York city so that they occurred after election day, in order to refute the report that he was to resume a personal interest in New York city campaigns.

Croker, on this vist, will be in New York city fully a week before election day, and there is considerable speculation as to why he has changed his practice and its significance.

Gray Hair Restored
My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head
For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

WHITE SLAVE TRADE GROWS

New York Said to Lead In the Nefarious Enterprise

BLAME LAID UPON TAMMANY

Girls Recruited by Its Slum Politicians Exported to All Parts of the World, According to Magazine Writer—Said to Continue Despite Fact That Source and Direction of Traffic Has Been Revealed

New York, Oct. 22.—George K. Turner, in an article in McClure's for November, entitled "The Daughters of the Poor," accuses Tammany Hall of a systematic corruption of girls on the East Side. The writer says that because of the decline of the policy and poolrooms and gambling generally it was found necessary by the leaders and their underlings to develop a new source of income.

So many cadets had appeared, each with a certain amount of influence, that Tammany needed their assistance in repeating and in buttressing the organization.

"There are now," says McClure's, "three principal centers of the so-called white slave trade—that is the recruiting and sale of young girls of the poorer classes by procurers. The first is the group of cities in Austria and Russian Poland, headed by Lemburg; the second is in Paris, and the third the city of New York. In the past ten years New York has become the leader of the world in this class of enterprise. The men engaged in it there have taken or shipped girls, largely obtained from the tenement districts of New York, to every continent of the globe.

"There had been no business management of prostitution in this city," the article continues, "until Tammany realized the advantages and profits of the trade. The police department and the police courts were all in the hands of Tammany, which," the article adds, "was controlled in its turn by the slum politicians, who saw a profitable field in dealing in unfortunate women.

"As the population grew, girls were taken more and more from the tenement districts of the East Side. The Jewish people in the quarter were astonished and horrified at the development of a misfortune. But they had little chance against a closely organized machine.

"The trade grew and became more systematized, girls gathered from the East Side were exported to the Argentine, to Shanghai and to Australia. There were no boundaries to the business. Girls recruited in New York followed the Russian army in the Russo-Japanese war, they went into Alaska with the gold rush and into Nevada, and they have been camped in scores and hundreds on the banks of the new Panama canal.

"The New York headquarters sent out trading companies in women which did an enormous business in Philadelphia, Newark and as far west, even, as San Francisco. There were exposes which revealed the source and direction of the traffic, but it continued just the same. The business became a factor in American politics."

The article describes in detail the recruiting of ignorant immigrant girls from East Side dance halls, employment agencies and the streets by cadets.

Under Tammany systematization, the article estimates, half the country's supply of women in this business are procured from New York. Commissioner Bingham, Turner writes, did all that he could to curtail the business of these gangs until he was removed by Mayor McClellan.

"The various interests dependent upon the procuring and sale of women considered this event their first victory," says the article. "But now all eyes of these people are concentrated on the main issue this fall. Will not Tammany be elected? The whole future of their career in New York hangs upon the issue of this event. And they are preparing to work for Tammany with every means in their power."

ON A PIRATE HUNT

Uncle Sam Will Try to Capture Men Sailing Under the Black Flag

Galveston, Oct. 22.—Orders were received from Washington for the revenue cutter Windom, stationed here, to proceed at once to the vicinity of the Bahama islands and search and capture an alleged piratical schooner reported by the British steamship Rowanmore, Captain Phelan.

The Windom is to be joined off the coast of Florida by other cutters and for the first time in many years armed vessels will search for pirates.

NO MORE GRAY HAIR.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made and used a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hair before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair, and are fast following suit. The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready to use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. As a scalp tonic and color restorer, this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers, and it can be bought for 50 cents and $1 a bottle at almost any first-class drug store, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

OPERATES ON LAND AS WELL AS ON SEA

Claim of Inventor of Latest Style of "Battleship"

Washington, Oct. 22.—Jacob Osses of Arlington, Mass., wrote to Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop yesterday to interest the navy department in a new style battleship.

Osses called it a 'battle boat" and said that it would operate on land quite as well as in the water. It is equipped with strong armor plate which "hard cannon balls will not hurt." Its armament consists of "many cannon which shoot many times a second." The battleboat, Ossis claims, will revolutionize warfare.

Mr. Winthrop informed the inventor that his invention had been carefully considered and was found to contain no "novel features of value."

RETENTION OF PHILIPPINES

Subject of Whole Day's Discussion at the Mohonk Conference

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., Oct. 22.—At the Mohonk conference an entire day was given up to discussion over the retention of the Philippine islands by the United States.

Some members of the audience were for declaring that the American yoke should be cast off forthwith and some were for holding the islands until the people were really ready to govern themselves.

Congressman Driscoll of Syracuse declared that the Philippine islands is a white elephant which is expensive to keep, and asserted that America is running a republic at home and an empire in the Pacific. Dr. J. C. Burks of Philadelphia, government school inspector, took the opposite view.

TAFT PAYS VISIT TO TAFT

Texas Town Which Went Solid For Him In Presidential Election

Gregory, Tex., Oct. 22.—President Taft shook hands with the entire town of Taft and delivered a speech in the Taft schoolhouse yesterday afternoon. It wasn't much of an ordeal, for Taft has a population of only about 300.

The town is on the C. P. Taft ranch and the eight-mile drive which the president took to it was over his brother's estate for the entire distance. Taft is one of the few towns that went Republican unanimously in the last national campaign and for this reason and because it is named in honor of his brother, the president favored it with a short speech.

STUDENTS' STRIKE ENDS

Resume Studies Pending Hearing In Regard to Expelled Mates

Bangor, Me., Oct. 22.—After a "strike" in which nearly every student at the University of Maine, with the exception of the football squad, had remained away from recitations for nearly two weeks, because some of their number had been expelled by the faculty for alleged participation in hazing, the undergraduates received word that temporarily at least they had gained their point and this morning resumed their studies.

This development came about through the efforts of the Alumni association, who received word from E. B. Winslow of Portland, president of the board of trustees, that he had agreed to call a meeting of the trustees within two weeks and had guaranteed that the suspended men should have a fair hearing.

Utica, Oct. 22.—Theodore Rizzo, murderer of Theresa Procopio and Freddy Infusino, whom he lured from their homes in this city Sept. 12 last and shot, was found guilty by a jury and was immediately sentenced to death.

Justice Rogers imposed the sentence, fixing the week commencing Nov. 21 as the date, and Auburn prison the place, for carrying out the penalty.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

She Was No Child.

This college professor, like many other men of erudition, was fond of Lewis Carroll. While visiting his sister he asked his niece, a miss of fifteen, to get "Through the Looking Glass" for him from the public library. She evidently did not like the task, and he asked her the reason. With some hesitation she replied: "Oh, I'll get it if you really want it. But I don't like to have the librarian think that I read children's books."—New York Tribune.

JAPAN'S GREAT BUSINESS MEN

Fifty of Them Will Visit Fore River Plant Saturday

It is perhaps not generally known that Quincy is to have a number of distinguished visitors Saturday, although but little opportunity will be afforded to see them as their visit will be brief. The visitors are the Honorable Commercial Commission of Japan. The party which numbers fifty or more will arrive in Boston tonight from Providence and will visit the Fore River Ship Building Co., plant Saturday morning. Here they will be met by Mayor Shea and a number of city officials as well as the President of the Citizens' Association and Board of Trade.

The party will inspect the plant and go over the battleship North Dakota which leaves the works next week for her trial trips. In the party are:

Baron Takahashi, Baron Shibusama, Kenzo Iwabara, Narazo Takatanji, Zenjuro Horikashi, Tokunosuke, Maghida, Mighio Doi, Heizaeman Hibija, Sakutaro Satake, Kaighiro Nedzo, Osaka Asahi, Toshio Matsuma, Jihei Nishimura, Einosuke Iwamoto.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

WARD ONE COUNCILMEN.

Editor Daily Ledger:

The decision of Councilman Abele and Whiton not to be candidates for reelection, leaves two vacancies to be filled in Ward One. Conditions in our municipal affairs at present are such that the importance of having safe, sane and intelligent men represent us in the council can hardly be overestimated. Permit me to suggest the names of the following six men. It is more than probable that if they were properly approached there could be found among them two who would be willing to stand for the office of Councilman. Any two of them would be creditable representatives of our citizens, especially the tax-payers. I suggest the following: Henry L. Kincaide, Clarence Burgin, G. B. Bates, W. G. Shaw, George McFarlane, Frank S. Patch. There are, of course, many others equally desirable.

If Ward One would take the lead in inducing strong men to enter the Council, other wards would do likewise, and in the course of a little time city affairs would be as intelligently and carefully handled as if they were the affairs of a bank or some other private corporation.

Non-Partisan.

Superstitious Remedies.

For whooping cough a cooked dormouse is good. In the eighteenth century this remedy was employed in Scotland. Here is another medicament for the same complaint: "Watercress is a very good thing, sir, with a little bit of that brown sugar what you uses to put on to bacon and some honey mixed with it. And I'll tell you what's a good thing for croup but a riesty bacon fat fried down and afore it resolves add some pepper and vinegar. It opens the pipes of the lungs, d'ye see." And if you are adventurous you may try this for "phlegm on to the chest:" Catch a "dear little dotty frog" and tie a bit of string to one of its back legs. Then you "keep on letting it go down your throat and pulling it up again." The narrator of this added to T. W. Thompson, who sets down these stories: "It's the truth, young fellow, and it cleared the phlegm out of his throat bootiful, but we wouldn't do such a thing as that." —London Chronicle.

LIQUOR RAID.

Police Seize Large Amount of Liquor at Hancock Hall.

Inspectors McKay and Goodhue and a squad of officers raided the basement of Hancock hall late Thursday night and seized a large quantity of liquor. This morning the police arrested Thomas Taylor said to have charge of the room. In court this morning he was arraigned for violation of the liquor law and was held in $300 until next Friday. Among the liquid refreshments seized were 70 bottles of ale, 40 bottles of beer, 60 empty whiskey bottles and a large lot of glasses, beer mugs, etc.

MILTON.

Charles R. Taggart the man from Vermont will give an entertainment Wednesday evening, Oct. 27, at 8 P. M. in the East Congregational church.

The Dorothea Dix children will hold a concert under the auspices of the evening branch of St. Catherine Guild, in Ellsworth hall, November 2, 1909.

At the town meeting last week it was voted that the money left over from the appropriation for the chemical wagon appropriated last March, be expended in purchasing the chief of the Fire department an automobile.

The citizens also voted to erect a modern school house in the center of the town and they placed the matter in the hands of a special committee of the citizens who are now busy on the plans. The amount appropriated was $115,000.

One of the first social events of the season will occur November 12, when Mrs. Gilbert S. Hammond will hold a dance in Ellsworth hall.

The alarm from box 46 last Monday was for a fire in the chimney of the house occupied by Robert Herrick.

The sale is recorded of the modern house of eleven rooms and garage located at the junction of Edgehill and Huntington roads.

BODY IDENTIFIED BY SCAR ON HAND

"Suit Case" Victim Found to Be Amelia St. Jean

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 22.—In an autopsy upon the dismembered body found along Bulgermarsh road, Dr. Magrath, medical examiner of Boston, who was called as an expert, demonstrated that the headless body is that of Amelia St. Jean.

He showed the assembled surgeons that the left hand indeed bears a scar, although others had failed to see it. It was for this scar, of recent origin, that the girl's mother looked as means of positive identification, but which through tear-dimmed eyes she failed to see.

STRYCHNINE IN CANDY

Said to Have Been Given Woman to Get Her Out of the Way

St. Louis, Oct. 22.—Mrs. Maude Ridley, a dashing brunette, aged 32, was arrested on a charge of having given poisoned candy to Mrs. Nannette Lillard, wife of R. W. Lillard, aged 35, a reporter for a local newspaper.

Police Captain Gaffney reports that Mrs. Lillard handed him a box of chocolates which she said Mrs. Ridley had given to her. Gaffney turned the candy over to a chemist, who announced that the candy was thoroughly charged with strychnine.

Mrs. Lillard, according to the report, charges Mrs. Ridley with having come to her home and given her the candy as a peace offering after she had asked the police to protect her and her family from Mrs. Ridley's infatuation for Lillard. Lillard told Gaffney that Mrs. Ridley had repeatedly endeavored to induce him to leave his wife.

COTTON MILLS MAY CLOSE

Agreement Said to Have Been Reached by New England Officials

Boston, Oct. 22.—The Arkwright club, the organization of New England mill officials which controls 14,000,000 of the 17,000,000 spindles in the New England states, voted to recommend a curtailment of the output of the cotton mills in this state at a secret meeting held in Boston yesterday.

This announcement, if carried out, will mean the loss of thousands of dollars in wages to an army of mill workers.

The news that the Arkwright club had decided upon such action caused tremendous surprise among the labor leaders of Fall River, New Bedford and Lowell, which will be chiefly affected.

M'CARREN IS SINKING

Democratic Leader's Heart and Stomach Are In Bad Condition

New York, Oct. 22.—Senator McCarren's conditdon is much worse. Dr. Hughes says that the senator's heart and stomach are very bad and in no way does he show any sign of improvement. He refuses all nourishment, and shows a marked lack of vitality.

Dr. Hughes adds that the patient seems to realize his condition and to have lost all the spirit with which, after the operation, he began to fight for his own recovery.

A Lawyer's Fee.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1909, by T. C. McClure.]

Five city girls who were summer guests at the Crow's Nest hotel set out one day to walk to the village of Gladys, three miles away. The walk hadn't covered half a mile when two objects of interest were caught sight of at the same time in a field to the left. The first was a spotted calf about six months old, and the second was a tramp asleep under a tree. Five philosophers would have passed these objects by with a glance, but those girls were not philosophers. Some one suggested that dirt and stones be thrown to see the calf run away and the tramp get a move on him.

It was Miss Lotta Innis that threw the stone that brought about the surprise. It was an awkward throw, of course, but the hand of Providence guided it along until it struck the calf in the ribs. The calf jumped over the tramp, the tramp awoke and caught the calf by the leg and brought it down and broke its neck, and the five girls who were not philosophers uttered five screams and ran away. As soon as they realized the enormity of their offense they swore each other to secrecy.

It was the tramp, however, who settled things. Clothed in a suit given him by the farmer for the purpose, he lounged around the hotel until he had identified the guilty party, and then it was planned for things to happen. Three days after Miss Lotta Innis had been identified as the assassin of calves and the rude awakener of tramps she rode over to Gladys with the mail carrier to do some shopping. The birds sang, the chipmunks darted in and out of the bushes, and no thunderstorm arose to warn the poor girl what was in store for her. The village was reached, her shopping done, and then the constable arrested her. He gave her to understand that the law empowered him to put handcuffs on her wrists, shackles on her ankles and a gag in her mouth and also to walk beside her with a gun in one hand and a bowie knife in the other, but if she would give her word not to turn desperate he would forego those pleasures.

A few minutes later Miss Lottie found herself arraigned before a justice of the peace on charges of malicious trespass and a barrel of other things. Scared? Of course she was scared. She was so frightened that she was fairly dumb. It came upon her so suddenly that she couldn't think what to do. The farmer was determined, the constable driven by duty, the tramp revengeful and his honor feeling that the majesty of the law must be upheld if it pulled the shingles off the roof of his office. No one suggested that the girl see a lawyer, and she had begun to weep and think about offering a million dollars to settle the case when a young man approached her and tendered his card and added:

"I am a guest at the hotel here, and you will see by my card that I am a lawyer. I shall be glad to take your case."

"But I have no money to pay you!" wailed the girl, remembering that her last purchase had left her with only 7 cents in her purse.

"That doesn't make the slightest difference." Then, turning to the court, he announced that he represented the prisoner and wished for time to consult as to her defense. This was grudgingly allowed him, and, looking through her tears, Miss Lotta discovered that the card handed her bore the name of Walter Halpin. She told him the story of the stone, the calf and the tramp, but she was so upset that she scarcely noticed that he was a good looking young man of four and twenty and evidently city bred. At the end of a quarter of an hour he announced his readiness to proceed. The farmer was too stingy to employ a lawyer, and, having the justice and the tramp with him, it looked as if he had a sure thing. It looked that way for about ten minutes, and then things began to change. Miss Lotta made her statement under oath. There were a calf and a tramp, but no malice. The stone she threw might have hit the calf, the tramp or any other old thing. That it hit the calf was only an accident.

The young advocate defined trespass; he defined malicious trespass; he defined girlism, trampism and a dozen other things having a bearing on the case. He got his honor all tangled up; he got the tramp scared; he got the constable feeling that he was liable to heavy damages for a false arrest, and then he asked for his client's discharge and got it. His honor decided to give the tramp thirty days to satisfy the law, himself and the other folks.

The mail carrier had departed, and of course the young lawyer hired a rig and drove his client back to Crow's Nest. Of course he drove over there alone the next day to talk over the case with her. As a matter of fact, he got in the habit of showing up there almost every day. It was legal business, in a way, and Miss Lotta found herself rather liking legal business. After the season was over there was correspondence and later on social calls. Almost a year went by and nothing had been said about the legal fee when the lawyer called one evening and smilingly and a bit anxiously announced:

"My dear ex-client, you owe me a fee for keeping you out of state prison for life, and I'm going to ask you to pay it by becoming my little wife."

Well, what could a poor girl do? She hadn't even the 7 cents this time, and so she had to say "Yes" and make the best of it.

Animals Are Poor Sailors.

The polar bear is the only wild animal that likes a trip on the water, according to a French scientist who has studied its behavior at sea. He is quite jolly when aboard ship, but all other animals violently resent such a voyage and vociferously give vent to their feelings until seasickness brings silence.

The tiger suffers most of all. He whines pitifully, his eyes water continually, and he rubs his stomach with his terrible paws. Horses are bad sailors and often die on a sea voyage.

Oxen are heroic in their attempts not to give way to seasickness. Elephants do not like the sea, but they are amenable to medical treatment. A good remedy is a buckeful of hot water containing three and a half pints of whisky and seven ounces of quinine.—Fur News.

Whatever you want, if you wish for it long,
With a constant yearning and ceaseless, desire,
If your wish soars upward on wings so strong
That they never grow languid, never tire,
Why, over the storm clouds and out of the dark
It will come flying some day to you,
As the dove with the olive branch flew to the ark.
And the wish you've been dreaming—it will come true.

JAPANESE COMMISSION

Commercial Visitors at Fore River This Morning

That the members of the Honorable Commercial Commission of Japan who visited the plant of the Fore River Ship Building Co. this morning were very much impressed with what they saw as well as with the hospitable manner in which they were entertained, was very evident to those who had the pleasure of meeting the distinguished visitors. Many of the party speak English and they expressed themselves as more than pleased with their entertainment.

There are about fifty in the original party from Japan, a third of whom, headed by Baron Shibusawa, were in the Quincy party. They came to Quincy in two parlor cars attached to the 8.39 train from Boston. The special cars were run over the Fore River tracks from Braintree, landing them opposite the main entrance gate. Here they were met by the officers of the Fore River Co. and other local guests. They included outside of the officials of the company Mayor W. T. Shea, Frank Fessenden Crane, Dock and Water Front Commissioner, Paul R. Blackmur, president of the Citizens Association, John R. Richards, president of the Board of Trade, Hon. Eugene C. Hultman, Randolph Bainbridge, Commissioner of Public Works, City Solicitor, John W. McAnarney, Principal Assessor, Warren W. Adams, Commander Emil Theiss of the U. S. N., Commander C. P. Plunkett of the U. S. N., Naval Constructor H. L. Ferguson, U. S. N. City Treasurer John Curtis, Capt. F. T. Guerrico of the Argentine Navy, Lieut. Commander C. L. Arnold, U. S. N., G. C. Davidson of the Submarine Boat Co., Dr. Edwin N. Hardy, Prof. E. S. Morse of Lynn, Gordon Abbott, William A. Gaston, Robert Winsor and W. C. Fish of Boston, O. M. Clark representing the Chamber of Commerce of Portland, Me., H. Z. Osborne of the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles, Cal., and Roger S. Green of the Councillor service department at Washington.

Owing to the shortness of the time the visitors could spent at the plant no long stop was made at any of the departments. The first place visited was the forge shop where they saw a large ingot under the hammer; then the cutting and welding of steel plates by the use of acetylene; the foundry, the blacksmith shop, joinershop, machine shop and Gantry crane where they saw the handling of large armor plates and other heavy weights. They then passed aboard the battleship North Dakota, the largest fighting vessel in the world. Here they saw the heavy armor plate placed in position and the turrets, in which the big guns are located operated. They also visited the officers' quarters and other points of interest about the battleship.

Leaving the battleship they visited the submarine department ,the fitting out basin, pipe shop, galvanizing building slips and tool shop, thence to the mould loft where a delightful lunch was served.

The tables here presented a very inviting appearance. Large baskets of yellow and white chrysanthemums, upon which were the American and Japanese flags served to set them off while at each plate was a fragrant carnation. Overhead the room was decorated with the flags of all nations.

At the start William A. Gaston, who presided in the absence of President Bowles ,said that owing to the shortness of the time there would not be any speechmaking. He however asked the party to rise and drink the health of the President of the United States and the Emperor of Japan.

A little later on Baron Shibusawa made a few remarks which were interpreted by the official interpretor.

He expressed the thanks of the visitors to the officers of the company for the courtesy shown and for the opportunity to visit the plant and the battleship North Dakota. It was a delight to them all to see these things. It may seem strange, he said, that we of peaceful pursuits should be interested in seeing these engines at destruction. He was convinced, however, that the object of them was the maintaining of peace. Not engines of war but of peace that we business men may follow our pursuits.

After the applause that followed these remarks had subsided the Baron again arose and proposed the health of the President of the United States, which was followed by the Japanese cheer Banzio for the prosperity of the country.

This concluded the visit. As the party left the mould loft to take their special car back to Boston the group was photographed. The special left the works at 12.15 in order that the party might arrive in time to witness the foot ball game at Harvard this afternoon.

The menu cards for the lunch will make interesting souvenirs for the visitors. On one end was a view of the ship yard the card being perforated so that it could be detached and sent as a postal card. On the reverse side was a picture of the Japanese armored cruiser Ibuki which is fitted with two Curtis marine turbines built by the Fore River Co.

AMELIA ST. JEAN WAS MURDERED

Charge Against Hill Not Changed by District Attorney

A POSITIVE IDENTIFICATION

Mother and Aunt of Suit Case Victim Again View the Remains—Dramatic Meeting of Thibault and Girl's Father—Search For Head Continues Without Result—Charge Against Thibault Is Nol Prossed

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 23.—Mrs. Joseph St. Jean, the mother of Amelia St. Jean, and Mrs. Eva Lamoreux, the aunt of the girl, positively identified the remains of the suit case victim yesterday as those of the missing young woman.

This was done by means of marks and scars found on the body by Drs. Gunning and Magrath at the autopsy. The two women said that there was no doubt whatever that the body is that of Miss St. Jean.

"As a result of the second autopsy upon the dismembered body of Miss Amelia St. Jean we found no reason to change the charge of murder which has been made against Frank Hill."

This statement was made by District Attorney Swift after he had had a talk with Medical Examiner Gunning, Dr. George B. Magrath of Boston and the others associated with them, who found that Miss St. Jean died from violence and not from accident.

From what has been disclosed it is believed that it will be held by the medical examiners that the girl's throat was cut before she was dead and that she bled to death.

Joseph St. Jean was in conference with the police and while he was in the office of Marshal Fleet Wilfred Thibault, also held on a charge of murdering the girl, was brought face to face with the father of the victim.

It was a dramatic meeting. Thibault told the police and the girl's father that he was entirely innocent of any harm to Miss St. Jean and the police conferred for an hour as to fixing the responsibility of the crime.

In the hope of finding the head somewhere in or about the building in which "Dr." Hill's herb shop is located, the police, with a carpenter, have torn out practically all the walls inside and have had the back yard dug up. So far their efforts have been fruitless.

Neither have the efforts of people on the other side of the Rhode Island line to find the head been abated. Men and boys are still searching the woods and will continue to do so for several days if necessary.

Marshal Fleet has directed that "Dr." Hill's movements from the time he was called upon by Amelia St. Jean be traced and accounted for. He needs this evidence to submit at the hearing which will be given Hill next Monday.

It is now generally believed that when Thibault's case is called next Monday District Attorney Swift will recommend a nol prosse and that the chauffeur be released.

Convinced at last of the injustice of holding Thibault any longer, Acting Marshal Fleet held a conference last evening with Judge McDonough and consented that the murder charge should be nol prossed.

The chauffeur, whose ready admission that the stage-struck Woonsocket girl had confided her troubles to him resulted in his arrest, was released under his personal recognizance of $100 as a witness. The herb doctor will have to answer alone in court Monday, and Thibault is to be one of the government's principal witnesses against him.

COUNT BONI IN COURT

Asks That His Children Be Sent to Certain Boarding School

Paris, Oct. 23.—Count Boni de Castellane, having insisted that his former wife, who was Miss Anna Gould, place the three sons of the Castellane-Gould marriage in a certain boarding school, and Princess de Sagen having objected, on the ground that the health of the children made such a step inadvisable, the case got into court.

The count asked that the princess be ordered to comply with his wishes in the matter and further that the court provide a penalty for a neglect of its order in the shape of a settlement upon the children of $100 a day for each day that their mother kept them from the school.

The court promised a decision in the matter on Oct. 29.

Shook Poor Farm Inmate

Malden, Mass., Oct. 23.—Charles E. Gault, superintendent of the Wakefield town farm, was found guilty of assault and battery on an inmate of that institution, William O'Neil, aged 74. The case was continued till Jan. 1 for sentence.

REYES DROPS FROM SIGHT

Foul Play Is Openly Declared by Some of His Supporters

Mexico City, Oct. 23.—The biggest sensation in government official circles since the political unrest over the vice presidential campaign begun was caused by dispatches from Monterey stating that General Reyes, governor of the state of Nueovo Leon, who is alleged to be responsible for various attempts at revolutionary uprisings on the part of his ardent supporters, has disappeared.

GENERAL REYES.

The Reyes suporters are very much excited over the disappearance of their leader, some of them declaring openly that he has met with foul play. It is considered probable that in order to prevent heing held a prisoner in this city he is making his way overland to the United States border.

STEEL MEN WANT SECRETS GUARDED

Think Japanese Eyes May Be Opened Too Wide

Pittsburg, Oct. 23.—A party of seventy-five Japanese bankers, engineers, etc., who are now touring the United States and who will reach Pittsburg Nov. 4, and who expected to see much of the inside of the steel making here, will be disappointed. The United States Steel Corporation has sent word to its Pittsburg people that under no circumstances shall members of the Japanese party be permitted in certain parts of the big mills, nor shall any questions relating to the manufacture of iron and steel products be answered.

The argument is advanced that Japan is one of the biggest foreign patrons of the steel corporation and no chances are to be taken of members of this highly scientific party becoming familiar with any of the Pittsburg steel making secrets. There is intimation that the chamber of commerce may call off entirely the trip through the mills under these conditions.

DIED LIKE HIS MOTHER

Heart Disease Suddenly Carries Off Son of Senator Gallinger

New York, Oct. 23.—William M. Gallinger, a son of Senator Jacob H. Gallinger of New Hampshire, dropped dead from heart disease last night. He had acted as secretary for several years for his father and was 39 years old.

Mr. Gallinger returned with his father from abroad last Saturday. The senator left for his home in Concord on Wednesday and his son went to the home of Mrs. A. E. Johnson, a cousin, to spend a week. Last night after he had finished his dinner he went to lie down. Just as he reached his room he pitched forward across the bed and expired.

The senator's wife was taken ill from heart disease on Feb. 2, 1907, in the lobby of the Belasco theatre in Washington and died a few minutes after being stricken.

AUTOS SCARCE IN MEMPHIS

Plans For Parade In Honor of Taft Receive a Severe Jolt

Memphis, Oct. 23.—"This is an automobile age and we will have nothing but horseless vehicles in the parade." This is the ultimatum delivered by the secret service department to the chairman of the local committee arranging for the reception of President Taft on Oct. 27.

The change has created a sensation among some members of the smart set, who still stick to the old-fashioned open victorias and barouches as the proper caper on state occasions.

Automobile men say the parade may prove a frost because of the scarcity of machines.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

The Hub's Hot Dog Industry is Threatened—The Post Office Cats, Authorized by the Postmaster General, Will Have Field Day in Boston's Federal Building—Women Continue to Write the Congressmen for Other than Sentimental Reasons—Debutantes' Night Will be a Feature in the New Grand Opera Scheme—Don't Begin to Make "The City Beautiful" by Disfiguring it with Advertising Signs.

Should the City Beautiful be good looking? If so, then advertising signs on the facade of the old Museum of Fine Arts Building, where the forthcoming city planning exposition is to be held, are monumentally inept. The building itself has long been considered an ornament to one of the most beautiful public squares in this country but in the past few days it has been plastered over with signs, not especially well lettered, and in color quite inharmonious with their surroundings, which nearly cover the entire front. Citizens who were wont to pause and discourse on the beauties of the Square now hustle along, hoping in vain that the disfiguring placards may escape their attention.

Debutantes' night will be a novel institution in the musical world, when the Boston Opera Company begins its season early in November. One night of each week will be set aside on which young American aspirants for fame will be heard. Candidates for honors in the opera company will be selected from all over the country, thus stimulating the interest and stirring the ambitions of those who dream of sometime being operatic stars. The Boston Opera Company in this way becomes an educational institution to a degree never before attained by any American opera company, adding another feature to the already notable reputation that the Hub enjoys as the leadings musical centre of this continent.

The Editorial Review, one of the later New York periodicals which is attracting considerable attention, contains in its October number a comparison by a Boston writer between the old age pension plans which are in operation in old England and New England. The article is by Frederick W. Coburn, Field Secretary of the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League which is conducting a campaign of education in the effort to encourage individual initiative and thrift through the opportunities for insurance and annuities offered by the savings banks in cooperation with the Commonwealth. Mr. Coburn has made a thorough study of compulsory and voluntary pension systems in Europe and in this country, and has been connected with the Massachusetts Savings Insurance League since its inception in 1906. The article in the Editorial Review brings out many points of interest to wage earners and salaried workers, and indicates the difficulties which would arise from such a socialistic plan in this country as is in operation in England.

It is rather rough on rats and other ornaments, but they must go, according to the latest edict in one of the biggest stores in Chicago. Report says that a woman censor is employed now for the sole purpose of eliminating all unnecessary adornment—and even some that seems quite necessary—from the attire of the women employees. Every kind of hair ornament is tabooed. One pictures the startling result with a sense of awe. Sleeves must be just so, neither short nor "too long." Shiny noses will doubtless reduce the cost of illumination in the various departments, for powder is in the minus list. Jewelry and pads go hand in hand to the tall timbers, while peek-a-boo waists are replaced by simple black or white ones, accompanied by black skirts. It is unlikely that such stringent rules will ever be applied in Boston stores, for with a few inevitable exceptions the saleswomen of the Hub are notably neat, seldom falling prey to the exaggerated styles of the passing hour. The visitor in the Boston department stores is struck with the air of refinement and education which pervades the establishments, and the simplicity and good taste apparent in the method of dress adopted by the majority of girls.

Correspondence with congressmen has been proved a useful if not exactly sentimental proceeding by so many women that it has become little short of a popular referendum. The passage of pure food legislation a few years ago, against the opposition of powerful interests, was undoubtedly due to the deluge of letters and telegrams from women's organizations with which Senators and Representatives at Washington found themselves overwhelmed. Just now a movement has been started to let the men at the national capital who are paid salaries for representing their constituents understand that the plain people are in favor of postal savings banks and of a parcels post system. Here is an opportunity for all New England women who believe that thrift should be encouraged in this country to get into communication with their congressman. Drop him a line. Make it dignified and courteous, but let him understand that it is the business of a man who is paid five thousand dollars a year to consider the interests of his constituents first, last and all the time, whatever may be the wishes of a little coterie of New York bankers and express company presidents.

Weird tales of the havoc raised by rats in Boston's Federal Building are the outcome of the report that Postmaster-General Hitchcock has authorized the purchase of cats for the various post office buildings throughout the country. These tales are accompanied by expressions of joy and thanksgiving, for life has for long been a burden to those who are daily employed in the post office. Over three hundred rates have been killed there during the last six months, but the ranks do not seem to be perceptibly thinned. It is said that the rodents are so large that when they enter a room many of the employees take them at a half-glance to be dogs or cats and pay no attention to them. Mr. Manning, official custodian of the traps which are scattered profusely throughout the building, complains that not only do the rats eat the binding off all his books but that he cannot take a nap without having eight or ten grandfathers come out and eat pieces off his boots. Considering the damage done to book bindings and papers, to say nothing of the feminine nerves in the establishment, the $1350 which the Postmaster-General has set aside for the purchase and keep of their exterminators seems by far the least expensive course.

Fear is in the hearts of the Hub's night lunch purveyors and consumers of their delicacies. From a nearby city comes the report that the board of health is insisting on such strict interpretation of the sanitary laws that it will be necessary for the lunch cart proprietors to charge ten cents for a hot dog, ten cents for a cup of coffee, and similar increases in pie and other food served on a plate and with a fork, in order to cover their expenses. Here is a fearsome outlook for the cold, hungry man who has been "working in the office" all the evening and has to wait for the one o'clock car to Suburbantown. It may be fearsome, too, for the gay crowd of young people on their way home from a dance, and the many other night-owls who patronize the hot dog man and the night lunch cart. One recalls a group of four standing in a doorway in Adams Square, waiting for a car one bitter cold night. Two opera-cloaked, satin-slippered young ladies blissfully made away with triangles of hot apple pie, eaten from their daintily gloved fingers, while their escorts with equal avidity did honor to the traditional hot dog and another. At ten cents per it may be necessary to cut out the other one.

Between Two Fires.

She was desperately gone on them both, and she couldn't think which one to choose. It was rather perplexing, no doubt, for one she was bound to refuse.

She gazed at them both in despair, quite puzzled to know what to do. As soon as she thought about one she cared for the other one too.

They still remained under her gaze, little recking the trouble they brought. It really was hard to decide. They were both so delightful, she thought.

She couldn't say which one she'd have; her efforts fell hopelessly flat.

It's really exceedingly hard selecting a new autumn hat.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

IRELAND'S DAY NEAR AT HAND

Home Rule Only a Question of Time, Says "Tay Pay"

FIGHT OVER BRITISH BUDGET

Upon the Outcome Depends the Hopes of Irish Parliamentary Party—Must Have Financial Assistance From American Friends to Hold Representation In Parliament—Era of Prosperity In the Emerald Isle

New York, Oct. 23.—Thomas P. O'Connor, the Irish parliamentary leader, known among his intimates and to his Liverpool constituency as "Tay Pay," arrived by the Cunarder Lusitania. O'Connor has much of the external aspect of an Englishman, perhaps because he has been representing a Liverpool district continuously for the last twenty-four years, but he has as fine a brogue as ever came out of Athlone, his birthplace. He was greeted at the pier by several members of the United Irish League of America and escorted to the Hoffman House, where he held a reception last evening.

Mr. O'Connor said that the object of his mission was to raise funds for the next general election. "Most Americans," he said, "do not know that the floor of the house of commons is the heart of the British empire. I am convinced that this is the chance for Ireland. The Irish in America, and the Americans themselves, have always responded liberally to our appeals in crises, and I believe this to be one. We want at least to hold our representation in parliament. Some have an impression that if we are properly equipped and assisted by our American friends, our representation of eighty-one may be increased by a member from South Dublin and one from Londonderry."

Mr. O'Connor said that much depended, from the standpoint of the house rulers, on the action of the house of lords on the budget.

"The effect of the rejection of the budget would give the Liberals at the next general election a majority that would be not only for the budget but also for the reform of the house of lords. The Liberals would not go before the country on the subject of the budget only, but would advocate a suspensory instead of an absolute veto power for the lords.

"The Liberals declare that the house of lords has no right to touch the budget; that it is trying to take away from the people the right to dispose of their money and put it into the hands of an unrepresentative and irresponsible body. If the budget should not pass we might count on home rule perhaps after three years.

"It is my impression that it will pass, however, which makes our problem more difficult. The lords may desire to defy the wishes of the people, but it is not improbable that the prime minister may go to the king and he may intervene. The first measure after the adoption of the budget will be home rule.

"If the lords accept the budget home rule will be deferred. It will take us a little longer to get it through. Whether the budget is passed or not there will be a general election soon and we want America to help us support our Irish legislators, who have to spend many weeks in England without pay. Whatever happens to the budget we ought to hold the balance of power in the house of commons so as to get home rule from the party holding the reins of government. We have with us the Laborites, who now number fifty-three. Every Labor member may be said to be as much of a home ruler as the Irish themselves.

"The present Liberal majority in the house of commons is a freak. In the event of a new election, providing the budget is passed, the majority would be reduced considerable. The actual working force of the house is very small, compared with the membership of more than 600. The great number that does not attend the sessions is an unknown quantity. They are called 'backwoodsmen' and there is no knowing what they may do when they appear."

Mr. O'Connor said that Ireland had never been so prosperous as she is now, considered from the viewpoint of an agriculturalist.

A BISMARCK STORY.

Playing the Role of Cousin Was Just to His Liking.

In his university days Bismarck was as jolly and boisterous as the least promising youth of his generation. According to the author of "The M. P. For Russia," he enjoyed dancing and singing better than study and was as full of fun as his chosen companion, Count Keyserling, was deficient in it, and on this difference in temperament hangs a tale.

One day the shy and reserved Keyserling came to Bismarck in great agitation.

"What is the matter?" demanded Bismarck.

"My mother writes that an aunt and two cousins are coming for a week to Berlin, and, as they are very young and inexperienced, I must go about everywhere with them, offering them all sorts of amusements. It is most annoying," groaned Keyserling, "as I have to prepare myself for examinations and have no time for pretty country cousins."

Bismarck saw his chance and immediately inquired:

"Have you ever seen these young girls? Have they ever seen you?"

"Never in my life."

"Capital! Nothing could be better. Let me be Count Keyserling for the time being, and you become simple Bismarck. You stay at home, and I shall become a first class cicerone during all the time of their visit."

Keyserling eagerly accepted the proposition. When the young ladies arrived, Bismarck met them as Keyserling and placed himself at their disposition during their stay in Berlin. Keyserling buried himself in his books and thought no more about it until the girls had gone home to the Baltic provinces.

A week or two later he was disconcerted by receiving a letter from home in which his mother expressed her great delight in hearing from the young ladies and their mother how immensely they had enjoyed themselves and how very agreeable and kind their cousin had been.

"I am overjoyed," continued the fond parent, "to hear from their description that you have grown quite stout and robust during your stay at Berlin."

A COOK'S CREST.

The Decoration Worn by a Pompous Persian Chef.

A quaint story from Persia is given in a book by Mr. James. The author had missed from his saddle the brass plate inscribed with the maker's name, Souter, and was wrath at his loss, since the name went for much in the judgment of the east.

"One day," he says, "I was sitting in my favorite teashop with my friend Hassan Ali, discussing as usual England's perfidy in abandoning north Persia to Russian machinations, when a most dignified Persian entered the auberge. He was preceded by a well groomed boy carrying his dust coat. The Persian bowed to me with great civility and passed into an inner apartment. As both man and boy bore burnished gilt crests upon their tall astrakhan hats I took them to be public functionaries of no small importance.

"'Who was that, Hassan Ali?' I asked. 'I do not remember having seen him before, yet evidently he recognized me.'

"'That,' said my friend, with his small, beady eyes twinkling, 'is your cook—yes!'

"'My cook!' I answered in astonishment. 'I took him to be at least the governor's chief of staff.'

"'Well, he is your chief of staff, which to him seems a higher degree—yes!' And Hassan Ali smiled his inimitable smile.

"'But what in the name of good conscience is the impertinence that he wears upon his hat?'

"'That must be your crest. It is a badge of yours!'

"'On my honor, Hassan Ali, you must not make fun of me! I have given the man no crest, and I have never set eyes on him before!'

"'I have seen the badge!' Hassan Ali continued. 'It is undoubtedly your own. It has the motto "Souter," which is doubtless the old heraldic contraction for the word souteneur, and also the subtitle, "By royal appointment" —yes!'"

It was, of course, the missing saddle plate, which the ingenious cook had "conveyed" as a heraldic decoration.

A Quincy citizen tells here the way to keep the kidneys well.
Mrs. George McDonald, 133 1-2 Quincy Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have more faith in Doan's Kidney Pills than in any other remedy I have ever known of and it gives me great pleasure to publicly recommend them. For at least six months I was feeling all out of sorts as the result of kidney trouble. I became tired easily and had but little strength or energy to do my housework. Pains through the small of my back annoyed me a great deal. A friend, knowing of my condition, advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug store. A short time after beginning their use, I was helped and I now feel like a different person."

In the Rose Garden.

By VIRGINIA BLAIR.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

It was on the third night of the new moon that Beverly Alden, musing on his sermon in the darkness of his study, beheld from the window something white moving in his garden.

As the Rev. Beverly's garden was a vegetable garden, he thought fearfully of something sinfully trampling on his succulent salads, and he rose hastily. Standing just behind the window shutter, he decided, however, that a horse would be shorter, a dog taller, and he did not believe in ghosts.

He went into the hall, took his hat from the rack and stepped softly over the threshold.

As his footsteps sounded on the gravel of the path the white object moved from the middle of the garden and fled. He heard the click of the gate and then silence.

"Hum!" mused the Rev. Beverly and bent over his lettuce bed. "A thief," he said as he straightened up.

The next morning a fuller investigation showed that there had been depredations of onions and radishes. But the minister said nothing to his housekeeper. Common thieves did not come garbed in white, nor were they of slender outline and graceful.

The Rev. Beverly had no unusual powers of penetration, but it had not taken him many moments to decide that the spoiler of his garden was a woman.

"But why"—he debated the next night as he finished his sermon—"why should a woman steal—a lady, I am sure, by the grace of her carriage—why should she steal my little onions and my lettuce?"

But all the wisdom of the Scriptures did not answer his question. And after his sermon was finished he again turned out his light and sat in the darkness of his study.

And again, as he mused, he saw a patch of white at the end of the garden. Breathless he watched, and closer and closer came the ghostly figure until it stood just beneath his window.

Then a voice said, "I have come to pay you for the vegetables."

"Oh!" His usual readiness of speech had forsaken the clergyman. "Oh, I beg your pardon!"

"No, you needn't beg it," the voice said again. "I picked some lettuce and things last night, and here is the money. It wasn't a very conventional way to go to market, but we wanted a salad, and"—

The Rev. Beverly, peering over the sill, caught the sparkle in her eyes as she made her half apology.

"You needed your salad late," he said dryly.

"Ah"—her little laugh rippled out—"think of my predicament! Some people came from the city hungry, and there was nothing in the house but eggs. You see, I am such a new housekeeper—we came only yesterday—and Susanne, my maid, forgets to tell me when things are out, and the shops are so far away—so, while she made an omelet I flew into your garden—and—and flew back and no one was the wiser."

"I saw you," the Rev. Beverly informed her, "and I thought you were a thief."

"Oh!" There was a little gasp. "It did look like it, didn't it? But, you see, I have brought the money." And the silver glittered on the sill as she spread it out before him.

"No," the Rev. Beverly protested; "you are perfectly welcome to anything you care to take."

"Oh, but you must"—there was a note of alarm in her voice—"because I should feel as if I had stolen if I am not allowed to pay."

He was smiling down at her. "You can pay me by giving me a rose from your garden," he said.

"Why don't you have roses of your own?" she demanded.

He sighed. "I hardly dare allow myself the luxury. It is cheaper to raise one's vegetables than to buy them, and a clergyman in a small town has to think of expenses."

"I suppose," doubtfully, "that your salary is not large?"

"No, but there are donations." His eyes twinkled.

"Such as roses?" She was laughing up at him. The moonlight touched her hair with gold. The pulses of the Rev. Beverly began to beat.

"May I come over some time and walk with you in your rose garden?" he asked.

"Come now," was the quick response.

He went, and it was the beginning of friendship.

"He is lovely," Constance confided to her aunt, who had come up to her niece's colonial mansion for the purposes of chaperonage. "And he's here in this little town because he feels that he is needed more than in a city charge where he could get much more money."

"Constance," her aunt warned, "don't get romantic over a country parson."

"He has the dearest little cottage," Constance mused, "with a vegetable garden. He sends over tomatoes and parsley, and I put roses in his buttonhole. It's very interesting," she sighed.

"It may be tragic for him."

"Why?"

"If you make him love you—what then?"

"Well?" Constance's tone was defiant.

"You can't marry any one but Warren Olmstead."

"Constance's eyes flashed. 'I can too! If I don't marry Warren, I merely lose my inheritance. I don't deny that I love this old house, Aunt Anne. But did it ever occur to you that I might prefer a man to a fortune?"

"You would miss the fortune," was the quiet answer. "You were not made for love in a cottage, Constance."

But Constance was down the path. She bent over a pink rose bush and picked a bud just as the Rev. Beverly Alden came in.

"'Roses red and violets blue,'" she quoted. "Can you tell me the rest of it?"

"'If you love me as I love you.'" He hesitated. "You mustn't make me say such things."

"Why not?"

"Because I have nothing to offer you but a cottage and a vegetable garden." He was looking down at her with somber eyes.

"And if I don't marry one Warren Olmstead," she informed him, "I lose my fortune. And I won't marry him, so I am really homeless—and—please, I'd like to come and live in your cottage."

Aunt Anne's chagrin over the engagement found an outlet in a letter to Warren Olmstead. "Come up and rescue Constance from her country parson," was the theme.

But when Warren's answer came it was a revelation.

"Of all things!" Aunt Anne ejaculated when she had read it.

"What's the matter?" Constance asked.

"Read that," said Aunt Anne tragically.

It was a brief epistle, but it was very extraordinary, no doubt, for Constance danced with joy and waved the letter, crying "Hurrah!"

"Of all things!" Aunt Anne ejaculated again.

Constance caught her breath quickly. "You mustn't tell Beverly," she said.

"Why not?"

"He won't marry," Constance said mysteriously, "if he knows it."

So they were married quietly and went to live in the cottage, and Aunt Anne went home, and the big colonial house was closed, and the winter came, and the roses were wrapped in winding sheets of straw.

"You will miss the rose garden next summer," said the parson as he and his wife walked up the snowy path. "I wonder who will live here then?"

"The new tenants," said Constance, who, wrapped in a big red cloak, was leaning on her husband's arm, "are lively. There will be a young clergyman, a very handsome young clergyman, and a very, very loving little wife. Beverly"—

"Constance!" He bent down over her.

"The house is mine. Warren wrote to say that he loved some one else. He married first and forfeited his right, and I didn't want to tell you because you hated to have me rich. But don't you think it will be nice—for—for Beverly junior to—to play in the rose garden, dearest?"

Love's Language.

It was the morning of that fearsome, uncertain day on which the bonds were to be made fast, where a tiny path yet leads back, when each tries to peer into the future and wonders and doubts and hesitates.

They were alone, and she drew near him, aware and watchful.

"Harold, dearest, in a few hours it will all be over. Can you grasp it all? But did you dream of me last night?"

"Yes, ownest. I saw you as a black, marvelous swan, drifting placidly all alone on a mirrored lake, with here and there a flat, floating leaf. And then I, a humble, joyous swan, too, began to float out to you. And my soul took fire, dearest, and I thrilled all over as you swung superbly around, and I wished to be a poet, with a living, passionate pen, and I wished myself an earth god and that a raging wind would swoop down upon you that I might seize you in my arms and defy the storm god. And I could smell sweet incense and hear the tinkling of innumerable bells and could feel the delirium of a burning heart, and again I wished to be a poet that I might sing"—

"But, Harold, do you really love me?"

He paused, breathed deep and poured out his soul. "Yes, dearest, I think you are it."

And then she held up her vibrant lips, confident, satisfied.—Puck.

Soliloquy of the Engagement Ring.

I am considered a brilliant success in literature, though many people accuse me of plagarism, the popular criticism of my work being "that old, old story."

It is a pity I am so bright, however, considering the conversations I have to listen to every evening. Last night he remarked sixty-five times, "I love you so, dear," and sixty-five times she replied, "Do you, dear?"

He tells them all "I love you as man never loved before." Isn't he clever to find so many new ways of doing something so old?

Personally I can see no difference in his methods myself.

They held on to me with both hands last evening, but I insisted upon cutting them.

The man and I can always get around a pretty girl.

The man owes all his happiness to me. Only through my influence is he able to hold her hands in his and taste the sweetness of her lips, yet already has he forgotten me in his longing for a wedding ring.

Men are so ungrateful, but I will bide my time. Methinks I will soon be avenged.

I am the "best seller" on the market. —Puck.

THE BIGGER LEDGER.

After a few weeks of anticipation it looks as though the question of a bigger Ledger would soon be solved. On Wednesday the 13th the big new Duplex press was shipped from Battle Creek, Michigan, and although some might not consider that a luckly date it came through remarkably quick, arriving in less than a week. An expert is on the way from Battle Creek to set it up as it came in packing boxes a car being necessary to hold all the parts. It will take several days to set the press up ready to print so that it will be after Nov. 1st before the 8-page Ledger will make its bow to the public.

Almost from the start the editors have wished to put out an 8-page Ledger but the activities of the city did not seem to demand it and the paper has drifted along being always reliable and newsy if small. Its reputation for clean home news and fairness to all has made it a popular paper with the whole family and it consequently has a large subscription list as well as transient subscribers.

The late proprietor, George W. Prescott visited several offices and inspected presses preparatory to further equipping the Ledger office. The past year having been prosperous, the paper steadily increasing in circulation and advertising space being more in demand than could be accommodated the time seemed ripe to carry out the wishes of Mr. Prescott, the only regret being that he could not have lived to see the press installed.

A press printing, trimming and folding over 5,000 eight-page papers an hour wil lenable us to put out a creditable paper and one the city will be proud of.

That is a good move on the part of the New York Y. M. C. A. in establishing a class to teach men to speak in public. It requires considerable courage to face an audience and inexperienced speakers suffer untold agony.

Lynn business men are taking a hand in civic matters and have organized for the purpose of demanding better school facilities for their children.

Lincoln pennies are still in demand the coinage having reached 70,000,000. The old Indian head pennies are gradually disappearing as they are being returned to the mint for recoinage.

The woman's suffrage cause has received recognition at Richmond one of its suburbs Ginter Park having granted voting privileges to men and women over twenty-one, who subscribe to the constitution and by laws. This is the first place in the South to grant the franchise to women.

Towns must be cheap in the West when one man can buy a whole town at public auction as was the case with Shipton, Kansas the other day.

Mayor Woods of Somerville was seventy years old Friday and received congratulations all day at his office. In the evening a large reception was given at his home every one in the city being invited to attend.

Governor Draper showed his interest in the new Y. M. C. A. building for Boston by a check for $1000; a substantial interest.

ANNUAL DANCE.

Bryant A. C. Annual Party, at A. O. H. Hall.

The Bryant A. C. held its annual dance in A. O. H. hall last evening. Over 75 couples were on the floor at one time, and many more in the gallery.

The members of the club left the club house on Copeland street and marched down to the hall with "A Mutt" and "Little Jeff" leading the parade. A Mutt was George McKeon and Little Jeff, James Tomollett.

From 8 till 9 was an informal reception, at 9 they started the grand march which Mutt and Little Jeff lead.

Frank Shannon a well known clog dancer gave a few lively steps which were loudly applauded by every one present.

The officer of the dance were Floor director James Tomollett; assistant director William Buckley; aids, William Barron, William Buckley, James O'Brien, Hugh Hunter, Joseph Farrell, George McKean, B. J. Flaherty.

The officers of the club are:
President—James Tomollett.
Vice President William Buckley.
Secretary—William Barron.
Treasurer—William Belanger.

Following are the members of the club:—Hugh Hunter, William O'Brien, Ambrose Joyce, B. J. Flaherty, James Taylor, Joseph Farrell, Joseph O'Brien, Joseph Forde, Charles Buckley, Ray Miller, John Toughlin, Joseph O'Rouke, Peter Kerr, T. J. Croin, George McKeon, James Fitzgerald.

CURRENT EVENTS CLASS.

Mrs. Charles Bickford, chairman, of the Art and Literature committee of the Quincy Women's club is arranging a class on current events to be given at the clubhouse the second Thursday of each month. The classes will be by Mrs. May Alden Ward and there will be six lessons. Club members may join the class on the payment of $1.00, and non members may have the privilege for $1.50. Those desirous of joining are asked to send their names on or before the next club meeting Oct. 26 to Mrs. Bickford, 1186 Hancock street, Quincy.

JARDINE—GILLIS.

A pretty wedding took place at East Milton, Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rennie of Adams street, the bride being Miss Christie Gillis and the groom John Jardine of Horton place, Milton. Rev. Mr. Hardy of the East Milton church officiated. The bridesmaid was Miss Jessie Gillis, sister of the bride and the groom's brother Joseph Jardine acted as best man.

The bride's gown was of white embroidery and lace with trimmings of white satin and she carried a bouquet of bride roses and maiden hair ferns. The bridesmaid wore a white lingerie gown.

There were many gifts among them a large buffet from the groom's shopmates at the Fore River.

Mr. and Mrs. Jardine are to reside in this city on Kendrick avenue where they will be at home to their friends after November first.

VESPER SERVICE.

A vesper service will be held at the Wollaston Congregational church at 4 o'clock on Sunday when the works and life of Dudley Buck will be given with the following musical program:

☞Again as in the past four years, the music committee of the Milton Education Society announces a series of three concerts. These will be in the Town Hall on the evenings of Monday, October 25, Thursday, March 29th, and a date in January. Following its former policy ,the committee has engaged artists who are by general consent in the highest rank. Last year this policy brought M. Gilibert, the preeminent master of diction and singer of French lyrics. This year it will bring Dr. Wullner for the first concert, Mme. Olga Samaroff for the second, and the Flonzaley quartet for the last.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS

Food Fair.

The coming week will offer the final opportunities for a visit to the World's Greatest Food Fair and Home Furnishing Exposition in the vast Mechanics Building on Huntington Avenue, Boston for it closes on Saturday night the 30th instant. Every visitor of the thousands who have been to the Fair of this year, is unanimous and enthusiastic in his praise of the Exposition and its wondrous detail of magnificent exhibits, decorations and entertainments. Mechanics Building has been transferred to a city of rare delights where one can spend a day, or several days in unalloyed enjoyment in seeing and studying the displays, listening to the music and going from entertainment to entertainment all of the best and all free to every patron of the Fair. Among the attractions are the celebrated Bostonia Woman's Orchestra, of fifty young ladies, led by Mlle Yeaton Renfrew. J. W. Gorman's old time circus offering a fine program of acrobatic and equestrian acts and a lot of fun-making clowns, moving pictures. All of the attractions of the Fair are free and to the first 1,000 ladies purchasing tickets between 10 and 11 o'clock every morning is presented a very pretty souvenir.

Keith's Theatre.

Von Biene, who has long been recognized as the greatest cellist in the world, like a good many others who have attained the leading place in their profession, has other ambitions which he is endeavoring to realize, and in fact has realized, at his rather advanced age. When he returned to this country a month or so ago for a tour on the Keith circuit he arranged with one of the most prominent dramatic writers for a sketch in which he would appear as a leading character and introduce his cello solos. The character of a poor music teacher appealed to him and the sketch was written around this idea. It has been meeting with unprocedented success aside from the wonderful playing of the master musician and will be seen for the first time in Boston at Keiths next week. This occasion will also be notable as the last appearance of Annette Kellermann, the Water Queen, who will complete her remarkably successful engagement of four weeks and as this will probably be the last opportunity to see Miss Kellerman as a diver, unusual interest has been aroused.

Castle Square Theatre.

At the Castle Square next week, the John Craig Stock Company will appear for the first time in a grand production of Shakespeare's famous tragedy of "Hamlet." The stage settings and costumes will be elaborate, and Mr. Craig promises that every detail of the presentation will be complete. "Hamlet" has not been given for some eight years at the Castle Square, and the demand for its revival has been insistant, as has also been the desire to give the John Craig Stock Company still further opportunity to test its versatility in passing directly from musical comedy to tragedy. Rehearsals have been going on for several weeks past, and there is no exaggeration in the statement that Mr. Craig and his players will give as fine a series of performances of "Hamlet" as has ever been seen in Boston. There is, of course, no need to describe "Hamlet." One of the greatest of the great English dramatist's plays, and one of the greatest dramas ever written, it is certain to attract a multitude of people who never neglect an opportunity to see Shakespeare on the stage. The title role will be played by Mr. Craig, his first appearance in its for several seasons, and the Ophelia will be Mary Young who will make her debut in that character.

Boston Theatre.

The story of the tremendous success of Jos. M. Gaites production of "Three Twins" at the Boston Theatre is best told by the capacity audiences that witness every performance of this very entertaining musical comedy. In every feature it has proven itself to be the representative of the best that light musical authors, composers and producers have put before the public. With a well defined plot to work on, Mr. Dickerson has woven real comedy lines and situations that make instant appeal to the risibilities of the theatregoers in search of amusement. The action is brisk and one of the most gratifying features of the presentation is the keen interest which every member of the organization shows in his or her work. Of the song hits, the most important is "Yama Yama." Not only does Bessie McCoy introduce in this instance the best of her eccentric dances, but the chorus of Pierrots and Dancing Chairs execute figures that are marvels of stage groupings. The numerous mechanical effects, which many think are introduced to give the audience a chance to gain its breath during the whirlwind of laughter, all bear the stamp of novelty.

American Music Hall.

The always welcome Scotch comedian, Harry Lauder will return and begin his engagement at the American Music Hall next Monday. Mr. Lauder has been termed a "miracle of vaudeville" and this seems to be about the best possible way of describing him. Without any doubt he is the world's greatest entertainer, but whether this is due to his clever selection of songs and characterizations or to his marvelous personality no one has been able to say. The fact that he is the most imitated man on the stage and the fact also that no imitator has yet succeeded in doing him justice would seem to be a point in favor of his personality. It is the seemingly unfathomable secret of his success which has caused him to be termed a miracle. During his present engagement which will last two weeks he will introduce several new songs and characterizations. His old favorites, however, including "She is My Daisy," "I Love A Lassie" etc will not be neglected and some of them will be presented at every performance. Surrounding Mr. Louder on the bill will be an aggregation of stars the like of which are seldom seen on any vaudeville bill. Among them will be Rafayette's dogs, who because of their enormous success during this present week have been held over for another week. These dogs are marvels of canine intelligence and appear to be able to do everything a man can do except talk. The Marimba Band, will be another pleasing attraction for music lovers. This music is said to be the sweetest in the world, at any rate it is the only act of its kind in the world. There will be plenty of laughs in the original playlet of Estelle Wordette and company entitled "A Honeymoon In the Catskills." Ventriloquism seems to be very popular in Boston just now and for this reason J. W. Winton the renowned Australian artist is due to score heavily with his "McGinty From Australis." The balance of the bill will include Bruno, Kramer Trio, Europe's sensational gymnasts, Josie McIntyre character singing comedienne and other star features.

Hollis Street Theatre.

The fourth and final week of William Collier's engagement in "The Patriot" at the Hollis Street theatre, Boston, begins on Monday ,and on the following Saturday night the most successful Boston engagement the popular comedian has ever enjoyed will terminate. William Collier's advent at "The Hub" is always the signal for rejoicing. There is no other star on the stage today who occupies the warm spot in the hearts of theatregoers as does William Collier. This position was gained on merit. The public knows that no matter what his comedy may be, it is a good one. During his long career under the management of Charles Frohman he has never appeared in a play that did not create a standard of excellence. "The Patriot" is one of ,if not the best farce Mr. Collier has yet played. Its humor is pure, its situations natural and its comedy clean and wholesome, while the supporting company with which the star has surrounded himself is far above the average. The peculiarity of the Boston run at the Hollis Street theatre is the number of people from the adjacent cities present at every performance, particularly at the the Wednesday and Saturday matinees. Mr. Collier's reputation is world-wide and those from the surrounding points on pleasure bent are quick to take the advantage his local visit affords them.

ELECT OFFICERS.

Cape Catboat Association Hold Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Cape Catboat association was held in Quincy Friday evening and these officers were elected:

President—Frank F. Crane.
Vice President—F. F. Carpenter.
Secretary—Dr. Frank E. Dawes.
Measurer—Ralph E. Winslow.
Directors—W. W. Arnold, W. J. Coombs, Herbert W. Robbins and Ira M. Whittemore.

It was voted to sail the boats next season without the jib as during the past season and not to sail in races north of Marblehead or south of Hull and Hingham.

A communication was received from the Buzzards Bay catboat association, asking the local association to send delegates to a conference at Newport, which is to be attended by delegates from the Barnegat Bay and Great South Bay Cape catboat associations, with a view to arrange for races next summer in Barnegat bay. Frank F. Crane and Herbert W. Robbins were appointed delegates.

Ira M. Whittemore was appointed a delegate to the Y. R. A. of Massachusetts. An amendment to the rules was adopted as follows: "The minimum headroom in the clear, under the cabin trunk beams, over the cabin floor for a space including the centerboard caseing, not less than 3 feet wide and 6 feet long for boats 24 feet water line and over, and 3 feet wide and 5 feet long for boats 24 feet water line, shall be not less than 2 1-4 inches for every foot of load water line length."

It was voted to have the annual dinner in March and Herbert W. Robbins and Fred H. Smith were appointed to arrange for the affair.

GRAND SCOTTISH CONCERT.

There will be a grand Scottish concert under the auspices of the great prize winning Fore River athletic club held in the Music hall, Quincy, on Wednesday at 8 P. M. prompt when the following artists are expected to take part: J. M. Hamilton, World's Greatest Scottish Tenor. The Caruso of Scottish Song. Miss Bethune Grigor, Soprano. Scotland's Prima Donna. First visit to America. (Late of Carl Rosa Opera Company.) J. A. Cassels, Scotia's Funniest Humorist. Fun without vulgarity. Costume and Evening Dress. Miss E. Forbes, Solo Pianist and Accompanist-Brilliant. Miss Martha and Master James Robertson, Dancers.

All the above artists are the very best that can be had and any one who misses this concert will miss a big treat. J. M. Hamilton was easily admitted to be the finest tenor singer that ever was in Music hall when he sang there last May and the company he has brought with him this time is far better than the last. Then in addition there will be the far-famed Robertson Highland dancers from Sommerville, who will be well worth seeing. Tickets are all 50 cents each and may be had at Cox Drug store, Adams building, or from any of the Athletic club, or at Hall door on the evening of the concert.

DINNER TO CHAIRMEN.

The Norfolk club will give a reception and dinner today at the Parker House, Boston, to the candidates for state office and all the chairmen, secretaries and treasurers of the town and city Republican committees will be entertained. Governor Louis A. Frothingham will address the meeting. The dinner was at 1 o'clock today and besides the guests mentioned there will be several other prominent politicians in the state present.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION OF QUINCY, MASS.
(Legal Title-Incorporated 1892.)

The Directors of the Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy, with a firm faith in the great value of the work which is being done for the young men and boys of our city, make their appeal for donations and bequests toward paying the mortgage indebtedness on the new Association Building. When the building is free from debt it will serve as an endowment, as there is a goodly income from the dormitories.

Should the Donor prefer, such sum as might be given could be used as an Endowment for an educational class or classes, the Boys' Department, or as a special fund in other ways, and could be designated with the name of the Donor.

The Treasurer, WILLIAM F. CUMMINGS, 7 Clive Street, Quincy, or the General Secretary, ERNEST G. GAY, will be happy to answer inquiries.

OUR HOSPITAL
(Legal Title: City Hospital of Quincy)
Incorporated 1889

The Trustees of the City Hospital of Quincy earnestly appeal for donations and bequests for the Endowment fund. This now amounts to over $60,000 but a fund of at least $100,000 is urgently needed.

Five Thousand Dollars ($5,000) will endow a Free Bed to which such name may be given as the Donor may desire, but any sum for this noble institution which stands ready to serve us all in the hour of need, will be most gratefully received.

The Treasurer will be very glad to confer with any one or to answer any inquiries.

RALSTON SHOES are so constructed as to preserve the natural tread line of the foot regardless of the style of the shoe. In other words you can select the style of toe which best pleases your fancy with the knowledge that you are not sacrificing comfort for style.

Your feet will take as naturally to a pair of RALSTON SHOES as a duck takes to water—no cramping; no breaking in Ralstons; for they are foot-moulded when in process of manufacture.

If your feet bother you—wear RALSTON SHOES. Let us show you the styles we carry.

AVAILABLE TIMBER.

A correspondent in Friday's Ledger urged several prominent business men to become candidates for the office of Councilmen from Ward One. The communication stated that Councilmen Abele and Whiton were to retire this year. This morning however it developed that Councilman Whiton is not to retire but that he will be a candidate for reelection. Of the gentlemen mentioned in the communication two were seen this morning, Clarence Burgin and G. B. Bates. Mr. Burgin said that he was too busy and was attempting to get out of some of his business affairs rather than to add new duties. Mr. Bates said that he never shirked his duty but that he was too independent to be elected. Of the other gentlemen mentioned none could be found this morning to answer for themselves.

COCHATO CLUB, BRAINTREE.

The winter schedule of club entertainments has not been sent out but the course opened most favorably last evening, the talent being the Misses Turner, in unpublished Negro songs of the old south; Mr. Ralph Smalley, 'cellist, of the Boston Symphony orchestra; Nina Bearce Wilbur, reader and impersonator; Miss Irene Osborne pianist and accompanist. Mr. Smalley gave three numbers on the program, each selection receiving the closest attention. The Misses Turner were delightful in their Negro songs and were enthusiastically applauded. Miss Wilbur proved a charming reader. A large number of the male members of the club were absent attending the Citizens' caucus and other important gatherings, but the attendance at the concert was large. H. R. Drinkwater, under whose management the entertainment was given, is entitled to credit for his endeavors.

Next week the tournament bowling of the Cochato Club will be as follows: Wednesday evening—Teams 1, 4 and 7. Thursday evening—Teams 3, 6 and 9. Friday evening—Teams 2, 5 and 8.

SAFEGUARDING LIFE OF CZAR

Lane of Soldiers Stretches From Lividia to Racconigi

FOUR NATIONS CONTRIBUTE

Railroads In Russia, Germany France and Italy Fairly Swarm With Men Whose Duty It Is to See That No Harm Befalls Russian Ruler While on His Visit to King of Italy

Rome, Oct. 23.—No traveling sovereign ever had such a vast escort as is now safeguarding the czar in his journey from Lividia to Racconigi, where he will meet King Victor Emmanuel today. Four great European armies have been laid under contribution in order that the czar may not be annoyed by hostile demonstrations or victimized by prowling anarchists.

Russian troops, as usual, formed an unbroken line along the railway from Odessa to the Russian frontier, and a large section of the German army and police maintained a strict watch on the imperial progress. Part of the precautions in Germany consisted in changing the scheduled route several times, the alteration being known to only the highest officials, who telegraphed short instructions to their staffs whenever the train bearing the czar stopped, which was seldom, all approaches to the stations being blocked by soldiers and police.

Last night the czar traveled over the French railways between Belfort, where the Germans handed over their charge to France, to conduct him to Modane, where the Italians will today become responsible for their sovereign's guest.

The French government, whose alliance with Russia increases, if possible, their wish to ensure the czar's safety, have the line guarded throughout by thousands of troops and gendarmes. The stations at which the train stops are filled with soldiers and police. Nobody will be allowed to enter.

Between Modane and Racconigi some 20,000 Italian soldiers hold the railway. The watch that will be kept will be as keen as for a foreign invader. Besides this a patrol, mounted and on foot, will march along the line, peering into farm houses and cottages and questioning strangers, who, if they would escape arrest, must answer frankly and convincingly. Automobiles will carry Italian and Russian police officials to and fro, watching, arranging and ordering in a mysterious manner. This tension will be kept up until Monday, when the czar will return over the same route, again invoking the protection of France and Germany.

Before the czar reaches Racconigi, the population of the peaceful town of 9000 residents will have been nearly doubled by the arrival of soldiers and police to ensure his majesty's safety. Already the place resembles a military camp. The police are going from house to house, amusing or alarming the occupants by warnings not to admit strangers to their dwellings and not to allow anybody with whom they are not acquainted to look from their windows when the czar is passing. Foreigners will not be allowed to approach the town. Italian and Russian detectives swarm everywhere.

USED PROFANE LANGUAGE

Millionarie Who Invaded Newspaper Sanctum Is Floored by Editor

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 23.—Clarence A. McGrew, city editor of The Evening Sun, who comes from Cambridge, Mass., knocked down Nathan Watts, one of San Diego's millionaires, because he was using profane language in the presence of a woman reporter.

Watts was attempting to clean out The Sun office because that paper had announced his engagement to Miss Charlotte Foster.

Miss Foster, over whom the dispute arose that ended in the fight in the city room of The Sun, is the daughter of the late Charles Foster, who, it is claimed, was the pioneer wooden toothpick manufacturer of the world. It is said that she is worth $8,000,000.

'Phone Wires Cut by Yeggs

Newburyport, Mass., Oct. 23.—Yeggs, who forced an entrance into the drug store of E. P. Sanborn, Hampton, N. H., cut all surrounding telephone wires and attempted to dynamite the safe, but were frightened away before they could accomplish their purpose. About $100 worth of goods were stolen.

Killed by Hose Wagon

Boston, Oct. 23.—Horace C. Clark, 38, died last night from injuries received by being struck by the hose wagon of the Bulfinch street fire station. Clark passed directly in the path of the hose wagon. He was thrown to the ground, his head striking the pavement.

SENATOR M'CARREN DEAD

Man Whose Great Political Abilities Were Conceded by His Enemies

New York, Oct. 23.—Senator Patrick H. McCarren, died at 1:05 o'clock this morning as the result of an operation for appendicitis. At 11:30 o'clock last night Rev. Fr. Zimmer had been summoned to the senator's bedside and remained with him a few moments. Senator McCarren already had received the last rites of the church.

PATRICK H. M'CARREN.

All the relatives of the Brooklyn political leader who were able to be with him were at the hospital at the time. His aged mother was not able to be move from her home, where she has been ill for some time. The nephews and nieces were among those who waited in the public room of the hospital.

Toward the end McCarren suffered a great deal of pain. He was conscious and realized that it was a matter of but a short time at most that he had to live.

Patrick H. McCarren was born in Cambridge, Mass., fifty-seven years ago. Even his enemies conceded his remarkable abilities as a politician, while decrying his methods.

CUSTOMS OFFICERS MAKE CONFESSION

Wholesale Smuggling Has Been Carried on For Years

Washington, Oct. 23.—It is asserted that the $2,000,000 which the government estimated as the amount of its loss on account of the sugar frauds will be only a small percentage of the aggregate that has been filched from the government through systematic smuggling at the port of New York by false weights and other devices, covering a period of nearly fifty years.

Some of the treasury officials say that the array of evidence already procured by promises of immunity through confessions of employes is astounding. It is known that the policy of promising immunity adopted by Collector Loeb is approved by the treasury department.

THE LOMBARD FORGERIES

What a Probing of Town of Framingham's Finances Has Revealed

Framingham, Mass., Oct. 23.—Although the actual amount, so far as known now, involved in the Framingham town note forgeries is $320,000, the investigation has disclosed that millions of dollars' worth of notes in the aggregate were issued to screen the discrepancies.

The authorities of this town, of the state and of the city of Boston, delved jointly yesterday into town finances of nearly two decades to determine what has become of the money secured through the self-confessed forgeries of former Town Treasurer Lombard. In their work they found duplicate notes year after year, issued to cover up those which had gone before.

From 1896 onward, it is said, the name of Charles S. Cummings of Boston, now under arrest, figured often. Lombard has confessed that it was a Boston broker who benefited chiefly through Lombard's forgeries.

FALSE BOTTOM IN TRUNK

Failed to Escape Sharp Eyes of Customs Inspector at Boston

Boston, Oct. 23.—On a charge of smuggling, Evaristo Nagheri of Italy was arraigned before Commissioner Hayes and was held in $500 for a hearing next Tuesday.

Customs Inspector Thomas examined the baggage of Nagheri, who was a second class passenger on the steamship Romanic, and found a tray in a trunk containing eight watches which had not been declared.

Later a false bottom was discovered in the same trunk, and it contained 200 watches of gold, silver and other metal.

Justice Peckham's Sickness

Albany, Oct. 23.—Close friends of Justice Peckham of the United States supreme court, who is ill at his summer home at Altamont, say that his condition is improved and that there is no cause for alarm over his condition.

Chinese Laws.

In lemon colored silk a Chinese diplomat talked about Chinese laws.

"Some of our laws, you know, are very stimulating," he said. "For example, Chi owed money to a money lender. Chi would not pay, and the money lender hanged himself on Chi's doorpost. Chi was condemned to death. You see, he was really responsible for the money lender's death.

"A son able to support his parents is imprisoned for life if he won't do so. A son unable to support them is imprisoned for three years, as we hold—and quite rightly—that there must be something wrong with a young man who can't support his parents.

"Our police are excellent, thanks to the stimulus of our law. When a crime is committed a sleuth is put upon the case and given, say, thirty days to land the criminal. If the sleuth fails he himself pays the penalty of the crime, less two degrees. That, too, is a just and stimulating law, for if the police can neither prevent nor punish crime then they should be themselves punished for their rank incapacity."—New York Press.

Thoroughly Prepared.

At a religious service in Scotland the late Lord Kelvin noticed a youngster accompanying his grandparents and sitting wise as a young owl through the sermon.

At the close of the service Lord Kelvin congratulated the grandfather upon the excellence of the young man's behavior.

"Och, aye," returned the veteran, "Duncan's weel threatened afore he gangs in."

Coughs and Colds.—At this season when coughs are so prevalent, an effectual remedy and one easily obtained is Perry Davis' Painkiller. It is new nostrum, vended by unknown agents, but has stood the test of over seventy years; and those who use the article, internally or externally, will connect with it grateful recollections of its worthy inventor.

The Key of Death.

The "key of death" is apparently a large key which is shown among the weapons at the arsenal at Venice. It was invented by Tibaldo, who, disappointed in love, designed this instrument for the destruction of his rival. The key is so constructed that the handle may be turned around, revealing a small spring, which being pressed a very fine needle is driven with considerable force from the other end. This needle is so very fine that the flesh closes over the wound immediately, leaving no mark, but the death of the victim is almost instantaneous.

Strong Paper.

A single United States treasury note measures three and one-eighth inches in width and seven and one-quarter inches in length. It will sustain without breaking lengthwise a weight of forty-one pounds, crosswise a weight of ninety-one pounds. The notes run four to a sheet, a sheet being eight and one-quarter inches wide by thirteen and one-half inches long. One of these sheets lengthwise will suspend 108 pounds and crosswise 177 pounds.

Evasion.

"See here, you, sir!" cried her father "Didn't I tell you never to enter my house again?"

"No, sir, you didn't," replied the persistent suitor. "You said not to 'cross your threshold,' so I climbed in the window."—Exchange.

Then He Wouldn't Have It.

"How much of an income do you think you could live on comfortably?"

"I think I could manage to be very comfortable on about $10,000 a year until my wife found out that I was getting that much."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Careful.

Hotel Clerk—Just sign your name, please. The other guests would like to register.

"Don't you try to hurry me, young man. I don't never sign nothin' that I ain't read carefully."—Life.

Shows No Improvement.

"I don't see that her college education has improved her much."

"No?"

"No. She helps her mother with the housework just as if she hadn't been educated."—Detroit Free Press.

A Primer of Life.

Only a dreamer asks time and tide to wait for him when he might "head" them off, sell time for money and make tide turn a mill wheel.—Atlanta Constitution.

"I stand for the upbuilding of Massachusetts and its industries, for a reduction of the tariff on the necessities of life, for reciprocity with Canada and a broader market for our goods, and for an income tax, so that the burden of taxation will not come entirely on the working man, but on the man with the money, who should pay an equitable share of taxation."

EUGENE N. FOSS
Candidate for Lieut. Gov.

Here's the Situation Mr. Voter:

The Republican party is divided. Its best element is disgusted with Party Bosses and Broken Pledges. Strong men claim their right to think and act for themselves. They see in the Democratic Platform for 1909 the principles they are willing to fight for. They see in James H. Vahey and Eugene N. Foss the men who can carry that fight to success.

That's why thousands of Republicans are for Vahey and Foss, as will be seen when the votes are counted on November 2d.

Vahey and Foss stand for TARIFF REDUCTION which will increase the commerce of Massachusetts and the nation; reform which will protect the rights of the East without offending the West; reform which will start the shops and factories of this state humming; reform which will not be throttled by the Republican Machine; reform which will reduce the cost of living and result in real benefit to the working man and his family.

Mr. Foss knows from practical experience of nearly 30 years, as a manufacturer and an employer of labor, the baneful effects of high tariff on New England exports and imports. Mr. Foss will fight for tariff reduction that will mean a full dinner pail for the working man, more comforts in his home and better clothing and shoes for his wife and children.

Vahey and Foss believe in CANADIAN RECIPROCITY which will give us such raw materials as lumber, coal, iron and wood pulp at lower prices; reciprocity which will increase our own food supply and make it possible for American operatives to remain in their own home towns without struggling to make both ends meet; reciprocity which shall say, "Live and let Live" to Canada and augment friendly relations with our Canadian neighbors.

Vahey and Foss favor an INCOME TAX which will work justice to all and have no friends in high places; an income tax which will not descend on the head of the professional man while ignoring the tax dodger who goes to Europe before the assessors are due; an income tax which will reduce the cost of living by reason of reduced tariff taxes and place the burden where it rightfully belongs.

Mr. Voter, Speak out with your ballot. Give no aid, either directly with your vote or by your silence, to the misguided and unjust administration of the Lodge-Draper machine. Get out from under despotism and corruption by voting for the platform of Integrity and Progress.

WELL POSTED.

A Sermon That Won the Preacher a Warm Recommendation.

Dublin produces a type of old woman as peculiar to the city as its jaunting cars.

"Och, Biddy," says one pronounced specimen to another as they met in O'Connell street on a Monday morning, "were you not down at Arran quay chapel last night to hear the sermon?"

"No, jewel, I was not there. What was the sermon about?"

"Ah, the finest sermon on hell you ivir heard from a young priest called Father Clancy, the darlintest young man you ivir set eyes on, and him just ordained the other day!"

"Arrah, go on, woman! What would a young man like that know about hell?"

"Know about hell, is it? He knows more about hell than all the priests in Dublin. I declare, if you were listenin' to him, you would think he was born and reared in it."

Between Twenty and Thirty.

A woman's age is usually the one thing that she can keep secret—provided it is her own age—but the other day in the court a woman was forced to disclose the great secret.

"Madam, what is your age?" asked counsel.

"I am past twenty," she replied.

"You must be more explicit."

"Well, my age is between twenty and thirty."

"Do not prevaricate, please. I want to know your exact age."

"I'll be thirty tomorrow!"

Getting Into Practice.

A young law student, the son of a poor man who had stinted himself to educate the boy, was making a study of certain processes of his future profession. He showed an inclination to sit in the house and speculate idly, instead of doing some of the domestic tasks which stood waiting.

"Deduction is an interesting process," declared the youth to his father. "For example, there is a heap of ashes in the yard. That is evidence that the family has recently had fires."

"Well, John," interposed his father, "suppose you pursue your studies a little further by going out and sifting that evidence."

Crushed.

One night a loud person who sat at a dinner with a well known bishop kept making stupid jokes and at each one laughed uproariously. Entirely unacquainted with the churchman, he finally said: "I have three sons—fine lads—all in business. I always said if I had a stupid son I'd make a parson out of him."

When he had finished his discordant laugh the bishop said, with a quiet smile, "Your father thought differently from you."

Worldly Wisdom.

As there is a worldly happiness which God perceives to be no more than disguised misery, as there are worldly honors which in his estimation are reproach, so there is a worldly wisdom which in his sight is foolishness. Of this worldly wisdom the characters are given in the Scriptures and placed in contrast with those of the wisdom which is from above. The one is the wisdom of the crafty, the other that of the upright; the one terminates in selfishness, the other in charity; the one is full of strife and bitter envyings, the other of mercy and of good fruits.—Blair.

Helpful Johnny.

Johnny loved his papa, there was no doubt about that, and one morning after he had listened to a long disquisition from the author of his being addressed to his elders on the general uselessness of the vermiform appendix, ending up with the broad statement that he hoped he'd see the day when every appendix in creation was cut out, the little boy resolved upon an agreeable surprise for his daddy. He worked in secret for several days and then sprang it.

"See what I have done for you, daddy!" he said, leading the wondering father into the library and showing him a neat pile of many pages which he had accumulated. "I've cut the appendix out of every book in this library."

It was then that words failed, and Johnny's father's vocabulary made a general assignment for the benefit of its creditors.—Judge.

A Witty Bishop.

When Bishop Stubbs was bishop of Oxford a fussy clergyman wrote him a long and tiresome letter asking his lordship's opinion as to whether it was requisite to have permission to place some curtains behind the altar of his church as a reredos. He received the prompt reply:

Dear B.—Hang your curtains. Yours truly, W. OXON.

On another occasion an overworked clergyman appealed for leave of absence for three months to visit the Holy Land. The bishop replied genially:

My Dear A.—Go to Jericho. Yours ever, W. OXON.

Pious.

Bishop Magee was once asked to marry a gentleman who was a great whisky manufacturer in Dublin. The bishop felt disinclined to do this, being very much opposed to the trade; but, as the gentleman in question had a great reputation and was known to be very charitable, the bishop did not like to refuse. After the ceremony the bridegroom said:

"I do not know how to thank your lordship. I wish I could do something that might be pleasing to you. All I can say is, 'The Lord be with you!'"

The bishop replied, "And with thy spirit!"

SAGE FOR DARKENING THE HAIR.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time, tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the brew. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy. This preparation is sold by all first-class druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

Much unfavorable comment has been heard because of the partial blocking of Saville street by rails belonging to the Old Colony street railway, which are to be used in the repairing the track at that point. A narrow street, the best way to the depot is now blocked by a quantity of rails which instead of being piled on top of one another, are left lying side by side so that they occupy about one-half of one side of the street and will stay there until next week, making travel which is particularly heavy on that street Sundays, a matter of much inconvenience if not of real danger.

SCHOOL BOY IS INJURED

Fell Over Banister at Coddington School Friday

William Curtis 5 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis N. Curtis of Orchard place received a bad fall Friday when he accidently fell from the stairs at the Coddington school, to the floor striking on his head.

As near as can be learned the youngster in company with several other children was running up and down the stairs and fooling about the banister when suddenly losing his balance he toppled to the floor and lay there unconscious. The frightened playmates called a teacher and the injured boy was carried to his home in an unconscious condition. Dr. Ellsworth was summoned and it was not until a late hour that he regained consciousness. This morning he appeared to be a little better.

WARRANT ISSUED.

The man who assaulted the car conductor Thursday evening at Houghs Neck has not been apprehended as yet although a warrant has been sworn out for his arrest. The man's name is O'Donnell and he assaulted conductor Winters in a cowardly manner soon after the 6.20 car reached the Neck that evening. The fact that the assailant has not been taken before this is due in a measure possibly to the fact that some over zealous constable attempted a single handed capture of him and in that way possibly the man was warned although it will be only a matter of a short time before he is taken. It means a great deal of bother, more so, possibly ,than if the regular police officials had been left to handle the matter themselves.

GEORGE W. EWELL.

The funeral of George W. Ewell was held Friday afternoon from his home on Foster street and was very largely attended. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers which almost hid the casket from view. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

QUINCY LOSES TO MILTON

Local Boys Play Strong Game Against Heavy Team

In the best game they have played this season the Quincy high team was defeated by the heavy Milton Academy team by the score of 6 to 5 last Saturday afternoon on the Milton Academy grounds. The day was ideal for the game and the Quincy boys got the jump on their slow opponents from the very first and until the last of the second half when the weight of the other team began to tell, it looked as though the local lads were going to get away with the game. The first half ended with a score 0 to 0 although Quincy had the ball in Milton territory most of the time.

In the second half Quincy received the kick off and one of the Quincy backs fumbled the ball but Harold Hill was right on the spot and before the other side knew what was happening he was away, down the field, headed for a touchdown. But he had been playing a hard game and was all in, and one of the Milton men who had just entered the game overtook him about ten yards from the goal and brought him down. It was now up to the backs to do their part and Billy Manning called on Russ Bates to carry the ball. Like a shot he struck the line and piercing it, went over the line with two of the Milton men hanging desperately to him. Shaking them off he circled around in back of the goal posts. The ball was brought out directly in front of the goal posts and Russ Bates attempted to kick but the ball shot from his foot directly under the bar and Quincy as it was proved later had made the slip up that lost them the game. This was within 5 minutes of the start of the second half and the hopes of the Quincy rooters were high, for the chances of victory were bright.

Milton received the kick and immediately it was seen that the light Quincy warriors had made their supreme effort when they had held Milton all through the first half and succeeded in scoring on them in the second, for the heavy Milton backs began to plough their way down the field toward a touchdown. Time and again Quincy held them for two downs only on the third down to be swept off their feet by the force of the heavy forwards, and holes were opened so that the backs were able to gain their required distance. Steadily they were driven back fighting inch by inch until the ball rested under the very shadow of the goal posts less than a yard from the line, and first down for Milton.

The signal given, the Milton backs sprang toward the goal, and were met by not any football tactics, but by an irresistable courage and strength of the lighter team fighting to the very end and when they piled off the ball had moved scarcely a foot. Again they surged forward and it looked as though the goal was gained but with a last mighty effort they were downed in their tracks and mostly by the effort of Hill who had been the star all through the game. They lined up for the third time with the ball on the 1-2 yard line and third down. Once more they smashed the light Quincy forwards and for an instant they held, then there was ever so little a breaking and when the ball was brought to light it rested only a foot over the goal line and one of the best defences ever put up by a Quincy team, to save their line from being crossed, had gone for naught. The ball was taken out and at an angle amid the cheers of his schoolmates Capt. Jean Talbot drove the ball between the posts and the score stood 6 to 5 in Milton's favor.

There were still eight minutes left to play and the weakened, battered Quincy team tried their best to reach the Milton goal but they could do little against the strong line opposing them which was now playing in the confidence of victory and the half ended with the ball in Quincy's possession on their own 40 yard line.

The two individual stars of the game were Harold Hill for Quincy and Maltly for Milton. Hill was everywhere no gains at all being made around his end and time and time again he dove in back of the Milton interference and caught the man from behind going around the opposite end. He was the star of the game, but there was not a man on the Quincy team who does not deserve praise for the way he played against the heavy Milton aggregation. Capt. Bates was good for his distance any time he was called upon and Tommy Veal was a power on the defence, his tackling being hard and low. Billy Manning ran the team well and made but one misplay. This was in the first half and as things looked then it probably cost Quincy the game. The ball was on Milton's six yard line and it was third down for Quincy with about three yards to go. Billy called for a play through Lakin but when the ball was passed he turned the wrong way and had to rush the ball himself being nailed for a loss and spoiling Quincy's chances of scoring and as it subsequently showed what possibly might have been Quincy's chance to win the game. Harmon was taken from the backfield and stuck into the line and had every thing his own way around guard while Sayward showed unexpected strength at tackle. Tirrell also a new man to his position, at center, had it over all those who have played the position this year the only criticism with his playing being his passing. Rice in the back field was strong on the defence also and many times blocked up holes in the line and pushed the man back for a loss.

It was the best game the boys have played this year and it looks as though the men who have been taking the places of those who are down in studies are far superior to them and it means that every one of those who have been out of the game the past two weeks will have to hustle and show more class than they have so far this year if they want to regain their places on the first eleven.

SEEN FROM SIDE LINES.

Billy Manning made a great tackle in the second half. A Milton man jumped forward through the air to recover an onside kick and Billy dove for him at the same moment getting him about the ankles while in the air and throwing the man in his tracks. It took nerve and a good eye to accomplish such a feat, requisites possessed in abundance by the midget quarter.

When you take a whole center of a line being played by substitutes and their putting up the game Harmon, Tirrell and Favorite played, it shows what some men can do when it's up to them, for the center of the line held like a stonewall all through the game.

The forward pass was pulled off several times for substantial gains by Quincy owing to great game played by the two ends Hill and Arhtur. One time Arthur had a clear field after receiving one of the passes but he fumbled the ball.

A large crowd of Quincy rooters were seen at the game and they kept things lively all the time.

Russ Bates made a pretty pick up of an onside kick in the first half of the game. Running at full speed he stooped and scooped the ball into his arms while on the dead run a thing rarely accomplished and seen on the baseball diamond more often than on the gridiron.

If Harold Hill goes beyond high school he will make a most valuable man for some college. His work Saturday was a great exhibition, there is not a schoolboy end around Boston that has anything on him in playing the position.

That first tackle Veal made was a corker. He hit the man so hard that he was taken out of the game while Veal jumped to his feet smiling.

Billy Manning has the making of as good a quarter as ever left the school if he can only keep a little cooler in a tight place.

WILLIAM D. WEBB.

Former Quincy Man Passes Away at Providence.

Word was received in Quincy Sunday of the death in Providence earlier in the day of William D. Webb formerly of this city. Mr. Webb was a son of the late William Webb and was the last member of the family. He was a brother-in-law of City Solicitor John W. McAnarney and of John H. Dinegan.

Mr. Webb entered the employ of Jordan Marsh & Co., when a boy and worked his way up until he became the silk buyer of the firm. As such he travelled extensively in foreign countries. On the death of the elder Jordan, Mr. Webb went into the silk commission business for himself.

Funeral services will be held from St. John's church Tuesday at 10.30.

PRAISES THE JAPANESE

Dr. Hardy Draws Lesson From Visitors on Making Good

Rev. Dr. E. N. Hardy made reference to the thrift of the Japanese in an interesting sermon Sunday on "Making Good." He said that he got his inspiration from the last words of Gov. Johnson who when dying said: "I just tried to make good."

Dr. Hardy said: "A better illustration of my theme in its commercial, political and educational aspects could hardly be found than in the representatives of Japan, who visited our city yesterday. One in the party told me these men are a marvel in assimilation, adaptation and imitation. I was introduced to the chairman of the commission, Baron Shibusawa, and mention was made of the football game which they were to attend in the afternoon.

"I asked, 'Do you have football in Japan?' and the answer came, 'No, but we play baseball. The Wisconsin university club came over this summer to play with us and we beat them.' It was simply amazing to witness their mental alertness. I was told this splendid effort to make good permeates the whole sunrise kingdom from the humblest citizen to the mikado. More than once I wished yesterday that there might be an imperial commission to study the moral and religious life of the occident."

WAS A SUCCESS.

Tag Day in Quincy Saturday Will Net Day Nursery Good Sum.

That tag day in Quincy Saturday was a great success goes without saying but just how much the energetic venders of the little red tags netted is not known as yet. The returns from outlying wards have not all been received, and until they come in the exact amount will not be known. From the receipts of the wards heard from however it is evident that the total will exceed that of last year. As soon as all the wards have been heard from the committee will make a statement in print of the result.

There were very few people especially about City Square Saturday who escaped being tagged. There was a small army of young people about the square from early morning until late in the day and they were very persistent. As soon as an electric car arrived passengers leaving it were invited to purchase and before every car left it was boarded by some of the sellers and urged to purchase. it needed no argument to convince the would be purchaser of the worthiness of the nursery and there were but few who refused to purchase.

ENGAGEMENT PARTY.

A very pretty party was held at the home of Miss Marion White, Billings road, on Saturday evening in honor of Miss Lillian Wye's engagement. Miss Wye is an intimate friend of Miss White's. She was graduated in the class of 1907 from Wellesley college and now resides in Needham. The party was in the form of a linen shower the linen being concealed in an up-to-date air ship suspended over the centre of the table with white ribbons. Dan Cupid sat at every place, on a little card and most every young lady was quite envious of Miss Wye. A profusion of autumn leaves and baby white ribbon bows and streamers decorated the table and the dining room was surely a most attractive sight. A most appetizing and daintily prepared lunch was served early in the evening, after which games were entered into until a late hour. Ten colleges were represented and a member of the Wellesley college faculty was also present. Miss White made a most charming hostess and all had a delightful time.

CHRISTENING PARTY.

At the home of Mrs. Kerr, 2 Claremont avenue, Quincy Point, occurred a christening Sunday afternoon when a house full of friends gathered to the religious service conducted by the Rev. Alfred R. Atwood, pastor of the Washington Street Congregational church. John Fleming, Jr., son of John and May Louise Fleming of Dedham was baptized, the sponsors were William Gilles, godfather and Margaret Fleming, godmother. Eva Forrest, Selma Thayer, Effie Wardell and Jessie Kerr furnished music.

SMOKED IN BED.

Mattress Burned in Carey House on Hall Place.

The alarm from Box 441 at 5.17 Saturday night was for a slight fire in the John Carey house on Hall place and was caused by the occupant smoking in bed. The mattress was set on fire and caused considerable smoke. The damage will not exceed $15. The fire department has been called to this same house several times for the same kind of a fire.

POLICE PENSIONS.

Matter of Pensions for Police and Firemen Being Agitated.

It is reported that the matter of pensions for the members of the permanent men of the police and fire department is to be brought before the voters for action at the coming municipal election.

Committees of the two departments are now at work drafting the matter in shape for presentation to the voters. It is understood that the act must first be accepted by the city before the City Council can take any action.

LOST CHILD CALL.

Sounded Late Sunday Night for Thomas Farrell of Copeland Street.

The lost child call was sounded at 11.45 Sunday night to summons aid in the search for Thomas Farrell aged 52 years who had been missing since early in the day. Mr. Farrell is somewhat demented and Sunday wandered away from his home on Copeland street. Not returning at night fall his family became alarmed and a search was instituted. No trace of the missing man could be found and when near midnight Overseer Elcock, who had been consulted, suggested sounding the lost child call.

Fortunately the man was found on Quarry street extension safe and sound. He was found about the time the alarm sounded. Mr. Farrell was examined by physicians this morning and will probably be sent away.

The ship will come to the navy yard Wednesday from the Fore river and Thursday will be drydocked for her underwater overhauling, cleaning and painting in preparation for her acceptance trial trips. Nov. 2 has been set as the date for the beginning of the trials over the Rockland, Me., course.

Don't wait until Christmas week to buy your Christmas gifts. Now is just the time to pick up novelties that are fresh and also receive courteous attention from the clerks.

Now that the open season is on to avoid accidents hunters should use every precaution and make sure their target is game and not human beings. They should be careful not to take a position which will bring a dwelling-house into range of their guns, for there is a big risk and people should be careful how they stroll in the woods.

The figures in Dr. Booker T. Washington's annual report of Tuskegee show that the pupils in the institute itself during the past year were from 35 states and 14 foreign countries. The majority were Alabamians and most of them were from Macon county. The home effects are indicated by the facts pointed out by Dr. Washington, that since the work began the property owned by negroes in that county has increased by more than 600 percent. He takes a pardonable satisfaction in saying that never before in the school system have so many white people of the south visited and taken an interest in it. It is reasonable to assume that they have become convinced that the best and broadest work being done toward the solution of the race problem is that in which Dr. Booker Washington leads. There is no dodging the fact that the negro is best off close to the soil and, while any real bent for mechanical pursuits should be aided ,the dominant purpose must be to train the negro agriculturists for good citizenship.

"There is one very important matter that I desire to say a few words about"said Gov. Draper at the Republican rally at Weymouth, Oct. 22: "The great calamity which has fallen on the town of Framingham because of the malfeasance in office of its treasurer, has brought to public attention in a very sharp way the danger that may come to the towns and to every citizen who is a resident of a town because of the issuing of notes without giving to the town the proceeds from them. Where such dishonesty occurs, it brings a terrible hardship on the town and may subject all of its citizens to a very serious burden in the way of excessive taxation to make good the deficits caused by the dishonesty of public officials. Some arrangement should be made so that wherever a town is issuing notes for borrowing money, they should be recorded in some state office before issue. This would bring an additional and very potent check on dishonesty, would protect to a very much greater degree than at present the towns and their citizens from great damage, and would assure to the innocent purchaser of these notes the protection of knowing that they were only buying what was a legitimate obligation of the town. Should I be elected for the coming year, I should certainly recommend that some action be taken to bring about these beneficial results and to prevent the terrible hardships on the towns of the Commonwealth from dishonesty of which we have had many glaring examples in the past few years."

PLAIN DUTY TO PERFORM.

In view of the disclosures in Framingham it must be apparent to everyone that remedial action without delay is imperatively necessary in all cities and towns where such opportunities for plunder exist. A trusted fiduciary agent fails in his duty, embezzles the funds of the town, and covers up his derelictions by a series of forgeries. There is nothing new in the story. It has been paralleled many times before, but it has developed a hitherto unrealized peril, permitting the victimizing of a class of people regarded as immune, as notes of cities and towns, backed by their splendid credit, were rightly regarded as gilt edged security. "I do not believe Framingham will lose a cent" is the remark credited to one of the town officials when the magnitude of the crime became known. Who will, then? Oh, the answer is plain, ye innocent believers in the integrity of town officers, and the inviolibility of the obligations imposed on them by oath. If this remark has a basis in truth, the unfortunate holders of the notes will probably lose because of the lack of the simple and effectual precaution of having them countersigned by a reliable national bank or trust company. Lynn should not issue another note without taking this precaution, as it safeguards the city as well as the purchaser against possible dishonesty, for a dishonest official would not risk certain detection by offering a spurious note to a bank or trust company. We will start with the assumption that there are no dishonest officials in Lynn. Yet it is good business to insure ourselves and our note holders against forgery, with its consequent train of suffering. No one can take exception to such a manifestly prudent action, we believe, and the committee on finance of the City Council has a duty as plain as a pikestaff to perform. If there are obstacles legislation can remove them. The committee should act promptly, and then Lynn will never be in the position to experience the painful humiliation through which Framingham is now passing.—Lynn Item.

GERMANY'S PLAN.

Statistics furnished by the American consul-general at Dresden show that Germany has hit upon some plan for keeping her people at home. And this fact, together with her high birth rate, distinguished Germany from those dying nations which never die but are always feeble. Of the 12 countries of Europe from which we gather citizens, Germany now has the lowest emigration. It dwindled to the modest figure of 19,000 in 1908, a falling off of 11,000 from 1907. Germany has apparently succeeded in stemming the tide of emigration which set out after the Franco-Prussian war. In 1881, 10 years after the war, it had reached its maximum—206,000 in a single year. Then it steadily decreased until in 1893 it touched 100,000. Then emigration dropped to 40,000. That was the time of American depression. It was also the year when German industries began to take a spurt, when Germany first became a manufacturing nation on a large scale. It is interesting to note, too, that it was about this time that Germany began her experiments with protective tariffs. Germany is today a thoroughly protective country. It remains to be seen whether Germany will have to go through the experience of the United States with tariffs that over-protect. But probably she will avoid this. Her tariffs are made by experts, not by politicians. They are based on approximately exact computation and, while there is a revenue element in them, they are not the result of expensive log rolling. Germany is not a pure democracy. It is, therefore, much easier to get a tariff that, responds to a scientific definition of protection there than it is here.—Haverhill Gazette.

RESIGNATION IS EXPECTED

Governor Curry of New Mexico Faces a Number of Charges

Santa Fe., N. M., Oct. 25.—A. M. Jackley of Alamogordo, N. M., has filed serious charges against Governor Curry. He asks Secretary of the Interior Ballinger for the removal of Curry. Secretary Ballinger was here yesterday and in conference with Curry.

While no definite announcement of Curry's resignation is given out, it is rumored that Curry told Ballinger he would hand in his resignation to the department of the interior within thirty days. Jackley is backed by many prominent Republicans in the territory and by a number of United States senators.

Curry is accused of gross laxity in the administration of the affairs of the state and with using his powers for political ends. He is accused of having whitewashed a large number of scandals and passing over shortages found in district courts.

HONEYMOON INTERRUPTED

Groom Who Gambled Becomes Desperate and Commits Robbery

Detroit, Oct. 25.—Driven desperate by losses totalling over $1000 at the Windsor race track, A. W. Crossman of Boston dashed from Joseph Grossleight's pawn shop with a $250 diamond ring which he had asked to look at. The clerk rushed hatless and coatless after Crossman, who was captured and arrested.

Crossman was spending his honeymoon in Detroit with his bride of two weeks, whom he married in Woodstock, Ont. His mother, he says, was killed in New Brunswick while on the way to the wedding. That the prisoner is a Mystic Shriner and high up in Masonic circles is known. Mrs. Crossman is in a state of collapse and says she knew nothing of her husband's gambling proclivities.

Speculation as to Disposal of Framingham Town Funds

LOST AMOUNTS TO $320,000

Mysterious Woman Figures In Great Forgery Case—Said to Have Furnished Stock Market Tips to Treasurer Lombard—Investments of Cummings, the Boston Broker Under Arrest, to Be Probed

Framingham, Mass., Oct. 25.—The mysterious woman mentioned in connection with the financing of the town notes by former Treasurer John B. Lombard and Broker Charles S. Cummings has neither disappeared nor stands forth in clearer relief as further disclosures about the disposal of the proceeds of the $320,000 in town notes become better known.

Just who the young Boston woman, in whose name thousands of shares of mining stocks were held, or who is the South Framingham woman who is said to have aided Lombard with tips on the stock market, have not yet been disclosed here, but the investigations made by citizens are expected to lead to developments within twenty-four hours.

Disclosures that Charles S. Cummings invested thousands of dollars in the Boston and Oaxaca Mining company have caused vigorous comment here.

An investigation is to be started at once by persons representing the town to find out just what investments have been made by Cummings or by companies or concerns in which he has been inerested since the day that he first started to have business dealings with ex-Treasurer Lombard.

It is believed that if all the concerns in which Cummings was interested since 1895, when he became associated with Lombard, can be probed and the proceeds traced, some clue may be found to the disposal of the $320,000 that represents the total amount of notes outstanding against the town which were fraudulently issued.

While the town officials profess to have no knowledge at all of Cummings' relations with the Boston and Oaxaca Mining company, or the Mexican Mining and Development company, a concern that had acquired properties near the first mentioned company, they are all worrying over the disclosures and watching the possible disappearance of the town's credit with concern.

If money derived from the sale of town notes has gone into mining ventures, or into stock market tips derived from the trances of mediums, the residents are worried lest further disclosures reveal untold wildcat financing in the town securities, financing that will have had no parallel in the country's history.

Former Treasurer Lombard, still propped up on pillows in a sickbed, continues to be thrown into spells of mental depression when further information of the disposal of the town's funds is urged from him.

Cummings, still held in jail in Boston, awaiting bondsmen to secure his freedom, maintains silence, and nothing but wild rumors are being heard.

GREAT STRIKE THREATENED

Three Thousand Clerks May Tie Up Entire New Haven Road

Boston, Oct. 25.—A general strike of 3000 clerks representing 600 stations on thhe New Haven railroad system is threatened because of the refusal of the management of the New Haven road to grant to the Brotherhood of Railroad Clerks a general betterment of working conditions.

Ballots are now being distributed to all the members of the railroad clerks' brotherhood of all the centres of the system, which they are urged to cast at their next meetings to be held in the next few days.

The question on the ballot is whether the clerks are willing to fight for the propositions submitted to the management of the road and whether they are willing to peaceably withdraw from the employment of the New Haven railroad and to remain out till the requests presented to the officials of the railroad are granted.

COOK GOING AFTER BARRILL

Explorer May Wind Up Wih a Suit For Criminal Libel

Minneapolis, Oct. 25.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook is about to begin legal proceedings in the Mt. McKinley controversy which may take a criminal libel turn against Edwin Barrill, the guide whose affidavit recently arraigned the Arctic explorer as the most collossal fakir that ever presented a tale of marvelous adventure.

This much was learned from Cook shortly after his arrival here in explanation of his sudden decision to end his lecture tour in this city tonight and proceed direct to Missoula, Mont.

Dr. C. D. Bridgeford of Hamilton, Mont., has made a flat statement that Barrill was offered $5000 to sign an affidavit to the effect that Cook failed to reach the summit of the Alaskan mountains. Bridgeford, who is associated with Barrill in the real estate business, is a close personal friend of Cook. It is estimated that Cook is passing up between $80,000 and $100,000 by closing his engagements in Minneapolis tonight. He had been booked right on to the Pacific coast. Several towns in Texas are said to have guaranteed him $4000 each for a single appearance.

PICKED FOR PRESIDENCY

Cleveland Predicted That Johnsor Would Be Elected If Nominated

Minneapolis, Oct. 25.—Mrs. John A. Johnson, widow of the late governor, has received a letter of sympathy from Mrs. Grover Cleveland, wife of the former president. It is a long letter, covering several pages, and one in which the widow at Princeton unfolds her heart to the widow at St. Paul.

From an authority considered to be authentic is is learned that, in disclosing her own feelings toward Governor Johnson, Mrs. Cleveland alsc went so far as to comfort the widow by telling her of the esteem in which he was held by the one time president. It is understood that Mrs. Cleveland said that Mr. Cleveland had picked the late Minnesota executive as a future president, and even while the great Democratic statesman lay on his death bed he said that should Johnson be nominated he would be elected to the presidency.

BENEVOLENT WORK FOR THE CHILDREN

Given Chance to Go Through Life With Good Teeth

Greenwich, Conn., Oct. 25.—"Teeth filled at the rate of 10 cents a tooth," is the price agreed upon by all Greenwich dentists, all of whom number among their patrons a greater or less number of New York's aristocrats who summer here.

The patient must be a Greenwichite and a child and he or she must present himself or herself at the rooms of the United Workers on certain days of the week in order to have the work done.

In other words, the United Workers, which is an organization composed mostly of wealthy people, have interested the dentists in their work among the poor to the extent that they have founded an association and have offered to take care of the poor children's teeth.

The work is intended to be done free and the 10 cents a tooth is charged in order that the children and the parents may not feel that they are the recipients of charity, but may feel that they are paying in a measure for what they get.

WANTS AMERICA'S CUP

Lipton Arrives at New York With a Challenge In His Inside Pocket

New York, Oct. 25.—Sir Thomas Lipton arrived here today on the steamship Cedric. Sir Thomas has with him a challenge for a race for the America's cup, which he will present to the New York Yacht club some time this week.

The members of the New York Yacht club have carefully refrained from saying anything about the challenge or what action they will take. It has been stated, though, that Lipton already has had some assurance that his challenge, which is sent through one of his clubs, will have consideration and that there is a strong likelihood of its being accepted.

GOVERNMENT FORCES LOSE

First Hot Engagement In the Nicaraguan Revolution

GREAT VICTORY FOR REBELS

Their Losses Are Slight, While Their Opponents Lose Four Hundred Men, Two Krupp Siege Guns and Four Hundred Rifles—Atlantic Coast and Nearly All of Adjacent Territory Now Held by Insurgents

Bluefields—(By wireless to Colon)—Oct. 25.—The first important battle of the revolution occurred between the forces of General Chamorro and 1000 of President Zelaya's troops. The scene of the engagement was on the San Juan rver below Boca De San Carlos.

The rebels won, with slight losses. The government forces lost 100 killed and 300 wounded. The rebels captured two Krupp siege guns and 400 rifles.

News has been received from the interior to the effect that President Zelaya is recruiting and mobilizing troops at Managua. Apparently none of his army is en route to the Atlantic coast. General Chamorro is advancing into the interior, strengthening his forces as he goes. Absolute order is maintained in Bluefields.

Details of the capture of Cape Gracias a Dios by the insurgents reached here yesterday by the Emery company's steamer Yulu. The port was won after an hour's fighting with slight losses on either side.

The capture of this place gives the rebels possession of the Atlantic coast and all the territory east of the 85th degree of longitude, with the exception of about fifty miles along the San Juan river.

Recognition of the rebels as belligerants by the United States is expected daily.

It is reported here, without confirmation, that the authorities of Honduras have seized the property of the Puerto Polas Banana company of New York.

SHOOTS WIFE, KILLS HIMSELF

Paroled Convict Winds Up His Career In Washington

WAS ONCE A BANK TELLER

Woman Became Chorus Girl When He Was Sent to Prison and Refused to Leave the Stage For Him—Bullets Fired Into Her Body as She Lay Prostrate—Has Good Chance For Recovery

Washington, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Evelyn Short, whose stage name is Evelyn Howard, a chorus girl with the "Motor Girl" company, was shot three times by her husband, William Short of New York, a paroled convict, at the Union station in this city. Short then turned the pistol on himself, sending a bullet through his right temple, and died about a half hour later.

Mrs. Short has three bullets in her left side, one just under the shoulder blade and the other two six or eight inches below. The physicians say there is a good chance for her recovery.

The couple were married about seven years ago. Short, who was a teller in a New York bank, was found short in his accounts a year later. He was sentenced to serve six years in Sing Sing. While he was in prison their only child, a boy, died. Mrs. Short, to support herself and her mother and to send her husband many little things not furnished to convicts, went on the stage as a chorus girl. She appeared in several companies. When Short was released from Sing Sing his wife lived with him for a while, but left him and returned to the stage.

The shooting followed a series of quarrels which the couple have had since Friday, when Short came here and endeavored to have his wife leave the stage and return to New York with him. Sunday she started for the station to go to Pittsburg, where the company will begin its performance on Monday. With her in the cab were her husband and Miss Mabel Caldwell, another member of the "Motor Girl" company.

According to Miss Caldwell, Short acted in an ugly way toward his wife on the way to the station and several times took hold of her roughly. Mrs. Short threatened to scream. Short told her if she screamed he would make her sorry. Short kept insisting that his wife return to New York with him, but she declined and said she was going to Pittsburg with the company.

When the station was reached Miss Caldwell said the husband was infuriated and Mrs. Short sprang out of the cab terrified. Mrs. Short, who had evidently caught a glimpse of the pistol, ran down the portico, screaming. Short followed and called for her to stop. She half turned and cried out: "Don't shoot me, Will, please don't."

Short fired and she sank to the pavement. Short came up and, standing over her, fired two shots more into her body. He then placed the weapon to his right temple and pulled the trigger and fell unconscious beside his wife. Mrs. Short, who did not lose consciousness, was helped to a taxicab and taken to the hospital. While the surgeons were dressing her wounds she inquired about the condition of her husband and said that she hoped he would get well. He died about a half hour later in an adjoining room without regaining consciousness.

NOT AN EASY MARK

Coffroth Expects Johnson to Keep Jeffries Busy In the Ring

New York, Oct. 25.—James Coffroth, promoter, arrived here today from San Francisco to make a formidable bid for the Jeffries-Johnson fight. While declining to say how much money he will offer for the big mill, it is believed that when he is asked to show his hand he will come to the scratch with a $50,000 purse, or 70 percent of the gross receipts.

While he has refrained from making a prediction, Coffroth says that in his opinion Johnson will not prove an easy mark for the boilermaker and that the fight will be one of the most sensational in the history of pugilism.

DEATH OF JUSTICE PECKHAM

Had Been Member of Nation's Highest Court Since 1895

Albany, Oct. 25.—Rufus W. Peckham, an associate justice of the United States supreme court, died at his summer home in Altamont, a short distance from Albany, last night.

JUSTICE PECKHAM.

Justice Peckham suffered an attack of acute indigestion on Aug. 23. He seemed to recover from this and had notified Chief Justice Fuller that he would be ready to resume work at Washington last week. Two weeks ago the indigestion returned in worse form and complications set in which reached the heart. His death was due to angina pectoris.

Rufus Wheeler Peckham had been a member of the supreme court of the United States since 1895. At the time of his appointment by President Cleveland he was a member of the court of appeals of New York state.

Justice Peckham was a Democrat, and before taking a seat on the bench gave devoted attention to politics in New York. He was born in Albany Nov. 8, 1838, and had been on the bench, state and federal, for twenty-six years.

AMERICAN SOCIAL WORKERS WARNED

Should Keep Away From Slavonia and Barcelona

Ithaca, Oct. 25.—Howard S. Creswell, Cornell '07, who has been traveling in Europe for several years, conducting a series of economic and social conditions, in a letter to Professor Fetter of Cornell university, says:

"Beware of social studies in Slavonia or Bohemia. They do their best in these countries to arrest every one they can for political reasons. Above all do not make any investigations in Barcelona or the Catholic priests will hang you.

"One must know the restless, red-thinking class to understand what will most likely happen to old Europe with its feudalism, its armies, its priests, its czars, autocrats, bureaucrats, and underneath the whole inflammable mass oppressed workingmen full of anarchy, full of revolutionary ideas.

"Barcelona is only a symptom of what I positively know exists throughout all Europe. Let them try a modern war and then you see what happens."

ASSURANCE OF PEACE

Rulers of Russia and Italy Again Pledge Themselves to Co-operation

Racconigi, Italy, Oct. 25.—At a court banquet last evening King Victor thanked the czar for the help the Russians had given at the time of the Messina disaster, and avowed his wish to co-operate with the czar in assuring peace between Russians and Italians.

The czar in reply spoke of the "ever increasing sympathies between our two peoples," and added: "I am confident that our governments do all they effectively can to cultivate those sympathies by constant, trustful co-operation, not only to rapproachement between Italy and Russia in conformity with the mutual interests of the two countries, but also to the peace of the world."

Sealing Steamer to Hunt For Pole

St. John's, Oct. 25.—The sealing steamer Terranova, which has been purchased for Captain Scott's expedition to the Antarctic now being fitted out in England, sailed today for London, where she will be turned over to the explorer.

—The hatpin law of Oregon, which limits the length of hatpins to ten inches, is alleged to be a failure. Since it was passed, last January, there have been no arrests under it, many of the women's clubs have poked fun at it by specific resolution, and local statesmen who keep their ears close to the ground are already planning its repeal by the next Legislature. It is recorded that once, only once, did the law come near to be enforced. A policeman riding in an elevator in Portland was jabbed in the cheek by a hatpin worn by a young woman who was crowded against him, and from the depths of his anguish raised a remonstrance. "That hatpin is more than a foot long," he said, "and you are liable to arrest." The young woman faced him scornfully. "How do you know whether that hatpin is one foot or three inches long?" she snapped. "Don't crowd, and then you won't get your face scratched; and when you get the evidence you're looking for, you may arrest me." But the unfortunate officer made no attempt to get evidence. He probably jumped and ran.—Boston Transcript.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

in a modern product. From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair and making it grow. In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready to use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. Such a preparation is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, which is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or which is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

☞ The irresponsible talk and vague talk to the effect that Governor Draper is unfair constitutionally toward labor is strikingly answered by an examination of the vote of Hopedale last year, when Draper's home town gave him 420 votes against 55 for all his opponents. A man is usually well known by his neighbors and the fact that with the secrecy of the Australian ballot to protect them the employees of the Draper plants indorse their employer so warmly at the polls shows that the charge that he is unfair to labor is regarded where he is best known as unfounded.

Y. P. R. U. MEETING.

The Young People's Religious union of First church, held a very interesting meeting, Sunday evening, in the chapel. After introducing him by describing his general character and personal appearance, she took up his essays ,telling his style and characteristic thoughts and quoting from two essays to illustrate her points. These two were on Culture and Conduct. After the essays, she took his poetry calling him a remarkable made not born poet. She also spoke of him as the great poet of nature, and read several selections from his poetry, describing in his inimitable way the "calm" and the "sweetness," of nature. Mrs. Marsh then told of his educational work and his religious views closing with her personal idea of this man as she expressed it "caught on the rebound" from the age before. Mrs. Marsh certainly gave a most interesting and instructive talk, and all present were unanimous in their hearty appreciation.

DISCOURAGED BY RAIN

Would-Be Hunters For Miss St. Jean's Head Remain Indoors

Tiverton, R. I., Oct. 25.—A steady downpour of rain all day caused the abandonment of the search Sunday for the missing head of Amelia St. Jean, whose dismembered body was found scattered along the Bulgermarsh road two weeks ago.

Although hitherto rain has not prevented the police and volunteers from scouring the district for the missing portion, interest has waned in the hunt since the positive identity of the body is believed to have been established.

Perry, by laying upon his grave a large laurel wreath.

The Value of His Time.

Young physicians in the smaller towns have an idea that appearing very busy will help them greatly in starting a practice. The following was told by an ex-senator, Dr. Godfrey Hunter of Kentucky. Dr. Hunter had a call the afternoon following the hanging out of his "shingle" and started through town in his buggy at terrific speed. A policeman stopped the enterprising physician.

"Doctor," he said, "it is against the city ordinance to drive at the speed you are going. You must accompany me to the judge and pay your fine."

"What is the fine?" inquired the doctor.

"Five dollars."

The doctor's hand flew to his pocket. "Here's $10. I have to come back just as fast as I am going."—Success Magazine.

Fixed Stars.

There are no fixed stars. When we look up at the stars they appear to be very still and peaceful, but astronomers know that such is not the case, but that each one is moving, some with incredible speed, invisible to the unaided eye, yet visible to the instruments at their disposal. Our sun, for instance, which is nothing more or less than one of the "stars" supposed to be "fixed," is moving along, with the entire solar system, toward a point in the constellation Hercules. In nature, from the most insignificant germ to the largest world, everything is in perpetual motion.

Big Clown and Little Clown.

By TEMPLE BAILEY.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

He was big and burly, a figure in his fantastic dress to make all the little boys giggle and the little girls stare, half frightened.

That was when he was in the ring. But when he was clothed in the ordinary garb of a citizen he was simply a fresh faced boy who could stroll along the village streets without attracting unusual attention.

He liked the little villages where the circus stayed for a day or two and then moved on languidly down dusty roads to the next stopping place.

"Some time," he said to the little clown, "I'd just like to stay behind in one of these little towns and turn farmer and stop being funny for awhile."

The little clown was a woman. When she was dressed for the ring she wore infantile clothes, with a blue sash, and carried a big stick of red striped candy, and all the little girls and boys would almost go into convulsions of laughter when she shook her rattle at them.

"I know," said the little clown, "how you feel. Sometimes I think it would be nice to have a little house and make bread and put the week's wash out on the green grass and have a cat and a fireplace"—

Her voice trailed off dreamily.

The big clown looked down at her. "I've been funny all my life," he said. "When I wasn't anything but a baby my father used to take me in the ring with him. He was a clown, too, and I've just grown up to it."

The little clown nodded sympathetically. "Most of us grow up to it," she said, "and then somehow we can't get away."

The big clown stood up. It was time for him to go into the ring. He twirled his pointed hat in his hand and then put it on. "I am going to get away from it," he said. "I want a home and neighbors. I'd like to be a sheriff in some town or mayor or on the school board"— He smiled till the thick white paint on his face was folded into deep creases.

Then he was off to the ring, and the little clown turned her attention to the contortionist, who was in shining iridescent green like a snake.

"I wish you wouldn't pay so much attention to the big clown," the contortionist told her. "I can't ever get a minute with you."

The little clown looked at him with eyes that went beyond him through the door of the tent to where the apple trees were flinging up pink branches to a sapphire sky.

"Did you ever see anything so pretty?" she asked, and pointed to it.

But the contortionist had no eyes for apple trees. "I have never seen anything so pretty as you are," he said, "and if you will stop this clown business and marry me I will put you in an act that will give you a chance to show people how good looking you are. You could wear white and your hair in yellow ringlets down your back and a gold crown. And I'd put on red with horns, and we'd give an angel and devil act."

The little clown leaned forward eagerly. "I have always wanted to do something like that," she said. "I've wanted to have an act that would make people do something besides giggle, and I ought to get pretty good pay."

"Well, I should say," the contortionist bragged. "I get bigger pay now than any one in the show, and you'd just about double it after I had taught you what to do. It would be swell business."

"Yes," said the little clown, "it would."

And when the contortionist had gone the little clown sought the bearded lady.

"Which would you rather do," she demanded, "have a little house in a country town, with a fireplace and a cat and a husband that people looked up to, or would you rather be a headliner in the circus business?"

Now, the bearded lady, in spite of her masculine appearance, was a wise woman and a sympathetic one. "I'd rather be the wife of the man I loved," she told the little clown, "whether he was in a country village or the circus. It isn't the place that makes us happy; it's the man."

The little clown nodded her head. "But I'm not sure," she began, and then the bearded lady said, "Well, be sure before you decide."

"How am I going to know?" questioned the little clown.

"You'll know when the time comes," said the bearded lady sensibly. And after the little clown had gone away the bearded lady sat and thought and thought, and when the performance was over she sent for the big clown.

"So you love the little clown?" she said.

"How did you know?" he demanded.

"Everybody knows," the bearded lady told him. "You can't hide it."

"Well, I do love her," the big clown confessed, "and I want to take her away from all this and live in a little house in a little town and have chickens and a cow"—

"The little clown wants a fireplace and a cat," smiled the bearded lady, "but it all amounts to the same thing."

"Did she tell you?" the big clown asked eagerly.

"Yes," said the bearded lady, "but she is not sure that she loves you, and it's up to you to make her sure."

"But how?" demanded the big clown.

"Leave the show," was the sage advice, "at the next village and see how she takes it."

So the next night when the lights were out in the big tent and the tired performers were packing their belongings into trunks and bags the big clown came to the little clown and said, "Goodby."

"But—but," the little clown stammered, "I don't want you to go!"

"I am going to settle down," the big clown told her, "and have a little house with a fireplace and a cat."

The little clown caught her breath quickly. "And who's going to keep house for you?" she asked wistfully.

"I shall live alone"—the big clown's voice had a note of pathos. "There is only one woman that I should care to have sit in front of that fireplace, and she values fame and fortune more than she values love."

"What makes you think that?" cried the little clown, and just then the contortionist came in. He wore a long fawn ulster and a high hat.

"My automobile is outside," he said to the little clown, "and I have asked the bearded lady to ride with us to the next village. It is much more pleasant than to go in the vans."

"Thank you very much," said the little clown, and held out her hand to the big clown.

"I hope you'll be very happy—all alone in your big house," she said to the big clown, "with your chickens and your cow—and your fireplace and your cat"— Her voice broke, and she ran out of the tent.

The big clown took a step forward, but the bearded lady stopped him.

"Let her alone," she said quietly, "Let her alone."

And presently the big machine whizzed away, and the big clown was left alone beneath the stars of the spring night.

He sat down on his trunk in the middle of the deserted ring and planned how on the morrow he would get his money out of the bank and build a house and begin a new life as a substantial citizen.

But all the joy had gone strangely out of his plans when he could not see the face of the little clown at his table or her slender figure in the big chair in front of the fireplace.

And even while he yearned for her she came to him, running over the sawdust silently, so that he did not know she was there until her arms were about his neck.

"I made him let me out," she sobbed. "Oh, I hate him! He is so sure of himself and of me. And the bearded lady got out, too, and she is coming to play propriety, only she is so much slower than I am. And I want to live in a little house with you and have chickens and a cow"—

"And a fireplace and a cat." The big clown had her in his arms, and there was deep joy in his voice.

"And you shall be the mayor some day," planned the little clown.

"And you shall make bread and hang your clothes on the grass," laughed the big clown.

"And you'll both live happy ever after," prophesied the bearded lady, who just then came up, panting, and gave them her blessing like a very hairy godmother.

The Head of the House.

The baby was ill, and the doctor ordered that he be taken to the sea. This involved the closing of the house until the little one should be well enough to return. After the wife had secured hotel accommodations by the long distance telephone the man of the house went to his room and slowly and thoughtfully spread the entire contents of his wardrobe upon his b d, that they might be convenient for his wife to pack.

He stood surveying them, deep in meditation, when his wife came into the room and began to speak to him.

He raised his hand rebukingly. "Don't talk to me now, Susie, don't talk to me! I have a great deal on my mind. If we are going to the seashore day after tomorrow there are many things to be done, and I must plan."

His wife, who had already telephoned the butcher, milkman, baker, grocer, expressman and ticket office and given the maid a month's vacation and arranged with a relative for the care of the dog, gazed at him in silence.

"A great deal on my mind," he repeated. Then the interrogative nature of his wife's silence forced him to explain.

"You see," he said, "I have got to put a nail in the cellar window and stop the newspaper."—Youth's Companion.

A Painter Who Was a Musician.

Those painters who also have the feeling and some of the proficiency of a musician reveal it in their work. They are usually colorists, with more eye for the colors and tones of nature than her shapes and forms. Such a one was Corot. He had a good tenor voice and played on the violin. He sang at his work, and sang, too, when he was not painting, but wandering through the forest of Fontainebleau or around the village of Ville d'Avray, absorbing the beauty of the scene and storing up impressions for future pictures. In fact, his whole long life of seventy-nine years was to Le Pere Corot, as his friends loved to call him, a song. And one feels it in his pictures, at least in his later ones, by which he is best known. Their coloring is subdued, like a lullaby or waking song, for it was the dawn or twilight that he preferred to paint. It vibrates with the hum of melody, and here and there is an accent of effect that trembles like the string of his violin.

Corot's long life was a remarkable instance of a man being able to continue to the end the springtime of his youth.—Circle Magazine.

Coleridge's Imagination.

From his early youth Coleridge lived in a world of books and dreams, yet his favorite walk seems to have been the Strand, the last place in the world for a poet to lose himself in reverie. As he strolled down the street he imagined himself swimming the Hellespont, the feat of which other poets had written and which the poet Byron was to accomplish later. Once while the mind of Coleridge was thus far from the busy Strand he absently thrust his hands before him in the manner of one swimming. Suddenly one hand came in contact with a gentleman's pocket.

The gentleman, thinking to capture a thief, seized the hand and exclaimed: "What! So young and so wicked!" He accused the poor, poetic boy of an attempt at pocket picking.

With some fright and a few tears the boy explained, and we can imagine that words did not fail him who was to become the most brilliant talker of his age. The gentleman was delighted with Coleridge's imagination, which could turn the Strand into the Hellespont. The intelligence of the young Leander made the stranger inquire into Coleridge's tastes, and when he found the boy liked books he opened for him a subscription at the circulating library in Cheapside.—Westminster Gazette.

The Facetious Traveler.

"How did you like Pittsburg?"

"It soots me."

"Do you think Boston is a great city?"

"It has bean."

"Did you find Philadelphia the place of sleep they say it is?"

"Not for me. Everybody else snored so loud I couldn't."

"Is Washington a good place to live in?"

"Capital."

"How did you find Chicago?"

"Didn't have to. It was there when I arrived."

"How were the mountains back of Denver?"

"Rocky."

"How did they treat you in New Orleans?"

"All the time."

"Well, I'm glad to see you're back."

"How does it look?"

"How does what look?"

"My back. I've never seen it."

It was then that the assault took place, but the court on hearing the evidence decided that it was justifiable.—Judge.

An Organ Recital.

A dozen or more women had gathed at a home on Walnut street to attend a business meeting of a society to which they belonged. Before they commenced to talk business one of the women had to tell everybody about her recovery from a recent operation for appendicitis. After she got through it reminded another of an operation she had gone through a few years ago for the same thing, and it took some time to tell about it. That reminded a third of an operation she had once gone through, and when she finished telling it another of the visitors started to tell her experience on the operating table.

At this moment a quiet little woman in one corner of the room arose to go.

"I thought," she explained to her hostess, "that this was to have been a business meeting, but it seems to be an organ recital."—Philadelphia Times.

TO SAIL ON THURSDAY

Battleship North Dakota Will Not Get Away Tomorrow

The battleship North Dakota will not leave the Fore River yards on Wednesday, as anticipated, but will go bright and early Thursday morning. The schedule as now arranged and which will be carried out is for the battleship to leave the yards Thursday morning about 8.45.

She will be in charge of Captain Thomas E. Evans, which is a safe guarantee that she will make the best possible speed. After getting clear of the Quincy Point bridge she will head for Provincetown, where she will receive a builders' limbering up. No attempt will be made to get any speed out of her on this trip. The battleship will then steam to the navy yard at Charlestown, where she is expected to arrive about 11 o'clock Friday morning. She will immediately go into dry dock and have her bottom scraped and painted.

The plan now is to leave the navy yard Sunday and run to Rockland. On Tuesday, Nov. 2, she will have her government standardization trials. On Nov. 4, she will have a four-hour run at top speed.

As soon as possible after the four-hour run she will have a 24-hour run at a speed of 12 knots, and as soon after that as possible she will have a 24-hour run at a speed of 19 knots. Following this will come the backing, turning and manoeuvre trials. Then she will come back to the navy yard and leave the government trial board and return to the Fore River to be finished up.

This schedule will be carried out to the letter. The only possible variation being foggy weather. It is necessary on her standardization trials to have a clear day in order that the ranges can be seen. Should the first day be foggy the trial will be delayed until there is a clear day.

Gen. Manager H. G. Smith will represent the Fore River Co. in the absence of President Bowles. Other officials of the company on the trial trips will be C. B. Edwards, chief engineer; J. J. Cain, electrical engineer of the turbines, and James F. Page, who will have charge of the turbines also F. O. Wellington, Assistant General Manager.

Some apprehension is felt for the safety of the Quincy Point bridge when the battleship goes through. The extreme breadth of the North Dakota is 85 feet, and as the opening of the draw is but 100 feet, it will be seen that there will be less than eight feet leeway on each side. Capt. Evans, however, has no fear, but what he can take her through all right without hitting the bridge. There is one thing about it, if the bow of the battleship should hit the bridge it will be good bye bridge. The assistance of several tugs will be necessary to navigate her through. It is high tide on Thursday at 10.30 and it is planned to have the battleship go through just before the tide turns.

LITERARY TREAT AT WOLLASTON

Dr. Vincent Speaks on Dickens and His Works

Many Quincy and Wollaston people enjoyed a literary treat Monday evening, when Leon Vincent addressed a large audience in Livermore hall at the Quincy Mansion school on the subject of "Charles Dickens."

Mr. Vincent alluded to Dickens as the most widely read of the Victorian novelists, and one whom most of us can read again and again. While the critics in the most part are against Dickens, said Mr. Vincent, his characters are real and there is a solid basis for even the most grotesque portions of his works.

In speaking of the pictorial element in Dickens, he said that it was for this reason that we heard so much more of Dickens' parties than of those of any other author. It was because he so plainly described the characters that his readers could picture them in their mind's eye. In illustration of this he told of an incident while he was in London, of coming face to face with almost the exact counterparts of two of Dickens' famous characters.

Dickens early life was then touched upon as were his visits to America. The Pickwick Papers were mentioned, and Mr. Vincent referred to Sam Weller as the character which made Dickens' reputation.

After all, said Mr. Vincent, it was not new conceptions which made the works of Dickens so widely read and so universally liked, but the working over of old familiar ideas in that inimitable style of his.

In closing he spoke of Dickens as one whose characters would live as long as the English language remained unchanged.

FOWLER BROTHERHOOD.

Rev. George F. Durgin of Boston the Speaker.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fowler Chapter of the Methodist Brotherhood of West Quincy was held in the vestry of the church, Monday evening. Besides the usual membership there were a number of visitors from the Hall Place M. E. church, as well as a large delegation from the Brotherhood of St. Paul's Swedish Methodist Church on Granite street.

Rev. George F. Durgin pastor of the Bromfield street M. E. church, Boston, was the speaker of the evening. He chose for his text, Luke 10: 2 and 3—"Therefore said He unto them, the harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest. Go your ways; behold I send you forth as lambs among wolves."

Mr. Durgin spoke of the great possibilities of a large harvest in Quincy, likening his audience to the labourers, and urged them to reap the harvest which is already great and waiting for them.

Dr. Durgin has been heard a great many times in West Quincy, yet each time the people appreciate him more than the last and learn great lessons from his teachings.

The president of the Swedish Brotherhood made a few remarks on the work of their society in trying to help their fellowmen and in upholding the Church of Jesus Christ.

WRECK OF MEDFORD.

Capt. Richardson Writes of the Cyclone at Key West.

A letter received from Capt. Richardson of the steamer Medford which was wrecked while unloading at the docks during the recent Key West cyclone, gives an account of how the boat was wrecked and in what manner his mate, Capt. Cooper, was killed. He said that one of the large hoisting cranes was torn from its foundations and thrown onto the boat, and that the mate was killed at this time. He also states that the pilings of the dock were torn up by the force of the wind and the boat was blown eight miles to sea where it was wrecked on a coral reef.

LOCATION FOR THE MONTCLAIR SCHOOLHOUSE.

Residents and Others Express Themselves at a Public Hearing at City Hall.

A very largely attended public hearing was held in the Council Chamber Monday evening by the Committee on Public Buildings. The object was to get the sentiment of the residents of Montclair as to the proper location for the proposed school building.

Councilman Gilson presided, and aside from the members of the Public Buildings' committee, Dr. Hunting, Dr. Bushnell, A. W. Newcomb, H. S. Barker, D. E. Wadsworth and J. L. Miller of the School Committee Supt. Barbour, and Councilmen Carey, Cherrington, Abele, McDevitt, Nowland, Whiton, Walsh and President Hobbs of the City Council were present.

The hearing was not devoid of its humorous side for nearly every speaked was questioned by Timothy Moriarty of Quincy Point. Mr. Moriarty wanted to know how it was that land was assessed for a cent a foot when it was worth more, and when land near by was assessed for five and six cents. He also wanted to know of the speakers how many nails were put in a stud.

Archie Thayer was also present and he wanted to know of every speaker how long they were willing to wait for the school building. If they were willing to wait as long as Houghs Neck people had.

All of the speakers were unanimous that a building should be erected in this section and all favored the so-called Holbrook lot, although if the city did not feel as though it could afford to pay the price asked the Improvement Association would try and find another lot.

President Hobbs of the City Council opened the ball by saying there was no more satisfactory duty to him than that of providing for school children. The proposed building would not only help the Montclair district but would help the Quincy, the Massachusetts Fields and the Wollaston schools. He only hoped that the committee would be able to get a lot at a reasonable price.

Frederick Kessler of the Improvement Association thanked the committee for the opportunity to be heard. The School Committee desire a lot in the geographical centre and his association had spent considerable time in trying to find one. The people of that section were unanimous for a certain lot which met all requirements but the owners wanted ten cents a foot for it, which he understood was not agreeable to the committee. We have tried to induce the owner to put a lower price but he stands firm. No doubt but the people would be satisfied with some other lot, and for that reason it would perhaps be better to give the committee more time to select another lot. The so called Pines lot would not be satisfactory. There were no accepted streets leading to it, no water there, and no houses in the immediate neighborhood. In reply to a question he said that under the present conditions he did not think it wise to pay ten cents a foot for the Holbrook lot.

Edward F. Parlee said his association had met the owner of the Holbrook lot, but were unable to get him to lower his price. He felt the price was beyond the market value. For that reason his association felt obliged to ask for more time. Sales about the lot had been made for five and six cents.

Stanley H. Packard spoke of the needs of a school in the Montclair section. He had favored the Holbrook lot, but the owner was so stiff in his price it seems we cannot get it. His stubborness stands in the way of the development of Montclair.

Mr. Brown also spoke of the attitude of the owner of the Holbrook lot standing for ten cents a foot. He would not care to have his children go to a school at the Pines as they would have to travel over gravel pits, stone crushers and bog holes.

Mr. Kirmse said that he had made a canvass of the section and all of the families he had seen were opposed to the Pines as a location. If a child going to school there had an accident it would be too far to go to a house for help. The Holbrook lot was the best and we would like to have it, but it was not up to him to say what price the city should pay. A mile walk as at present was a hardship for the children.

H. S. Barker said the committee had gone over the ground and found the Holbrook lot very desirable, but as the owner wanted so much for the lot it looked as though we would have to look elsewhere. If given time he thought the association could find another lot.

J. W. Donovan said that the Holbrook lot was the most desirable. It was pitiful to see the children going to school in winter over the icy and slushy streets. A school was badly needed. A school building would be the means of developing that section.

Representative Langelier said the only question seems to be the location, and that of price. He was surprised that the association did not insist on the Holbrook lot. The Holbrook lot would save expense of grading and it was on high land. The assessment of two cents a foot does not count. The real value of the land depends for what it is to be used. He hoped that the association would stick for the Holbrook lot.

J. L. Miller said that a building here would relieve the Wollaston and Atlantic buildings as well as the Massachusetts Fields. It was desirable to get a lot as near these three as possible. If the owner was a public spirited citizen he would sell it for three cents.

Councilman McDevitt hoped every member of the council would visit the location before voting. He would vote for the lot that the citizens desired. He was against delay. At Houghs Neck we dickered over a lot and finally had to come to the ten cent rate. He was always in favor of anything that would develop the head and he hoped the committee would put this schoolhouse through.

Ex-Councilman J. E. Poland said that people complain at being obliged to keep their children at home half a day. He hoped there would be no long disousssion of the matter. The Holbrook lot was a beautiful one, and he hoped that the Council would get together and buy it, and give us a school as soon as possible.

Timothy Moriarty said he knew where land could be purchased for less than ten cents and that was at Quincy Point.

Dr. Hunting of the School Committee said that his committee had done nothing toward the selection of a lot. They had simply given the Council committee the geographical centre. There were now 176 children in this section who were attending school. His committee had taken no definite action on any lot.

Representative Langelier said that he hoped there would be no delay, and that the committee would get to work. He knew from experience how committees worked. If there was a delay of a month the matter would slide easily over to the next Council. Then you will have to wait as long as the people of Houghs Neck did.

Councilman Cherrington said the future value of the land in that vicinity should be considered. If the city has to pay ten cents a foot it establishes a value of land in that locality and the city would soon get its money back in increased valuations as it would bring under-assessed property to light. It will develop land in that section.

Councilman Whiton hoped there would not be the same delay as there was on the Houghs Neck matter. Unless the price is outrageous it was the duty of the Council to give the people the lot they want.

At this point the hearing was closed and the committee went into executive session.

Everybody was proud on Saturday to wear the tag, and let the public know that they were interested in the success of the Day Nursery. A larger sum than usual was realized, and this charity will be able to do even better work in the year to come.

Much is expected of the battleship North Dakota which makes her maiden trip from Quincy tomorrow to prepare for her trials. Her sister ship the Delaware has set a high mark, with a speed of 21.98 knots, but the North Dakota is expected to do just a little bit better.

A plan for a quiet Fourth contemplates the formation of a national committee with the president at the head and governors of all states and territories on the committee, all to cooperate for a safe and noiseless national celebration. A good work and there might be sub-committees of mayor and selectmen in each state.

It is not right for Boston dailies to besmirch the reputation of business men of integrity like the sensational article of last evening, which connected four well-known Quincy gentlemen with the Framingham scandal. There appears to be absolutely no foundation for the article, and it was as much of a surprise to the gentlemen as to the reading public, but it is not easy to check the injury which has been done.

Now that the Bethany Brotherhood has changed its name to Bethany Men's Club we predict it will take its place among the prominent men's clubs connected with the churches of the state. The Bethany club took on new life at its meeting this week, and in Edward Southworth, the new president has an able and popular presiding officer who has a wide acquaintance and should secure the best of speakers.

It is the stay at home vote in off years that causes the painful surprises read in the papers the morning after an election when it is discovered that some faithful public servant has just squeezed by or perhaps fallen by the wayside. It is usually a good Republican who is the victim. This is one of the off years when history can repeat itself, but the key to the situation is held by the Republicans themselves. Are you working and have you set aside November 2 as a day of service to a faithful state administration?

Publishers of the Century Magazine have asked the cooperation of the press in warning the public against adventurers who ask for money on the plea of being related to various men and women connected with literature. During the past year or two names of prominent editors, authors and publishers have been successfully used in this way in various cities. Through the summer the Ledger has several times spoken in warning against these smooth-tongued adventurers as they have been at their work in this vicinity.

The leather market is in a decidedly unsatisfactory condition for the manufacturers. The lower tariff has not had the expected effect of lowering the price of this commodity. There are those who say that the output of leather is so closely controlled by the beef packers that they are able to manipulate the price almost at will, if not directly, at least by indirect influences. For instance, an increase in the price of beef reduces the consumption and there are less hides available. Business is picking up in all lines and there is a strong demand for hides, hence the market rises by leaps and bounds. It is hard to sell shoes in such a market and the manufacturers do not know where they are at.

The Massachusetts State Board of Health is preparing to send out to all railroad officials, school boards and school committees an illustrated booklet entitled "Death in Drinking Cups." This is the report of a careful analysis made by Alvin Davison, M. S. Ph. D. professor of biology in Layfayette college. Mr. Davison describes experiments which prove that the germs of grip, pneumonia, diphtheria, tonsilitis ,tuberculosis and other diseases are conveyed by public drinking cups. Recent investigations carried on by the Boston board of health show that approximately 8,000 school children in that city today carry diphtheric germs in their throats. The Massachusetts Board is following in the path of New York, New Jersey, Michigan and numerous other state health authorities who have recently abolished the common drinking cup for use in railroads. The Boston & Maine R. R. recently installed individual drinking cups made of paper and paraffined for the benefit of its patrons ,and the New Haven is said to have such action in mind.

CHILDREN CLEANING YARDS.

In New Bedford 150 children under the age of fifteen years have been busy the past summer keeping the yards of their residences clean in a quarter of the city that has hitherto been conspicuous for its neglect of such precautions—neglect which has even extended to using yards largely as garbage places and neighborhood dumps. A friend of the City Mission started a prize contest for clean yards, and the result has been in at least 150 cases that not only has there been cleanliness in the yards but there has even been an effort made to start something growing and to make the yards look sightly as well as clean. A little prize money spent in a similar way in every city might have similarly excellent results to bring about a more sightly and more healthful states of affairs with reference to the yards of residences in certain neglected quarters.—Brockton Enterprise.

SIMPLICITY IN ADVERTISING.

Speaking on "Planning Advertising" before the 700 members of the New England Dry Goods association, F. W. Tully, of William Filene's Sons company, said the other day that "The publicity need not be clever in its newspaper expression. It will be successful by its directness and simplicity —by the degree in which it is of genuine service to the public."

LIGHTING BUSINESS STREETS.

Merchants in Fifth avenue, New York, have now decided that there is value in a well-lighted street. They plan to make it the whitest street in this country or in Europe ,even surpassing Broadway. Mercantile streets in all cities of any prominence in the country are going in for strong illumination as a means of advertising, and it is realized that a dark, forbidding looking business street is a discourager of trade. Main street in this city never looked as well as it does these evenings when the stores are busy, and this brightness has had its share in drawing the people from their homes and into the business section and the stores. The recent illumination of the city will not soon be forgotten by those who in some cases realized for the first time the beauty of the city under the rays of a blaze of electricity. No local merchant who knows his business would be willing to go back to the semi-dark days of twenty-five years ago in business sections of cities. He knows that if he did it would hurt his evening trade.—Brockton Enterprise.

Boston's first Electrical Exposition promises to be the most successful of its kind ever held in the East. It will be given in the Mechanic's Bldg., Boston, November 15th to 25th. Everything that uses the great force of electricity will be exhibited and demonstrated, and people throughout New England will have the first opportunity of seeing the latest and most wonderful developments in the great field of applied electricity. That the home is distinctively the place for the modern application of the electric service will be shown by many labor-saving and comfort-giving devices. In fact one of the many features of the show will be a beautifully furnished house with every device electrical therein. From the yard outside with the cow being milked by electricity, the tiny electrically hatched chickens and ducks, the laundry with its complete equipment, as well as the kitchen and through the dining room, parlor and boudoir. Everything will be on a scale that fifty years ago would have appeared the work of a magician. There are many more novelties and spectacular features to be introduced which will indeed make it a veritable wonder-world. The lighting and decorative effects will be on a scale never before attempted.

—Discussing the effect of high prices upon the nation as a whole in the Boston Globe, Winthrop L. Marvin, secretary of the national association of wool manufacturers and a thick-and-thin high tariff man, speaks of high prices as an index of high wages, and says that "the wage makes the price." It is a leading principle of high tariff doctrine that high protective duties make high wages, all around, and if, then, high wages make high prices, what happens to real wages or the purchasing power of wages, Have they been affected in the least? Is the net result a higher wage? Wherefore we have the question coming from within the high tariff circle: Can we lift ourselves by tugging at our bootstraps?—Springfield Republican.

IMPROVEMENT OF WATERWAYS

Issue of Bonds For That Purpose Considered Unlikely

SENTIMENT OF COMMISSION

Organizations Which Were Planning to Ask For Legislation Are Disturbed by Announcement—Campaign Not Likely to Get Results at Next Session of Congress—"Pork Barrel" Not to Be Generally Opened

Washington, Oct. 26.—A bond issue for the improvement of the inland waterways will not be recommended by the national waterways commission. Such is the information brought to the capital by members of this commission who have just returned from a tour of Europe.

Senator Burton of Ohio, who was for years chairman of the committee on rivers and harbors in the house of representatives, while not prepared to speak for the commission as a whole, says there is small likelihood of a bond issue.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, chairman of the commission, who was on the inspection tour abroad, is known to be opposed to a bond issue. The senator has gone so far as to say that he feels that conditions in the European countries are entirely different from those to be found in the United States; he is not ready to say that because certain European countries have pursued a certain policy with reference to the development of their inland waterways, the United States should pursue a like policy.

The unofficial announcements by the members of the waterways commission that a bond issue is not to be recommended is not pleasing news to some of the organizations that have been planning to insist that congress authorize a large sale of bonds. The national rivers and harbors congress, which is to hold its annual meeting here in December, is demanding an annual expenditure of $50,000,000 on improvement of the inland waterways, and it would have this money raised through a bond issue.

President Taft has on several occasions, since he started on his long tour of the country, declared in favor of a bond issue with which to get money for the improvement of the inland waterways, as well as for the speedy completion of the reclamation work in the arid west.

Observers here are coming to the conclusion that the campaign for the improvement of the inland waterways of the country is not likely to get results at the coming session of congress. It seems apparent that without a bond issue there will be no money available with which to start the work of development.

Possibly the waterways commission may withhold all of its recommendations for another year. Since the adjournment of the special session last August the members have managed to get a pretty general idea as to what has been done in Europe, but they desire to take time in making a decision as to what should be done in the United States.

Taft Would Issue Bonds

St. Louis, Oct. 26.—On the eve of beginning his journey down the Mississippi river to New Orleans as a part of the exploitation for a system of deep inland waterways President Taft declared in an address at the coliseum here that his stand in favor of the issue of bonds for carrying out approved waterway improvement projects does not mean the opening of a "pork barrel" to send back any particular member of congress or to make any particular section of the country prosperous during the expenditure of the money.

Mr. Taft said he opposed any such general bond issue of $500,000,000 or $1,000,000,000 for waterways improvement, the money to be cut up and parcelled out to different sections. His idea of a bond issue is to secure sufficient money to carry out quickly such projects as may be approved after careful investigation and which can prove their worth to the entire country.

Nip Plans to Honor Ferrer

Paris, Oct. 26.—At a stormy session of the city council the recommendation of a special committee that a street be named after Ferrer and that his grandchildren be educated at the expense of the municipality was rejected by a vote of 34 to 10. The committee thereupon resigned.

Great Increase of Capital Stock

Austin, Tex., Oct. 26.—The Texas company, the oil producing and refining concern which is controlled by John W. Gates, has filed an amendment with the secretary of state increasing its capital stock from $12,000,000 to $18,000,000. One half of this capital stock is paid in.

Girls Start a Strike Riot

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 26.—Five hundred girls attempted to get as many more from going to work in the cigar factory of Hirschborn, Mack & Co. here, against which a strike has been declared, and a riot resulted. Three policemen were roughly handled.

SHIFTING OF GLADSTONE

Great Commoner's Son May Lose Position of Home Secretary

London, Oct. 26.—Herbert J. Gladstone will, according to The Daily Telegraph, be the first governor general of United South Africa. Gladstone has not been considered a great success as secretary for home affairs, and there have been many hints of his removal to another sphere.

HERBERT GLADSTONE.

There is some doubt, however, whether such an appointment, if made, would prove acceptable to South Africans, in view of the fact that his father was associated with Majuba Hill.

ASKS SEPARATION FROM HER HUSBAND

Leader of New York's Four Hundred Brings Suit

New York, Oct. 26.—The American this morning prints a story that Mrs. John Jacob Astor, leader of the 400, has brought suit against her husband for a legal separation. According to The American, the case is now in the hands of the referee, C. H. Young. The basis of the action has not been learned.

Mrs. Astor returned from Europe on Oct. 15, Astor sailing on Oct. 12, three days before his wife's arrival home, for Cuba on his yacht Nourmahal. Upon her arrival in New York Mrs. Astor went to the home of Benjamin Guinness and his wife.

Astor's attorney in the proceedings is Lewis Cass Ledyard, while Mrs. Astor is represented by John N. Cadwallader.

JEFF HAS IT ALL FIXED

Figures That He Will Dispose of Johnson In a Great Hurry

New York, Oct. 26.—"I never went into the ring but once with a hard feeling toward the other fellow," said James J. Jeffries. "That was Monroe, and he went out in two rounds. This Johnson has been making too much noise and I think a white man should be champion anyway, so you can figure out what's going to happen to him."

The Jeffries-Johnson bout gives strong early promises of eclipsing in importance any fight in the history of the ring, for it lends itself to every angle of sporting interest and variety of speculation. Jeffries' dislike for Johnson is well known and it will be business with the retired champion from the moment he clambers through the ropes.

STOLE FUNDS FROM BANK

Former Cashier and Judge Gets a Sentence of Five Years

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 26.—Charles McConnaughey, formerly county judge of Wayne county, and recently indicted for embezzling the funds of the Citizens' National bank at Monticello, of which he was cashier, was convicted on three counts and sentenced to five years' imprisonment on each count.

The alleged shortage of McConnaughey, which was placed at $60,000, precipitated the failure of the bank and several business enterprises in which McConnaughey was interested. As all three sentences are to be served at the same time it is said the entire time of service will amount to only five years.

Greek Prince to Stay Away

Athens, Oct. 26.—Crown Prince Constantine, who has been traveling for the past six weeks, announced his intention to return here next week. His presence, however, would be distasteful to the military party, and it is said that the king has persuaded him to abandon his visit.

Duel In Crowded Street

HISTORIC QUINCY.

The Society of the Daughters of the Revolution, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, take a pilgrimage to some historic spot each year on Oct. 19 in commemoration of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown. Next to a pilgrimage to Yorktown, Va., there is no more appropriate place than Quincy to visit on "Surrender day," as it was called up to the time of another important surrender in the history of our nation, which marked the close of the Civil War.

Quincy is appropriately visited on Oct. 19, because it was on that date in 1735 that there was born in a small upper room in a little red farmhouse John Adams, the patriot and statesman, without whose wise foresight, unfailing optimism and untiring devotion to the cause of liberty there might not have been a Yorktown day. —Lynn Item.

—Framingham wants a financial commission appointed, and newspaper reports would indicate that such an investigation would be necessary. The opportunity of uttering forged notes of a town by its treasurer is so easy that some system of bookkeeping to prevent this ought to be devised. If this loss should fall on the town of Framingham it will be a burden hard to carry for a great many years, and the worst feature of the matter is that there is nothing to show for the $320,000 stolen.—Old Colony Memorial.

AMERICANS PENNED IN

Cannot Leave Nicaragua For the North While Revolution Is On

Washington, Oct. 26.—The state department was advised by the American consul at Managua that President Zelaya of Nicaragua has declined to issue safe conduct passports to Americans who desire to leave Nicaragua for the north.

This action was taken because the territory north of Managua toward the Caribbean sea is in the hands of the revolutionists, who have named Juan J. Estrada as provisional president. Under the rules of international usage, Zelaya has authority to prevent foreigners from passing through the disaffected country.

The department also heard rumors of a revolutionary movement which is being fomented in Salvador. General Alfro has left Managua, Nicaragua, the consul added, presumably in connection with the reported trouble in Salvador.

SUED FOR $25,000

Mrs. Burleigh Will Receive $1500 From Bunker For Lost Love

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 26.—Mrs. Clairette D. Burleigh of Dracut, who brought suit for $25,000 damages against Charles E. Bunker, a wealthy business man of Lowell, for breach of promise, claiming in her declaration that Bunker was the father of her four children, will, according to an agreement which was filed in the clerk of the superior court's office, receive $1500.

The entry at the courthouse simlply reads "judgment for plaintiff by agreement," and thus brings to a close a most remarkable case, involved with incredible situations, but makes no arrangements as far as can be learned from papers for the care of the four children alleged by Mrs. Burleigh in her suit to have been born to her while living as the wife of Bunker.

UNREASONABLE ATTACKS BY LABOR

Shipowners Form Great Federation to Resist Them

London, Oct. 26.—Delegates from the shipowners' federations of Great Britain, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Denmark and Sweden, representing more than 16,000,000 tons of shipping, met here and registered a new federation in accordance with the British laws.

This international federation is intended to embrace ultimately all shipowners' federations of the world. The French and Norwegian shipowners have, it is understood, given notice of their willingness to join when certain formalities are completed.

The objects of the federation are to resist unreasonable attacks which may be made by trades unions and others upon the shipowners' freedom of contract in the employment of labor.

MOVE FOR MORE PAY

Railroad Clerks Say They Will Be Joined by Other Help If They Strike

New Haven, Oct. 26.—J. D. Forester of Toledo, deputy grand master of the railroad clerks' national organization, arrived here to take personal direction of the move for more pay. The 2200 clerks on the New Haven line claim that their petition for an increase has not been satisfactorily answered. They want the minimum pay per day to be $2.

The road, it is stated, has given reply to the petitioners by showing that the average wage of the railroad clerk is $2.09 per day. The clerks declare that if they should strike they will be joined by other help in freight houses, making in all about 4000 employes.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Quincy People Know How to Save It.

Many Quincy people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Quincy citizen's recommendation.

Nicholas Albanese, 16 Gilmore street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I was annoyed by attacks of backache for some time, often while at work sharp, shooting pains darted through my loins, causing me great misery. I also had dizzy speels and my sight seemed to be affected. I tried many remedies, but did not receive relief and as a last resort, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and in a short time after using them, I was helped. I have no hesitation in giving Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for my cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

CURTAILMENT IS WORLD-WIDE

Every Country Using American Cotton Is Affected

THE QUOTA IN NEW ENGLAND

Total Number of Spindles Affected Will Be Between Nine and Ten Millions If Arkwright Club Plans Are Carried Out—Mill Treasurers Blame Speculators For High Price of Raw Material and Consequent Results

Boston, Oct. 26.—The Arkwright club, in reporting upon the status of the cotton mill curtailment movement, says that cotton manufacturers in New England representing several million spindles have expressed their intention to the club of curtailing work in their mills a total of 224 hours.

While some of these may not do this unless there is general action throughout New England, many are going to close their factories regardless of their neighbors. Already some mills have gone on short time and others are preparing their reduced schedules.

From New York state mills and mills further west have come assurances of sympathy accompanied by statements that they would probably follow the example set by New England and the rest of the cotton spinning world. If the other mills in the Arkwright club that are favorable to the movement join with the foregoing, the total number of spindles affected in New England will be between nine and ten millions.

Added impetus has been given to this world-wide movement and to the determination of the local mills not to be squeezed by the ruthless speculators by a statement just issued by the International Federation of Master Cotton Spinners and Manufacturers' association. This is issued from Manchester, Eng., and gives a summary of the definite assurances received that short time will be continued or put into effect in practically every country using American cotton.

Many of the treasurers of New England cotton mills place the blame for the present condition of the cotton market on speculators. Reports received by the International Federation from 95 percent of the spindles in the world using American cotton show that such visible and invisible supplies of cotton are held over from last season as taken together with the abundant crop of Egyptian and East Indian cotton will be more than sufficient to offset any apparent shortage in the American crop.

Mill men feel that in view of the fact that the present high price of cotton is hardly warranted it is shameful that the price of goods to the consumer should be forced up by a few speculators who are interested in cotton only as a source of speculative gain. The increased cost of raw material will also work a hardship on the mill hands either by causing them to lose time or forcing a cut in wages.

Any movement which will prevent the ruthless speculator from squeezing the cotton market will be beneficial alike to the consumer, the laborer and the mill owner, say the treasurers. In fact they claim that some sort of curtailment is necessary in order to prevent a cut in wages. The alternative seems to be either to run the mills on a dangerously narrow margin, reduce wages or curtail. The latter is the choice of the majority.

There is probably more curtailment among cotton mills in the north from actual lack of orders than is generally supposed. Some of the mills in the western part of Massachusetts are now shutting down the third week in each month, and in other mills as many as 1000 looms or probably 40,000 to 50,000 spindles are idle. With the exhaustion of supplies of low-priced cotton, which will be a more or less general condition after the first of the year, curtailment will probably assume wider proportions.

CONFESSES ARSON

Volunteer Fireman Says Impulse Forced Him to Commit Crime

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 26.—On pleading guilty to the charge of arson, Benjamin E. Chesley of Lynn, 23 years old, a volunteer fireman, was held in $400 for the Essex county grand jury.

After confessing that he made two attempts to set fire to the summer cottage of Benjamin Fellows at Essex, he declared that an uncontrollable impulse forced him to apply the torch.

Chesley is a member of the Lynn Fire association, a volunteer organization, the members of which respond to all second alarms.

Taft Exercises Clemency

Washington, Oct. 26.—President Taft has commuted to three years the seven-year sentence imposed upon Thomas W. Harvey, a subordinate connected with the wrecked Enterprise National bank of Allegheny, Pa. The cashier of this bank killed himself and some of the chief conspirators escaped punishment on technicalites.

FIRE CHIEFS' CLUB.

Begun in Massachusetts Has Extended Its Field.

It is now more than 17 years since the fire chiefs' club of Massachusetts was formed and today it ranks, as the leader among the organizations of its kind in the United States. In its pioneer days the association had as its leader the late Chief Lewis P. Webber and for more than 11 years it thrived under his direction. Associated with him in the earlier days of the association were Chief James R. Hopkins of Somerville, the present head of the club, Chief William Davoll of Fall River, Chief Harry L. Marston of Brockton, Capt. William Brophy and many others who are still taking an active interest in the affairs of the club, while there are others equally as loyal who have since died.

Since the death of Chief Webber, Chief Harry L. Marston of Brockton, Chief William C. Davoll of Fall River, Chief Harry L. Spencer of Chelsea, and Chief James R. Hopkins of Somerville, have respectively headed the association.

In recent years the club has extended its scope, and includes the whole of New England and that explains the presence monthly at the meetings of "Bill" Greene of Concord, "Tom" Lane of Manchester and several others from the Granite State.

The present head of the association, James R. Hopkins, is one of the oldest firemen in the country. This year he will lead the talking at the chiefs' club, and it is his intention to have many other fire chiefs talk, too. There are certain phases of fire fighting scheduled to be discussed that are sure to arouse much interest, and already many complimentary references have been made relative to the program that Chief Hopkins and Captain Brophy have arranged for the year.

Special topics have been selected for discussion at each meeting, and according to the circular, every member, whether he be listed, or not, will be expected to contribute his share of knowledge toward, making the series a success.

Wednesday the club held its first fall meeting in Boston. The October meeting is generally known as reunion day, when the leaders of the various forces from the sand dunes of Cape Cod to the Berkshire hills meet and talk over what has happened since they parted in springtime. The topics are assigned for discussion as follows:

Oct. 20—"In cities and towns that employ permanent and call firemen, what proportion should be assigned to the different companies, engine with hose wagon, ladder and chemical and plain hose company?" Committee, Chiefs Harris of Lynn, Arnold of Salem, Turner of Malden, Cahoon of Swampscott and Edwards of Melrose.

Nov. 17—"Would the enactment of a valued policy law by the State of Massachusetts (similar to that of New Hampshire) reduce the fire waste in this State?" Committee, Chiefs Lane of Manchester, N. H.; Green of Concord, N. H.; Whitney of Nashua, N. H.; Spring of Laconia, N. H. and Gordon of Haverhill.

Dec. 15—"Can a city or town depend on a gravity system of water pressure to control fire at all times?" Committee, Chiefs Packard of Attleboro, Andrews of Marlboro, Symmes of Winchester, Tracy of Woburn and Crowe of Gloucester.

Jan. 21—"The value of automatic sprinklers in controlling fire in a factory or mercantile building." Committee, Chiefs Davoll of Fall River, Hosmer of Lowell, Dahill of New Bedford, Bunker of Cambridge and Randlett of Newton.

February meeting—"High water pressure (direct pumping) its value in controlling fires and its economy in maintenance over the portable fire engine." Committee, Chiefs Mullen of Boston, Coleman of Worcester, Marston of Brockton, ex-Chief Abner Colman of Taunton and Secretary Brophy.

March meeting—"Are shingle roofs a menace to buildings (from sparks from the fire) when in close proximity to other buildings?" Committee, Chiefs Johnson of Waltham, Whitmarsh of Braintree, Williams of Quincy, Wetherby of Hyde Park and Boyden.

April meeting—"Have motor propelled vehicles (applied to fire apparatus) gone beyond the experiment state; can the horse be dispensed with?" Committee, Chiefs Murnane of Fitchburg, Marston of Brockton, Randlett of Newton, Leonard of Taunton, Cade of Wakefield and Lane of Manchester, N. H.

For his right-hand man this year, Chief Hopkins will have Chief John A. Mullen, of the Boston fire department, who has taken a prominent part in the affairs of the Chiefs' Club since he became a member nearly four years ago.

WHILE TRYING TO KISS HIM

Otto Mueller Admits Taking the Life of Annie Mueller

THE CRIME LONG CONCEALED

Recently Brought to Light by Finding of Woman's Skeleton—Admission Made by Bigamist Expected to Show Him a Modern Bluebeard, With Deaths of Seven Women Charged to His Account

New York, Oct. 26.—Otto Mueller, who, under the name of Frederick Gebhardt, was arrested at Astoria, L. I., on Sunday night for the murder of Annie Luther, whose skeleton was found a week ago last Sunday night in the woods near Islip, L. I., was brought over to the Manhattan police headquarters Monday and had a long talk with Inspector McCaffrey.

Mueller, white and trembling, told little to the policemen on this side of the river, but later in the day after he had been brought back to Brooklyn again, he confessed that he shot Annie Luther in the woods because of a real estate "operation" near Bay Shore on April 9, 1908.

"I told Annie Luther," confessed Mueller, "out at Bay Shore, L. I., that I was married and had a wife and two children and that I must leave her and go back to my wife. I had taken her down to Bay Shore to show her some property. She screamed and ran after me. She kissed me and pulled me back. I shot her then. I did not look at her after that, and I don't remember whether I shot her more than once. I left her in the woods after I shot her and I went over to the Islip station and came home. I threw the revolver out of the car window on the way home."

For just a little more than a year and a half from the Sunday that Mueller shot Annie Luther he and his wife, Annie Merger, and their two children, Annie, 3 years old, and Fred, who is about a year old, have lived in the story and a half frame house in Astoria. Nothing seemed to bother Mueller—or Gebhardt, as his wife knew him—except that he seemed to be "money mad," and he showed much concern about his two Airedale terriers. One night, about the time Annie Luther was murdered by Mueller, he did not seem bothered. He came home to Astoria that night from his work at the piano factory and called excitedly for his wife, who was up stairs.

"We must change our name to White," he said, "and we must go away. The police are looking for me."

His wife asked him what he had done, but he would not go into details. After a night of sleep he seemed to have gotten his nerve back and little was heard after that about changing his name or about going away. Mueller, as little as neighbors could see, seemed to be a quiet, hard working German who kept much to himself.

Admissions made by Mueller are expected by the police to bring to light a tale of wholesale marriage and murder.

Mrs. Gebhardt, Mueller's present wife, has confided to the authorities that she has lived in terror of her husband for years and that on one occasion her husband, while in his cups, was overheard to declare that she was his eighth wife and that those who preceded her were all in their graves.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

His Business .... Manager

By ELIZABETH FOX.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

Edgar Trask was born with a gift. It was not the gift of money making, but the gift of producing that which if properly handled may lead to such desirable result. No; Mr. Trask was not directly a money maker. He was a playwright and had produced some pretty good plays, but he had no business instincts that would lead him to get out what there was in them. He had sold several of them without having made a written contract. The profits on them had been considerable, but they never got into the author's pockets. Then he sold a couple more for which he made contracts, but did not think to examine his copy of them. One the purchaser hadn't signed; the other was so drawn that the author was easily beaten out of his royalty. He hadn't even business sense or energy enough to get out of the clutches of the manager to whom he had made all these so called sales.

One morning he was sitting in his study when the card of this manager, Mr. Reinhart, came up to him. Mr. Reinhart, a red faced, portly man with puffy cheeks, beetling brows and a big diamond in his shirt bosom, was admitted.

"Trask," he said brusquely, "there's something wrong. For five years you have been pestering me with your plays, which I have put on the boards to get rid of you—mostly at a loss. The last I brought out, 'The Mask,' did well enough to give you a little reputation, and I looked forward to making up some of my losses. That was a year ago, since when you have not been near me. I've heard you're ready with another play and are going to take it to some one else. All I have to say is that if this is true I'll sue you for past losses, which I can recover."

"Good gracious!" exclaimed Trask. "How?"

"The contracts. Do you suppose I've been in this business twenty years not to know how to draw one?"

"Sallie!" called Trask in a high keyed, drawling voice.

A lady entered whom Trask introduced as his wife. "She's a sort of business manager for me now," he said. "She'll talk to you."

"I didn't know that you had married," said the manager, surprised.

"Yes, I've married," said Trask, with the same drawl. "Sallie, sit down there and talk to Mr. Reinhart. I'm struggling with a third act. But before you begin I want to say to you that my tobacco is all gone."

Mrs. Trask went to a drawer, took out a portemonnaie and said, "How much, Edgar?"

"Oh, a quarter 'll do."

She gave him a quarter and watched him to see that he put it in his pocket, then turned to Mr. Reinhart.

"What can I do for you?"

"I was just saying to your husband that the ungrateful course he is pursuing"—

"I heard that. The door between this and my room was open when you said it. What is it you wish?"

"Well, I want to keep up my friendly relations with Trask. I've really brought him out. I want to make a contract with him for the new play."

"At what royalty?"

"Oh, I'll do very well by him. Of course there are losses to make up on those I've already produced. I'll give him $300 down and $50 a performance."

"Why do you make so liberal an offer considering your past losses?"

"Oh, friendship. I want to encourage him."

"You must have heard something."

"What is there to hear?" He colored slightly.

"Mr. Trask has sold a play since he parted with you. It was produced last night for the first time. I, aided by a lawyer, made the contract for it."

"You? Where was it tried?" stammered Reinhart.

"Not in America. We have just had a cablegram announcing a very remarkable hit."

"You don't mean it," trying to appear surprised.

"So we expect a pretty good price for the next, which is nearly ready."

"How much?"

"Three thousand dollars down and $500 for each performance."

"I accept your offer."

"Excuse me; it is not an offer to you. Mr. Trask will sell no more plays to you."

"Sallie," groaned Trask, "I think you are treating me very mean. This fountain pen is worn out. Why don't you give me some money to buy another?"

"Because you haven't asked me, dear. I'll remember to give it to you before you go downstairs tomorrow."

"And 10 cents for car fare?"

"I'll see to it."

Meanwhile Mr. Reinhart was thinking of the bluff he had made. "Very well," he said, rising and buttoning his coat; "I'll begin suit under my contracts for losses on the back plays."

"I have already ordered a suit begun under those contracts for nonpayment of royalties."

Mr. Reinhart paled. He had recently changed his lawyer. The last one had discovered a flaw in one contract involving $15,000. He stepped to the door astonished and troubled. As he passed out he heard Trask say to his wife in his usual drawl:

"Sallie, I wish you wouldn't give me any more two dollar bills. You gave me one yesterday to pay a dollar, and I never thought of the change."

"I won't trouble you that way again, dear."

ARE LOSING NO SLEEP

Because of Suit and Attachment by Cummings

Four well known Quincy business men have come into prominence since Charles F. Cummings the Boston broker now confined in the Charles street jail in connection with the Framingham scandal, entered suit against them in an action of tort and attached their property in the sum of $10,000.

The suit and attachments probably grew out of the sale of Boston and Oaxaca Mining company. One of the gentlemen in question when seen this morning could offer but little in the way of explanation to the suit. He said that he and the other gentlemen mentioned were minority stockholders in the company. The stock was full paid and non assessable. His interest in the mine, however, is but little now as it had been wiped out when the mine was sold to Cummings at auction Oct. 4. He was inclined to agree with Mr. Mannix counsel for the minority holders, which was that it was a game of bluff.

When asked if he could think of anything which might have been the cause of the suit being brought the gentleman said he could think of nothing unless it might possibly have been a circular issued in the interest of the minority stockholders a year or more ago.

This circular as he remembered it set forth that Cummings was an undischarged bankrupt and made reference to the court records in the case. The circular simply set forth the facts and propounded the question, if the stockholders desired to put their holdings in his hands.

The gentleman said that he was losing no sleep over the suit and he doubted very much if it ever came to trial.

MRS. SHORT'S CONDITION

It Is Very Critical, but She Has a Fighting Chance to Recover

Washington, Oct. 26.—Mrs. Evelyn Short, the chorus girl shot here by her husband, William H. Short, who afterwards committed suicide, is in a serious condition, but has a fighting chance to recover. Dr. Wellington removed two bullets from Mrs. Short. A third bullet fired by the husband did not penetrate her body, but left a peculiar wound, due, perhaps, to the corset steel which blocked its way.

Dr. Wellington says that if Mrs. Short holds her own for a couple of days she will recover, but her condition is critical.

AN EASY AND HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR.

Who does not know of the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, put up an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. It is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the manufacturers upon receipt of price.

Mrs. F. A. Hoyt, president of the Brockton Woman's club at the opening meeting of the club commented on the excellent work already accomplished by the members and asked for even greater enthusiasm in the future. She said: "The girls of the city need much help. There is a great deal done for the boys and they need every bit of it. But what of the girls, the mothers of the future? The girls' home is doing a splendid work, but are there not girls of a different class who need help? We should not be satisfied that our own daughters are safe from harm, but should want to help other daughters, less fortunate. In a manufacturing city like this think of the needs of the girls for social life and human, womanly interest in her welfare. Can we not do something for the girls this year?"

Wollaston Alliance is holding a particularly interesting meeting this afternoon, Miss Hope Fagan of Boston, giving a short story of settlement work, with which she is familiar and tells of in an entertaining way.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

There was a large attendance of Alliance members and friends on Monday afternoon in the parlor of First church. Mrs. Edward B. Marsh, president conducted the devotional and business sessions. Reports were given by the various committees and Mrs. Frank S. Davis read from the Alliance Manual the report of national secretary of the National Alliance meeting in Chicago.

Following the business Mrs. Laura Tirrell sang with much expression and feeling two old time songs, playing her own accompaniments.

The paper of the afternoon was by Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard, her subject being "Comradeship." It was a most interesting paper and as the subject implies treated of comradeship in the home with father and son, mother and daughter, friends and neighbors. The good feeling and comradeship that would sacrifice and do for love of another. Mrs. Sheppard closed her paper by reciting a poem on Comradeship by Dr. Maltbie Davenport Babcock, awell known preacher in New York and Baltimore.

Before the social hour Mrs. John W. Sanborn spoke of the meeting of the Norfolk Conference and Mrs. George G. Saville of the meeting at Chicopee of the New England Associate Alliance.

Announcement was made of three entertainments to be given in the chapel by the Alliance, the first one to be on Friday evening of this week, a dramatic entertainment "Down in Maine," by the Jonas Perkins School association of East Braintree. Joseph G. Spear a former Quincy resident would be in the cast.

Mrs. Wilson Tisdale and Mrs. Frank S. Davis served chocolate and were assisted by a committee of Alliance members.

JUNIOR ALLIANCE.

A largely attended meeting of the Junior Alliance of First church was held Monday evening in the church parlor, the speaker being Rev. Lewis G. Wilson, secretary of the American Unitarian association.

Mr. Wilson gave a most interesting talk on "The Growth of Unitarianism from the beginning." He told of how a few liberal, broadminded men got together and found that although their views were similar to other churches they were too different to continue together so a new church, the first Unitarian, was formed. He also spoke about Unitarianism in foreign countries and said it was now represented in about every country. In speaking about the spreading of Unitarianism, he said, that there were two things this year which had helped spread Unitarianism more than anything else, namely ex-President Elliot's sermon "The religion of the future" and the fact that President Taft was a Unitarian.

Following the speaker an informal talk was held, during which plans were discussed for the church fair and each girl was requested to bring five articles to sell.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Early in the afternoon members begin to gather at the clubhouse in anticipation of an afternoon of pleasure and profit and on Tuesday nearly every seat was taken when the business meeting opened at half-past two. Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney was in the chair and called for the usual reports.

Miss Harriet Turner for the Philanthopy committee spoke of the Girls' club which was about to be formed and plans for which were progressing most favorably. The first meeting was to be on Saturday night at the clubhouse when there would be an entertainment and refreshments. Members were asked to assist in the work and to take blank cards to fill out with the name of some girl desirous of becoming a member. The cards to be mailed before Saturday to Miss Amey Newcomb of Howard street.

Mrs. Edward S. Tenney for the Arts and Crafts committee made a good report and asked for the assistance of club members. The objects were twofold, social intercourse and forming classes. The various classes start in this week and their success depended on more members joining them. There were classes in millinery, dressmaking, brass, tooling, netting basketry,

NO CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR

Republicans Have Only a Few Days to Select One

Up to the present time no Republican has taken out nomination papers as a candidate for Mayor, and it looks as though it would be up to the City Committee to fill the vacancy. The time for filing nomination papers for candidates to be voted for at the municipal caucuses will expire Saturday night and little time is left in which to circulate nomination papers which require fifty signatures.

The South Quincy Republicans following out their usual custom will have two sets of names for ward councilmen at the coming caucuses. The names selected are John R. Richards one of the present council; George Gauthier, Alexander D. Booth, George A. Bolster, Robert B. Craig and Malcolm McKenzie. South Quincy will also put forward the name of ex-Councilman Alexander Clark as a candidate for councilman-at-large. Councilman at large Bishop from Ward Three declines to run again, and Councilmen Russell and Nelson have moved from the ward since the last election.

Councilmen Carey, Flynn and Walsh the three Democratic councilmen from the Quincy Point ward, have taken out papers for renomination.

From present indications there will be a surplus number of Democratic candidates at West Quincy for councilmen at the coming caucuses. Councilmen John J. McDevitt and John D. Smith are again in the field, also ex-Councilman Robert J. Teasdale and ex-Councilman James Edwards. Rumor has it that there are also others who will enter the fight. Councilman Flaherty, who is a candidate for Representative from the Sixth district will not be a candidate for the Council this year.

Dexter E. Wadsworth, member of the School Committee from Ward One and Dr. Edward H. Bushnell member at large whose terms expire this year, will be candidates for renomination.

Charles A. Erickson, Councilman James M. Nowland and Councilman Joseph L. Whiton Jr., will be candidates at the Ward One Republican caucus.

The Sixth Norfolk Representative district has three candidates—Louis F. R. Langelier, who is renominated by the Republican; James M. Flaherty nominated by the Democrats, and John A. L. Ross, the Socialist candidate.

There are five candidates this year on the State ticket for governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, auditor, and attorney general—Republicans Democrats, Socialists, Prohibitionists and Socialist Labor.

CITY SQUARE ACCIDENT.

Mrs. Mary R. Thomas of North Weymouth had a bad fall this morning as she was about to board an East Weymouth car on Depot street. Mrs. Thomas, who is well along in years, was about to take a car for home. She had hold of the handles on the car when she had a fainting spell and fell backwards into the street, striking on the back of her head. She was taken into Hearn's drug store where she was attended by Dr. Gordon, who found that she was not seriously injured. She was then taken to her home in a depot carriage. Inquiry at her home brought out the fact that she was comfortable and none the worse for her fall.

Mrs. Thomas, who is 80 years of age, resides on Sheldon street, East Milton, but had been making her home for the past few weeks with her nephew, B. Frank Thomas of North Weymouth. She came from East Milton and was on her way to North Weymouth at the time of the accident.

TIN SHOWER.

The home of Miss M. Ella Willoby, 12 Baker avenue, Weymouth, was the scene of a gay party last evening, when a number of young ladies from Quincy and East Milton tendered her a "tin shower," in honor of her recent engagement to Mr. Chester J. Purtell of Salem.

Recovering from her surprise, everyone was made welcome and the fun began. The hostess was requested to be seated in the centre of the group, when she was showered with tin ware of every description, each article bearing a card upon which was written a verse.

A jolly good time was had and the evening passed all too quickly with games, music and dancing, after which refreshments of hot coffee, cake, candy, fruit and ice cream were served.

One of the features of the evening was the presentation of a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums to the parents of Miss Willoby.

The party broke up at a late hour, after having given three cheers and drinking a toast to the hostess.

Those present from Quincy were: Misses Clara Rehnn, Anna Rehnn, Margaret Michael, Isabelle Michael, Georgiana Michael, Louise Dunn, Helen Troupe, Antonia Picard, Mabelle Wentworth, Elizabeth Waldron and Edith MacVitie.

TODAY'S COURT.

Upon the advice of friends, Mr. Peary has decided to do less talking until he has something to say.

Halley's comet has hove in sight 113 days before schedule time. Probably it feared that some rival comet might show up and claim the honors.

The names of some of England's biggest battleships are Indomitable, Indefatigable and Inflexible. A good many of the English people think the next big one ought to be named the Insupportable.

If W. J. Bryan would state his preference in the New York mayoralty contest there would be little trouble in picking a loser.

Now it is Lord Kitchener who has a private secretary upon whom to lay the blame for his plagiaristic farewell speech. Long live the private secretary.

Melrose is having an anti-tuberculosis exhibit this week at City Hall arranged by the Melrose Anti-Tuberculosis Association, assisted by the Woman's club ,the Board of Trade and the Catholic societies. Quincy has already had this exhibit. It was under the auspices of the Women's club, assisted by the City and held last fall at City Hall.

The enthusiasm in the campaign in Boston to raise funds for a new Y. M. C. A. building is not entirely local for outlying New England towns and cities have received a new impetus and interest which is bound to be far-reaching in results. The Quincy Y. M. C. A. each day seems to increase its scope and work and is an important factor in the city's welfare.

Governor Eben S. Draper has grown in the estimation of the public as his administration has grown older and it is more and more appreciated that he has thrown all his influence at the State House in behalf of business methods in the Commonwealth's affairs. The reduction of $1,000,000 in the State tax this year is a striking instance of what wise direction can accomplish and the effect should be felt in the tax bill for the current year in every city and town in the Bay State. His opponent who is without business experience would fall far short of the Governor's record.

NO PORTIAS AT HARVARD.

In many respects Harvard is radical; in others very conservative. It seldom rushes out to meet a new ideal without soon having a fit of remorse and becoming exceedingly coy in the presence of another. The Law School authorities have just decided that it cannot be invaded by women. No would-be Portias need apply. Yet ancient European seats of learning have had eminent examples of woman's mastery of law, and her ability to teach it.—Boston Herald.

GRAY HAIRS BANISHED.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color. One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days on account of it souring quickly. This objection has been overcome and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of th's preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow. It is sold by all druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

JAPAN MOURNING FOR PRINCE ITO

Declaration That His Peace Policy Will Be Maintained

ASSASSINATED IN MANCHURIA

Had Just Arrived at Harbin to Try and Secure Better Understanding With China and Assure the World of His Country's Honorable Intentions—Great Statesman Was of Unknown Parentage

Tokio, Oct. 27.—Hirobumi Ito, a prince of Japan, but the greatest commoner in the empire, and for two years the uncrowned ruler of Korea, who above all stood between Korea and the degredation of immediate annexation, hoping to build up that country anew, was assassinated by and the degradation of immediate anspecial train at Harbin, Manchuria, to which place he went from Tokio in his capacity as president of the privy council on a mission of peace.

The assassin was arrested. "I came to Harbin for the sole purpose of assassinating Prince Ito to avenge my country," the slayer told his captors. He also said he had a personal account to settle with the great Japanese statesman, who, during his stay in Korea, had ordered the execution of several persons closely connected with the assassin.

PRINCE ITO.

Prior to his departure Prince Ito said to the newspaper men:

"I am going on my own initiative, with the approval of my emperor, with the hope of securing a better understanding with China, and of assuring the world that Japan's intentions in Manchuria are amicable to China and friendly to the commerce of all nations. When I return I hope to give positive evidence of this."

Undoubtedly Prince Ito intended to inaugurate and enforce a distinct policy in Manchuria, but the exact nature of this was not disclosed. Marquis Katsura, the premier and minister of finance, after the assassination said in an interview:

"The death of Prince Ito will not change the policies of Japan. The pacific motives of Prince Ito will ever be maintained and the traditions left by him will always be followed."

The entire nation is mourning; the flags on the foreign embassies have been placed at half-mast, while all public and many private functions have been abandoned. The Japanese and foreign newspapers appear with black borders. Only the death of the a Korean just as he alighted from a emperor could arouse such similar demonstrations of sympathy.

Perhaps Prince Ito's death causes more universal sincerity and grief because he was idolized by the masses as the great counsellor of the elder statesmen, the creator of the cabinet and the friend of the emperor himself.

The posthumous honors have not yet been announced, but it is certain they will be the highest in the gift of the emperor and that the funeral will equal that of a prince of the blood.

The prince was born Sept. 2, 1841, of unknown parentage. As an orphan he was adopted into the family of Juzo Ito, a Samurai of the lowest rank in the Choshu clan. Young Ito studied under the great master of the time, Yoshida Shoin, and developed brilliantly.

In 1863 he undertook the celebrated pilgrimage to England in defiance of the laws of Japan which forbade natives to go abroad under the penalty of death.

He took part on the imperial side during the war which led to the restoration and after the establishment of the present Meiji government, began his official life as a judge of the Osakai court.

To describe the career of Prince Ito from the time when he left Japan as a boy for England, sailing before the mast, to the time when he retired from his recent post in Korea, would be to recount the whole history of modern Japan. His intimate knowledge of affairs in Europe and America, as well as in the Orient, combined with the well known disposition for fairness, made him a power for peace throughout the world.

FUNERAL OF M'CARREN

Senator's Old Political Enemies and Friends March In Procession

New York, Oct. 27.—The bell of Brooklyn borough hall tolled for Patrick Henry McCarren Tuesday as it tolled for Henry Ward Beecher twenty-two years ago. It was a mark of official respect for the passing of a conspicuous citizen, an honor rarely paid.

The funeral of McCarren was the most notable, save that of Beecher's, that has ever taken place in Brooklyn. It was attended by persons of all races, creeds and shades of political opinion. Men walked in the procession who had fought the senator through strenuous years, side by side with men who had been his most devoted friends and partisans.

Mrs. Mary McCarren, who is 87 years of age, took a last look at her son in her home. She had remained alone in the room until a few minutes before the funeral guests were admitted. She went from the parlor to her room and did not attend the church services. Her son would not have desired it, she said. After the church services the remains were taken to Cavalry cemetery, where the interment took place.

GUILTY ON ONE COUNT

New Plea Is Offered by New York Importer of Cheese

New York, Oct. 27.—Philip Musica, on trial with his father, Antonio, on charges of defrauding the government in the importation of cheese, withdrew his plea of not guilty to the fifth count in the indictment and substituted therefor a plea of guilty.

This count, which concerns the making of a false entry on one shipment of cheese, is one of six embodied in the indictment, and the penalty under each is two years in prison or a $5000 fine or both. The government attorneys accepted the plea of guilty and Musica was allowed to remain at large on his original bail of $3000, with leave to withdraw the plea on the advice of counsel.

TAMPERED WITH WITNESS

Heinze Sentenced to Ten Days In Prison and Fine of $250

New York, Oct. 27.—Arthur P. Heinze, convicted of advising a witness in the United Copper company investigation to evade the service of a grand jury subpoena, was sentenced to pay a fine of $250 and be imprisoned ten days in prison.

In passing sentence, Judge Ray said that Heinze's offense was wilful, deliberate and a premeditated obstruction of justice, and he declined to grant a stay.

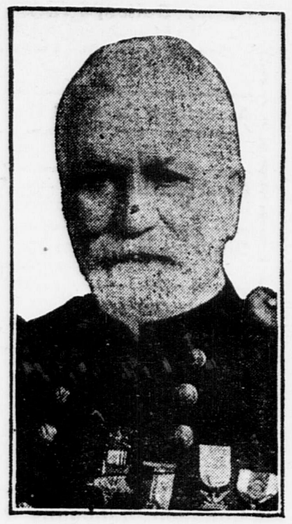
IN MANY ENGAGEMENTS

Death of General Howard, Who Served His Country Faithfully

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 27.—General Oliver O. Howard, last of the Union commanders of the Civil war, died at his home in this city last night. Heart disease was responsible for the noted soldier's death.



GENERAL O. O. HOWARD.

Including Howard's service in the Indian wars, he was probably in more engagements than any other officer in the United States army.

He was born in Leeds, Me., Nov. 8, 1830. When 20 years of age he was graduated from Bowdoin college and entered West Point, from which he was graduated in 1854, and was made a lieutenant and appointed instructor in mathematics.

Upon the breaking out of the war in 1861 he resigned, tenedered his service to the state of Maine and was placed in command of the Third regiment of Maine volunteers. At the battle of Fair Oaks, where he left his right arm, he was twice wounded.

INDULGES IN TIRADE AGAINST THE NEGRO

Black Man Not Entitled to Vote, According to Money

Baltimore, Oct. 27.—In a speech before a Democratic mass meeting here United States Senator Money made the statement that the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the constitution of the United States were not legally adopted. Furthermore, the senator told the Democrats that he intends to make an effort at the next session of congress to have the attorney general take the question to the supreme court for a decision.

"This is no question of justice, but a question of what we consider the best for the state," declared the senator. "I have no feeling against the colored man as an individual, but I have contempt for the race.

"It is a great thing to be a citizen in this land of liberty and freedom. I do not care if every negro in the world is educated in a university and worth a million dollars, he is not fit to exercise the right of suffrage, because of his birth and blood."

STRINGENT MARRIAGE LAWS

Certain Classes May Be Forbidden to Marry In Some States

Ithaca, Oct. 27.—In the course of a lecture on the social problems and their relations to public health, Professor Jenks, head of the political economy department at Cornell, said other states would soon find it advisable to pass laws forbidding certain classes of undesirables to marry. They will go even further than that, and prevent their procreation by unsexing them, he said.

Professor Jenks discussed what the state could do to prevent diseases, and showed how typhoid, smallpox, cholera and other former fatal diseases had been wiped out. Even tuberculosis, he said, would soon disappear.

Washtub Will Disallowed

Boston, Oct. 27.—Because a search of nearly a year had failed to locate the witnesses, Judge Braley in the supreme court disallowed the famous "washtub will" of Patrick Monahan, the Charlestown business man who left an estate of $200,000, which was the cause of a contest because what purported to be a will was found nailed to the bottom of a washtub.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

STEAMER DELAYED.

New Engine May Not Arrive for Three Weeks.

It will probably be at least three weeks before Quincy's new steam fire engine is received. The engine was to have been delivered some weeks ago but changing from steel to rubber tires has caused the delay. The wheels were all completed when the city decided to equip it with rubber tires. This necessitated almost rebuilding of the wheels. These wheels were shipped Monday to Providence when the rubber tires will be put on. The engine itself has been assembled for some time. After the tires are on it will be necessary to fit the brakes and it is thought the whole job will require at least three weeks more time.

THE MAN OF FIFTY.

There is an undercurrent of tragedy that gives a touch of real pathos to Forbes Lindsay's article on "The Man of Fifty" contributed to Harper's Weekly. Mr. Lindsay believed the talk about the difficulty of a man of fifty securing employment was greatly exaggerated. After a fair test he is fully satisfied of its truth. He didn't actually need a job, it may be explained, but he records that "the week I recently spent in the search for something to do was the most dismal of my life."

The dictum has gone forth that the man of fifty has passed the period of his greatest usefulness. He may know that his faculties are keener than ever before; that his experience is riper, his judgment sounder, his constitution and habits more stable and his power of steady ,even application greater. But he can't persuade the world to share his belief. In his search for employment—for anything that would bring even the most modest wages—Mr. Lindsay found no door open to the seeker for work whose ability was handicapped by his years. And in his rounds he came across other men, no longer young, who had grown disheartened by their failure as job-hunters. They had lost their fortunes or their positions through sickness or hard luck. Now they were adrift, not wanted anywhere except in the most menial places, some of them forced to fall back on the meagre earnings of the women of their households for a living. This was in New York, but every community can point out like examples of men along in years who are forced out of lucrative places by a turn of fortune and never have been able to get back and take a fresh grip.

It is easy to say that the man of fifty should have made provision by that time to insure himself a competency. That isn't always possible. Where it isn't, and he finds his old occupation gone, with a younger man given the preference ,his lot is about as pathetic as can be imagined.—Brockton Enterprise.

HERE IS WHERE THE HIGH TARIFF HITS YOU MR. VOTER

Almost Famine Prices Increase Cost of Living

What topic do men and women discuss these days with more anxiety than the increased and increasing cost of living? In thousands of homes in this old Commonwealth it excludes all else.

Colored reports from statistical bureaus in Washington may tell you "wages" have increased equal to the cost of living. You know better, Mr. Day Laborer and Mr. Bricklayer and Mr. Machinist and Mr. Carpenter, don't you?

"I'm Glad I Don't Have to Explain It." Lodge Not On the Stump

And how about you, Mr. Clerk? How about the "salary" which you get? Has it doubled in a decade? Does the fifty-dollar man now get $100? Ask him.

Ten years ago every Republican orator in the land raged against a fifty-cent dollar. Remember? Well, ask them how about the dollar of to-day. Doesn't it take pretty near a dollar to buy you in food, clothing and other needs what fifty cents would purchase then? Now, on the level, doesn't it?

A careful inquiry made of the buyers in the leading stores which cater to all classes, the man with the pick and shovel and the man with the coupon scissors, reveals a startling condition. Compared with ten years ago, even five years ago, famine prices now prevail.

Behind the tariff walls the trust and tariff barons are exploiting you as they never dared before and would attempt in no land save this.

Then you could go into the grocery and buy a barrel of flour for $5.80. Now it costs only $7.25.

But Senator Lodge says "The Payne Tariff Bill is all right."

In 1899 beans cost you seven cents the quart. Now they are fifteen. Ask Senator Lodge.

Cornmeal to-day is three cents. It cost as much then. Some consolation there. But are you ready, Mr. Voter, for the diet of the plantation hand down South, Corn Pone, and the horrible disease of Pellagra which some think go with it? If so, eat cornmeal. It is all you have left.

Roast beef cost you then fourteen and two-thirds cents. How now, Mr. Voter? Just twenty-eight cents. You got the best rump cut then for twenty-five cents. Try it now. Nothing doing. Thirty-five cents, please.

And Senator Lodge says give us tariff walls.

Corned beef for the man whose "piece de resistance" was corned beef and cabbage has almost doubled from nine to sixteen cents. Veal forequarters cost you in "the good old days" just eight cents, now it's just DOUBLE that.

How about it, Senator? Explain it please, Your Excellency, Governor Draper.

Veal hindquarters were thirteen, now they are twenty-two cents; cutlets then twenty-two can now be had for thirty-eight cents, the price of venison a decade since.

Fresh pork has jumped from ten to sixteen; salt pork from nine to sixteen; smoked hams from thirteen to twenty; corned shoulder hams from nine to fourteen; sausages from eleven to fifteen; lard from eight to eighteen. Truly, cake is for the classes.

And we must have tariff for protection, says Senator Lodge. Butter was twenty-four. Try and buy it now. Somewhere around forty cents. Milk was five and six, now it's seven, eight and nine.

Coal is up, wood is up, gas as fuel and light holds its own, and there you are. In the clothing line things are even worse.

Shirting used to be thought dear at eight cents, and now you call it a good trade at fifteen cents the yard. Brown sheeting was eight cents, now it's three times that and three besides, or twenty-seven cents; bleached sheeting was nine, now it's thirty; ticking was eleven, now it's sixteen.

Just a few prices. One might fill a newspaper with the rest. Shoes are from twenty-five to fifty cents higher a pair, or if for trade reasons the price holds the same, the quality has deteriorated. You know that by this time, don't you, Mr. Voter?

Everything in woolens and worsteds will be increased from five to ten per cent. on November 1st, and compared with ten years ago this is an enormous advance.

Yet Senator Lodge says let the tariff alone. Let the barons and burglars who rob you behind its protecting walls wax fat on your suffering. It is a concrete thing, a stubborn fact.

Do you weary of it, Mr. Voter, of whatever class?

If you do, and want to register your protests with the rest of Massachusetts,

Vote for James H. Vahey for Governor.
Vote for Eugene N. Foss for Lieutenant-Governor.

Mr. C. B. Ames, Harry Glover and Eliot Johnson. This union together with the Dedham union has charge of the Pickles and Preserves table.

Although the Quincy Choral society lost a few of its members of last year, as all societies do from season to season, the large number of new members now joining make it certain that the chorus will be much larger than it was last year. Two rehearsals have been held and the study of Handel's Messiah, that greatest of all oratorios is already well under way.

CONGREGATIONAL MEN'S CLUB

Secretary Gibson Talks on "That Boy of Yours."

In a heart-to-heart talk before the members and guests of the Wollaston Congregational club on Tuesday evening H. W. Gibson, state secretary for boys' work in the Young Men's Christian Association of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, held the undivided attention of his audience with the subject: "That boy of yours."

We must remember, he said that the boy of today is the man of tomorrow, and for this reason we must see that he has a proper foundation upon which to build. In illustration he read a poem which told of a village in which instead of building a fence around the top of a cliff to keep persons from falling off, they put an ambulance down in the valley. With boys, he said we must deal with the cause rather than the result. We must take steps toward the prevention of crime rather than the cure after it has been committed.

We must get control of that unharnessed energy with which every normal boy is inoculated. We cannot do much with a boy, said Mr. Gibson, unless we know about him and understand him. The normal boy is noisy, and the quiet boy is the one which needs attention. "Boys will be dirty," he said, "and the only unhappy boy I know of, is the one who is immaculately dressed in clean clothes."

Boys must be given a chance to exercise their muscle. This is beginning to be recognized and as a result the playground movement is gaining headway. This is bound to lessen the cases which appear before the juvenile courts.

People frequently say that their boy must stay at home. It is a law of nature, he remarked, for bees to go in swarms, cattle in herds, fishes in schools and likewise for boys to go in gangs. What the boy wants is male companionship and this social desire must be gratified. Small wonder is it that the boy in the average home goes wrong where the father is no chum and any place is good enough to put the boy.

Boys, said Mr. Gibson are imitators. They do not care for preaching and follow example rather than precept. You can't fool a boy. He is the first to discover a sham. If you do not measure up to what you preach you may talk to that boy for ages but you can't touch him with a ten foot pole. A boy loves his mother but follows in the footsteps of his father.

The age of 15 or 16 is the most critical for the boy and we should have patience with him. If he wants a pompadour let him have it. If he wants to roll up his trousers three times let him do it. He'll grow up. What he needs at this critical period is a friend—not continued nagging.

Mr. Gibson then referred to the moral life of the boy. Fully 90 per cent, he said got a knowledge of the laws of life from the street.

For this reason is it strange that boys often go wrong, said Mr. Gibson. He has a right to know what is expected in life and the reason there are so many criminals under the voting age is because the father has been untrue to his boys.

He mentioned the boys' club that has been started in Wollaston and the power it had to lead the boys to see the path to the right kind of manhood. It is impossible to pen a boy up and keep him quiet. There is bound to be an explosion. "If you want to sit on the safety valve of a boiler," said Mr. Gibson, "I am sure that I do not."

He told the way to approach a boy and told of the great help the men's clubs could be in taking charge of the boys of the Sunday school.

A boy is religious in spite of opinions to the contrary and all he wants is a chance to express himself. A boy will never disappoint you. He will always be the boy you expect him to be—whether good or bad. A boy will follow you through thick and thin if you but win his confidence which can only be accomplished by trying to be the man you want him to be.

Mr. Gibson is a ready speaker and throughout the address held his audience by a deep thread of human interest and a varied list of incidents and anecdotes.

At the conclusion of his speech Mr. Gibson was asked many questions concerning the bringing up and development of boys.

Many members of the Wollaston Methodist accepting the invitation of the Congregational club were present at the meeting.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were read and accepted, and a rising vote of thanks was extended Mr. Gibson.

Following the meeting many of the audience gathered around the piano where club and college songs were in order. The usual roast beef supper was served by the young men of the church.

CONTEST IN THE FIFTH

Representative Thomas May Have a Hard Fight

There is more of a fight on in the fifth Norfolk Representative district than appears on the surface. The two candidates are Representative William R. Thomas, the Republican nominee, and Michael T. Sullivan, the Democratic nominee. Rumor has it that the labor element is arrayed against Mr. Thomas, but if so they are conducting a quiet campaign. Both Mr. Thomas and Mr. Sullivan are on the still hunt, and it looks as though the contest would bring out a large vote.

Last year the vote was:

W. R. Thomas	1350
E. J. Parker	1004
C. W. Hascom	108
Blanks	186
Total vote	2648

WOMEN'S CLUBS.

stenciling, etc. Members of the committee would be found in the Arts and Crafts room to explain the work of the classes.

Mrs. Charles Bickford for the Art and Literature committee said it was hoped to form a current events class under the guidance of Mrs. May Alden Ward and members were urged to join as a certain number was necessary to assure the success of the club. Announcement was also made of a lecture to be given in January by Mr. Thomas A. Watson of East Braintree.

Mrs. Edmund Wade for the Home Economics committee called attention to the Woman's Exchange in the Committee room where food and household things could be found. She also spoke of the cooking lectures to be given at the clubhouse; a course of five lectures beginning Friday Nov. 5 at 2.30, member's tickets one dollar and nonmembers one dollar and a half for the course.

Mrs. John D. McKay for the Education committee spoke of the reception to be given Wednesday evening to Mr. Albert L. Barbour, the new superintendent of the public schools. Members were invited to attend and meet Mr. and Mrs. Barbour and to bring a man guest. The school teachers and officials of the city had also been invited.

Mrs. Walter E. Blanchard announced that a mammoth rummage sale was soon to be held by two philanthropic societies and she asked for contributions of all kinds especially children's clothing.

Mrs. E. E. Jameson, custodian spoke of the necessity of members securing guest tickets before the afternoon of the meeting and they could be obtained of any member of her committee in the several wards of the city. Members forgetting their membership tickets would be fined ten cents also to come to the rear door after half past two.

Mrs. Gurney here again announced the old familiar by law that no person can be a guest at the club but once a year. Members need to impress this firmly in their minds when inviting guests as it would be awkward to have them turned down. The by laws are to be revised and the committee would welcome suggestions, Mrs. Wilson, chairman. They would be presented to the club to act on later.

The president and Mrs. Frederick H. Bishop will be delegates to the Federation meeting at Brockton on Nov. 11. Any one desirous of attending may obtain tickets of the corresponding secretary Mrs. Tirrell.

Members wishing extra year books may obtain them of Mrs. Tirrell for five cents each.

Mrs. Pinkham announced lectures for the Child Nurture club on Nov. 3 at 3 P. M. at the Wollaston Grammar school, and an evening lecture for the Wollaston Free Kindergarten by Dr. Roland Grant at the Baptist church.

Mrs. Forrest B. Royal an ardent worker in the anti-tuberculosis movement in Quincy told of the necessity right away of a camp as the Emmanuel church in Boston would not receive any more Quincy patients.

At the close of the business meeting Mrs. Gurney introduced Miss Harriet Turner, chairman of the Philanthropic committee who had charge of the afternoon's program and in a few appropriate words introduced Rev. A. Z. Conrad of Park Street church, Boston who spoke on "The Bright Side of Life."

Dr. Conrad began his lecture most happily in saying that the bright side of life was illustrated before him in the club and its work and in the bright afternoon. The world is what we make it, cloudy weather—cloudy faces. Have you a cheerful face? Are you happy? Every one should take lessons in cheerfulness—attitude creates and attitude may make bright all around. Some people regard life as a squeezed lemon—nothing in it. There is a storm in the heart as we see it or as we make it. It is easy to be periodically cheerful. Be responsive, if we meet people half way we will find them ready to respond their half. This responsiveness Dr. Conrad illustrated with an anecdote of an auto trip which he took to Cape Ann.

He told of going up the Rigi, near Lucerne, Switzerland and of a storm during the ascent which was followed by a scene of loveliness, the contrast from the storm making everything more beautiful. This is life—sunshine of prosperity—tempests—life full of contrasts and the relieving feature the bright side.

Some people are born to complain. A grumbler cannot enter the kingdom of Heaven. Every one should be born happy. No such thing as luck. If you scold and find fault you should not expect others to be happy.

Repression is bad especially for a child. Dr. Conrad illustrated this point telling a humorous story of Willie and his grandmother.

One needs considerable patience to hold balance in this life and a clear eye to see through to the beautiful. Should associate ourselves with the bright side of life.

We are in too great haste in our desires and expectations and so lose the bright side of life. Asserting the bright side of life does not bring it for there is a system of law—a harmonious relation with God. Adjusting ourselves to recognize this law. Build on Hope not fears, with a broad foundation round after round. Do not be afraid of things or have a narrow outlook. Fear nobody. Fear nothing except wrong. There is no such thing as chance.

Dr. Conrad in illustration of Hope told several pretty stories—the seed and the flowers which followed; the egg and the robin singing.

Conditions must be fulfilled of sunshine and environment. We are reflectors and there must be light in our souls if we are to give it out to others.

Do not be ambitious for display, for personal attainment. To realize the bright side of life God's plan of life must be carried out. There must be an aspirational side to life, the cause of humanity—the help we can give and the work we can do. Women's clubs are today doing this work are united in good work on broad lines. Women's clubs he thought the best thing in the community and stood for the bright side of life on the right and moral questions of the day. In the restoration of life and happiness to every human being we were in direct line to the throne. One must give himself and plus and plus means sacrifice. We must advance and progress by sacrifice.

Irrepressible cheerfulness was a good thing—we all know people who are the life of the home, the school, the club.

To make bright side of life for other people we must have health. It is a duty to keep well. Avoid cure-alls. Take care of the body, next to the care of the soul. Scatter health wherever you go. Be a force, loyal to God, to friends and to yourself. Be on good terms with yourself—with those about you to have the bright side of life. Have courage to achieve your mission in life. Be magnanimous, generous, liberal. A good habit to inculcate was the sharing habit.

Dr. Conrad's benediction on the club was a wish that it fulfil its destiny and brighten the world in which it moved.

Mrs. Gurney expressed the appreciation of the club for the strong and helpful words of Dr. Conrad and hoped the club would fulfil its mission in carrying the bright side to every one.

The music which closed the afternoon's program was in charge of Miss Alice Gertrude Coe and was a group of songs by Mrs. Frank J. Moore, a club member and Mrs. Charles Sampson, another member, accompanied her at the piano. Mrs. Moore sang The Slave Song by Del Riego and Rainbows by Hawley.

BATTLESHIP GOES OUT

North Dakota Safely Passes Drawbridge

With a grace and ease that seemed hardly possible for a vessel of her size the battleship North Dakota, the Queen of the United States navy, slid through the draw of the Quincy Point bridge at 9.14 this morning and headed toward Provincetown where she will be given a builders limbering up. Many feared that she would carry away the bridge, but with Capt. Thomas E. Evans at the wheel, it was a foregone conclusion that she would go through all right. She had nothing to spare, however, for the battleship is 85 feet breadth over all, while the opening of the draw is but 100 feet. It seemed at times as though she would scrape but she did not.

The departure of the battleship was witnessed by a large crowd that lined the approaches to the bridge and who occupied every vantage point along the shore. As a precaution the bridge was roped off so that the crowd was kept far enough back, so that if anything had happened no one would have been injured.

Preparations for the start were made early in the morning. It was but a little after 7 o'clock when the tugs Pallas, James Woolley, Orion and Charles T. Gallagher arrived at the Fore River shipyard and went alongside of the huge mass of steel, painted with the navy war color.

It was just 8.40 when a whistle on the battleship announced to the waiting crowds that the time for the start had arrived. It took some few minutes to get under way, and it was not until 8.55 that three whistles were sounded. This was a signal to open the draw. Meanwhile the battleship was slowly moving astern toward the Braintree shore. At 9.08 another whistle was sounded. This was the signal to go ahead. Slowly she commenced to move forward, and her bow entered the opening of the draw at 9.08. Six minutes later she had passed entirely through. Then the crowds gave a cheer and the whistles on the power station shrieked out their cheer.

It was some minutes after she was through the draw before she was headed down the river. A strong tide was running and the channel at this point is very narrow and circuitous, so that fully as much skill was required to get her headed down the river as was required to get her through the draw.

Up to this time nothing had happened to mar the departure. Then for a few minutes it looked as though an accident would happen. A small skiff in which were a man and three women persisted in trying to get as near as possible to the battleship. The propellors of the vessel were stirring up the mud and there was a miniature whirlpool about the stern that threatened to draw anything near it down. The crowd on the battleship shouted through megaphones for the small boat to get out of the way. This cry was taken up by the people on the wharf, but the man in charge of the skiff seemed to pay but little attention to the warning. To make matters worse, if possible, one of the women stood up in the skiff, which began to rock, and for a minute it looked as though she would be swamped. One of the tugs, seeing the danger, started in the direction of the skiff. Then it was that the man came to his senses and slowly rowed his party out of the way.

Meanwhile the bow of the battleship had been slowly swinging toward the Weymouth shore, and it looked as though she would ground. Nothing of the kind happened, however, for with the assistance of the tugs she was safely headed down the river.

There was a large party on the battleship and a better day for the maiden trip would be hard to find. From her bow the naval jack waved, while at the stern was the American emblem. From the top of the skeleton mast was the blue flag of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company.

The battleship goes to Provincetown today for a builders' limbering up, and it is expected that she will return to Boston Friday morning. She will then go into the dry dock at the navy yard where her bottom will be scraped and painted.

As stated above Capt. Thomas E. Evans had charge of the wheel. In the party on board were General Manager H. G. Smith and Assistant Manager F. O. Wellington, Chief Engineer C. B. Edwards, Electrical Engineer, J. J. Crain, Secretary S. T. MacQuarrie, and James F. Page who had charge of the turbines. There was also a large crowd of Fore River workmen.

A brief description of the battleship North Dakota is furnished by the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., the builders:

Length on load waterline (about) 510 ft.

Breadth, extreme, at load waterline (about) 85 ft., 2 5-8 in.

Displacement on trial, not more than 20,000 tons.

Mean draft to bottom of keel, at trial displacement, 27 ft.

Total coal bunker capacity (about) 2300 tons.

Coal carried on trial 1000 tons.

Feed water carried on trial 66 tons.

Speed on trial 21 knots.

The armament is as follows:

Main battery: Ten 12 in. breech loading rifles.

Secondary Battery: Fourteen 5 in. rapid fire guns, four 3-pounder saluting guns, four 1-pounder semiautomatic guns, two 3 in. field pieces, two machine guns, caliber 30 hundredths.

Two submerged torpedo tubes.

Propelling Engines: Two 144 feet Curtis marine reversible turbines, 9 stage, 25000 B. H. P.

SCOTS DELIGHTED.

With Program Presented by the Imperial Scots Concert Company.

Over five hundred people assembled at Music hall Wednesday evening for the grand concert given by the Imperial Scots Concert Co. Scottish people were largely represented and they thoroughly appreciated the program rendered in a varied and interesting manner. J. M. Hamilton and Miss Bethume Grigor were the star performers, and time and again they were recalled on their selections in the Scottish dialect. The sword dance by Miss Martha Robertson, in the full dress of the Scottish clan was very interesting, while Master James Robertson brought the house down with his drum solo and dancing in full highland costume. The Robertsons also gave a Highland fling. J. A. Cassels, Scotia's funniest humorist, in his impersonation of the postman, was a great success, and several time he was called to repeat. Miss E. Forbes contributed piano solos and was the accompanist. The entertainment program ended with "Auld Lang Syne" by the company.

The committee in charge were Hough McLeod, Robert Sinclair, James Fraser, James Mitchell, Hough McLachlin, James Niel, James McCall, Niel Connors, Duncan McKinnick, Robert Melville and Duncan McVicar. The entertainment was run by the Fore River Athletic club and was a great success in every way.

SURPRISE PARTY.

A very pleasant surprise was tendered to Howard Johnston at his home on Granite street Wednesday evening by his many friends.

FATALLY BURNED

Town Hill Woman Used Kerosene to Hurry Fire

Mrs. Lissa A., wife of Iisac Hirvimaki, was fatally burned about the face and body Wednesday afternoon at her home, 9 Town Hill street, when she tried to hurry the kitchen fire along with the aid of kerosene oil. It seems that she had built a charcoal fire in the stove, but the charcoal did not burn freely. Mrs. Hirvimaki took a can of kerosene oil to pour onto it.

As the oil struck the fire the flame was carried to the can which exploded with a loud report in her hands and face. Her clothing took fire and in an instant almost she was enveloped in flames.

Rushing out of doors she ran across the street to where Edward Hodge was at work. With remarkable presence of mind he grabbed a fur coat and succeeded in extinguishing the flames, but not before the woman had been horribly burned about the face and body. Practically all of her clothing was burned off and she was suffering great pain.

Dr. Sheahan was called and after rendering first aid, ordered her removal to the City Hospital, whither she was taken in the police ambulance. The unfortunate woman who suffered great agony from her burns passed away this morning. She was 34 years of age and leaves a husband and five children.

In the meantime an alarm from Box 42 had summoned the fire department who lost no time in extinguishing the fire that had been started. The firemen found the kitchen stove red hot and the woodwork about it burning fiercely. The alarm sounded at 3.23 and the all out came fifteen minutes later. Chief Williams estimates the loss to the building by the fire at $50.

HARVEST SUPPER.

Sale of Squashes Raised by the Church People.

The Ladies' Aid of the Hall Place M. E. church held a harvest supper and entertainment in the vestry, Wednesday evening. The church was very prettily decorated with autumn leaves and chrysanthemums. Supper was served from 6 until 8.

The entertainment consisted of readings by Master Leslie McCormick and piano selections by Miss Edith Ames of Quincy and Master Norman Hobbs of Campello. Mrs. William McCormick, president of the Ladies' Aid, was chairman of entertainment committee. The supper committee included Mrs. James R. McCormick, chairman, Mrs. D. H. McNeil, Mrs. Carl H. Raupach, Mrs. Charles Wentzel.

After the entertainment Mr. Charles Jose sold at auction the squashes raised by the members of the church. The largest squash was raised by Herbert Johnson and weighed thirty-two and a half pounds. The smallest one raised by F. W. Bent weighed two pounds. The largest quantity of squash raised by one person was 300 pounds. Considering the high market price the squashes were retailed remarkably low, but the large quantity on hand netted a good sum.

BRILLIANT WEDDING

Miss Bertha Nichols Bride of Chester Lewis

On Wednesday evening at the Memorial Congregational church, Miss Bertha Marion Nichols of 19 Botolph street, Atlantic, was united in marriage to Mr. Chester Farnsworth Blaine Lewis of 4 Allston street, Dorchester. The Rev. Thomas W. Davidson, pastor of the church, officiating.

A little after eight o'clock the groom and best man, his brother Elmer E. Lewis, advanced to the altar from the side entrance while from the rear of the church, to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, came the bride and her attendants. First the four ushers, Mr. Lorin E. Lewis, brother of the groom; George Wilson of Newton Lower Falls, cousin of the groom; D. Alexander MacPherson of Roxbury, and Henry E. Swanson of Atlantic then the four bridesmaids, Miss Grace A. Lewis, Miss Aimee B. Lewis, sisters of the groom; Miss Vina J. Madigan of Boston, cousin of the bride and Miss Carrie M. Wilson of Newton Lower Falls, cousin of the groom, who were most charming in pink silk with huge bouquets of pink carnations.

They were followed by the maid-of-honor, Miss Mary A. Madigan, cousin of the bride, in pale blue silk, carrying white chrysanthemums and she in turn by the dainty little flower girl, Hazel Richardson, cousin of the groom in pink silk chiffon.

Then came the bride on the arm of her brother, S. Walter Nichols. Never had she looked more attractive than when she came slowly down the aisle, attired in white silk cut en train, trimmed with lace and pearls, carrying a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley.

The impressive double ring ceremony was immediately followed by a reception in the church parlor, where the happy couple were showered with congratulations and best wishes by the hosts of friends who had witnessed the ceremony. They were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Mary Nichols, Mr. S. Walter Nichols and Mr. and Mrs. William F. Lewis. Mrs. Nichols was gowned in white lace over yellow silk and Mrs. Lewis in apricot colored lansdowne.

The church was handsomely decorated, the altar being banked with palms and chrysanthemums arranged by florist Derringer. The parlor was massed with autumnal foliage and garlanded with pink roses, this effective arrangement being the clever work of Mrs. Alfred Jelenik, Mrs. Herbert Gearwar and Mrs. Henry Von Emdon. The catering was done by La Barbeu Beaudry of Boston.

The presents were many and valuable, among them a set of sables and a pearl necklace, gifts of the groom to the bride. Each member of the wedding party received a beautiful souvenir of the occasion. The best man was presented with a signet ring; the ushers, pearl studs and pins; the maid-of-honor, a bracelet; and the bridesmaids and flower girl, pins set with pearls.

After a two weeks' honeymoon, which will include trips to Albany, Niagara Falls, New York, Atlantic City and Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will take up their residence at 25 Kenberma road, Dorchester, where they will be at home to their friends after January first.

HOUGHS NECK ASSOCIATES.

No definite action was taken at the meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates on Wednesday evening, relative to having the Union chapel open during the coming winter. The meeting was devoted largely to hearing reports of different committees. It has been decided, however, that the chapel shall be opened during the winter months, and in order that it may be heated a chimney will be built. An effort is to be made to secure the two stoves used in the old Coddington school building for the heating apparatus. A mass meeting of the residents will be held in the Casino tonight at which time action will be taken on devising ways and means to provide funds for the necessary repairs to the chapel.

Ex-Minister to China Crane got the open-mouth mixed up with the "open-door" policy.

Charles W. Morse and the Pittsburg bankers are doing much to make our penitentiaries financial centers.

Pittsburg geographies teach that the earth is shaped like an orange or baseball.

War has again broken out in San Domingo after a protracted peace extending over weeks, if not months.

New York's ballot sheet is to measure four and a half feet across nearly the width of Dr. Elliot's bookshelf.

One of the San Francisco's convicted grafters has sued the judge who presided at the trial. Probably if successful he will tackle the jury next.

Already the conviction of banker Morse in New York is having moral effect. A man who motored up to a bank in a suburb of Chicago and looted it committed suicide when captured.

SAVE THE YOSEMITE.

There is cause for national congratulation in the fact that President Taft while visiting the Yosemite Valley last week, was accompanied by John Muir who thus had abundant opportunity to talk to him about San Francisco's proposed conversion of the Hetch-Hetchy Valley into a water-tank. Mr. Muir not only has made our national parks his home for years, and written books about them, but it was largely through his efforts that some of these parks were set aside as playgrounds and vacation resorts of the American nation. It was at his instance that the Hetch-Hetchy Valley which some nature lovers, including the landscape painter, Charles Keith, consider even more picturesque than the Yosemite, and the turbulent upper waters of the Tuolumne were added to the Yosemite and the whole declared a national park. The grant was unfortunately worded in a way which made it possible for Secretary Garfield to permit San Francisco to covet the Hetch-Hetchy, and the next Congress will be asked to take away this superb valley from the nation and make a present of it to the city, which as eminent engineers have shown, does not need it, as it has thirteen other available sources of good water. The grant, if made, would exclude campers and sightseers not only from the Hetch-Hetchy, but from practically one-half of the national park. "Dam Hetch-Hetchy!" exclaims Mr. Muir indignantly. "As well dam for water tanks the people's cathedrals and churches, for no holier temple has ever been consecrated by the heart of man." It behooves all nature lovers to join Mr. Muir in his efforts to save this temple.—New York Evening Post.

NICARAGUAN REVOLUTION

Declared to Be Solely to Reform Deplorab'e Situation

ESTRADA SURE OF VICTORY

Will March on to Managua and Force Zelaya From Presidency at Point of Bayonet—Rebels Will Fight Brothers and Fathers If Welfare of Nation Crippled by Present Administration Requires It

Bluefields, Nicaragua, (By wireless to Colon), Oct. 28.—Friends of President Zelaya in the interior lately sent a telegram to General Estrada, who has declared himself provisional president, condemning his action in heading a revolution. Following is Estrada's reply, in which he voices the intense spirit of general dissatisfaction with Zelaya's misrule:

PRESIDENT ZELAYA.

"Your telegram received. We are sure of victory. We fight not against Nicaraguans nor the Liberals. We seek the sole solution of the deplorable situation prevailing in the country.

"If Zelaya will resign power we will lay down our arms at once. Not having honor or patriotism he will not do this, and we will arrive at Managua and force him from the presidency, which he so discredits, at the point of the bayonet.

"He destroys society, and menaces civilization. We will fight against our brothers and fathers if the welfare of the nation so requires. This is our irrevocable decision."

In addition to the name of Estrada, the telegram bears the signatures of many other prominent liberal leaders who have joined him in an effort to overthrow an administration which has crippled Nicaragua.

A majority of the government troops who were defeated in the engagements at San Carlos have joined General Chamorro, one of the rebel commanders, who is guarding the coast from attack by way of the San Juan valley.

ESPINOSA STEPS OUT

Resignation of Nicaraguan Minister to Washington Is Accepted

Washington, Oct. 28.—Rodolfo Espinosa, minister from Nicaragua to the United States, has resigned. Espinosa learned that his younger brother, Amelio, was acting as general minister of the provisional government, set up by the revolutionists.

The minister cabled to Zelaya urging a prompt acceptance of his resignation. The president immediately accepted the resignation, and yesterday Espinosa presented the secretary of the legation, Felipe Rodriguez, as charge d'affaires, to Acting Secretary Wilson of the state department.

BECOMES MRS. TITTONI

Railroad Treasurer's Daughter Weds Without Consent of Dad

Baltimore, Oct. 28.—J. V. McNeal, fourth vice president and treasurer of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was startled when he received word from his daughter Mary that she had been married at noon Wednesday to Lieutenant Robert Tittoni of the United States Marine Corps.

McNeal repaired in a rather unpleasant humor to the Belvedere hotel, where the couple had adjourned for luncheon, but he did not see them. They were soon on their way north, and their bridal tour, it is said, will extend to Europe, where the lieutenant will present his bride to his parents, who live in Florence, Italy.

They were married in St. Ignatus' Roman Catholic church here.

Thrilling Affair of Honor

Paris, Oct. 28.—Henri Bernstein, the dramatist, and Francis Chevassu, a dramatic critic, fought a duel with pistols at Prince Park. Neither was injured. Chevassu fired and missed, while Bernstein did not discharge his weapon. When he was asked later why he had not fired, the dramatist replied: "I forgot to."

WIFE MURDER AND SUICIDE

Deed of Boston Railway Conductor In a Frenzy of Jealousy

Boston, Oct. 28.—Irving W. Fletcher, conductor on the Boston Elevated, of 231 Dudley street, in a frenzy of jealousy, murdered his wife, Berla, in front of suite 16, second floor of 36 Batavia street, where she had taken refuge from his abuse with a friend, Miss Diana Sabourin, and turned his revolver on himself, shooting his brains out.

The double shooting terminated three years of stormy married life during which the girl wife was several times obliged to flee to her mother, Mrs. Anna Richmond of Medford, to escape brutal treatment occasioned by the jealous persecution of a husband who had been forced to marry her.

During the past two weeks these persecutions became so violent that the girl wife, alone in Boston, her mother away in New Hampshire, was compelled to take her 3-year-old baby and leave the house.

LOWELL'S FIGHTING MAYOR

He Has Exceptions Filed to Decree Restoring Old Police Board

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 28.—Mayor Brown of Lowell is evidently to take every legal step within his power in favor of the police board which he appointed soon after assuming his office. The board removed by the mayor consisted of F. K. Stearns, C. H. Hanson and T. P. Bolger.

Soon after their removal they filed a petition for a review of hte case, and on Aug. 19 the request was granted by Judge Dana. On Oct. 7 the judge handed down a decision in which he revoked the act of the mayor and restored the old board to office.

William W. Duncan, city solicitor of Lowell, filed with the clerk of courts yesterday a bill of exceptions to Dana's finding and the case is expected to go before the supreme court.

WILL LET JEFFRIES NAME OWN TERMS

Johnson Appears Sincere In His Desire For a Match

New York, Oct. 28.—Jack Johnson will arrive in town today from Chicago, prepared to talk business with James J. Jeffries in a personal interview. The negro is anxious for quick action as far as the formality of making a match is concerned, for he says that he will leave here in time to be in Chicago Sunday to begin a vaudeville engagement of a week's duration.

Johnson has been quoted as saying that Jeffries can name his own terms and the latter has stated that a 75 and 25 percent division of the purse would be fair to both. Jeffries admits that he will not be ready to fight for at least six months.

CANNON S FRIENDS WORRIED

Fear That He Will Become Sole Target of Tariff Agitation

Helena, Ark., Oct. 28.—The ghost of President Taft's Boston speech praising Aldrich is haunting him. Speaker Cannon's friends now ask that Taft give him the same sort of a public certificate. They held a meeting on a steamboat of the president's Mississippi fleet and decided to urge Taft to say something in Cannon's favor before the deep waterways cruise ends.

Some of the speaker's friends fear the tariff agitation is going to develop solely into a fight against Cannon and they would like to have a helpful word or two from the president. It is unlikely that the president will be drawn into any public expression on Cannon. The president's endorsing of Aldrich is the most unpopular thing he has done on his trip, and one experience undoubtedly will be enough.

AN "AFFAIR OF HONOR"

Pair of Cuban Duelists Demonstrate That They Are Poor Shots

Havana, Oct. 28.—President Gomez having accepted the resignations of Secretary of State Valez and Secretary of Sanitation Duque the two were left free to meet each other on the field of honor and they fought a duel. Four shots were exchanged. Neither of the combatants was hurt, but each declared that his honor was satisfied.

The meeting was the result of Valez admonishing Duque, when the city's garbage was not gathered at the time of the street cleaners' strike, that the danger of pestilence might provoke another intervention by the United States. Duque resented the action of Valez and challenged him to fight.

AMENDMENTS BY THE LORDS

Asquith Will Have Them Striken From Irish Land Bill

AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Commons Will Adjourn Next Week, Thus Precluding General Election This Year—Interesting and Important Measure Opposed by Great Land Owners, but Has Hearty Endorsement of Irish League and All Ireland

London, Oct. 28.—Premier Asquith announced in the house of commons that on Nov. 5 he would move for the rejection entire of the house of lords amendment to the Irish land bill.

The premier also stated that the house of commons would adjourn on Nov. 5 until Nov. 23. This precludes the possibility of a general election before the new year. During the adjournment of the lower house the budget will be in the hands of the lords.

The Irish land bill is of tremendous importance. When it is said that by this measure all estates and untenanted lands of Ireland are put into the power of a body of commossioners who may fix the price for their sale, it may be realized what the significance of the bill is. Stupendous amounts, also are involved. Under this bill loans for Irish land purchases amount to $915,000,000, while recompense to landlords, etc., will raise the amount to nearly a billion dollars.

The terms of the measure are very interesting. For the purchase of land in the allotted districts it is necessary for the applicant in case he is refused sale by the holder to appeal to the estates commission, which is then authorized to take the land by compulsion, the price to be settled by the commission. This price, however, is subject to appeal to a higher board or land commission.

The jurisdiction of the estates commissioners comprises almost two-thirds of the island. The remainder, which embraces the whole of the five counties of Connaught, is under the dominion of the congested districts board, which may condemn land for sale to tenants upon demand. The board consists of nineteen members, of which nine are elected by the county councils of the counties within the board's jurisdiction. The bill is strongly backed by the United Irish League, and is favorably received by all Ireland, the landlords alone excepted.

As might be expected, however, the bill is opposed by the great land owners, who hold the whip hand in the house of lords. In this matter the British peers are standing behind their Irish compatriots, seeing in the radical measure for Ireland what may happen in England. In spite of this, however, the upper house voted for the principle of compulsion on the measure, but when it went into the committee stage it was very seriously modified.

DEATH OF JAMES LUCAS

Helped Capture Wilkes Booth and Guarded the Assassin's Body

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 28.—James Lucas, aged 80, who was guard at the old capital prison in Washington during the Civil war and played an important part in the capture of J. Wilkes Booth, slayer of Abraham Lincoln, died in this city.

On the night President Lincoln was assassinated Lucas was on duty. He was the leader of the posse that followed Booth. When the slayer of the president was killed and his body returned to Washington it was Lucas who was appointed to guard it. He watched the body in the prison and on a gunboat after the body had been removed from the prison under cover of darkness. Later he was on the staff of officers who held the courtmartial over the remaining conspirators.

Reno, Nev., Oct. 28.—The old mining camp of Virginia City is sinking into the deep canyon on the side of which it is built, and has already slipped down hill eleven feet within the last few years, according to Professor Young, head of the geological department of the University of Nevada.

Professor Young declared that the steady sinking is due to the crumbling of the fifty-year-old underground timbering in the Comstock mines.

"IN A BAD WAY"

Many a Quincy Reader Will Feel Grateful for This Information.

When your back gives out;
Becomes lame, weak or aching;
When urinary troubles set in,
Your kidneys are "in a bad way."
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Here is local evidence to prove it:

Mrs. F. Olsen, 197 Whitwell Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time my back was weak and gave me a great deal of trouble. I could not sit up in a chair for more than a few minutes at a time without having severe pains in my back. I was also subject to headaches and dizzy spells and at times was very nervous. I was becoming discouraged when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and through their use received immediate relief. I did not expect to be speedily cured, as my condition was so serious, but I can say that the results could not have been more satisfactory. In a few weeks I was restored to good health. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly have my highest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BLACKMAILING OF IMPORTERS

Said to Have Been Practiced For Years In New York

CUSTOMS SERVICE IS ROTTEN

Merchants Tell Newspaper That It Takes Cash In Hand and Smiling Acquiescence to Grand Larceny to Keep Heads Above Water—Collector Loeb Condones Frauds In Order to Catch Others Who Are Thieving

New York, Oct. 28.—Importers and merchants who have been held up for years by the grafting of customs house inspectors and weighers told The Sun that the whole customs service in this city is rotten from the bottom upward.

How far the rottenness extends few of them could guess, because the system of robbing the government through false weights and returns and collecting bribes for prompt service forced the importers to deal only with little crooks. Only the little crooks ran around on the edge of a wheel of graft, taking the name of a fruit for a password and doing business coarsely in the back rooms of waterside bars.

Who lay quietly in the centre of the wheel and along the spokes, taking a fat share of the blackmail the little crooks collected, is a matter which interests men who have been forced for years, they say, to be dishonest themselves in order to get their shipments handled by the petty officials of the customs house.

The small importers and the customs house brokers say that they are eager to know who benefits most by the practice in the customs service of corrupting importers and seducing them to break the law. Scores of merchants who deal in imported goods have been gouged for years by the graft system in the customs service. They have submitted to it, they explain, because they had to get their shipments into their warehouses and strict honesty was not possible with many customs men. It took cash in the hand and a smiling acquiescence in grand larceny to enable them to keep their heads above water in an unfair business competition brought about by the grafting in the service.

It takes a grafter to catch a grafter, said Collector Loeb, in an official statement issued last night, and Federal Judge Holt's opinions to the contrary notwithstanding, the four weighers who confessed and gave evidence for the trial of Philip Musica and his father, cheese importers, are to hold their jobs.

Judge Holt, before disposing of the case, which resulted in the elder man's acquittal and the son's incarceration in the Tombs for sentence, denounced the retention of the four weighers as a discredit to the government and an injustice to the honest men in the service.

Mr. Loeb quickly said in reply: "The views of such a distinguished judge are entitled to highest respect, but it seems to me that Judge Holt can hardly have understood the situation with which the administration had to deal.

"The choice between keeping four dishonest men in the service, where they could easily be watched, or allowing a great many dishonest men to remain in the service and have them and all the corrupt merchants who have bribed them escape punishment."

LIPTON'S FIGHT FOR CUP

He May Yet Succeed In Arranging a Contest For 1911

New York, Oct. 28.—Sir Thomas Lipton is amused at the statement that he will build a yacht in Canada and challenge through a Canadian club for a race for the America's cup. The report has grown so that he thinks it well to contradict it at once. He is here to arrange a race, if possible, through one of his own clubs, the Royal Ulster or the Royal Irish Yacht club, and not to boom some Canadian club.

Sir Thomas has already met some of the members of the New York Yacht club and he has talked of cup affairs, but what progress he has made is a secret. The opinion is growing among yachtsmen that some way will be found so that a race for 1911 will be assured.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

$50,000,000 NEW CAPITAL

It Is Authorized by Stockholders of the New Haven Road

New Haven, Oct. 28.—The stockholders of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad held a special meeting here and also an adjourned annual meeting. President Mellen presided at both meetings and all but three of the directors were present.

At the special meeting the board of directors was authorized to issue $50,000,000 of new capital stock, making the total capitalization $171,000,000.

At the adjourned annual meeting the present board of directors was re-elected and John L. Billard was chosen a director to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Frank W. Cheney.

Somewhat of a stir was created when A. M. Hiller called attention to an item in the profit and loss account showing a loss of about $450,000. This, Mellen declared, was due to the sale of two trolley roads in Massachusetts which was compelled in that state by a decision of the supreme court. The roads were disposed of at the best figure obtainable, and the loss was charged off.

VORYS LAUNCHES BOOM

Says People Want Taft to Serve Second Term as President

Baltimore, Oct. 28.—Arthur I. Vorys, who was President Taft's manager in Ohio during the campaign, is in Baltimore on legal business. He expressed the opinion that the president will surely be renominated and elected.

"The demonstration which has been accorded the president in the east," said Vorys, "is proof of his popularity and is a sure indication of his renomination and re-election. The country appreciates the breadth of his views and the nobleness of his nature. He has fewer enemies than any president, probably, in our history. His political strength will grow with years."

MRS. HARRIMAN'S STUPENDOUS TASK

Mrs. Hariman has leased offices at 475 Fifth avenue. Her offices will occupy the greater part of the second floor. She is the largest individual stockholder in the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific railroads, the Wells Fargo Express company and a large stockholder in many other corporations.

While the details of the management of these properties will be left to others, it will be Mrs. Harriman at one end of the telephone who will give orders on important matters.

HILL IS ARRAIGNED

Fruit Dealer Testifies Against Alleged Slayer of Miss St. Jean

Fall River, Mass., Oct. 28.—When Frank L. Hill was arraigned here, charged with the murder of Amelia St. Jean, whose dismembered body was found along a road in Tiverton, Ludivoc Marsoli, a fruit dealer, was a leading witness against him.

Marsoli's fruit store is in front of Hill's office. The fruit dealer testified that Hill on a Friday night took from a rear room a telescope bag, which he put into a hired buggy, and also a big box which appeared very heavy. When Hill came back in the buggy the box and bag were not in the vehicle.

The case was called before Judge McDonough in the district court. The defendant was exceedingly calm, and appeared indifferent to the proceedings.

MRS. CUNNINGHAM.

Member of Well Known Milton Family Passes Away.

Mrs. Frances Cary Cunningham, widow of Edward Cunningham, died at her home on Edge Hill road, Milton on Tuesday aged 78 years. She is survived by a son and two daughters, Edward Cunningham of Westwood, Miss Hester, who is connected with Simmons College, and Miss Hilda.

Her husband was shot by an Italian who was trespassing on the Cunningham estate in East Milton, on the afternoon of Nov. 21, 1889, and died the next day. Giuseppe De Lucca was sentenced to 15 years in state prison for the shooting.

After Mr. Cunningham's death Mrs. Cunningham and her children occupied another house on the estate, and several years ago the bulk of the property was purchased by the trustees under the will of Mary A. Cunningham, who left something over $500,000 for the benefit of Milton. The park now contains a gymnasium, athletic field, ice skating pond and other facilities for sports. The old Cunningham house is occupied by the Milton Convalescent Home.

FINED $25 FOR ASSAULT.

John Brady of Quincy Point was arrested Tuesday night, for an assault on Mrs. Sarah Lewis. Mrs. Lewis was seated on a stone wall before her home on Chubbuck street when Brady who was somewhat under the influence of liquor, happened along that way. Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. F. Craige who were near by, came to her assistance. Finally by the aid of stones they drove the man away. A warrant was placed in the hands of Officer Lyons and the man was arrested. He was fined $25 in court.

NEW Y. M. C. A. DIRECTOR.

The Y. M. C. A. directors held a meeting Tuesday evening and routine business was in order, after which a lunch was served. The most important business was the election of a director to fill the vacancy caused by the removal from town of E. D. Gourd. Walter Blake of Atlantic was chosen to fill the position, although not taking up Mr. Gourd's office as clerk of the board. Mr. Blake recently returned from a trip to St. Louis and Chicago and is connected with the Binner Co. of Boston, wholesale dealers.

ATLANTIC WOMAN.

Writes of Her Travels in California and the West.

Another very interesting letter has been received from Mrs. Nellie F. Adams of Edwin street, Atlantic, who is travelling in the west. It is dated Avalon, Catalina Island, California, October 16, and runs in part as follows:—

"I am stopping at this delightful Island for three days. Have taken the trips in the glass bottom boats to the marine gardens, to Seal Rocks and Pelican Cove. Have seen the wild goats roaming over the mountains, been to Moonstone beach where moonstones can be found in large numbers, have climbed Sugar loaf a strange formation rising out of the sea. The flying fish are plentiful here and it is a strange sight to see them rise from the water. They usually fly from fifty to a hundred feet and then take to the water again. Their wings are transparent, much like those of the dragon fly. Their bodies are quite large.

"This island is twenty miles from San Pedro and is from one half to three miles wide and twenty-seven miles long and very mountainous. There are only 400 inhabitants but the visitors and tourists swell the number to 3,000, they tell me.

"Tomorrow I leave for Redlands, Riverside and San Bernarino, and then to Salt Lake City. When in Los Angeles I took the trip to Mount Lowe and visited the ostrich and pigeon farms. Saw one hundred and fifty thousand pigeons and a most wonderful sight the alligator farm where more than one thousand alligators are kept, from tiny things just out of the egg, to monsters two thousand years old. The eggs are hatched in incubators.

"The fruits in California are of delicious flavor. We pick oranges, figs, limes and lemons from the trees at this time of the year. English walnuts and almonds are plentiful, too. A great many sugar beets are raised here in California. They harvest them with six horse rigs something like our hay rakes only that the sides are not so open. They are dumped into freight cars, and I have seen several hundred tons in one freight load. They look just like our parsnip only much larger.

I saw President Taft in San Fransisco, Los Angeles and in Pasadena. He has a good face but looks very tired.

NO PRESIDENT.

The proposed amendment to the constitution of Universalist church proposed by Rev. F. W. Perkins of Lynn, a former pastor of the Universalist church in Quincy, failed by a very few votes at the biennal convention held at Detroit, this week. His amendment was to cut loose from the congregationalism form, and vest the real administrative powers in a single head to be known as the president of the Universalist church in the United States.

TENTH ANNIVERSARY

Court John Ericsson Celebrates and Entertains

A grand good time was the unanimous verdict of all those who attended the anniversary celebration Wednesday evening of Court John Ericsson. It was the tenth anniversary of the court, and was celebrated by a banquet and dance at Faxon hall. The banquet was served at 8 o'clock by a Boston caterer, and was enjoyed by about 159. Tables were laid lengthwise of the hall with one table across the front.

At the head table were seated the officers of the court, the officers of the Ladies Circle and guests, who included several of the Grand officers. Mayor Shea was to have been present and make an address, but was unable to attend. At one end of the head table was Charles Pierson, the chairman, while at the opposite end was Otto Gelotte the toastmaster. The banquet was an enjoyable one, the menu including escalloped oysters, lobster and chicken salad, cold meats, rolls, coffee, ice cream and cake.

After the banquet Chairman Pierson called the party to order and gave them a hearty welcome. He then introduced Mr. Gelotte the toastmaster. Mr. Gelotte said that the Mayor regretted his inability to be present and sent his best wishes for a good time, and for the future prosperity of the court. Ten years ago, said the toastmaster we organized, and the years had been very pleasant ones to the members. He was glad to see so many present and hoped that they would all have a good time.

John A. Ericson, the Chief Ranger of the court, was introduced and extended his welcome, after which he gave a few statistics of what the court had done during the ten years of its existence. During this time the court had lost eight brothers and five wives of members had passed away. The court had paid out the sum of $1,050 in funeral expenses, $8,029.15 in sick benefits, $974.28 for benevolent purposes, and $1,700.56 for maintenance. He was proud of its work and urged all young men not members to join.

Peter Bergman brought the greetings of Court Augusta Wasa. He spoke of the good work the order was doing in every section and what it had done for its members.

Miss Bertha Carlson, chief ranger of the Ladies Circle, spoke briefly. She was glad to be a member of the sister circle. The circle now had 70 members and much of the success of its work had been due to the efforts of the court. The brothers have always helped us greatly and the circle was always glad to welcome any sister or brother.

August Nelson of August Wasa court brought the greetings of his court and wished John Ericsson court all future success. He hoped the court would always be as successful as it had been, and that it would receive the strong support of the community.

Brief remarks were made by Peter Peterson of Lief Ericsson court and Dr. Amenio physician of John Ericsson court. This concluded the post prandial exercises, and as soon as the floor could be made ready dancing was in order until 2 o'clock. Music during the banquet was furnished by Wilson's orchestra which also furnished the music for dancing.

The committee in charge, to whom the success of the anniversary was due, were: Carl Pierson, Otto Carlson, Swan Cederstrom, Otto Gelotte, William Ericsson, Algot Ericson, Peter Carlson and Charles A. Ericson the chief ranger.

GRANITE CITY WHIST.

Owing to the numerous entertainments and receptions that were taking place Wednesday evening there were not a smany as usual at the weekly whist tournament at the rooms of the Granite City club. Six tables however competed. The best percentages were secured by R. P. Currier and James H. Lalley.

AN UP-TO-DATE DRUGGIST

says it is surprising how many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old time-tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy, nothing equaling our grandmothers' "sage tea" has ever been discovered. Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer. Nowadays when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. This preparation is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

Boston College High football team failed to put in an appearance Tuesday to play their scheduled game with Quincy. A large crowd was disappointed by the non-appearance of the visitors. They gave no excuse for not coming, but simply sent a telegram at 11 A. M., stating that the game was off.

Norman Cook of Atlantic, who was graduated in the Class of 1909, is a student this year at Cushing Academy which is situated in Ashbunham.

Miss Muriel Badger of last year's class is a student at the Quincy Mansion school.

Wednesday noon after school, all of the foot ball squad were gathered together and given a short talk on the value of school spirit and of keeping in training. This should produce some results, for unless some of the squad change their tactics there will be a pretty poor team representing the High school at the end of this season. They owe it to their captain, their school and their city to make a good clean showing and it is hoped that they will brace up and show what is in them.

Paul Blackmur, '11, has been appointed assistant football manager for next year's football team. This makes the election for all the teams complete for the coming year. The new manager will get right to work and there will be no repetition of this year's poor schedule.

At a meeting of the freshman class on Wednesday, Earl Church was elected to represent the freshmen on the Athletic board.

Miss Nina Richards, who was a member of the school last year and who moved to Maine last spring, has returned and is at present at Weymouth.

The tickets for Tommy's Wife are on sale and are going faster even than expected.

Walter Lakin has been appointed head usher for the dramatics and there will be no such confusion under his management as there was last spring at the Senior dramatics.

The orchestra at the school are holding rehearsals every Friday, and good progress is being made.

The football team will journey to Melrose next Tuesday to participate in their annual struggle. This game causes a great deal of rivalry because of the fact that Mr. Pierce of Room 26 fame is the supervisor of athletics at Melrose now.

Henry C. Prescott of the Class of '09 is a messenger of the Liberty Trust Company of Boston.

The football squad will sit today at Nerses for their group photo, that a half tone may appear in the first issue of the Golden Rod.

Class 1911, Stetson high school, Randolph has elected these officers: President, Richard A. Barrett, vice-president Miss Blanche A. Marcille, secretary Miss Elizabeth O'Neil and treasurer Miss Mary Leahy.

Warren Baker of Winthrop avenue, Wollaston, a member of the freshman class at the M. A. C., was the only Quincy boy who went with the varsity football team on their trip last Saturday, getting into the game at center. Gore and Howe are the other two fellows out for the team, but they were not taken with the squad on that trip. Baker played at tackle for Quincy last year part of the time, and also filled in at guard.

There was a statement in the Brockton Enterprise on the fact that Cambridge Latin team failed to put in an appearance last Tuesday, giving as their explanation the fact that they missed the train. This was a perfectly legitimate excuse as it would have been too late to have gone to Brockton after the 2.30 train, but the Brockton management evidently believe that they got cold feet and in their remarks said that Quincy had also slipped their moorings and sailed away to other climes. This is unjust to the Quincy management as they were not scheduled to play Brockton until Nov. 17, which is three days before the Dorchester game. The Quincy team could not play such a hard game as Brockton so short a time before their game with the Dorchester team as they consider that their big game. Over four weeks ago the principal of the High school sent word to Brockton and asked to be relieved of that date, and if possible to play another date. It was not until last week that an answer was received, and the principal of the Brockton high very graciously allowed Quincy to be relieved. Now some writer in Brockton comes out with a statement which tends to indicate a case of cold feet where no such feeling exists. We wonder what they would think of a school which after cancelling at the last minute and being taken on again sends a telegram the noon of the day of the game to the effect that the game is all off and assigns no reason for such a move, as Boston College High did with the Quincy management last Tuesday. We hope that Brockton will see the error of its way and allow that in the future as in the past that Quincy is always ready to meet them in sports.

The stories for the Golden Rod have been selected and from good authority it has been stated that they are mighty fine.

One week from tomorrow night the play by the High school pupils for the benefit of the athletic fund, will be given in the assembly hall. The tickets have been out for a week and the advance demand has been so great that several rows of rush seats have been added to the reserved section. "Tommy's Wife," is a farce which will keep every one in good humor from start to finish. Walter Lakin of the senior class has charge of the floor that evening.

MAKE CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

By joining the Young Women's club which is to hold its first meeting Saturday evening in the Quincy Woman's club house, 148 Goffe street, Quincy girls will not only have a good time this winter, but they will have a chance to learn to make a variety of pretty things suitable for Christmas gifts. Bead work and basket, hammered brass and burnt wood work, stencilling and embroidery are some of the things which will be taught, if desired. The Women's club house will be open to all young women Saturday evening from 7.45 to 9.45 o'clock. To join send your name and address to Miss Newcomb, 98 East Howard street, Quincy.

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

Nomination papers were taken out Wednesday by Ex-councilman James M. Cantfill for Democratic councilman from Ward Three.

There was a well founded rumor about City Square this morning that ex-Councilman Walter F. Nichols of Wollaston would be the Republican candidate for Mayor at the coming municipal election.

Quincy voters to vote the entire ticket at the State election next Tuesday will have to make their cross twelve times.

HEBREW WEDDING

Young People of Water Street United in Marriage

A wedding of great interest to Hebrew citizens was solemnized at Hibernian hall, South Quincy, Thursday evening, when Miss Bessie Lena Grossman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Grossman, became the bride of Benjamin Rappaport, also of Water street, Rabbi Julius Scindolovitz of Quincy, officiating.

Miss Annie Grossman, a sister of the bride, was the maid-of-honor, and the bridesmaids were: Miss Annie Shalleick of Chelsea, Miss Eva Shred of Quincy and Miss Laurine Guberman of Boston. The groom was attended by Joseph Grossman.

The bride wore white empire messaline with embroidered yoke, and the maid-of-honor, a pink messaline. Miss Shalleick wore a peach colored messaline, Miss Shred a lavender messaline, and Miss Guberman, a lavender messaline.

The ushers were Louis Rappaport and Meyer Isaacson of East Boston, Jacob Grossman and Reuben Grossman of Quincy, and S. D. Grossman of Brockton.

The bridal party entered the hall preceded by the flower girls, Anna Rosenberg, Sadie Grossman, Rena Grossman and Olid Grossman. Music during the ceremony was by Miss Ada Shallek and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Seinair. The groom's gift to the bride was a pair of diamond ear rings.

Following the wedding there was a reception, the bride and groom being assisted in receiving by their parents. After a wedding trip to Washington, Mr. and Mrs. Rappaport will reside on Newcomb street.

ENGAGEMENT PARTY.

The home of Miss Rose Schatzl of Willard street was the scene of a gay party Thursday evening, when a number of young ladies and gentlemen from Braintree, Quincy and Boston gathered in honor of her recent engagement. While sitting in the centre of the happy gathering Miss Schatzl was showered with linen of all descriptions and each article had a card with some sort of a verse. Music and dancing were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

...ATION PAPERS

...milar to That In Boston

Taken Out Today in Favor of Some Republican

Following the lead of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association, the directors of the Quincy Association have, after several months of careful deliberation, decided to enter upon a similar campaign with the purpose of liquidating the mortgage upon the building and completing the swimming pool.

The work has been crippled each year by the burden of debt and the lack of this very valuable adjunct, the swimming pool. The management is certain that now is the time to do this work, while the air is full of the subject in and about Boston, and are certain also about the "whirlwind" method being the right one.

Some may say that in old staid Quincy the plan won't work, but other old staid cities, Montreal, Manchester, N. H., Pittsfield, Mass., and Richmond, Va., it has been a success.

Richmond, for example, is an old, settled community, of English origin and conservatism, an abhorrence for scenes and excitements dislike of the spectacular and sensational. Therefore a considerable number of the people shrank from, and a few actually opposed the methods introduced for securing the $200,000 for the new building. There was hurrah, hustle and bustle, and an aspect of intrusion and demonstration contrary to all traditions, precedent and customs. The Richmond News Leader says: "Nevertheless we have learned when somebody is trying to do something which we believe to be to the advantage of the community to pitch in and help heartily and vigorously, regardless to our own prejudices, preferences, likes or dislikes."

Results tell. Nobody can argue against facts. The facts are that in fifteen days Richmond secured their $200,000; Montreal, its $350,000; Manchester, its $150,000; Pittsfield, its $40,000. All over subscribed and two score other cities have likewise succeeded.

And Quincy will also succeed. Why? First, because there is no movement which so appeals to business men as does this work for young men and boys. Second, because of the perfect method of organization; a machine which does the work. Quincy's organization is now complete ,with its citizens' committee led by one of our leading business men; its business men's committee by another and its ten teams of ten men each, captained by ten able and enthusiastic business men who will sacrifice time and effort, to secure the desired amount and win over the other fellow. Two mammoth clocks are in preparation banners and other evidences of life will be conspicuous.

The campaign will open with a banquet on Tuesday night with C. C. Whittemore of Boston as caterer. Acceptances have already been received from a good list of leading citizens who will serve on the citizen's committee.

Mr. C. S. Ward whose name in now on the tongue of every association man over the country will be present with Mr. Louis Crossett as chief guests. Watch the movement and give it your hearty cooperation.

HELLO CLYDE!

Inspector Goodhue made a clever capture this week when he placed Clyde Ripley under arrest at Rockland. Ripley was wanted for larceny of clothing at Quincy on June 4, and the officer received word that he was in Rockland. As Inspector Goodhue was walking along he saw a man who resembled Ripley. Stepping up to him the officer said "Hello, Clyde!." "Hello," replied Clyde, "how are you?" "Fine," replied Fred, "I want you."

TALK ON DIVING.

At the meeting of the Wollaston Boys' club on Thursday evening, George L. Phillips of Quincy was the speaker. Mr. Phillips is an expert diver and gave a most interesting talk of his work and exhibited his diving equipment. Mr. Phillips has been engaged in his profession for 42 years and is a Civil War veteran. He told of a race, in the early part of his career, which was taken part in by a number of divers, starting at T wharf and finishing at East Boston. Many other incidents were touched upon and the boys were unanimous in voting it a most interesting evening.

BANQUET AND GIMBOREE.

The draughting staff of the Electric Boat Co., meet at the Quincy house, Boston, Saturday evening for their first annual banquet and gimboree. The committee in charge composed of W. F. Curtiss, C. Lindsay and J. Barraja-Frauenfelder, promise great things for the occasion. An artistic program has been designed by Raphael Van Dyke Rowson, and addresses are scheduled by Alec West, C. Q. D.; W. H. Brooks, P. B. O. D.; and W. W. Meek, B. S. The feature of the evening will be an address on "Temperance" by Dr. G. Eggleton, B. B. Paul Andraine will also deliver his essay entitled "To be or not to be." There will be music appropriate for the occasion furnished by home talent, the accompanist being Miss Lizzie Shell. A general merrymaking is anticipated.

OBITUARY.

At 8 o'clock A. M. Thursday, Oct. 28, happy angels of the spirit realm welcomed to their home of perpetual rest from out this mortal sphere where many years of constant illness with frequent terms of great suffering had been her lot to endure, but always with the most marvelous calmness and divine patience always combined with a first thought and consideration for those who lovingly strove to comfort her, one whom the few who were privileged to enjoy her acquaintance in the enforced quiet of home life will be deeply grieved to miss hereafter in mortal form—Mrs. Emeline Coffin Tuttle of West Quincy.

Mrs. Tuttle was the daughter of William C. and Susan G. Ray of Nantucket, where she was born July 1, 1855. On her mother's side she was a direct descendant of the Huguenot family, L'Hommedieu, who came over and settled at Sag Harbor, L. I., in early days. When a child her father was lost at sea with his vessel, the famous tea trading bark Houqua, while on a passage from Japan for New York, and she came with her mother to the mainland for a home in Massachusetts.

While living in Lawrence she was married Aug. 17, 1875, to Mr. George H. Tuttle, then a resident of that city, and who is now left with the sweet memory of a wife whose ardent love and supreme goodness shines out as the greatest beacon light of earth life.

Mrs. Tuttle's last illness was due to gall stones her decease from tetanus following a severe surgical operation, and against which all the strenuous efforts of love and skill could not prevail.

With ever increasing volume as the days pass on will arise the silent cry from wounded hearts:

"Oh! for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still."

"What makes you think, sir, that I will not be able to support your daughter?"

"Well, I haven't been able to myself."—Brooklyn Life.

COLD BLOODED WIFE MURDER

Braintree Woman Shot on Street by Husband

South Braintree was shocked last night by the shooting of Mrs. Gladys Sampson Miller, by her husband, James Miller, from whom she separated last February.

The couple evidently met by appointment at the South Braintree depot and the cold blooded deed took place in the square about half way between the station and the restaurant of A. D. Atkinson.

Attention was first attracted to them by the cries of the woman for help, she shouting—"he is going to shoot me." Louis Horpstrassen of North Abington a young man employed in the lasters' room at D. B. Closson & Co., was near by, but when Miller flourished a revolver he thought it best to keep safe distance and rushed into Atkinson's to summons help.

Before the first shot was fired James E. Hicks reached the door. They saw Miller embrace the woman and place the revolver near her head and fire. After she fell he deliberately fired two more shots at close range. He was very cool and apparently in no hurry to get away, but finally ran up French avenue toward Union street and disappeared.

Hicks rushed to the assistance of the woman, and lifted her bodily from the ground, telling Horpstrassen and others to chase the murderer. Hicks enquired the way to the nearest doctor and started alone with his burden for Dr. Sullivan's. Henry Fournier helped Hicks to carry the woman up Holbrook avenue until they met a carriage which took them in.

Dr. Sullivan was out and they hurried to the residence of Dr. Brett. The doctor was in and told them immediately that the woman was dead. Probably death was instantaneous from the shooting, for but little blood flowed.

The chase for the murderer was unsuccessful, and was soon abandoned. Officer Qualey and others were notified, and also the police of Quincy and Brockton.

Dr. Brett promptly notified Medical Examiner J. C. Fraser, of the tragedy, and the medical examiner decided to hold an inquest with the assistance of Medical Examiner Fred L. Jones of Quincy, Drs. Brett and Sullivan. They found but one bullet had entered the body, and that just in front of the right ear, which penetrated the brain. This was probably the first shot fired when the revolver was placed near the head.

Thorough search was made of all the woods in the immediate vicinity of the tragedy and all night parties walked about the abandoned sheds and woods on both sides of the station.

This morning State Detective Scott, who has charge of the case, visited Plympton for it is his idea that the man has made good his escape from the town, and is not in hiding in the nearby woods as supposed last night. His visit as far as could be learned was fruitless, although the house will be watched.

A search was made of a house in Braintree late last night where he has been a frequent visitor and with the thought that perhaps he might have gone there from the scene of the shooting, but the search resulted in nothing that could be used as a clue What may be a valuable asset in finding the man is a story told by a conductor on the Old Colony street railroad this morning, to the effect that he heard a pistol shot about 9.30 last night which came from the woods in back of the Braintree High school building, but a search of the woods failed to reveal anything.

CITY SQUARE BURGLARS

Visit a Jewelry Store and a Clothing House

Burglars were about Quincy last night and visited two places in City Square. But one of the places, however was entered. That was the clothes cleaning establishment of L. Warshaw in Music Hall block. The place where the attempt to enter was made was the jewelry store of T. L. Williams. There the party removed the screen from the window that opens onto the lane leading to the rear of the Tirrell block. He then smashed a hole in the window in an endeavor to get at the window catch.

For some season this was all that was done and the fellow left without accomplishing his purpose.

At the shop of L. Warshaw the fellow was more successful. Entrance was made by breaking a glass in one of the rear windows and turning the window catch, which enabled him to open the window. The fellow looked over the assortment of clothing that had been left to be cleaned and carried off a quantity of it. Just how much was taken Mr. Warshaw can not tell until he takes account of stock.

Larry Norris, a stable man, employed at the stable of Berry Bros., which is in the rear of the Tirrell block, saw the screen of Mr. William's window had been removed and place against the building on the opposite side of the street, and also saw a man near there whom he describes as being of medium height and that he wore a light colored top coat. This fellow is supposed to have been the burglar, and appearance of Mr. Norris on the scene frightened him away. Mr. Norris says it was about 11.45 that he saw the man.

The break in the Warshaw place was discovered a little later by Officer Johnson. The officer went to the rear of the building and noticed that the window was open. Suspecting a burglary the officer crawled into the building and was soon convinced that the place had been visited for quantities of clothing were thrown about the room, giving evidence that the fellow had looked over the assortment and selected what he most needed.

Mexico is next door neighbor to a mighty big, fine country.

Mr. Peary's main contention is that he was beaten on the gate receipts.

It will be remembered that in his earlier career Mr. Roosevelt himself occasionally grew more or less impatient with his superiors in office.

Wilbur Wright has opened a school of aviation. The time is probably near when people will be taught to fly in the correspondence schools.

Having waxed fat on moth balls these many temperate moons, the moths will now retire to their lairs and await another crop of overcoats and swallowtails.

As a result of the recent New York pie famine, 5-cent slices will be much smaller in the future. This will involve the saving of considerable wear on the long-suffering New York stomach.

A man in St. Louis broke his collarbone while rising in a street car to give his seat to a woman. This shows that St. Louis men have had little practice at this sort of thing.

It is impossible to escape the conclusion that if Commander Peary were not an explorer he would be a suffragette.

Charles W. Morse evidently put too much faith in the statement of Bourke Cockran that no millionaire can be convicted of crime in New York.

—Naval Constructor George H. Rock, USN., reported at the Charlestown navy yard Wednesday as the senior naval constructor and head of the manufacturing department succeeding Naval Constructor Eliot Snow, USN., who has held that position for six years.

MODERN HAIR DRESSING

has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION

Preliminary Steps Taken by West Quincy Taxpayers

In response to a general invitation, a representative body of West Quincy taxpayers gathered in St. Jean hall Thursday evening to discuss the advisability of forming an improvement association. Through some misunderstanding it became noised about that the meeting was a political one, and for this reason there were not as many present as there might otherwise have been. As a matter of fact, however, politics were not mentioned, and there will be no political significance in the organization.

There was a general and informal discussion on the needs of the ward, and what such an organization as it was proposed to form could do in the way of local improvements. Among those to speak were ex-Councilman Robert J. Teasdale, John Casey, Patrick Tangney, John Evans, Councilman John D. Smith, Patrick Mannix, Dr. John H. Ash, Frank Dufour, Peter T. Fallon and others. No definite action was taken on any matter, as it was thought advisable to wait until the association had become fully organized.

Before the meeting adjourned, the following temporary officers were elected to serve until the permanent organization was perfected: President, Stephen B. Little; Secretary, Robert J. Teasdale; Treasurer, Dr. John H. Ash.

It was voted that a committee of two from each section of the ward be appointed by the president to act as a committee on membership in their several districts. The committee appointed includes: Frank Dufour, R. J. Teasdale, Peter T. Fallon, John Casey, Patrick Tangney, John Evans, Napoleon Fountain, Eugene Amet, Patrick Mannix and Louis Carriviglio.

Another meeting will be held next week at which time the organization of the association will be perfected, and the necessary by laws for its government adopted.

EIGHT HUNDRED ON STUMP

New Yorkers Are Getting Plenty of Campaign Oratory

New York, Oct. 29.—With New York's municipal election only three working days away, there was a general summing up of issues last night by the 800 speakers who presented the causes of Gaynor, Bannard and Hearst to audiences in every corner of Greater New York.

Justice Gaynor returned to his plea for greater personal liberty, the abolition of police czarship and liberality in the enforcement of minor laws.

Mr. Bannard told seven mass meetings that he stood "first, last and all the time for a business administration in a Tammany-free city." Incidentally, however, the Republican candidate took up the cudgels with Gaynor on the personal liberty question.

Mr. Hearst, the third candidate for the mayoralty, was silent, but his followers, in ten mass meetings, kept the fires burning. At each meeting a long banner which hung above the stage bearing the words, "Down with the bosses of both parties," furnished the text for the speakers.

CASSIDY IS PAROLED

Boston Attorney Was Sent to Prison In Connection With Graft Case

Boston, Oct. 29.—Attorney James T. Cassidy, convicted last June in connection with a city graft scandal and sentenced to one year, was released from Deer island house of correction on parole yesterday afternoon and within an hour was with his mother and Miss Florence C. McCready, whom he is to marry.

Cassidy was convicted with former President Leo F. McCullough of the common council of conspiracy against and larceny from the city of Boston.

McCullough and Cassidy were convicted of getting $200 from the city of Boston as the result of an order passed by the common council providing that sum for the president with which to secure books for his private room. The president was supposed to have bought a set of Massachusetts law reports, but they never materialized, and it was alleged that Cassidy made out the bogus bill for the books.

IN THE GRIP OF THE BOSS

NO more sinister figure has risen in these United States, this Republic of our Fathers, than the BOSS. If the story that history tells of the great Republics of the past be ever told of our own loved land, their rise, their glory and their FALL, coupled with it will be this arch-assassin of your liberties, Mr. Voter, the American political boss. It matters not whether it be the former dive-keeper who rules Tammany Hall, the thugs who plunder Philadelphia, the plunderers of Pittsburg, the road agents who, as overlords of the citizens of Chicago, have made that a civic cancer; or your own sleek, courteous, cultured master of this old Massachusetts Commonwealth, Henry Cabot Lodge.

Boss Lodge says the tariff isn't an issue. That you mustn't discuss the tariff. The Trusts say it is settled, for they have HIS word for it. BUT YOU CAN UNSETTLE IT if you prefer the welfare of your family to a party label! If you want to be able to provide the comforts your home is entitled to you will tell Boss Lodge that you will no longer stand these high prices which take the food from your family, the clothing from their backs in order that his friends, the Trusts, may add to their millions. Rebuke Boss Lodge, the responsible author of this higher cost of living, by voting against the ticket he picked out, and voting for the men who are fighting for a lower cost of living, that you and your wife and children may not have to go without the comforts and necessities that are honestly due them.

Have you forgotten how, as by ukase from the Great White Czar himself, Herbert C. Parsons of Greenfield was retired to private life by Boss Lodge? Why? He dared to stand like a MAN and vote against the BOSS when in brazen effrontery he humiliated Massachusetts by seeking entrance to the United States Senate.

Do you recall how the political axe fell when Senator James F. Shaw dared to stand, as was his sovereign right, for DIRECT NOMINATIONS and was defeated for the Presidency of the Senate by the orders of the tax-dodger from Nahant?

John L. Bates declined to kowtow before this great Massachusetts JOSS and he went down to defeat. When John N. Cole aspired to the Lieutenant-Governorship, he found Boss Lodge barring his path. See how he and his character assassins are treating ex-Governor Guild!

Note the hostility of the Boss to men like Eugene N. Foss. No matter what a man's character be, what his achievements, if he declines to abase himself, he is not useful to this Boss.

With almost royal condescension the Sultan of the Republican Machine deigned to indicate his desire that Draper should be Governor. You accepted him last year. And Frothingham? Have you not had enough—Draper and Frothingham?

The lash of the overseer and master, this Simon Legree who rules you, made twenty-two Republican Senators reverse and twelve others absent themselves on DIRECT NOMINATIONS, which meant liberty to you and political death to this atrocious pervert of liberty—Boss Lodge. Are you interested in all this, Mr. Voter?

Do you not know that before you solve some of the other problems and restore American government of the people, for the people and by the people, you must first crush the BOSS.

Tariff reduction, Canadian reciprocity, the Income Tax, all were vetoed yesterday and to-day and will be to-morrow and while this arrogant BOSS rules over you. MEN OF MASSACHUSETTS, THIS IS THE TIME TO ACT! HONOR THY FATHERS AND THY MOTHERS, THE MEN AND WOMEN WHO DIED AND SACRIFICED to make you free. You can do it by crushing the BOSS, by annihilating the last vestige of his domination, and the way is to Vote for James H. Vahey for Governor.

Vote for Eugene N. Foss for Lieutenant-Governor.

Mrs. Annie Jones is visiting friends in Maine.

The air was decidedly sharp this morning and coats did not feel uncomfortable.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Fay of Newport avenue visited the Masonic Home at Charlton on Thursday, taking Mr. and Mrs. John Morgan with them in their auto.

Full returns for tag day have not come in yet, but the committee has $470 at present, and there are still a few localities to hear from. A full report will be given later by wards.

The Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church will debate this subject—"Resolved that the church should be supported by the state rather than by the people individually" at their next business meeting to be held in the vestry, Monday, Nov.1.

"Down in Maine," is to be presented tonight at First Church chapel by the Jonas Perkins School Association of Braintree. It is the first in a series of three entertainments to be given by the Quincy Alliance.

A boys' club was organized at Atlantic Thursday evening with Walter Blake as leader. The meeting was held in the chapel of the Memorial church under the auspices of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. and 25 boys from 12 to 16 were in attendance.

The Y. P. R. U. of First church was well represented Thursday at the biennial fair held at Hotel Vendome, Boston, both in members and in contributions. Six members attended and about one hundred jars of pickles and preserves were sent in.

E. J. Murphy always presents an attractive show-window. Although the material is often commonplace the results catch the eye of the passerby. One day it is tooth brushes ingeniously strung on cords from the top to the bottom of the window. This week it has been hot water bags and they looked fine.

☞Persons interested in Christian Science should attend the public lecture on the subject to be given by Professor Herman S. Hering, C. S. B. of Concord, N. H., in Music hall, Sunday evening, Oct. 31st at 7.45. Professor Hering is an authorized lecturer of The First Church of Christ Science, Boston.

COLD BLOODED WIFE MURDER

men made a thorough search of the neighborhood.

A rumor which gained considerable credence was to the effect that the murderer had been caught in North Easton ,and it was also said that the Quincy police had taken him; both rumors proving groundless however.

The prevading opinion of those working on the case is that Miller made this appointment with his wife with a definite object in view. He was a saving man and besides what money he had just received, for it was Thursday night and pay night he also had a good sum which he had saved from his earnings, with him. The fact that he had the revolver tends to show that the crime was premeditated should his wife refuse to return to him.

Josephus Sampson, the dead woman's father, is one of the most highly respected men of Braintree. When seen he had very little to say ,as he is nearly prostrated. He said that he knew little about the man as he was very uncommunicative and of a retiring nature. The girl had told him that her husband had threatened her several times and that last February she had left him and returned home with two children to live. Beyond that he could say nothing being unable to assign any reason for the deed.

Delma the five year old boy who saw the accident said that he was with his mamma at the lunch room when papa came and spoke to them and that he saw papa grab mama by the arm and then he heard a noise and his mama dropped. He said, "I started to cry and pick up the bundles which had dropped but mama did not get up again."

His story though pitiful is connected and straightforward. The premises about the reservoir will be searched in the vain hope that the man might have gone up there and shot himself, although those acquainted with him assert that he will be too much of a coward to take his own life.

The body of the dead girl is at Fay's undertaking rooms in Wollaston at present, and will be brought to the home of her sorrowful parents this afternoon from which place she will probably be buried tomorrow.

The police seem to think that it is only a question of hours before the murderer will be caught as they see no possible chance for him to get far away.

Shortly before the tragedy, Mrs. Miller and son of five years, Delma, entered Atkinson's restaurant, where the mother purchased a couple of oranges. Shortly after the shooting a young lady reported at Dr. Brett's with the child, but was sent immediately to the residence of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Sampson of Sampson avenue, where Mrs. Miller had made her home of late. The couple had another child, a daughter younger. Mrs. Miller has worked of late at millinery, and for awhile was in the employ of Dorothy Benham of Quincy.

Mrs. Sampson, the mother of Mrs. Miller collapsed when she heard the awful news and has since been confined to her bed. The funeral services on Monday will be private.

Precinct one comprises all the territory west of the railroad track, and precinct two all that east of the track. Both precincts, however, will be located in the Hose house. With the ward voting by precincts the returns should be received in good season.

Mannex a wall is being constructed to keep back the boulders from going into the quarry which have endangered the lives of the men in the hold. The wall will be one of the highest ever built in Quincy about seventy-five feet and the top of the wall will be 283 feet above the bottom of the quarry which is 208 feet deep.

Another tournament will be held next week Thursday evening.

HOUGHS NECK CHURCH

Protestants to Hold Regular Religious Services

Before many weeks have passed a silver toned bell will summons worshippers to the Union chapel on Bay View avenue, Houghs Neck. This fact was announced at the mass meeting held Thursday evening at the chapel Waldo L. Hutchings presided and stated that the object of the meeting was to take such action as might be necessary to raise funds to put the church in condition so that services could be held there during the coming winter months.

It was stated that the first thing to do was to build a chimney in order that fires might be built to warm the chapel. It was suggested that a committee of ten be appointed to canvas for the funds necessary to make the repairs, and such a committee was appointed. They went to work immediately and it was not many minutes before the funds necessary to build the chimney were raised among those present, and work will be started at once.

It was also decided that a storm porch should be built over the two entrances to the chapel and any fund for this purpose sent to Mr. Hutchings who was elected superintendent and treasurer, will be used to good advantage.

Mr. Hutchings announced that a Boston gentleman had promised to give a bell for the chapel, but his name will not be made known at present. This statement brought out a round of applause from those present.

It will be good news to the Protestant residents of Houghs Neck to know that religious services are to be held at the chapel during the coming winter in fact the year round. Rev. C. R. McMeeken of Ohio, who is at present a student, although a regular ordained clergyman will have charge of the services.

A system of supporting the church will be adopted similar to that in use at many Protestant churches. That is pledge cards. These will be given out by the committee appointed to raise funds.

MORAN DISCHARGED.

An inquest was held before Judge Avery this morning on the death of Clyde Leslie McConnell, who was killed by the cars on the Houghs Neck line Sunday, Oct. 10, for which James Moran, the motorman on the car, was placed under arrest for manslaughter. After the inquest the prosecution asked that Moran be discharged for want of prosecution, which was done. Judge Avery will render his finding on the inquest later.

LOCKET AND CHAIN PRESENTED.

More than fifty couples were present at a surprise party given in Electa hall Thursday evening. Miss Annie Powers received the greatest surprise in her life when Charles Hebert presented her with a beautiful gold locket and chain. Dancing and games were enjoyed and refreshments were served at 9.30. Miss Minnie Fraser played the piano for the dancing. The committee were Miss Elvina Johnson, Edith Linquist, and Hilda Johnson.

Among those present were: Mary McCall, Grace Barry, Annie O'Neal, Lena Bavin, Margaret Morrissy, Helen Walsh, Florence Jones, Katherine Lamb, Lena Collins, Annie Collins, Marion Collins, Marion Fraser, Minnie Fraser, Gertrude Fraser, Sadie McGregor, Mary Newhall, Katherine Parker, Elizabeth Mahoney, Martha Backman, Elizabeth Roland, Minnie Webber, Emily Nelson, Edith Anderson, Lena Grekman, Richard Tinney, David Brown, Eddie McGrath, Samuel Quale, Joseph Rogers, Charles Hebert, Edward Maloney, Leo Harley, Ernest Lemuel, Arthur Wentworth, Gardener Coffin, Eddie Sanborn, Patrick Powers, Chris Daly, George Smith, Teddy O'Brien, and Nelson Tinney.

☞Persons interested in Christian Science should attend the public lecture on the subject to be given by Professor Herman S. Hering, C. S. B. of Concord, N. H., in Music hall, Sunday evening, Oct. 31st at 7.45. Professor Hering is an authorized lecturer of The First Church of Christ Science, Boston.

WITH ARMY OF TUTORS

Vincent Astor Is Aboard the Yacht Nourmahal With His Father

New York, Oct. 29.—Mrs. John Jacob Astor returned from Europe on Oct. 15, and before she filed her suit for divorce she was surprised and shocked to learn that her son, Vincent Astor, 17 years old, has been taken from a preparatory school in Rhode Island by his father and was far away from New York, cruising in southern waters on Astor's yacht, the Nourmahal.

Colonel Astor had been in Europe with his wife and their 7-year-old daughter through the summer. Their misunderstandings came to a head while they were traveling in France, and he preceded her to America. He knew that her intention was to seek a divorce, and one of his first acts was to withdraw his son from the fashionable "prep" school where he was making ready to enter Harvard, and to take the lad with him on his present cruise.

They sailed on Oct. 12, and with them a little army of tutors for young Vincent, who will continue his studies. Friends of Astor say that his only purpose in taking his son out of the country was to spare the boy the humiliation that would necessarily follow the public announcement of the separation of his parents.

ADAMS OWES $300,000

Amount Made Known at Court Proceedings Against Broker

Boston, Oct. 29.—Almond D. F. Adams, dealer in stocks, bonds and securities, with offices at 53 State street, owes $300,000 to about 200 creditors. The statement was made before Judge Dodge of the United States district court by counsel for the petitioning creditors in the bankruptcy proceedings against Adams when a hearing was held on an application for the appointment of a receiver. On account of limited time, Judge Dodge was obliged to continue the matter until later.

Thomas F. Barry, representing Alfred J. Sparling, who, as a creditor, filed the petition for the appointment of a receiver, stated to the court that immediate action is necessary, as he is of the opinion that the case is the worst since the failure of the Haight & Freese company. Counsel said that the collateral which Adams placed in the banks of the city is likely to be sold at once unless an order is isssued under the direction of the court.

TRACKED FATHER FOR MANY MONTHS

Son Causes His Arrest to Aid Mother's Divorce Suit

Montreal, Oct., 29.—A trail that started in Lawrence, Mass., eighteen months ago and led from Lawrence to Germany and back again to Reading, Pa., ended in the police court here when Paul R. Feidler of Lawrence had his father arrested. The charge was assault.

The son in turn was arrested on the charge of threatening his father, Bernard Fiedler, with a loaded revolver.

The arrest is the end of a long chase by the son of a fleeing father, who was a prosperous business man in Lawrence. He ran a patent medicine drug store. Then came bankruptcy and flight to parts unknown. He left a wife, three sons and three daughters, all adults.

Mrs. Fiedler started a suit for divorce and Paul, the elder son, started to run his father down and bring him back to answer the suit, the chase ending in this city.

ADDICTED TO TOBACCO

Woman Who Has Reached 104 Years Now Fears Effect of the Weed

Kansas City, Oct. 29.—Mrs. Indiana Hogan, 104 years old, and her son, Levi Howard, 71 years old, whom she characterizes as "my baby," passed through this city last night en route from Anabol, Mo., to the Ozark regions, where they are going for the son's health.

Mrs. Hogan, who is self-reliant and erect, despite her age, had five sons in the Civil war, two of them being killed. She has smoked since she was young, but regrets it now because she fears it will shorten her life.

Will Lower Divorce Cost

London, Oct. 29.—The king has appointed a royal commission to inquire into the condition of the divorce laws, especially as they affect the poorer classes. The appointment arises out of the agitation to facilitate divorce, which hitherto virtually has been the privilege of only the well-to-do.

Fined For Spanking Boy

Norwich, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Because he spanked a 12-year-old schoolboy with a shingle, Timothy Tripp, a district schoolmaster in Greene, was found guilty of assault and sentenced to pay a fine of $20 or serve twenty days in the county jail.

ASSOCIATION SUNDAY

Special Speakers in Fifteen Churches

Tomorrow in the majority of our city churches the work of the Quincy Young Men's Christian Association will be presented by out-of-town speakers making the day an "Association Sunday."

About once a year this work is presented in our churches but this is an unusual occasion, it being the fore runner of a great 7 days' campaign for $25,000 to relieve the association of debt and construct the swimming pool.

The work of the association so commends its self to thinking people today that argument is no longer needed to convince them of its value, all they need is to be brought down to date in respect to the great advancements in the movement both locally and world wide.

On Tuesday evening next the opening guns of the campaign will be fired at the dinner to be given to the committees who are undertaking the money-raising enterprise, and this day among the churches will bring this great movement for young men and boys to the attention of our people.

The speakers in the various churches will be as follows:

Bethany Congregational—Dr. G. W. Tupper, secretary of the State Committee on work among aliens.

Wollaston Congregational—Geo. E. Day, general secretary of the Somerville association.

Atlantic Congregational—E. K. Smith general secretary of the Melrose Association.

Point Congregational—Andrew Case, a Boston business man.

Park and Downs Congregational—Rev. Edward Norton.

First Presbyterian—D. L. Rogers, general secretary at Lynn.

United Presbyterian—Mr. M. S. Safford of Somerville.

Calvary Baptist—H. A. Maxwell, general secretary at Everett.

Wollaston Baptist—Charles A. Fish of Boston, a business man.

Wollaston M. E.—C. A. Coburn, field secretary of the State Committee.

West Quincy M. E.—S. A. Davidson of Brockton.

Atlantic M. E. in evening—E. G. Gay and L. H. Clee of the Quincy Association.

St. Chrysostoms, Episcopal—George H. Brown, of Quincy.

Christ Episcopal—Rev. R. E. Armstrong.

Universalist—George A. Payne of Brockton.

These men are all thoroughly informed as to the association work, as well as attractive speakers, which, together with the popular subjects should, bring out large audiences.

WHIST AND DANCE.

The whist party at St. Mary's hall last evening, under the auspices of St. Mary's Guild for the benefit of the poor of St. Mary's parish, was largely attended, 35 tables being in play. Souvenirs for the best scores were awarded to Miss Elizabeth Rouleau, Miss Louise Pickering, John Fitzgerald and James McDonnell. The special prize was awarded to Miss Annie Galvin. After whist the party enjoyed two hours of dancing, Miss Elizabeth Barron presiding at the piano. Another party will be held at an early date.

NORTH DAKOTA MAIDEN TRIP

Quincy Built Battleship Shows Up Well

The battleship North Dakota which left the Fore River shipyard Thursday morning for her maiden trip arrived at the Charlestown navy yard yesterday. The North Dakota steamed to Provincetown where she was given a builder's limbering up. Those on board the battleship report that the vessel moved along with scarcely any vibration even when going fast.

A green crew was in charge of the fire room ,and it took them some time before they could get up steam enough to operate the engines. This crew soon got somewhat accustomed to their surroundings and the battleship was sent over the Provincetown course at good speed.

No attempt was made to get any speed out of the battleship, yet in spite of the fact that the bottom of the ship was foul she made 19.25 knots ,which under the conditions was very gratifying. It is confidently expected that on her trials a speed of over 22 knots will be developed. Her screws made 253 revolutions per minute and her engines developed about 25,000 horse power.

The North Dakota went into dry dock yesterday and is having her bottom cleaned and painted. She will leave for the Rockland course for her official trials early in the week.

"DOWN IN MAINE."

"Down in Maine" a drama in four acts was persented by the Jonas Perkins School association of East Braintree at the First church chapel, Quincy, last evening, under the auspices of the Quincy Alliance. It was the first of three entertainments to be given by the Alliance and it was attended by an appreciative audience, and much enjoyed.

The drama was one of common life. It had no villian, no mystery, no long lost child, no impossible plot, or impossible characters. Simply a home drama, the scene being laid in the Hardscrabble farm down in Maine. The first act shows the farm in the month of June, and the drama extends through the summer months until Christmas. It was a bright and clear drama and full of laughable situations and was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. Zeph Cummins, the proprietor of the Hardscrabble farm, who believed in the Golden Rule and practiced what he preached, was perfectly impersonated by Lyman C. Williams. The heroine of the play was Susie Cummings, daughter of Zeph's brother, Ralph, a New York millionaire, and was impersonated by Miss Nan L. Robery.

Of course there was the lover, the inventor, old fisherman, hired man, lawyer and other characters necessary to carry the play on. In the cast besides Mr. Williams and Miss Robery were: N. L. Wood, H. Grafton McKenney, Joseph G. Spear, Edward Ashworth, David G. Doane, Harry J. Aitken, Alton P. Wood, Miss Carrie S. Robinson, Mrs. Mary F. Wheeler and Miss Jennie Webb. All of the characters were well taken and the applause of the audience was frequent and well merited.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB.

It is hoped that a large number of young women will accept the invitation of the Quincy Women's club to attend a free entertainment this evening, from 7.45 to 9.45 o'clock, at the club house, 148 Goffe street. This will be an opportunity to join the proposed Young Women's club, and to choose some class in millinery, embroidery, basketry, or sewing. The front door of the club house, is on Goffe street but the house is easily reached from Upland road, through the garden at the rear of the building.

MURDERER IS DEAD

James Miller Ends His Life by Shooting

This morning the body of James Miller the murderer of his wife was found in the cellar of the late residence of Judge Asa French not a 1000 feet from the scene of the murder of Thursday. The body was in the coal bin. He ended his life by shooting.

Braintree was thrown into a fervor of excitement this morning, by the finding of the body of James C. Miller, the wife murderer, in the coal bin of a vacant house on Washington street by the caretaker of the grounds. Andrew Wilson, who is taking care of the old Judge French estate, while its owners, Prof. and Mrs. J. B. Sewall are in Europe, went into the cellar which is on the ground floor at about 9 o'clock this morning to work. Making his way to the coal bin he was astounded to see the body of a man lying upon the coal. Surmising that it was the missing murderer, he ran out and across the street to Thayer Academy where he found Professor Townsend and told him of his gruesome find. Mr. Townsend telephoned the medical examiner and notified the police.

Doctors Sullivan and Brett soon arrived on the scene. They made a superficial examination and then held the body until Medical Examiner Frazer of Weymouth arrived on the scene.

The medical examiner found that the man had made two attempts to slash his throat and not being successful he had placed the revolver to his mouth and fired. The bullet lodged in the back of his brain. There was also another cut over the left eye but this was done when he fell after the shot.

The revolver was an old fashioned make, and had five empty shells in it. Four loaded shells were found in the dead man's pocket besides the small knife with which he attempted to cut his throat.

When the body was found it was lying on its left side with the hands clasped in front and the revolver lying alongside of him.

Andrew Wilson, the caretaker who found the body, is unmarried and lives at the estate. On the night of the murder he left the house about 5 o'clock to go to the barn some distance away. When he had finished his duties there he went immediately to Atkinson's restaurant to supper, and did not return to the house until about 6.30. The murder was committed about 5.09 Thursday evening, and after shooting down his young wife he turned up French's avenue and disappeared. He made his way along the avenue until he came to the path leading through the French estate and turning to the left reached the house. He saw no one, the caretaker being at the barn, and the cellar door being open he went in there. Between 5.15 and 6.30, when Wilson returned, he must have already killed himself, for had he done it after that the caretaker would undoubtedly have heard the shot.

The body has been lying there ever since, and not until Wilson went to the coal bin early this morning to get some coal, was the man found who has been the cause of search over the whole state.

Since Thursday night the police of two counties, Norfolk and Plymouth, have kept up a tireless search under the leadership of State Detective Scott, for the man who committed the cowardly murder of his young wife and attempted the killing of his five-year old child. The woods about the scene of the shooting have been gone over again and again, while the home of his mother and sister in Plympton and sister in North Easton have been constantly guarded and all the time the silent mute cause of all the excitement lay in the coal bin, hidden by the darkness and loneliness of the surroundings from discovery, within 1,500 feet of the murder.

This morning Detective Scott set out for Plympton in an automobile for an extensive search of all the roads which lead to the town of his parents, and they were not made aware of the finding of the body until Plympton was reached about 11 o'clock.

After being viewed by the medical examiner the body was removed to Shay's undertaking rooms where it will rest until called for by the parents of the dead man.

DEFENDED HIS RECORD

Representative Thomas Speaks at Labor Meeting

A large gathering representing organized labor assembled in Hibernian hall last evening to hear reasons as to why Governor Draper should not be elected. William Thomas representative from the Fifth district was on hand to defend himself against the report which has been circulated about the city that he opposed all the labor bills which came before the legislature. There has been a great deal of feeling against Mr. Thomas, but his address was received with applause which seemed to indicate a vindication of the charges against him.

The meeting was opened by Thomas Robert McVitie, chairman, and he introduced as the first speaker, Thomas Nolan of the Typographical Union. Following him, Representative Thomas took the platform in his own defense. Calling upon Frederick J. Kneeland to correct him at any time, he stated that he had voted for the Fines bill, Seaman's nights bill and the fifty-four hour bill. A man in the audience asked if he voted for the eight-hour bill and Mr. Thomas said, "I voted for that bill in all its stages until it reached the Governor. When he vetoed it, I said to Mr. Kneeland that it was apparent that the veto would be sustained as he well knew, and everybody knew, and so why should I, a Republican, nominated by and elected by Republicans, act against a Republican Governor in a useless effort. I ask any fair-minded man to consider the situation and say whether or not I acted in favor of the workingmen."

Mr. Kneeland stated that Representative Thomas had been too modest, and that if it came to a question of a single vote passing the bill and that vote was his, he would vote for the bill.

At the end of the meeting, Councilman McDevitt challenged the representatives to meet him in a joint debate and that he would pay half of the expenses.

LAW OFFICES REARRANGED

Extraordinary Efforts to Keep Divorse Suit a Secret

MRS. ASTOR MADE A MISTAKE

Neglected to Enter Through Rear Entrance Where She Could Not Be Seen by Clerks—Testifies Before Referee, Who Will Recommend That Absolute Divorce Be Granted—Custody of Children to Be Divided

New York, Oct. 30.—Some of the details of the suit for absolute divorce brought by Mrs. Alva W. Astor against Colonel John J. Astor have become known, in spite of the secrecy surrounding the action. It has become known definitely that servants of the Astor home and on the Astor yacht accuse the multi-millionaire and named the woman mentioned by Mrs. Astor in the suit.

The attempt to maintain absolute secrecy by all those concerned in the suit was even carried so far as an entire rearrangement of the law offices of Charles H. Young, the referee, at No 76 William street. They were so changed as to permit of the ingress and egress of witnesses through a rear entrance without being seen by the clerks of the office.

Mrs. Astor herself was the chief witness. She testified last Thursday afternoon and Friday morning, and it was only through a mistake of hers in not using the new rear entrance provided that the employes in the Young law office knew what was going on.

Mrs. Astor used the usual entrance and presented her card to one of the attaches. She was announced, but was quickly passed into the private offices of Young. There she took the witness stand, but she was questioned only briefly by either her own counsel, John L. Cadwallader, or Lewis C. Ledyard, counsel for Colonel Astor.

Mrs. Astor was called a second time the following morning, and on that occasion she used the secret entrance. It is said that the second time she answered questions in regard to facts which had been brought out after her first testimony, through stories told by various servants called.

All the other witnesses testified on Thursday and Friday. Three of these other witnesses were women and two of them men. One of the women was a maid at the Astor residence on Fifth avenue and the two others were servants in an uptown apartment house, where, it is said, the woman in the case lived. One of the men called was a servant on the Astor yacht, Nourmahal.

It is understood that the custody of the Astor children will be equally divided between husband and wife, the girl, Muriel Alva Alice, to go to the mother, and the boy, Vincent, to remain with the father.

It is also understood that a generous settlement will be provided, but that this will not include either the Fifth avenue mansion or the Rhinebeck estate. It was stated that Mrs. Astor would probably live abroad after the decree had been granted.

It is learned that Mrs. Astor, taking advantage of her residence at Rhinebeck, brought her suit in Dutchess county, and that Referee Young will file his final papers at Poughkeepsie within a few days, recommending that a decree be granted.

It is settled positively, too, that the suit was for absolute divorce, and not for a separation, as some have supposed.

Collinsville, Ills., Oct. 30.—Louis Lumaghi, an Italian, the wealthiest resident of Madison county, president of the First National bank and the Lumaghi Coal Mining company and an extensive land owner, received a letter signed "Black Hand," saying that unless he places $6000 in cash in an old oak tree on his estate two miles north of Collinsville his 10-year-old son, Louis, Jr., will be abducted.

Lumaghi informed the sheriff and police of Collinsville and other cities and employed armed men, who are now guarding him and his family in his country home.

ALLEGED SWINDLERS

Man Who Claims to Be Austrian Nobleman and His Wife Arrested

Paris, Oct. 30.—The chief charge against "Count" and "Countess" De-Gubatta, who were arrested here for swindling tradesmen, is obtaining a pearl necklace under false pretenses.

The "countess" ordered it ostensibly as a present for a lady belonging to the Austrian court. It has been traced to a jeweler who bought it for 4000 francs.

The "count" is an Austrian. The maiden name of the "countess" was Sylvia Thomsen, and she claims to have been born in New York, where she married Oscar Fon Beck, who was father of her children. He died and she subsequently married "Count De Gubatta," who declares that he is really Archduke Karl Heinrich of Austria, but this is denied.

Boston, Oct. 30.—Judge Dodge in the United States district court appointed Jeremiah Smith, Jr., receiver for Almond D. F. Adams, the stock and collateral loan broker who was petitioned into bankruptcy by creditors, following a general assignment to Clarence W. Rowley.

The court was inclined to permit the assignee to administer the affairs of the estate until objection was made by a number of creditors, on the ground that he was too closely identified with Adams, the relation being that of counsel and client.

Rowley informed the court that he had practically no assets in his possession.

The Matchmaking of Bobby.

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

With a smile of glorious anticipation illuminating his chubby face, Bobby trotted up the street as fast as a pair of very fat and very little legs would carry him. He was going to see Dick Brant. Next to visiting Alice Mayling this was his greatest treat.

Richard Brant could not make amazing cookies and preserves like Miss Mayling, but he could tell stories of Indians and grizzlies and other creatures dear to the small boy's heart. Miss Mayling's stories carried morals and were about little boys who were so very good that Bobby found them extraordinarily uninteresting. Had it not been that the Mayling cakes were as good as her young heroes Bobby would not have been a frequent caller on Alice Mayling.

This afternoon as he was warming his dimpled hands before the open fire he regarded with secret awe the deft fashion in which Brant rolled himself a cigarette with one hand. Brant had been a plainsman until he had run across a mine while he was looking for stray cattle, and he could throw a rope and talk real Indian talk.

"I looked for you yesterday," said Dick Brant gravely as he sank into a chair on the opposite side of the fireplace.

"I was seeing Miss Mayling," explained Bobby. "She makes cake on Thursdays."

"And you deserted me because Miss Mayling was making cake!" cried Dick solemnly. In reality, though he used mock pathos, he was a little jealous of Miss Mayling's popularity with his little chum. Somehow Bobby seemed to Brant the most sincere friend he had made in the big eastern city.

"Cake is nice just out of the oven," explained Bobby. "She always bakes a little cake for me, and of course I have to go and eat it."

"I suppose so," assented Dick, "but I was very lonesome yesterday."

"I'm sorry," said Bobby, with prompt penitence and a troubled face. "Wouldn't it be nice," he added, "if I could go to see you and Miss Mayling at the same time? You could tell me stories and she could bake cake."

He stared into the fire, lost in rapture at the thought of this most valuable combination. Dick looked scared and blushed. He was little used to feminine society, and a suggestion like that, even from Bobby, startled him. Besides, he had been secretly studying Miss Mayling from afar.

"Then you wouldn't be lonesome any more," resumed Bobby, the vast attractions of his good idea growing on him, "not even if I didn't come and see you, 'cause then you and she would have each other. But of course I would come to see you," he added quickly. "It would be awful nice."

"I guess it would," assented Dick a little absently.

"Then why don't you?" demanded Bobby, with engaging directness.

"To begin with, I don't know her," explained Dick. "You see, a man has to know a lady before he can call on her, and I've never met Miss Mayling."

When Bobby finally trotted away he was thinking deeply. It was absurd that his best man should not know Miss Mayling.

At the next baking day at Miss Mayling's the thought was revived, and with a denial that meant immense determination to him he obtained permission to take his small spice cake home. As soon as he was out of her sight he carried it to Brant, his fat legs speeding wonderfully.

"Ain't it fine?" he demanded eagerly when he had watched Brant devour the last spicy morsel, not without envy that almost assumed a poignant degree.

"Simply great," admitted Brant, with unforced enthusiasm. "I tell you, Bobby, the woman who made that cake is a wonder of a cook."

Bobby beamed his professional satisfaction. "I thought you'd like it," he said confidently. "She makes nicer cakes than that sometimes. I'll bring you another when she makes fruit cake."

"Don't do it," advised Brant smilingly. "If the fruit cake is as good as this I'm liable to abduct her and force her to bake cake for me for the rest of her life."

"What's abduct?" demanded Bobby. When the word had been explained to him he wrinkled his pudgy brows. But if another deep idea had come to him, as that contortion would seem to denote, it remained a secret in his fat breast. "Give us an Indian story," he demanded.

"All right, son," said Dick as he stretched himself out in his easy chair and prepared to entertain his small guest with the story of how Chief Spotted Panther carried off his Indian bride from the camp of a hostile tribe.

He was unusually graphic in his story telling, for as he went on he began to imagine that he was Spotted Panther and Miss Mayling was the Indian maid. Thus sadly had the unprincipled suggestions of the scheming Bobby contaminated Dick Brant's good manners. But it must be admitted in his favor that it was not the cake, but the memory of her womanly sweetness, that fired his thoughts and lent eloquence to his tongue.

It was a deeply impressed small boy who climbed down off the chair arm when the tale was done and regretfully announced that he would have to be going home. The very next day he went to visit Miss Mayling with the more or less peremptory request that she bake him a fruit cake.

"Going to have a tea party, Bobby?" she asked gayly. But Bobby shook his head solemnly and declined to be drawn into trivial conversation.

"I want it for some one—some one who doesn't get nice cake," he condescended at last, examining Miss Mayling shrewdly as he spoke.

"If you don't tell me who it is I won't bake it for you," she teased, anticipating the revelation of some new love affair. Bobby was as popular as he was fickle, and Miss Mayling, hardened by experience with the young man, supposed that only the power of love could have induced him to forego the eating of her cake the day before.

"Have I got to?" he asked anxiously, fearful that a premature explanation might destroy the success of the abduction.

"Certainly," insisted Miss Mayling. Bobby was dismayed. But the cake must be secured at all hazards.

"It's for Mr. Brant," he explained. "He said if you baked him a fruit cake he'd come with his pony and hit all the chiefs on the head with a tommyhawk and carry you off and make you bake cake for him all the rest of your life. You'll have to live in a tent and cook with hot stones instead of a gas range, and—and—anyhow, he says he'll do it if you tempt him with fruit cake."

Miss Mayling leaned over and kissed the earnest little face.

"I think," she said softly, "that I'll bake two little cakes next week, Bobby, so that you and your friend shall each have one."

Bobby looked into the serene face, into which there had crept something he had never seen there before—a tender curve to the even lips, a new light in the brown eyes that made them glow and sparkle and film with tears by turns.

He had always thought Miss Mayling almost as pretty as his mother, but now he was disloyal for a moment and thought she was more beautiful than anybody he had ever seen.

His moist little fingers clasped her slim, cool hand, and he looked up into her starry eyes.

"I wish I was big enough to 'duct you," he said enviously. "I bet Mr. Brant wouldn't get that cake."

Alice Mayling bent over and pinched his chubby cheeks.

"Bobby, my dear, you remind me of a certain little god without whose aid Lochinvar himself would have failed."

And then she looked up suddenly to see passing her window a tall, straight figure, with his glance firmly fixed ahead.

"Of course he wouldn't be so ordinary as to stare in here," she said softly. "But he's the sort who'll find a way—and I don't think I'll make it very hard for him."

Bobby cuddled closer to her soft, silken frock.

"What makes grownups say things that don't tell anything?" he demanded. But she did not answer.

Intoxicating Drinks.

"We have 6,000 intoxicating drinks in America," said a temperance lecturer. "That, I believe, is the record.

"Expert as our metropolitan bartenders are, they have none of them mastered the entire American drink question, and they would throw up their wet hands if a man asked for a bak-no-ma-shalo, a casasha, a sam, a larangina or even a mescal.

"You see, all the races that compose America introduce here the drinks of their old homes. Bak-no-ma-shalo and sam are oriental cordials, sweet and perfumed and nasty, that our soldiers and sailors learned to like in the Philippines.

"A larangina is a slightly acid drink from South America. It is a mixture of the leaves, flowers and fruit of tropical plants—orange, banana, lime, pineapple, lemon, chocolate, mango, guava, tamarind and I don't know what.

"Mescal is a Mexican abomination made of the cactus. It goes down like a bunch of cactus thorns.

"A casasha is a powerful sugar cane rum that the Jamaicans distill illicitly. For a cent you can buy a pint, though half a pint is quite sufficient."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Queer Fish.

In European fresh water is to be found a very large siluroid known as the wels. Its head is large, broad and depressed, fully as long as the trunk itself, while the tail is compressed and longer than the head and trunk together. The entire fish is destitute of scales and covered with a smooth, slippery skin like an eel. The snout is very short, the mouth broad, with the lower jaw longer and very extensible. There are six barbels around the mouth, two of which, situated on each side of the upper jaw before the eye, are very long, extending nearly to the tail. The other four are much shorter and arranged in pairs on the chin. Owing to its poor eyesight and sluggish movements the wels would be badly handicapped in the race of life if not for these barbels, especially those of the upper jaw, which can be moved voluntarily in every direction. In moving leisurely about the fish uses them constantly in feeling its way, and at the same time they serve to attract other fishes, which mistake them for worms. When the wels perceives its prey close enough to be seized it makes a dart and rarely fails to capture it.—New York Tribune.

Too Bad.

"Some men have a good start in life."

"Very true."

"It is different with me, however."

"How different?"

"Mine was a stop."

The Better Man.

John Stetson, the millionaire manager of the old Boston Globe theater, was nearly always besieged by some of his wife's relatives in search of a position. He appointed one of them as ticket receiver in the upper gallery. One night an East Boston tough tried to force his way in without paying. The new man attempted to stop him and was promptly thrown down the steps. The victim limped into the lobby and reported the affair to Stetson.

"What's become of the man who threw you down the steps?" queried the manager.

"He's in the gallery now," was the answer.

"Do you mean to say that you have let him go in without paying and coolly come and tell me about it?" yelled Stetson.

"What could I do?" expostulated the relative. "What would you do, Stetson, if you were there and saw a big, burly brute pick me up and throw me down a long flight of steps?"

"What would I do?" echoed Stetson. "Why, I should discharge you and hire him on the spot."

Doers of Daring.

The mountains that infold the vale
With walls of granite, steep and high,
Invite the fearless foot to scale
Their stairway toward the sky.

The restless, deep, dividing sea
That flows and foams from shore to shore
Calls to its sunburned chivalry,
"Push out, set sail, explore!"

And all the bars at which we fret,
That seem to prison and control,
Are but the doors of daring set
Ajar before the soul.

Say not, "Too poor," but freely give.
Sigh not, "Too weak," but boldly try.
You never can begin to live
Unless you dare to die.

—Henry Van Dyke in Century.

A Ready Made Verdict.

A northwest town once boasted a composite postmaster and coroner. He was called one day to give his verdict upon the case of a stranger who had been the victim of a fit on the main street. As the man was known to nobody, he was hurried to the hospital. There the case was diagnosed as appendicitis, but when the operation took place the attending surgeon discovered that the patient had been previously relieved of his appendix. The doctor endeavored to retrace his steps, but the strange man died from the effects of the operation.

The postmaster-coroner in rendering his verdict filled in the space after "Cause of death" with a rubber stamp which read, "Opened by mistake."—Success Magazine.

The Plumber's Revenge.

Severe frost had burst some pipes in a London mansion, so that a plumber had to be called in. The plumber was shown round by the coachman, but as soon as he commenced work an officious butler kept close watch over him. He didn't like this treatment and determined to play a trick on the butler.

In a bathroom he found a badly cracked pipe, and after cutting out the ice he quickly popped his thumb over the hole.

"Here, mate," he said, turning to the butler, "hold yer thumb over this hole while I fetch my soderin' iron. Don't shift or there'll be a flood."

An hour went by, but the plumber had not returned. Then the butler called a servant who was passing and told her to find the plumber and fetch him up. She found him enjoying lunch in the kitchen.

"The butler wants to know when you're going to release him," she said.

"Go an' tell the old fool to shift his thumb. I turned the water off before I started on the job," replied the plumber, grinning.

Wiped Out the Grudge.

Cooper, the artist, was so easily copied that many spurious Coopers flooded the market, and the wary old Canterbury painter made a charge for giving his guarantee to his own works. One dealer to whom Cooper owed a grudge traveled down to Canterbury with a "Cooper" under his arm. He had just sold it for a good price, but required a guarantee. "You have no objection to oblige me?" said the dealer. "Not at all," replied Cooper, "but first pay my fee, 5 guineas. Thanks. Now, sir, you go home and burn that, for I never painted it."—Strand Magazine.

Necessity and Free Will.

Everywhere the human soul stands between a hemisphere of light and another of darkness, on the confines of two everlasting hostile empires—necessity and free will.—Thomas Carlyle.

What to Do When Broke.

A man who was always looking for quick ways to make money after reading an alluring advertisement decided to invest in a sure system for beating the races. He sent his money to New York and received by return mail an elaborate set of instructions how to bet, with a certain capital, to bring about the utter annihilation of the bookmakers and get for himself all the money at the track. He followed the system carefully, losing, it is scarcely necessary to state, all his money. Then, disheartened, but not discouraged and still retaining faith, he wired to the men who sold him the system: "I have followed your system carefully and am broke. How shall I act now?"

A few hours later he received this reply, "Act like you are broke."—Saturday Evening Post.

COLLECTING A DEBT.

Old Billy Bulger's Method Involved a Division of Labor.

"Got any work this mornin', Mistah Boyd?" asked old Billy Bulger, safe in the knowledge that no work would be intrusted to him.

"No," was the response, and then, before Billy could ask for the customary contribution: "But wait a minute. Lawyer Phillips has owed me $20 for twenty years. Collect it and I'll give you half." And the merchant, knowing how bad was the debt, winked at a waiting customer.

The old man found the lawyer in the middle of a group of prospective clients and influential citizens. Thrusting through the group, he called in stentorian tones:

"Mistah Phillips, suh!"

"Well?" queried the lawyer, much annoyed.

"Mistah Boyd done tell me that you've owed him $20 for about a hundred years, and he wants to know kin you pay him, suh."

The lawyer hurried to Billy's side.

"You idiot!" he said sotto voce. "Do you want to ruin my business? Here!" And he thrust a ten dollar bill into the old man's hand.

Back to the merchant toddled the old man.

"Well, Billy," said the merchant, "did you get it?"

The old man grinned.

"I got my half, all right," he chuckled. "But you'd better look out when you go back to get your half. He's right smart hot over it, suh!"—Success Magazine.

His Title.

A newspaper man once asked the late J. K. Hudson whether he should call him "major" or "general."

Hudson was a major in the civil war and was made a brigadier general in the Spanish war, but in the latter conflict he did not get into active service.

"Call me major," said Hudson in reply to the question. "I was vaccinated for general, but it didn't take."

Woolly Art.

Frederic Remington, the illustrator, fresh from a western trip on which he had been making studies of Indians and cowpunchers and things outdoors, met an art editor who insisted upon dragging him up to an exhibition of very impressionistic pictures.

"You don't seem enthusiastic," remarked the editor as they were coming out. "Didn't you like them?"

Remington, remembering what he had been told as a boy, counted ten before replying. Then:

"Like 'em? Say! I've got two maiden aunts in New Rochelle that can knit better pictures than those!"—Everybody's.

We Touch One Another on All Sides.

No individual can be happy unless the circumstances of those around him be so adjusted as to conspire with his interest, for in human society no happiness or misery stands unconnected and independent. Our fortunes are interwoven by threads innumerable. We touch one another on all sides. One man's misfortunes or success, his wisdom or his folly, often by its consequences reaches through multitudes.—Blair.

Insult Plus Injury.

"Well, did he pay you?" asked the wife of a dentist who had been to collect a bill for a full set of false teeth that he had made for a man almost a year before.

"Pay me!" growled the dentist. "Not only did he refuse to pay me, but he actually had the effrontery to gnash at me—with my teeth!"—Everybody's.

An Interesting Drive.

An eminent Irishman, famous as a historian and man of letters, arrived one morning at Dublin in a brown study. Scarcely had his feet touched land when he was seized, bag and baggage, by an alert car driver, who soon had the dreaming gentleman ensconced on a side of his car. They drove off at high speed and made a tour of the principal streets. They doubled on their tracks, flashed round corners and appeared in most unexpected places, all in the most aimless fashion and at a breakneck speed. At the end of an hour's brilliant car driving the fare woke up from his reverie in amazement.

"In the name of heaven, Pat," he exclaimed, "where are we going?"

"Och," said Pat, "the sorra one of me knows, your honor, but we're drivin' like blazes to it anyway!"

A Good Word For Him.

An old Scotchwoman was famous for speaking kindly. No sheep was so dark but she could discover some white spot to point out to those who could see only its blackness. One day a gossiping neighbor lost patience with her and said angrily, "Wumman, ye'll hae a guid word to say for the deevil himself!"

Instantly came the reply, "Weel, he's a vera industreeous body!"

She Did.

One day, while performing for the inmates of an orphan asylum, Kellar, the magician, walked up to a sedate little girl in the audience and asked, "Will my little lady please examine this handkerchief?"

The blushing child did as she was told.

"Now," proceeded the conjurer, "we will see if we can find in it some candy," and, slowly rolling the handkerchief into a ball, he held it out to the small maid.

"Please blow on it," he said.

The next moment there was a shriek of laughter from all sides. The child had taken the request literally and had noisily performed the habitual rite.—Success Magazine.

Easy Money.

How the street urchin spots an "easy mark" and gets the coin was shown recently at Third and Chestnut streets. An excellently dressed young man with a setter dog which he held by a strap was standing on the corner.

One of the newsboys stood beside the dog and when its master was not looking reached down and gave its tail a sharp pull. With a yelp of pain the dog turned quickly and jumped for its tormentor, but missed him by several inches.

The fact that the dog did not bite him was no obstacle to the boy, who grabbed his left arm with his right hand and began to scream furiously. "It bit me; it bit me. Take me to a hospital."

The owner of the dog became alarmed and ran to the boy. "Here, son," he said, "take this five dollar bill and keep quiet. It'll be all right," and he hurried away.

"Easy money," said the newsboy as he joined his companions.—Philadelphia Times.

Bloodshed Averted.

Opie Read, the novelist, once told of his experiences as a journalist in Kentucky many years ago.

"There was a good deal of news," he said, "such as shootings and knifings, but this news was not regarded as important, and little attention was paid to it. I remember once, when a local feud broke out afresh, when members of the opposing sides met at the county seat. There were hot words, a blow was struck, and weapons were drawn, when the sheriff interfered. He loudly announced that he would not tolerate any violence, ordered the parties to separate, and when his orders were not obeyed he began shooting. I forget whether he killed eight or nine, but I know that in describing the incident in my paper I commended the sheriff for his prompt action and bravery and added the paragraph, 'There is no doubt but for the prompt action of the sheriff there would have been bloodshed.'"

Brains For Diet.

There is a latent truth in the primitive Maori belief that by eating the brains of his enemies a warrior acquired their skill and cunning.

It was a custom among these savages, whose descendants I have seen and admired in Hawaii and New Zealand, to hold a brain feast after a successful battle. The conquering chief always reserved for his own portion the gray matter of the opposing leader. Observe how the practice works out in modern life. We do not actually eat our rivals' brains, but if we are wise we will try to absorb what those brains contain. The man who makes a big success is the man who makes the best use of his enemies, studies their moves, learns their method, knows what thought processes they are apt to follow. Down here in the street I guess we're more or less akin to the Maoris, anyway.—New York Herald.

She Meant Professionally.

As the young man caressed the cheek of his ladylove she drew away hastily.

"I think," she said indignantly, "you had better see father first."

"Why, what do you mean?" asked the perplexed lover.

"Father," she replied as she nursed her cheek, "is a barber."—Success Magazine.

Helped Them Along.

"Have you given proper attention to your children's teeth?" asked the health department circular.

"I've always provided plenty of good food for 'em to chew on," the fond parent inscribed on the bottom of the paper and mailed it back.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Very Misleading.

Battersby came across this interesting item in the household department: "If men would answer their wives kindly and courteously when asked for money it is undoubtedly true that the amount requested would not be half as much as it would be if the husband's reply was surly and antagonistic."

Battersby read this item over twice to make sure he grasped its meaning, and just then his wife entered the room.

"George," she said, "I want some money."

Battersby smiled affably.

"Yes, my dear," he pleasantly remarked, "and how much do you want?"

Mrs. Battersby stared at him in amazement.

"I said I wanted some money."

This time she spoke with much distinctness.

"And I asked you how much you wanted," Battersby merrily reminded her.

"Fifty dollars!" she snapped.

Battersby almost fainted. He had imagined she was after $5 and that his genial tone would cut the amount to $2.50.

But he handed over the fifty without further ado—and then tore the misleading item into infinitesimal fragments.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NO MORE GRAY HAIR.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made and used a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hair before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair, and are fast following suit. The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready to use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. As a scalp tonic and color restorer, this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers, and it can be bought for 50 cents and $1 a bottle at almost any first-class drug store, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

THE BIGGER LEDGER.

It has been a great disappointment to the editors that the man to set up the new press has not arrived owing to labor troubles at the factory in Battle Creek. The press has been at the Quincy freight house since Oct. 20 awaiting the arrival of the man and each day has been one of disappointment as we are anxious to start the eight-page Ledger. The need of more room has been demonstrated every day the past week the advertising crowding out good live news until the editor is nearly desperate deciding what could be left out. The edition of Thursday was entirely exhausted and orders are still coming in for more. It is hoped to pick up a few at some of the agencies. The readers are certainly getting two-cents worth of Quincy news and they know it and we are pleased at the increased demand each day for the Ledger as it shows that the new eight-page Ledger is what Quincy people want and that the city can support a good clean newsy home paper.

The week from Nov. 14 to Nov. 21 will be Hospital week in this city and the friends of this the greatest of our public charitable works of mercy will solicit subscriptions from the citizens of Quincy during the days between those two dates.

An appeal will be made to the people through the churches and the newspapers and all that those having the matter in charge ask is that the people of Quincy be as generous this year as they have in the past. There is no one in the city who does not recognize the good work the city hospital is doing every hour and minute of every day. The hospital has been in existence for 19 years and during all that time it has been the foremost agent of mercy within our city limits.

At the present time an addition is being built at the hospital and when this is finished the hospital will be in a better position to minister to the sufferings and sicknesses of our people than ever before. In fact, the new addition will be as complete a building of its kind as there is in the state. On account of this new addition the citizens are especially encouraged this year to be as generous with their offerings as is possible.

Within a few days the list of authorized collectors will bepublished in the Ledger and the citizens are asked to cooperate with these collectors so that the generous records of past years may be exceeded. Let every reader keep the dates Nov. 14—21 in mind and help out in the grand movement to be undertaken that week.

How true it is that we do not appreciate the beautiful things at our very door and oftentimes do not see the beauty until pointed out by a visitor and then we are surprised at our apparent blindness. One of our leading granite men J. S. Swingle has a quarry from which the view is unsurpassed, especialy at this time of year with the bright colored foliage and clear atmosphere which outlines the hills and bays into a beautiful picture. Although visitor s are frequently at the quarry and exclaim over the view they are seldom Quincy people, but people from afar.

Don't take your fly screens out yet. This is the advice of the health commissioner of Chicago, Dr. W. A. Evans, who is an expert on flies. "Keep your door and window screens in place until snow falls." Flies are very persistent at this time of year and should be barred out or destroyed as soon as they get inside the house.

Mothers find Perry Davis' Painkiller invaluable in the nursery, and it should be kept at hand in case of accident. For pain in the breast take a little Painkiller in sweetened milk and water, bathing the breast in it clear at the same time. If the milk passages are clogged, from cold, or other causes, bathing in the Painkiller will give immediate relief. Ask for New 35c. Bottle.

SOCIAL WORKERS.

Miss Zilpha D. Smith in an address last week at the Conference of Charities in Boston, said in part: "I take it that in calling ourselves charities we leave out of our thought all social service that does not involve direct human relations. This personal element, charity and education and the three older professions hold in common. Again and again these professions learn from the social worker, as the social worker learns from the teacher, the lawyer, the minister and the physician.

Public spirit may try to reform the tariff to revise taxation, to better regulate the traffic in liquor and in drugs, to standardize milk and food,—all public measures of far-reaching influence on individual lives,—yet as the employees who would put these into effect deal not with these human lives but with material goods, and with only those persons who control the handling of these goods, we do not call these movements charitable.

"Public spirit—call it benevolence if you will—may equip play-grounds, and social settlements, build schools, endow hospitals, guard prisons but none of these deserve the name of charity until they serve as standing-room for men and women, whose interest in those they meet, playfellows, neighbors, pupils, patients, prisoners, whatever they may be, is living and real to both sides, a personal intercourse in which one at least means to try to help the other.

"The way to help lies in one of two directions. The first is to remove the obstacles that stand in the way of that other's using his own powers to maintain for himself and his family at least the lowest standard tolerated by his community as to character, housing, food, health, education and so on. The other way is, by sufficient provision elsewhere, to remove from the struggle to attain this standard those who will never recover the capacity to reach and hold it for themselves.

"Over against this, stands the popular impression that charities divide themselves into two kinds ,one remedial, the other preventive. Yet the removal of obstacles may be both remedial, and preventive. So may the adequate provision outside of the struggle. I believe that no remedy is thorough, no cure perfect that does not in itself tend to prevent the recurrence of similar ills. And also that in charitable and social work no one succeeds in preventing anything without finding on the way that remedies for present ills are necessary to that success.

"How can any one of us do both kinds of work? We all know the social worker whose time is filled with one task, yet who longs to undertake the other. He is caring for the old people in a Home or almshouse, and he wants to do something to help others to end their days still in their own wholesome family life, where their small services may have value, where young people grow up about them, and where care is not only kindly but loving. He wants to work to make savings safe, or to lessen the accidents and the illnesses that take away sons and daughters, he wants to make each school and club and settlement a strengthener of family affection and promoter of mutual kindnesses.

"Or, on the other hand, he is leading clubs and classes of young men, preventing evil by nurture of the good. Now and again one falls out, and the leader is forced to think of the unhygienic conditions of work against which many of his young friends struggle, of the vicious businesses which tempt them with false pleasures and thrive on their degradation. He longs to do something toward persuading and forcing all employers to provide as good conditions as the best in each occupation, to reform the gamblers and the dealers in debasing things, to cleanse the streets till they are as open and pure as sunlight and virtue can make them.

"In short, he longs to complete the circle of effective work, to both prevent and remedy. He frets against the limits of his own powers and possibly lessens his own efficiency by doing his work under the distraction of these differing yet coherent desires.

"How may he be helped? He can help himself by helping others to see as he sees ,again and again speaking to his friends or to chance strangers of the need he feels, throwing the light of his little candle upon the dark spots while others look, and trusting that among them will be the men and women who can control the necessary hours of service and will turn them here.

"His dilemma may indeed be avoided only as we all work together. His longing to do the thing himself will cease when he finds others have undertaken it with singlehearted devotion and press forward to success. And sometimes the work has been begun long before he finds it out.

"This Conference means to help each of its members to know what is being done, what is planned to do, what visions appear for the future, to the end that all the charities in our Commonwealth shall go forward as one whole ,each supplementing and encouraging the other, remedying present ills, and preventing others from springing up.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

O'DONNELL ON TRIAL

For Assault on Conductor Winters

A hearing in the case of Maurice H. O'Donnell, who it is alleged, made a brutal assault on Conductor George M. Winters at Houghs Neck on the night of Oct. 21, was held before Judge Avery at the district court this morning. O'Donnell was represented by Jesse Gove, while D. E. Hall of Boston represented Winters. Quite a number of passengers on the car the night of the assault, were summoned as witnesses and told of the words between the conductor and O'Donnell on the trip to the beach. Conductor Winters told his story in a straightforward manner and counsel for the defendant was unable to shake it in any way.

Conductor Winters was the first witness and before his cross examination had been completed he fainted, and had to be taken out of the room. He said on the night of Oct. 21 he left City Square for Houghs Neck at 6.20. He had about fifty passengers, one of whom was the defendant. O'Donnell, the witness said, was under the influence of liquor. On the way down he had some conversation with him in regard to the ventilation of the car. Witness said he would look after it after he had taken his fares. He also told O'Donnell that he would have something to say to him at the end of the line. O'Donnell left the car at the corner of Bell street and Centre road and went into a house in the rear of Hanrahan's store.

When the end of the line was reached witness said that he started to shift his trolley. He had the trolley rope in one hand and the two bug lights in the other. O'Donnell approached him and said, "This is the end of the line, what have you to say?" Witness replied, "Not much to say, except you are a poor tool." At that O'Donnell made a savage kick at him which landed between his legs. He then made a second kick which smashed one of the lights. Witness then put his lights down and struck O'Donnell a blow that knocked him down.

Shortly after he began to have severe pains and before his car reached Quincy he fainted away. He said that Dr. Garey attended him, and that he remained in bed three days, and that the doctor had seen him every day since then. The cross examination was then taken up by Mr. Gove but had not proceeded far before the witness fainted.

Dr. Garey testified as to the nature of the injuries and what he had found on examination. The conductor, he said, was a nervous wreck. He might be able to return to work in a week or two but it might be a month or six months. There was danger of a permanent injury.

O'Donnell, in his evidence, denied kicking Winters, and said he simply struck him.

The court said it would impose a fine of $50, but as O'Donnell signified his intention to appeal, the case went over until Tuesday when the fine will probably be imposed.

FORMER QUINCY PASTOR CALLED.

Rev. Daniel M. Wilson, of the First parish, Unitarian, of Northfield, has received a call from the old First parish in Kennebunk, Maine. Mr. Wilson has been about six years in Northfield, going there from Brooklyn, N. Y. Before that, he was superintendent of the New England churches for the American Unitarian association, and for many years pastor of the First church in Quincy. During the Quincy pastorate, and since, he has written several books about the famous men and women of this place and their doings. The titles of these are: "Where American Independence Began," "Col. John Quincy, Master of Mount Wollaston," "Quincy, Old Braintree and Merry Mount," and a "History of First Church." The Kennebunk church to which Mr. Wilson is now called is one of the most notable among the Maine parishes.

Mr. and Mrs. Marry W. Gore, Jr., have closed their bungalow at Third Cliff, Scituate, and are at Vine street, Braintree, for the winter.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS

Keith's Theatre.

The experience of Nat Wills who has long been known as "The Happy Tramp," has probably never been duplicated by an artist in this country; that is, in regard to attaining extraordinary success when surrounded by people who had already reached the top of the ladder. Wills, who will be one of the features at Keith's next week, has been in vaudeville most of his life with the exception of several starring tours in the "legitimate." When the Lambs arranged their mammoth Gambol last summer every actor of prominence volunteered, Wills among them, and like the others he was content to take whatever part was assigned to him. It happened, however, that owing to the inability of two prominent comedians to accompany the Lambs on the trip, that Wills was asked to "fill in" for one night only. Wills was unquestionably the bright particular star of the Lambs and their greatest Gambol and he will appear at Keith's with a monologue that is said to be even better than that which attracted such widespread attention. He will be a feature of one of those big bills that Mr. Keith is presenting this winter with such happy results; a bill made up of headliners which will be announced later.

Hollis Street Theatre.

Grace George has secured a tremendous hit in her new comedy, "A Woman's Way," by Thompson Buchanan, which comes to the Hollis Street theatre for two weeks' engagement beginning Monday, Nov. 1st. The usual matinees will also be given. Those who were charmed with the beautiful work of Miss George in Sardou's "Divorcons," should not fail to see her in her new play, for in part of Marion Stanton she has a role which fits her even better than Cyprienne. Cyprienne is a spoiled French girl, but Marion Stanton is a charming common-sense brave American girl, whose courage and sense of humor in the face of a trying situation wins all hearts. Marion Stanton discovers that her husband has become infatuated with a fascinating Southern widow, and instead of resorting to the hysteria and tears that might ordinarily be expected, she recognizes the fact that a man is likely to go to a woman who appeals to the most of his nature. The one thing to do is to get her husband, and this she cleverly accomplishes by bringing the widow into the Stanton home, and by the force of contrast and clever manipulation showing her shallowness and general undesirability.

American Music Hall.

To arrange a bill to follow such an attraction as Harry Lauder is no easy task for any manager but William Morrison has succeeded for the coming week in bringing together an aggregation of stars such as is seldom seen on any stage. The big feature will be the Svengali Trio composed of two men and a woman. This act is called a musical and mystery because by whispering the name of any grand or comic opera to a person in the audience the lady on the stage receives the thought with a swiftness of lightning and immediately begins to sing and play same. Will Dillon is so well known to Boston theatre-goers that little comment is necessary. He is called the man of a thousand songs and while he is on the stage the audience is kept continuously in roars of laughter at his antics while being at the same time delightfully entertained with his original songs. Other acts on this strong bill will be Emma Krause and her picks who will include singing and dancing of a high grade. Marguerite and Adriel sensational acrobatic artists and Miss Anne Blancke and Company, who will present the one-act play called "Freckles." This piece has caused considerable comment in New York and other cities where it has appeared and has added interest for Boston play goers from the fact that it has been dramatized by J. Frank Davis, a prominent Boston newspaper man. In the dramatization Mr. Robert Hilliard also had a hand ,the results being that "Freckles" has been pronounced a little masterpiece. The other acts will be fully up to the standard of those emntioned.

Castle Square Theatre.

"A Parisian Romance" will be the play at the Castle Square next week, and its combination of vividly emotional scenes and comedy, promise to provide an entertainment of exceptional interest. Mr. Craig is endeavoring to offer Bostonians as wide a variety of plays as is possible, and certainly three successive weeks could not bring forth anything more dissimilar than "The Circus Girl," "Hamlet," and "A Parisian Romance." In each of these the John Craig Stock Company shows the wide range of its extraordinary versatility, and in each, the Boston public is offered the best things available for stock company production. The scenes of "A Parisian Romance" are laid in the French capital and the action moves around the extraordinary personality of the Baron Chevrial, banker and man of the world, and it is he that furnishes the play with its strongest incidents. First made famous in this country by Richard Mansfield, and forming a portion of his repertory for nearly twenty years, it is really one of the best and best liked of modern dramas. Mr. Craig will appear in the title role, which will give him remarkable chances for character impersonation.

Boston Theatre.

Sparkling with witty lines and full of scenic and costumic innovations, "Three Twins" is enjoying the limit of prosperity at the Boston theatre. The humor of the situation of the three men who resemble each other is capitally worked out under the leadership of Clifton Crawford, whose impersonation of the rather inconsequential son of a rich father is one of the best comic characterizations that has been given to the stage in recent years. Mr. Crawford makes the role move with plenty of fun and snap and scores heavily with his monologue. As for Miss McCoy—well, there are few dancers so competent and graceful on the American stage. Moreover she has a vein of humor which finds expression in the part of the girl who is 'always happy.' Her dancing song "The Yama Yama Man," in which she is assisted by a grotesquely attired octet of girls, is a notable success. The success of the piece at the Boston theatre is quite beyond the most sanguine expectations of the most ardent admirer of the happy combination, as at every performance, the great big Boston theatre is filled to its seating capacity with enthusiastic audiences. The regular matinees are given on Wednesday and Saturday. In the evening the curtain is raised promptly at eight o'clock and at the afternoon performances at 2 o'clock.

GREEK REBELS SEIZE ARSENAL

Three Hundred Entrench Themselves Close to Capital

SHARP BATTLE AT SALAMIS

Warships Remain Loyal and Arsenal Is Restored to Government, Which Is Co-operating With Military League Ashore—Mutineers Headed by Typoldos, Who Wanted to Be Made Minister but Was Turned Down

Athens, Oct. 30.—An actual revolt in the navy has taken place and the situation is acute. The band of naval officers which on Wednesday quitted the capital and withdrew to Salamis, an island ten miles to the west, yesterday seized the arsenal there. They met no opposition. The rebels are led by Lieutenant Typaldos, and are reported to number 300 men. The government has proclaimed Typaldos a traitor and ordered his arrest by the military.

Lieutenant Typaldos, who heads the revolt, is the commander of a flotilla of torpedo boats and submarines. It appears that he demands that he be appointed minister of marine. He threatens if the appointment is not made that he will overthrow the government and establish a dictatorship. Meanwhile an element in the Military league which is opposed to the revolt issued a proclamation denouncing Typaldos as a traitor who broke his oath to the league.

A remnant of infantry and a battery of field guns were sent to Skaramanga, on the coast a few miles west of Athens and opposite Leros, the point on the island of Salamis where Typaldos' men are entrenched.

There was a sharp little fight at Salamis yesterday afternoon, which, as the big warships remained loyal and joined in the attack on the mutineers, ended in the discomfiture of Typaldos. At 4 o'clock a field artillery opened fire from the heights of Skaramanga on the torpedo boats in the harbor. The latter replied, whereupon the large warships took a hand against the rebels.

There was a sharp exchange of shells, and for a time matters were very lively. The arsenal building was hit and the new torpedo boat destroyer Sphendone, being struck by shells, was immediately hidden by a cloud of steam and smoke.

During the firing three of the torpedo boats gradually withdrew from action stern first, and twenty minutes after the first shot was fired all the mutineers had taken shelter behind the headland at the entrance of the harbor. Firing then stopped.

The arsenal is now in the hands of the government, which is co-operating with the Military league ashore.

There is much anxiety concerning the whereabouts of the mutinous vessels. It is supposed that they have left Salamis, but nobody knows whither they have gone.

The government seems to fear that Typaldos will try to execute his designs elsewhere, and sharp watch for the appearance of fugitives has been ordered.

According to one report they have gone to Crete, where, possibly, they might stir up serious trouble. Another report says they are going to Brindisi.

One of the mutineers' destroyers was disabled and driven ashore. Another fled towards Eleusis and disappeared in the darkness. It reached the naval station at Poros, but met with such a hostile reception that it had to put to sea again.

The loyal fleet is cruising off the Piracus to prevent an attempt at landing or an attack on the town. They have also closed the straits of Salamis. No torpedoes were discharged during the fight.

Typaldos seems to have no sympathizers in the army. The population of Athens is in a state of the greatest excitement, but the city is orderly.

The boule, or legislative chamber, after a noisy discussion of the mutiny, suspended its session.

A TRIPLE MURDERER

Slayer of Two Sisters and Brother-In-Law Gets Life Sentence

Kansas City, Kan., Oct. 30.—James McMahon pleaded guilty in court to the murder of his two sisters, Rose McMahon and Mrs. Alonzo Van Royen, and his brother-in-law, Alonzo Van Royen. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

McMahon deliberately planned the murder of his sisters and his brother-in-law because his brother favored them instead of them. He executed his planned with coolness, firing repeatedly into the fallen victims. He was equally collected after the crime, reporting daily to the sheriff to aid in seeking the slayer. He was finally forced to a confession.

Fewer Killed on Railroads

Washington, Oct. 30.—A decrease in the number of casualties on American railroads for the year ended June 30, 1908, is shown by a report issued by the interstate commerce commission. During the year 2791 persons were killed and 63,920 were injured on railroads.

ARTICLES ARE SIGNED

Jeffries and Johnson Matched to Fight For World's Championship

New York, Oct. 30.—After a conference lasting three hours James Jeffries and Jack Johnson agreed to fight forty-five rounds or more to decide the heavyweight championship of the world. Articles of agreement to this effect were signed by both principals, who were present at the session.

The battle is to take place not later than July 5 next year and will be held before the club donating the best purse. A side bet of $10,000 is to hinge on the outcome, each side agreeing to wager $5000. Five thousand dollars was also posted by each pugilist, as a guarantee of good faith, with Robert Murphy, proprietor of Hotel Albany, where the meeting was held. Murphy was selected as temporary stake and forfeit holder. The referee will be selected later. The purse is to be divided, 75 percent to the winner and 25 percent to the loser.

Johnson made a fine impression with the crowd by his willingness to concede everything. When Jeffries proposed $20,000 side bet he agreed, but his manager called it off, saying Jeffries would probably be favorite and that they could get odds for their money on the day of the battle.

MANY FAMILIES HOMELESS

Fire Destroys Boston Tenement Block Occupied by Polish Families

Boston, Oct. 30.—Seventeen Polish families who lived in the three-story wood block of tenements that runs the entire length of Ellery terrace, South Boston, last evening were made homeless by a fire which was fanned by a northeast gale and for a while menaced the entire district, which is made up of wooden dwellings. No one was injured.

Few, if any of the seventy-three persons could speak English, and once in a place of safety they dropped to their knees and wept as they prayed.

In the excitement many of the children strayed from their parents. The police were kept busy preventing many mothers rushing back to the blazing building to search for their children.

The fire had its origin in a stable opposite the block of tenements.

The Owl In History.

The owl was in former times generally regarded as an omen of misfortune or death, but as the Egyptians represented Minerva under the form of an owl the Athenians, who were under the care of this goddess, looked upon the appearance of the owl as a favorable omen. It therefore formed upon the ancient coins referred to the symbol of Athens and her foreign possessions. The Chinese and the Tartars have also held the owl in high esteem. The first named used to wear owl's feathers in their caps, and some Tartar tribes still worship idols made like owls.

Borrowing Trouble.

Kenneth, who views the future from the eminence of seven summers, was looking very woebegone.

Asked why, he hesitated for a moment, then, bursting into tears, "I've been wondering," he said between sobs, "when mother's dead—and nurse's dead—and my wife's dead—who'll look after me when I'm sick!"

Panthers as Household Pets.

"A British official in an out of the way Persian district invited me to stay at his house for a night," narrates a globe trotter. "I was comfortably settled upon a sofa just before dinner when my rest was suddenly disturbed by a loud bang at the sitting room door, which, flying open, admitted two enormous animals, which I at first took for dogs.

"Both of them made at once for my sofa, and, while the larger one curled comfortably round my feet and composed itself to sleep, the smaller one seated itself on the floor and commenced licking my face and hands, an operation which had I dared I should strongly have resented.

"But those white, gleaming teeth and flashing green eyes filled me with something akin to terror. To my relief, my host entered at this juncture.

"'Making friends with the panthers, I see,' he remarked pleasantly. 'They are nice, companionable beasts.'

"That may have been true at the time. The fact remains, however, that three months afterward one of them devoured a native child."—London Telegraph.

Nature Sometimes Makes Mummies.

Natural mummification, the changing of the human body into a dried condition without artificial treatment, is an extremely rare phenomenon. In a case reported by Hon. S. Wolffsohn of British Honduras, a middle aged cooly who disappeared between January and March, 1907, was found more than a year afterward, on May 6, 1908, in a corrugated iron hut as a perfectly preserved mummy. The hut, in a somewhat isolated spot at Sibun, was raised on blocks four or five feet above the ground and had a door and three shutters, one shutter being open, while one had fallen out. The body was clothed in a cotton underskirt, dark jersey and duck trousers, two pieces of rope around the neck proving self strangulation. The desiccation seemed to have been favored by a combination of conditions, the season having been extraordinarily dry and the small iron house excessively hot, though well ventilated, while the body was thin and attenuated as a result of mental disorder.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET

"Boston Women are Ideal," says Mrs. Pankhurst to Whose Charm Bostonians Succumbed—Oriental Visitors Find Football a Rough Game— Prohibition of Poets to Vend their Own Wares without a License is Latest Form of Legal Interference with Private Business—Cambridge Astronomer Tells Good Story of Queen Victoria—Another Trade School for New England Girls.

Harvard's genial astronomer, Professor Edward C. Pickering, always a good story teller, relates an anecdote which indicates that commercial instincts sometimes penetrate even royal blood. One of Queen Victoria's grandchildren, a prince of Great Britain, once wrote to her asking her to send him a pound, as he was short of spending money. The Queen, instead of complying with his request, sent a letter giving him some good advice. Soon afterward she was surprised to receive the following letter from the little Prince: "Dear Grandma: I am glad you did not send me the pound. I sold your letter to an autograph man for four pounds."

"Boston women are ideal. Not only are they in touch with all important affairs, but they know a thing that very few women seem to know—that their minds are their own. Boston women have the education and the poise and the courage of their convictions which makes for perfect womanhood." Thus, at least, were they described by Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English suffragette, during her visit to the Hub. The admiration was mutual, for even those ladies who were disposed to frown upon the "militant" methods could not but speak in the highest terms of this brilliant leader, whose every word and expression conveyed refinement, education and grace too seldom attained, combined with the gentle sweetness of the mother and the firm self-reliance of the leader of a worthy cause.

Although some people regard the inauguration of a smoke nuisance as a bad omen, final preparations for the opening of the Boston-1915 exposition in the old Museum of Fine Arts Building in Copley Square have been under way for the past week, and Saturday night witnesses the private view of the exhibits. The grounds of the exposition building have been outlined with tall torches of flaming oil, the illumination being visible for a long distance, and the resultant particles of soot being not exactly invisible on fine fabrics. The expectant public is now in the attitude of waiting to be shown the setting forth of the Boston-1915 ideas as to the planning of a city beautiful. The management believes that record breaking crowds will take advantage of the opportunity to observe and study the various schemes for making Boston the finest city in the world six years hence.

A bargain counter scramble is now in progress to obtain tickets for the Yale-Harvard football game at Cambridge on November 20. The demand has so far outrun the supply in the last two or three years that the management has restricted the privilege of application to the members and graduates of the university, and even these fortunate beings can have but two tickets each. Consequently hitherto favored mothers, sisters, sweethearts and wives, to say nothing of the legions of "next" friends are awaiting their verdict with trepidation, or sending forth long wails and heaping tons of protests on the heads of the powers that be. The precious strips of pasteboard, when distributed will be guarded as jewels of the first water, and will probably be exhibited under glass, protected by bolts and bars.

A new literary venture looms on the Hub's horizon, where so many literary luminaries have erstwhile shone. The reproduction of a remarkably good portrait of the Honorable Curtis Guild, Jr., graces the initial issue of the new Boston magazine which enters upon its career this week. This magazine which is called the Boston Weekly Review, is devoted to the music, act, literature and dramatics of the twon—a field which is much larger today than it would have been twenty years ago and which will be larger yet. This editors, R. W. Bergengren and W. L. Stoddard are both well known writers and have had the training and experience which should result in the production of a most successful magazine. They were particularly fortunate in their choice of the first illustration, a work from the brush of Mrs. Marie Danforth Page, executed just before Mr. Guild started on his European trip last summer.

Banzai! An entertaining feature of the Brown-Harvard football game, but one which many people present were not aware of, was the arrival of the delegation of Japanese merchants with their wives and children to witness the great American game as guests of Harvard University. They arrived in touring cars which were driven onto the sacred grounds of the locker building, from whence the guests were piloted to seats in the first rows of the cheering section, directly in the centre of the Harvard side of the Stadium. Dressed in the same style as those around them, and entering with the quiet unobtrusiveness of their nationality, they escaped attention except from those who were watching for them. The Oriental visitors did not care much for our game, finding it too rough, but they received a lasting impression of American enthusiasm.

The late Frank B. Cotton of Brookline will be remembered with sincere appreciation by many young women of Boston in time to come. The trade school for girls which is provided for in his will is to be primarily a Boston institution, residents of this city having preference in the event of applications exceeding the facilities, but applicants will be received regardless of race, religion or nationality. The young women will be taught sewing, housekeeping and many other occupations by which they may earn an independent living. Mr. Cotton had made a study of the conditions and difficulties which beset women wage earners in the large cities, the outcome of which was the determination to devote his entire estate to the betterment of those whom he could reach.

"Poets spouting in hot weather" were declared a public nuisance back in the Roman Empire. The decision has been reaffirmed by a righteous judge in a Boston suburb who has recreed that it is a misdemeanor to vend your verses from house to house without a license. The price to be paid for the license privilege has not been set but the suburbanites in question hope that it will be fixed at at least ten thousand dollars. They declare that book agents, scissors grinders and installment collectors are welcome guests as compared with the young Thespian of Boston who, being out of a job, undertook to capitalize his facility for writing rhymes. These the hard hearted magazine editors turned down, with the result that the poetaster turned up, long locked and flushing with the inspiration of his muse, at the backdoor of house after house in a peaceful, pleasant town. "Have a poem; handouts accepted in partial payment," he would say. "A pome, is it," one Hibernian lady observed. "Sure, Oi've read them things is what's givin' folks pellaygra down South. Scat!" A complaint was finally lodged against the bard who, like Homer, was minded to beg his bread in seven cities. An unsympathetic judge ordered him either to secure a license or to leave town. Discovering that whereas the famous poetic license is a very cheap device at the disposal of every rhymster, the other kind costs hard coin the luckless purveyor of his own productions went sadly away. LA FOLLETTE RAPS CANNON

Iowa Senator Discusses Various Kinds of Republicans

SPEAKER'S RULE IS NEAR END

Irresistible Conflict Within the Party Between Cannonism and Principles of Progressive Republicans—Untrammelled Ballot Would Put an End to "Snarlings of Grim Old Wolf Who Scents Beaters Closing In"

Milwaukee, Oct. 30.—Speaker Cannon's challenge to read out of the Republican party such chaff as Cummins, La Follette and their followers, has been accepted by Senator La Follette. Notice of a willingness to enter the contest is served upon Cannon through La Follette's weekly magazine in the senator's usual style.

Senator La Follette says: "Speaker Cannon, at Elgin, Ills., on Oct. 19, served notice that he means to purge the threshing-floor of the Republican party of such chaff as Cummins, La Follette and 'their followers.' By these terms, Cannon describes the progressives—who, of course, are followers of neither Cummins nor La Follette—but of their own unbought and unsubdued minds.

"'These people,' Cannon is reported to have said, 'call themselves Republicans; but if they are, then I am something else.'

"We hope Cannon is right. If by these remarks he means that there is an irresistible conflict within the party between Cannonism, on the one hand, and the principles of the progressive Republicans, on the other, he is quite right. There is such a conflict. It is a conflict between the progressives, on the one hand, and Cannon and his sort, on the other, for the control of the party that once followed Lincoln.

"It is like a contest between two interests in some great organization, the controling faction of which, represented by Cannon, has diverted it from its original objects, and by an 'embezzlement of power' entrenched behind the 'voting trust' of the caucus, the convention, the Cannon rules, the drilling political henchmen of special privilege, and the corrupting influence of predatory wealth, has long bid defiance to the scattered majority of the stockholders, the voters of the Republican party—feeling their way to control of their own organization through such methods as direct primaries, popular election of United States senators and corrupt practices laws.

"If Cannon is a Republican, these progressives, these undrilled citizens are not. If Cannon is a Republican, Lincoln and Sumner, and George William Curtis, and Carl Schurz, and the men who followed Sherman and Grant, and the commanders they followed, and the founders of the Republican party, were not Republicans.

"Cannon may speak with truth when he denies that he has made a corrupt deal with Tammany whereby he will aid the Tiger in New York while it continues to aid him in congress in his contest with the progressives, or insurgents. They may have come to his aid in the grim crisis of last congress, not because of anything he promised them, but because of the deep sympathy that exists between such men.

"For if Cannon is a Republican, Tammany is Republican, and so is Cox of Cincinnati, Sullivan, 'Bathhouse John' and 'Hinkey Dink' of Chicago, and the powers that prey everywhere. They may not pass under the same names, but Cannon himself is authority for the statement that party titles are deceitful now.

"But about one thing Cannon is evidently mistaken. He cannot gavel through his classification of Republicans as he gavels through his schemes in congress. The voters of the Republican party will decide who are Republicans and who are not. There will be stockholders' meetings from time to time and tests of strength. The voting trust of Cannonism, the caucus, and the convention may finally win, and Cannon's definition of Republicanism may be set up as the correct one. We shall see.

"But we shall never believe in the identity of the party of Lincoln with the party of Cannon until the last ballot has been counted in the last contest. The progressives may well bide their time and laugh at the fulminations of the czar of the house. Their time is coming. Cannonism is merely a survival. The stars in their courses fight against it, and it is doomed.

A free, untrammelled ballot in the Republican party would strip Cannon of every vestige of power tomorrow. His pronunciamentos are but the snarlings of a grim old wolf who hears the beaters in the woods, and scents them closing in. He is still at large, and his fangs are long; but the days of his depredations within the sheepfolds of the people are surely numbered."

Postoffice Robber Behind Bars

Boston, Oct. 30.—Edward F. Murphy was sentenced to six months in jail on a charge connecting him with the looting of the postoffice at Ponkapoag by a gang of yeggmen.

Up to Date Canvassing.

As I opened the door I saw a man with a burglar's mask kneeling before the safe.

The next moment he had turned and shoved a revolver into my face.

"Throw up your hands!" he said.

I did so.

"You understand," he remarked pleasantly, "that I can, in the present circumstances, loot the premises at my pleasure!"

I confessed that he could.

"You realize that you are at my mercy?" he asked.

"I do," I replied.

"You acknowledge that I can blow out your brains if I like?" he persisted.

"Certainly," I admitted.

"Well, then," he said, "you will be interested to know that I got in without difficulty through your parlor window. Had it been equipped with Smith's patent safety burglar alarm and preventer this could not have happened. Installed complete with batteries for £5. Allow me to hand you a circular. Good night, sir."

Therewith, pocketing his revolver, he withdrew.—Pearson's Weekly.

It Worked Out Badly.

There is such a thing as carrying the discount business too far, as the smart advertising agent of a new publication discovered.

"As I understand," said the merchant, "your rate is $50 a page for a single insertion and you deduct 1 per cent from this rate for each additional insertion?"

"That is correct," replied the agent. "The total rate decreases by 1 per cent for each insertion contracted for after the first," he went on to explain. "If you agree to take it ten times there will be nine insertions after the first and you will get 9 per cent off the rate. In other words, you will only have to pay $45.50 each time."

"The idea commends itself to me," said the merchant thoughtfully, "and if you will stick to that plan I will be glad to make a contract with you to use a full page for 101 consecutive issues."

The agent was jubilant until he thought it over. Then he wasn't. This discount business can be carried too far.—Exchange.

How a Submarine Dives.

All submarine vessels are brought to a condition of readiness to submerge by taking in water ballast in suitably arranged and controlled tanks. This causes more of the boat to sink below the water's surface and finally leaves her with only a small part of her conning tower out of water. The remaining part above water represents what is called "reserve buoyancy." This buoyancy varies generally from 200 to 1,000 pounds, depending upon the size of the craft, and it is to overcome the permanent tendency to rise represented by this reserve that pressure is brought to bear upon the submerging rudders or the hydroplanes in order to make the boat sink after she is once put in motion. It is the height out of water or reserve of buoyancy of the submersible which gives her her superior sea keeping qualities, which permits the vessel to be driven safely on the surface at higher rates of speed and which contributes in other ways to the efficiency, the habitability and the military value of the craft.—Harper's Weekly.

Phony Mistake.

"The mistakes that occur through and by the telephone are numerous," said the lady who had one in her house, "and some of them are as amusing as the others are annoying. The last one I had happen to me was rather curious. My sister-in-law is named Drake, and I called her up at her house. The maid told me she had left word to call her up at a certain number, which I thought I had right. I called it and asked for Drake. They said there was no such person there. Then I wanted to know what place it was. The man at the other end said it was a poultry store, and he didn't laugh when he said it. It struck me as so funny that I laughed right out, and the man asked me what I was laughing at. He hadn't seen the point, and I rang off without enlightening him."—New York Herald.

Finger Prints Never Fail.

Although scars from wounds and ulcers frequently partly destroy the pattern folds, such disfigurements are more often than otherwise aids to identification. When the system of finger prints was first introduced at police headquarters in New York a lieutenant in one of the administrative departments tried to discredit it. He had an experimental print made of the tip of a finger and a short time afterward asked to have the same finger reprinted. He had meantime ground down the skin of this finger on a grindstone until the blood almost flowed. Nevertheless the pattern form was more accurately disclosed in the second printing than in the first. Once the record has been made nothing has yet been discovered to invalidate it.—Charles Brewer in Century.

Revised Upward.

One evening at family prayers the head of the house read that chapter which concludes with, "And the wife see that she reverence her husband." After the exercises had closed and the children had gone to bed, the New York Post says, he quoted it, looking meaningly at his wife.

"Let us see what the Revised Version says on that subject," said she. "I will follow the new teaching, if you please."

The Revised Version was produced, and her chagrin may be imagined as the head impressively read, "And let the wife see that she fear her husband."

How She Came To Her Own

By AMY C. CURTISS.

[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

The story of how Jeannette Bourne came to her own is a series of strange incidents. Yet incidents comprise but half the story, for without the workings of nature's inexorable laws they would not have occurred.

Jeannette was an orphan. Her father had died in the war between the states, and her mother had soon after gone to her long home. At the time of her mother's death Jeannette was but a year old. There was no near relative to take her, and before she was five years old she had had several homes. When she was at an age to make inquiries as to her past there was no one who knew much about it. A little money had been left for her, which was expended on an education. Then she began teaching.

Jeannette felt the loneliness of her position. When she was a schoolgirl and saw other girls going at vacation time or the end of a term to their homes she would be heartbroken. And when she became a teacher she would regret that there were such intervals of work as vacations. When she was twenty-two years old, having saved some money, she resolved to pass the summer vacation in a trip abroad. Joining a party, she went for a short trip to the continent of Europe, reaching England late in August.

While Jeannette was sightseeing in London she went to a loan collection of old portraits. One portrait especially attracted her attention. It was that of a young British officer in the uniform of the latter part of the eighteenth century. As she stood before this picture a very singular sensation took possession of her. It was something wistful, akin to that love which exists between parents and children, brothers and sisters. Several times she went back to look at the face which seemed to beam kindly upon her through its blue English eyes. The last time she returned to it a lady also looking at it said to her:

"What a strong resemblance you bear to the portrait. Had the officer not lived a hundred years ago I should suppose him to be your brother."

"I don't even know who he was," replied Jeannette, secretly pleased that a resemblance should have been remarked. The lady had a catalogue in her hand and turned to the number fixed to the portrait.

"No. 72," she read, "Captain Hugh C. Bourne, Royal artillery; killed in America at the battle of Monmouth."

Jeannette looked at the lady with many emotions.

"Why, my name is Bourne," she said.

"Indeed."

"Yes, and I am from America."

"Well, then," said the lady confidently, "I am sure you are one of his grandchildren."

Jeannette was advised to apply for information concerning the portrait to the managers of the exhibition. She did so and learned that it had been lent by Alonzo Warrick-Bourne, the owner of a country estate not far from London, where he spent most of his time. The next day she appeared at the manor house on the property and inquired for the owner. She expected to find a middle aged or elderly man and was surprised to find one about her own age. She told him her story. He sat listening to it with marked attention. When she had finished he sat for some time mute, then said:

"I've always believed that I was holding property that did not rightfully belong to me, and I am now of the opinion that your having seen Captain Bourne's portrait will open up a case that will sooner or later take it away from me."

"That is not my object," said the girl. "All my life I have been lonely. I wish only to find some of my own flesh and blood."

"There are old papers," the young man continued, "which hint at a secret marriage on the part of Hugh Bourne while in America with a lady named Hildreth."

"My father's name was Hugh Hildreth," said Jeannette, surprised. "And that was his father's name too."

"In that case," said the young man, with a touch of mournfulness in his tone, "there was such a marriage, and Hugh Bourne's descendants are the rightful owners to this property. At the time of his death America was a far country and little was known here of his life there. Not supposing him to have been married and he having no brothers or sisters, his property passed to the nearest of kin, a cousin, my great-grandmother, Elizabeth Warrick. Her son, my grandfather, took the name of Bourne in addition to his own. That name has come down to me with the property. You have only to bring proofs of Hugh Bourne's marriage and that you are his heir and I will turn over to you the property."

"I shall do nothing of the kind."

"I think it probable," said the young man, "that I shall go to America and satisfy myself whether or no I am holding some one else's property. If so, I shall surrender it."

And such was his decision. The same ship that carried Jeannette back to her duties took her relative. There he found in the records of one of the smaller cities of New Jersey entered while General Howe was commanding the British forces in that region a record of the marriage of Hugh Bourne and Jeannette Hildreth. Why after her husband fell at Monmouth the wife failed to claim what was hers is doubtless a lost story.

But a compromise was effected as to the property by a wedding between the Englishman and the American.

GUIDES RECEIVED $200

Recompensed For Statement Regarding Cook and Mt. McKinley

Washington, Oct. 30.—"Edward N. Barrill does not fear Dr. Frederick A. Cook, nor does he fear legal trouble with him. He has retained me as counsel in case Cook makes any false charges against him."

This was the statement James M. Ashton, a lawyer of Tacoma, who recently examined Barrill and others in connection with their expedition with Cook to Mt. McKinley. Ashton admitted that he paid Barrill and Fred Printz in the neighborhood of $200 to compensate them for their traveling expenses from their homes to Tacoma and back.

Ashton received a telegram some time ago from Thomas H. Hubbard of the Peary Arctic club requesting him to find the guides and to examine them thoroughly.

Goldsmith somewhere tells of an old lady who, lying sick unto death, played cards with the curate to pass away the time and after winning all his money had just proposed to play for her funeral expenses when she expired.

HOME ENDORSEMENT

Hundreds of Quincy Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement the public expression of Quincy people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Quincy reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

W. Charlesworth, 33 Cranch street, Quincy, Mass., says: "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were very severe at times and cold or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew that my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give them a trial and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had taken the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

ATHERTON HOUGH

For Whom New Schoolhouse is Named

Atherton Hough for whom the new school building at Houghs Neck was named was one of the original settlers of Boston.

The first mention of him in local history was Jan. 4, 1636, when he was granted six hundred acres of land. Pattee's history says of this grant:

4th January, 1636. "It is agreed by general consent that Mr. Atherton Houghes shall have six hundred acres laid him out beyond Mount Wollaston, from between Monatyquot river to the bound that parts our bound from Weymouth, and if there be not sufficient meadow there for this said farm, then he is to be accommodated with meet meadow for it in the little meadow at the upper end of the fresh brook called the "stand," and to be laid out by the former five mentioned persons or four of them."

"Thus far it has not been difficult to understand the course of the allotments. They appear to have extended coastwise from Neponsite to the Weymouth river, beginning at the north and going southward. But there was yet one great tract left, and this seems to have been granted later to Mr. Hough in exchange for some portion of his first grant. It is the same which has ever since been known by his name, as 'Houghs Neck.'"

4th December, 1637. "Also it is agreed that Mr. Atherton Haulgh shall have all that neck of land (as yet not laid out) joining to Mr. William Coddington, north-west of the Brethren's meadow lots there, and to have it made up seven hundred acres upon the main land, fifty acres thereof to be in the little meadow where Mr. William Hutchinson had hay mown this last year, and if the meadow exceed not threescore acres, then is Mr. Haulgh to have the whole meadow, and it is left to his choice to begin from the west, either at the little meadow, and so to come downward to the Brethren's lots of seven acres upon a head—or to begin from their lot and so up to the meadow, all upon the north side of the Stony Brook—and for the rocky ground therein to have allowance, as the Brethern have unto their rocky ground there—and to have commonage as the Brethren have there, and if the said meadow do exceed threescore acres, then is Mr. Haulgh to have his fifty acres therein where he pleaseth taking it altogether at which end thereof he will."

The final settlement with Mr. Hough was made as follows:

28th October, 1639. "It was fully agreed on and concluded between said overseers on the town's behalf on the one part, and the said Mr. Atherton Haulgh on the other part, that Mr. Haulgh shall relinquish all claim unto all the land commonly called the Captain's plain, lying over against the southern end of the second Company of lots at Mount Wollaston, and lying on the west side of the fresh brook, bounded towards the north and east by said fresh brook running out of a swamp in the midst of the plain near adjoining unto the said fresh brook towards the west of the marked trees. In consideration of which the men chosen in the town's behalf aforesaid, do grant and agree that the said Mr. Haulgh shall have with all convenient speed measured out unto him as much land in quantity as the plain bounded as aforesaid containeth in it, and eighty acres overplus to adjoin unto the southmost side of land already laid out to him, to lie all along a line already set out, extending about five hundred rods in length, and to be of equal breadth from the said line in all places, as much as the quantity granted to him (whatever it be) shall require."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE.

Prof. Hermann S. Hering, C. S. B., who will lecture on Sunday evening at Quincy Music hall on "Christian Science" is a native of Philadelphia, Pa., and son of the late Dr. Constantine Hering, whom Hahnemann called "The Father of Homeopathy in America" is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania from the department of mechanical engineering, receiving the professional degree of M. E. in 1886. He was made professor of mechanics and electrical engineering by the Philadelphia Board of Public Education in 1887, and in 1891 was called to the John Hopkins University in Baltimore, Md., as associate in electrical engineering, where he remained eight years engaged in lecturing, and in conducting laboratory and research work.

In 1899 he gave up his profession for the purpose of devoting himself entirely to Christian Science work, and was a practitioner, reader and teacher in Baltimore, and publication committee for Maryland and the District of Columbia. In 1902 he was elected first reader of the Mother church in Boston for a term of three years, and subsequently was made president of the church and a lecturer.

In 1906 he was called to Concord, New Hampshire, to become the first reader of the Christian Science church of that city, and has recently completed his three-year term of office there.

Take Out Papers for Nominations as Councilmen

Papers were taken out Friday for Charles C. Hearn as Republican candidate for Councilman from Ward One.

Republican nomination papers will be opened tonight at 8 o'clock.

A meeting of the Democratic City Committee was held last evening at which there was a general talk on matters pertaining to the coming election. Chairman McGilvray spoke of the good work done during the campaign. Michael T. Sullivan, the party candidate for Representative from the Fifth district, was present and spoke briefly. He said he felt very much encouraged from the reports that he had received, and the indications were that he had a good chance of winning out.

Archie Thayer has taken out papers as Democratic candidate for Councilman from Ward One.

There seems likely to be a contest over Ward Committee in the Quincy Point ward, as two lists are in circulation.

Richard Gray has taken out papers for Democratic Councilman from Ward Three.

Harry Boyd has taken out papers for Democratic Councilman from Ward Four.

Papers are being circulated for John D. McKay as Republican candidate for Councilman from Ward One.

Ward Four was surprised last night when it was announced that ex-Sergeant Dominic Stanton of the 49th New York Regiment had taken out papers for Democratic candidate for City Council from the ward. Mr. Stanton is one of the best known men in West Quincy and for many years it was hoped that he would go to the Council. He had full charge of the Holy Name Society's parade at the centennial in Boston recently and has made his name famous in the army as an orator. He is expected to carry both caucus and election with the biggest majority ever given in Ward Four.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered to David Mundie last night at his home on Common street by his many friends. Miss Isabelle Smollett presented a gold signet ring to Mr. Mundie with a short speech and then music, dancing and singing were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Reginald M. Hull, late secretary of the Boston Finance commission, is to address the Men's club of St. Chrysostom's church on Monday evening. Mr. Hull is announced as coming with a message worth hearing.
